Jet Barely Misses Plane Carrying Braves Ball Team

Club Flying Home After Playing Team in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Milwaukee Braves head homeward today with mixed feelings about a brief visit to Canada, having been fanned by a fighter jet at 9,000 feet over Montreal.

The Braves, enroute Tuesday to play their farm cousins, the Quebec Braves, were flying along in a chartered plane when a Canadian F-86 Sabre jet whistled closely past them over Montreal.

In Montreal the jet was identified as a test plane belonging to Canadair Limited which produces Sabres at its plant in suburban Cartierville.

A company spokesman said the company now is investigating the incident and may make a statement later.

Manager Charlie Grimm and his men did not appear upset by the air incident, although declaring the jet came extremely close. There was no official word as to the exact identity or home base of the jet.

INVESTIGATION LIKELY

But the incident likely will be investigated thoroughly. Near-collisions have been subject of House of Commons debate since a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane and an RCAF Harvard trainer collided near Moose Jaw, Sask., April 8, 1954, killing 37 persons.

Braves, meanwhile, were scheduled to take off at 11 a.m. ADT today for New York, for a scheduled game against Brooklyn. Tuesday night they won a 10-inning 5-3 victory over Quebec. The game passed with no mention of the incident, which was first reported from Montreal.

Grimm, queried about the Montreal report, declared:

"I don't know that it is that serious. As a matter of fact, I was sleeping at the time and was told about it by the players. It was just a matter of one of those things. A plane went by, and we ducked under it."

The Americans—some of whom had not visited Canada before—thought for a moment the fighter had been sent up to buzz the foreign airliner as an unidentified plane.

SCARED, SAYS REPORTER

"They were plenty scared naturally," said Lou Chapman, a reporter from the Milwaukee Sentinel, one of three newspaper men aboard the plane.

First baseman Eddie Mathews said half the team was asleep when the incident occurred, and "the other half thought nothing of it. We had forgotten all about it before arriving here in Quebec.

After the exhibition game, "we all went out and sampled French food, although I personally went for Chinese food. That's how much we thought about it."

JET PILOT WAVED

Reporter Chapman said the jet pilot waved a friendly greeting and did a roll as he flashed into the distance.

Co-pilot Carroll Berger of the Capital Airlines plane said the fighter was about 500 yards away when he saw it. He said he turned sharply to the left as the jet whizzed over the transport's right wing, at an estimated 400 miles an hour.

Chapman said the airliner skidded violently in the turn, leaving many of the players shaken. But there were no injuries.

Southpaw Swing Was Not in Book Of Judo Teacher

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Ruby Solomon, feeling pretty confident after a session of judo instruction with the sheriff's women's reserve, went home Tuesday and asked her husband, Ben:

"Swing at me."

Mrs. Solomon raised her left hand to ward off the blow, just as the judo teacher had indicated. Ben caught her with a haymaker and Mrs. Solomon realized she had forgotten one thing—Ben is a southpaw.

Indian Trapper Killed by Bear In North Ontario

KENORA (CP)—Ontario provincial police said today an Indian trapper was killed by a bear in the bush 200 miles north of here May 5. They said other Indians buried his remains.

Insp. T. G. Corsie, head of the provincial police detachment at this northwestern Ontario town, identified the man as Solomon Walker, 61, of the Island lake Indian band.

He said Walker was killed on a trapline 60 miles east of the Manitoba boundary.

Advance Polls For Election Open Thursday

TORONTO (CP)—First votes in the Ontario general election will be cast Thursday with the opening of advance polls.

The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. (EDT) Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The three days are for voters who expect to be absent June 9 from their electoral districts.

Advance ballot boxes, however, will be opened at 8 p.m. June 9, the same time as those containing the general vote.

Official riding totals will be delayed until the arrival of armed services votes, some from overseas units. No changes occurred in the 1945 election with the arrival of service votes but they could be a factor in a close contest.

UNSAFE EVEN IN HOUSE

DETROIT (AP) — Mrs. Bessie Johnson, 29, was severely injured Tuesday by an automobile as she swept her living room floor. An out-of-control car driven by Mrs. Minnie Thompson, 68, crashed through the side of the house, pinning Mrs. Johnson against a wall. Mrs. Thompson escaped with minor injuries.

Today's Chuckle

A woman with a reputation as a man-hater announced suddenly that she was going to be married.

"Goodness!" exclaimed a friend. "I thought you despised all men."

"Oh, I do," replied the bride-to-be, "but this man asked me to marry him."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The ridge of high pressure which brought sunny weather to northern Ontario and Michigan Tuesday is moving very slowly eastward, and clearing weather which has been carried in earlier forecasts for southern Ontario will be delayed another day. Clouds will cover much of the sky in southern regions again today, and sunny weather will be confined to northern Ontario and western sections of southern Ontario. On Thursday, the sunny weather will edge over a little more, but eastern counties will be cloudy for another day.

Premier Frost Greets Supporters

Well over 700 party supporters were on hand to greet Premier Leslie Frost at the Belleville Collegiate last night as he spoke in support of three Progressive Conservative candidates in the ridings of East and West Hastings and Prince Edward-Lennox. Mr. Frost is shown above (second from left), with W. E. Sandercock and Roscoe Robson, candidates for Hastings West and East, respectively, and Norris Whitney, candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox.

CONSERVATIVES DEMAND REVIEW OF GOVT. SPENDING

Opposition Requests Independent Committee

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative Opposition is demanding that an independent commission review the whole field of government operations and spending.

Opposition Leader Drew said in the Commons Tuesday the investigation could bring enormous savings in public fonds by recommending business-like ways of running the government.

The commission, he said, could get the facts on government spending which were hidden to Parliament behind closed doors.

"Wherever any door has been opened, it has been found that savings could be made by more efficient methods. . . ."

J. M. Macdonnell, the party's financial critic, said few cabinet ministers are experienced business administrators. The expense of an inquiry would be trivial and the likelihood of savings enormous.

The proposal for a commission inquiry into "the organization of the various departments" of government was made by Mr. Macdonnell as an amendment to a government supply motion and thus became a motion of non-confidence in the government.

Debate on the proposal continues today.

French Birdman Foiled in His Plan To Show Britons How Wings Work

LEEDS, Eng. (Reuters) — The world's most persistent "birdman" folded his huge orange wings Tuesday and called off his first attempted demonstration outside his native France.

Leo Valentin, 36, ran into trouble from the moment he set foot in Britain to test his new, rudder-controlled plywood wings. They measure nine feet across and are fitted to a tight steel corset on his body.

The birdman has soared eagle-like as far as three miles in skies over France and established a national reputation after being scoffed at for years. He has glided several times from 9,000 feet altitude down to about 1,200 feet and landed by conventional parachute.

British customs officials took a dim view of his claim to pioneering man's age-old dream and particularly to the importation of the wood wings for a demonstration. They couldn't find any regulations about such imports and argued against allowing them inside the country without a licence.

Valentin, a wartime paratrooper who fought for the Free French, finally won the argument only to have his feathers ruffled again an hour later.

Police said the bulky wings, strapped to the top of an automobile, obstructed traffic and were a menace.

But the crowning difficulties came Monday after Valentin was strapped to a wing of the plane for the start of the demonstration at 9,000 feet. The plane took off neatly but was forced down a few minutes later with an oil leak.

The birdman announced he would demonstrate his wings Tuesday, but the rented plane was still faulty. Exasperated, Valentin called off the show but promised to return "some time later."

Frost Says Statements Made By Oliver Dishonest, Untrue In Election Address at BCI

Premier Leslie M. Frost, in dead seriousness, Tuesday night called Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver's accusations of graft and greed in the highways scandal "so unfair and dishonest that it raises the question of the sincerity of the whole campaign of the opposition."

The Premier described Mr. Oliver's statements about losses in the highways department as "reckless statements," "utterly, completely and totally wrong," "completely untrue in every aspect," "no foundation in fact or in fancy," "an outright lie."

In launching what was undoubtedly one of his bitterest attacks on Mr. Oliver of the present campaign, Premier Frost repeated what he has said in the legislature, "The people of Ontario would not lose one cent in connection with these (highway) matters."

Premier Frost devoted most of his 65-minute address to over 700 Conservative supporters in the Belleville Collegiate auditorium to a "refutation, right down the line" of Oliver's charges of a highway scandal and in an explanation of the Hydro frequency conversion and the letting of a contract to Canadian Comstock Co.

Present on the platform with the Premier were candidates: Elmer W. Sandercock, Hastings West; Roscoe Robson, Hastings East; Norris Whitney, Prince Edward-Lennox; and Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare from Northumberland.

CALL TENDERS SOON

Mr. Frost prefaced his remarks about the highways department by stating that work scheduled to be done in Hastings West and Hastings East would amount to some $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

He stated that pre-engineering work on a bridge over the Trent River to cost about $1,500,000 had been completed and that he expected tenders to be called this month. He also said that he expected tenders to be called for a bridge over the Moira River in the near future. A bridge over the Shannonville ravine was expected to cost about as much as a bridge over the Trent river.

In speaking of the frequency conversion Mr. Frost said that "in 1948 the Comstock Company was the only company with the personnel, experience and facilities to do the job."

He pointed out that the L. K. Comstock Co. of New York had done "a great job" in California converting 50-cycle to 60-cycle power.

"Canadian Comstock had the information, experience and key personnel available to do this immense job," said Mr. Frost.

In commenting on Mr. Oliver's charge that original estimates for the work are now about half of what the job will cost, Premier Frost stated "it is quite true that original estimates have doubled. But there are a million more people and twice as many items to convert in Ontario as there were, when the original estimates were made."

WORK OUTLINED

"In the first year of work Canadian Comstock did work valued at $1,138,000. Other contractors did $49,700 work. In 1954 Comstock did $6,708,000 worth of work. Others did $8,446,000 worth. Independent contractors, who previously had no experience in the work, are now doing a majority of the work," said Premier Frost.

The Premier also stated that last year 280 concerns in Ontario carried out conversion schedules.

"The fee basis on which the work has been done has been lower than the California rate," he said, "and is constantly under revision."

Mr. Oliver has charged that a cost-plus contract with Comstock will cost the people of Ontario about $25,000,000 on the basis of a guaranteed five per cent profit for the company.

"These facts are completely removed from the story the leader of the opposition makes of the serious and important matter in which he was not interested in asking a single, solitary question in committee."

Premier Frost, in saying that he was going to the St. Lawrence valley area the following day, said of the seaway and power project, "this great project was started by a government willing and anxious to work for the people of Ontario in co-operation with the Federal government, the United States, and all the proper power authorities. We have accomplished what others in this province have talked of for 40 years."

Premier Frost opened his address by saying that he preferred "to talk about the business of the people, of the expansion and development of resources, the environment of business."

He saw Ontario's expansion as a reflection of the increase in population of 1,250,000 in the past 12 years. He cited the betterment of roads, the building of schools, the extension and strengthening of the hospital system and the extension of Hydro as "the things Canadians seek in their lifetime."

44 PORT ARTHUR TEACHERS RESIGN IN WAGE DISPUTE

Minimum Offered New Teachers Cause

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—In a dispute over wage settlements given to 11 newly-hired teachers, 44 of this city's 58 secondary school teachers have resigned.

The mass resignation came Tuesday because the deadline for resigning in any academic year is June 1. The resigning teachers will complete their year's work.

W. J. Griffis, business administrator for the Port Arthur Board of Education said, "We don't feel there is a dispute." He said the board considers that the five-year agreement made three years ago is still in effect.

Under that agreement the teachers were given an immediate $350 increase and a $100 annual bonus in addition to their regular $200 annual increment.

Teachers now working for the board maintain that they should be given the benefit of increases in the minimum wage being offered to the new teachers.

The board contends that the additional grants they have paid the teachers compensate for the money now being offered to the new teachers.

Procedure Little Different Arranging Date if You Happen to Know Princess

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Like to date Princess Margaret?

There's a set protocol on trying to arrange a date—and how to behave if you succeed—according to a new book published here this week.

It sounds simple enough as outlined by journalist A. Noyes Thomas in his "The Queen's Sister."

Just telephone Margaret's lady-in - waiting at Clarence House, where the princess lives, and say:

"I am wondering if Her Royal Highness would care to join a small party I am giving on (you name the date) at the theatre (you name the show) and afterwards at supper at the (you name the night club)."

The lady-in-waiting jots down the details. In a couple of days you'll be told whether the princess can make it or not—usually not.

If you happen to be one of the young men who has accompanied Margaret previously, the procedure is a little different.

First call the lady-in-waiting.

Then . . . click on the Clarence House switchboard . . . and:

"Good morning," comes a lilting, musical voice. "How are you today?"

"Thank you, ma'am, very well. And you?"

The royal voice will then inquire bluntly, "Have you an invitation for me?"

"M'am," says the young man, I am thinking of arranging a small party for the theatre and for supper afterwards . . . ."

You name date, place and guests.

"Oh, not so-and-so, surely," the princess may say. "He's such a bore."

Once an acceptable substitute is named . . . "Well, I'll try to fit it in. I'll let you know. I'd love to come."

British Factories Starting To Close Due To Rail Strike

Even Great Fleet of Trucks Cannot Keep Goods Moving

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP)—Widespread unemployment threatened Britain today as the railroad strike went into its fourth day.

Armed with 'state of emergency' powers proclaimed Tuesday night, Prime Minister Eden's newly re-elected Conservative government hopes to marshal a great fleet of trucks, buses and private cars to move goods and workers for essential services.

But this promises little or no help to Britain's huge industrial complex, confronted by dwindling supplies of raw materials for lack of trains to replenish them and mounting piles of finished products that cannot be hauled away. Some plants already are sending workers home.

The vital export drive, already hit by a stubborn dock strike now in its 11th day, faces a crippling slowdown whose effects might last for months.

MEN STAND PAT

The 70,000 members of the striking Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen are standing pat on their demand for a wage increase to restore their traditional margin over less-skilled rail workers. New pay rates narrowed the difference last January.

Fearful of setting off a new spiral of wage and cost rises, the management of the state-owned railways refused to go along with the demand.

There also has been no sign of a break in the strike of dock workers demanding bargaining recognition for the smaller of Britain's two unions of stevedores. Nearly 20,000 men were out in six ports Tuesday, an increase of more than 1,000 since Saturday. A total of 120 ships were idle.

PUBLIC REACTION

An almost solid front of both public and trade union hostility has lined up against the striking rail workers.

The Daily Herald, voice of the powerful Trades Union Congress, says in a front-page editorial:

"The strikes have not got the support of the trade union movement or the public. The longer the strike lasts, the worse the public temper will become, the worse will be the damage. Reason must settle this trouble in the end. The right thing to do is to call the strike off quickly."

"This is war against the nation" the Daily Mirror, also pro-Labor, headlines. It accuses the strike leaders of cynical contempt for the public.

Two Men Killed As Railway Lorry Breaks Loose

SHAWVILLE, Que. (CP) — Two men died and nine others were injured, none critically, when the railway lorry they were riding Tuesday broke loose from a motor scooter and was derailed.

The men, all from the Ottawa-Shawville area, were members of a CPR work gang.

The lorry bearing 15 of them came uncoupled from the scooter. Two men on the front of the lorry had their feet resting on the rear of the scooter. When the two vehicles parted they tumbled to the track in front of the lorry. Their bodies derailed the lorry, spilling the other workers along the right-of-way about a mile east of here.

Dervis Borrie, 53, of Vankleek Hill, Ont., and John Armstrong, 55, of Venosta, Que., were killed in the pile-up. Four men riding the scooter were unhurt.

Co-operative Home Building Project to Be Started Saturday

A co-operative house building project that will see 30 new houses built in a new sub-division east of the city will get underway officially Saturday afternoon when appropriate ceremonies will see the first concrete block laid and good wishes will be heard from municipal officials and others.

The project is the 30 new brick dwellings to be built by the Woodland Acres Co-Operative Ltd. on their Farley Ave. site in Thurlow township just east of the city. Construction work will commence immediately and it is hoped all houses will be completed in eight months time.

As indicated above the house building scheme is a co-operative project with 30 family heads having clubbed together. Materials and equipment to go into the houses will be mass purchased and sub-contracts have been let for the major trades.

15 HOURS WEEKLY

The balance of the work will be done by co-operative members themselves who will put in a minimum of 15 hours weekly on the job, working under the direction of general contractor R. L. Sexsmith who is acting as supervisor for the building project.

Sub-contracts have been let for excavations, block laying, brick laying, plastering, plumbing, heating and wiring.

The housing project will consist of 10 bungalows, 15 one-and-a-half storey dwellings and five two-storey residences, all with a minimum of three bedrooms and with a value on the open market of from $10,000 to $15,000. Co-operative members hope to effect a saving of at least 20 per cent in construction.

Woodland Acres Co-Operative Ltd. was born more than a year ago when a group of house hungry heads of families formed the idea of constructing houses on a co-operative basis.

Attracted by the possibilities of substantial savings of acquiring a new home on today's inflated market, many prospective home builders were initially interested. Those who were merely "curious" dropped out but the 30 now comprising the co-operative went ahead.

These men took courses in general house construction, met repeatedly to formulate plans and eventually received their charter as a limited company. The housing site was acquired, arrangements for mortgage money were made and with sub-contracts let the project is now ready to go ahead.

SEVERAL BASEMENTS READY

Already 15 basements have been excavated and more will be ready by Saturday. A sub-contractor will lay basement blocks, then the co-operative builders under the direction of their contractor supervisor will get busy with framing.

The entire project is expected to be completed in eight months but until houses are completed they will be all owned by the co-operative. Then co-operative members will take out individual mortgages through Central Mortgage and Housing on their homes. The housing sub-division is a self-contained project on one street off which there will be four short crescents.

Saturday R. J. Brule, Co-Operative president, will give a resume of the house building project, while brief remarks will be heard from Thurlow Reeve Cecil Ketcheson, J. D. McArthur, Royal Bank Manager, and E. C. Connell, local representative for Central Mortgage and Housing.

Divine blessing will be asked by Protestant and Roman Catholic church representatives, the first foundation block will be officially laid, and the co-operative housing project will be underway.

The general public is cordially invited to attend the opening ceremonies and inspect plans of houses to be constructed.

Ideal of Service To Community Subject of Talk

Rev. William J. Robinson, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, yesterday stressed the ideal of service to the community, at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

In his address, he separated the ideal into separate parts, explaining the necessity of fulfilling the demands set by each to achieve service in the proper spirit.

One of the most important things in this respect was to keep the main goal of service in mind, not allowing it to become clouded by minor issues.

Whether the service work is devoted to the church or a service club "if you keep the main goal in front of you then you can be sufficiently mature to overlook petty grievances," he said.

"I think in all work for service, people become sometimes so enthused about a certain thing and if someone annoys them, they lose sight of the goal and think of the individual instead of the goal."

Another necessary part of service was financially supporting in the proper spirit, community appeals entitled to help.

"I feel rather strongly that if we are going to render service to society, there are certain financial channels that must be supported.

"Then, of course, we have to serve with ourselves.

"We have to keep putting ourselves into service," he said, "because . . . it is that sacrifice of one's own time and effort of putting ourselves into service that counts."

Mr. Robinson also emphasized a proper attitude in and towards the home, as a necessary component of service.

Finally, "a lively faith in God."

"I maintain if we neglect to put our roots down deeply in a great faith, then we become a cut-flower civilization . . . . cut off from all source of strength."

Mr. Robinson was introduced by Syd Rose and thanked by Lawrence Kells.

Allan Cleary Outstanding Cub in Pack

One of the proudest lads in Belleville today is Allan Cleary.

Last night, with all his chums of the 9th Belleville Cub Pack looking on, Allan was hailed as the outstanding cub of his pack for the past year.

For his merit, he was presented with a shield which he bore home last night from the father and son banquet of the pack at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill.

Over 40 cubs and their parents turned out to crowd into the basement of the church for the affair. Among those present were Oliver Owen, president of the local Scouts Association and Phil Allcorn, ADC of Wolf Cubs in this district.

Jamboree talk also was in the air when Mr. Owen remarked to the assembly on the details of the coming event at Niagara-on-the-Lake. In the course of his address he also announced that one of the 9th's cubs had received a high award for life-saving.

ADC Allcorn in a brief address, underlined the importance of the cubs-parents program to the community. He also remarked on the fact that there now is a waiting list of 18 for entrance into the pack.

A number of badges for service and proficiency also were presented to various members of the pack.

Among the head-table guests were the Rev. Arthur Page, A. Janitsch, assistant of the cubs; Al Banting, scoutmaster and acting leader of the pack, H. S. Wilkinson.

The banquet was arranged by the Women's Auxiliary, under Mrs. W. Stovin. Convener and co-conveners were Mrs. W. Robinson and Mrs. Williamson; committee—Mrs. Graydon and Mrs. Bailey.

Serving were Mrs. Millar, Mrs. Alyea, Mrs. Lovett, Mrs. Randall, Mrs. Angus, Mrs. Widdifield, Mrs. Purdy, Mrs. Stephanson, Mrs. Cleary and Mrs. Scarth.

Arts And Crafts Club to Hold "Open House"

The Belleville Arts and Crafts Club under the auspices of the Belleville Recreation Committee, plan open house on Monday, at their club rooms in King George School to close a very successful season.

The club takes great pleasure in bringing to you this opportunity to look into the possibilities for constructive leisure time living through the media of the creative Art crafts.

The highlight of the evening will be the showing of the film "An Artist is Born," filmed at the Don Valley School of Art, Madoc. The film includes such famous people as A. Y. Jackson and Dr. and Mrs. R. Schneider. A number of people from Belleville and district, including Madoc, Tweed, Picton, Marmora, Trenton, Napanee and Deseronto, are also in the picture, which should make it interesting entertainment.

The program under the direction of Mrs. R. Williamson, should certainly prove instructive to the general public, in so much as members will be working on each of the crafts during the evening. Displays have been arranged showing the various stages in each craft from the raw material to the finished product. These crafts include weaving, ceramics, leathercraft, metalcraft and art.

In presenting this demonstration and display, we are doing so with the thought that, as your Community Recreation Association, it behooves us to provide the opportunity for all to look in on the possibilities that lie in store for them in these creative fields. The various crafts that are being demonstrated are all being practiced by many people who find, in them, an avenue of expression for that creative urge that is native to all of us.

During the past year successful classes were held in weaving under the direction of Mrs. Watson; leathercraft, Mrs. Sheppard and Miss Barbara Thomson; ceramics, Mr. Tindale; aluminum, Mrs. L. Sheppard; art, W/O J. McCaffrey.

IN MEMORIAM

McCARTHY. — In loving memory of my wife, Edna Helena McCarthy, who passed away June 1st, 1954.
Gone from me,
But leaving memories
Death can never take away
Memories that will always linger
While upon this earth I stay.
—Sadly missed by husband Cecil.

FRY. — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, William Leonard Fry, who passed away June 1st, 1953.
No one hears the door that opens
When they pass by and they call
Soft as the dropping petals of a rose
One by one our loved ones fall.
But the memory of each loved one
Like the fragrance of a rose
God sends to linger with us
Till our own life's door shall close.
—Too dearly loved to be forgotten by his Mum and Dad, brother Percy and family.

FRY. — In memory of my dear brother, William Leonard Fry, who passed away June 1st, 1953.
Peaceful be thy rest, dear brother,
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly
In death we do the same.
—Lovingly remembered by his sisters, Beatrice and Hilda.

FRY. — In loving memory of a dear father, William Leonard Fry, who passed away June 1st, 1953.
Gone, dear Father, gone to rest.
Away from sorrow, care and pain.
May you rest in peace, dear Father
Until we meet again.
—Ever remembered by daughter Amy, son-in-law Frank, son Harry and daughter-in-law Violet.

FRY. — In loving memory of my dear husband, William Leonard Fry, who passed away June 1st, 1953.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Flora.

FRY. — In loving memory of my dear brother, Bill Fry, who suddenly left us June 1st, 1953.
Lonely is the world without you.
Life to us is not the same;
But to us who loved and lost you
Dear to us you still remain.
A beautiful soul in a garden of rest,
God bless you dear brother,
You were one of the best.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Hilda, husband Charles and nephew Herbert Dean, Toronto.

Consolidated Denison led the list shooting up 65 to a 1955 high of $9.25. Beaucage, Bicroft, Can-Met, Lorado, Maneast and Multi-Minerals also recorded gains ranging fo 15 cents.

Cheese Surplus Not Existent Says Gardiner

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Tuesday there is no cheese surplus in Canada and all cheese produced in the country can be sold on the home market.

"I'm not saying that all of it is sold here," he told the Agricultural Press Association. "That takes some effort on the part of those who have it for sale."

Mr. Gardiner said he found it difficult to buy good cheddar cheese in the Saskatchewan district in which he lives but there was plenty of fancy cheese available at fancy prices.

Regarding Canadian butter, he said there probably would be a surplus this year of about 25,000,000 pounds due to good grass conditions.

Canadian butter production costs were highest in the world because of the constant winter demand for milk. This was one reason why Canadian butter had to be sold on the home market.

Haymes Wins Appeal Against Deportation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Dick Haymes, husband of Rita Hayworth, Tuesday won a ruling in U.S. district court that he is not liable to deportation.

Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled that Haymes in effect never left the United States when he went to Hawaii in 1953.

The government had sought to deport Haymes, a native of Argentina, on grounds he entered the United States illegally when he returned from a visit to Hawaii.

Haymes had gone to Hawaii to see Miss Hayworth and to fill a singing engagement.

Judge Matthews held that Hawaii is a geographical part of the United States, Haymes, 36, has been fighting against deportation since he was arrested on his return from Hawaii.

In the background of the case is Haymes' wartime record.

Haymes was admitted to the United States from Argentina in 1937 for residence. He registered under the draft act in 1940, but claimed exemption as a neutral alien in 1944 when called for military service This made him ineligible for U.S. citizenship.

Under immigration laws, a person ineligible for citizenship may not enter the country. The immigration service took the position that when Haymes went to Hawaii he had no right to re-enter the continental United States.

500 Already X-Rayed

The mass TB survey at the Belleville Memorial Arena went into its third day today with well over 500 persons being X-rayed during the first two days. First person to be X-rayed after the clinic opened Monday afternoon was Miss Ruth McMullen, secretary at the O.P.P. district headquarters, shown here with Wilfrid Dorion, senior technician with the Department of Health. The free survey, sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen Club and the Hastings County TB Association, will continue until June 10th.

Quick Thinking on Clerk's Part Leads to Arrest of Two For Theft

A detailed description given by a female clerk at a Belleville jewellery store led to the arrest Tuesday afternoon of two middle-aged men, who have been charged with the theft of two diamond rings valued at $500.

Being held by police on theft charges are Edgar Loree, 42, 2024 Mansfield Ave., Montreal, and Clark K. McTavish, 45, of 460 Roncesvalles Ave., Toronto. The two men were driving a late model sedan bearing a New Brunswick licence number.

Two strange men entered the Paul Mercier jewellery store on Front street and after browsing around for a few minutes left the store.

After they left Mrs. Jeanette Barrett, store clerk, noticed that two valuable diamond rings were missing from the window showcase. She notified Mr. Mercier who called police. Mr. Mercier and Mrs. Barrett then walked along Front street where they saw the two men answering to the description of the suspected pair driving south in a car.

Police Constable Thomas Schreider stopped the pair and a search resulted in finding the rings in their possession. The two men were taken to the police station and charged with theft.

Booth's Modernized Store Features Many New Lines of Merchandise

Booth's Radio and Television Limited now is stocking fishing tackle. But that isn't the only line that's new.

When the contractor's boards rose about the display window of the Front Street store some weeks ago, it was apparent some change was afoot.

Just how big a change now is evident to the public. So much so, many will be inclined to call it a transformation.

The business, owned by Howard Booth, which for many years has been one of the biggest names in the appliance business in this region, now has gone further afield into pastures new.

It still retains its regular lines television sets and home appliances, but side by side with them, and all around them, is a storeful of brand new inventory, from shotgun shells to sun couches.

Although many, the new items are not innumerable—there are 10,000 of them as a matter of fact. What has happened is that Booth's now has become an associate dealer for the "Handy Andy" chain, an all-Canadian organization that offers as many items on the market as an Easter bazaar.

MANY NEW ITEMS

Cursory inspection shows that the new items fall under the following heads: Automotive, Gardening, Sports, Hardware, Outdoors.

The automotive display reveals a complete stock of appliances for the car. Listed here are such utilities a seat covers, paints, tools, mirrors, horns, fans, trailer-hitches, auto robes and blankets.

A wide range of sports items is offered, covering phases of sport both home and on the field. These include supplies for baseball, softball, badminton and tennis, golf, croquet and pitching horseshoes.

Lawn furniture also is on sale including chairs and couches.

For the younger set able to stand on their own two feet Booth's is stocking such items as kiddie kars, tricycles and wagonettes. For those still sitting it out there are baby car-seats.

The hardware section offers tools, tool boxes, power tools, drills and power saws for both the professional workman and the amateur hobbyist.

ELECTRONICS SECTION

There even is an electronics section where electricians may purchase from a complete stock of radio and TV tubes, TV testing facilities also are available.

For the outdoors sportsman a full line of fishing gear is on sale. Lines, lures and like articles for the fisherman are offered. For the hunter shotguns and rifles of the popular calibres are displayed as is a full stock of their complementary ammunition.

Such an enlargement in inventory must needs bring a like increase in sales and storage space. It has.

These additional lines have meant quite a change in the familiar set-up of the store on the city's main street. Where once customers treaded their ways through refrigerators, TV sets, stoves and shelves of radios and like smaller appliances, there now exists an orderly system of display. Islands of shelves stretch the entire length of the store, the available space now almost doubled by the new layout.

In addition to the island displays, the walls also are covered with inventory. An interesting feature about the new shelving is that it is adjustable.

The turn of a screw can result in the lowering, boosting or removal of any shelf to any part of the store.

The store itself also has been completely redecorated, the overall effect of the new painting and woodworking job being one of modern trimness. Coinciding with this effect also is the new, angled display window, recently installed in the store's front.

Fisherman Drowns

SUDBURY (CP) — A Sudbury fisherman was drowned and two escaped a similar fate late Monday night when their boat capsized in isolated Mazabong lake, 50 miles north of Webbwood and 100 miles northwest of Sudbury.

Drowned was Jack Brisson. The two who survived are Albert Labelle and Joseph Hurban.

News of the drowning did not reach Sudbury until this morning when the two men returned home.

Pilot Given Ticket

DETROIT (CP)—A traffic officer gave a ticket to an airplane pilot.

Richard Sumpter, 32, was given a ticket by patrolman Herbert Potter, who said he saw Sumpter's plane "flying around at about 200 feet." The prosecutor's office decided to charge Sumpter with "reckless driving of an airplane."

Government Plans to Spend 15 Millions in Quinte Region

TRENTON (Special.)—Premier Leslie Frost, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party in Ontario, attracted an enthusiastic crowd here in candidate Elmer Sandercock's committee rooms, Tuesday night.

The soft-spoken barrister from Lindsay, who also visited Trenton on the eve of election three and a half years ago said he returned "to advocate the value and worth of our cause."

"I come to a great community surrounded by the evidences of expansion and growth. It isn't necessary for me to make promises since the progress is visible and Trenton has extended to city capacity in a phenomenal three years," Mr. Frost said. He stated provincial assistance to Trenton has increased 20 times since he became treasurer of the Conservative government 12 years ago. He indicated that he was not ashamed to come back to Trenton and say "I have done a job for you here."

Mr. Frost indicated that plans for expenditure of 15 million dollars by the Conservative government in the Quinte district were on the drawing board and assured an attentive crowd that work was going to commence right away building bridges across the Trent, Moira, and Salmon rivers. He included construction of cloverleafs at points between Trenton and Kingston in his statement. Mr. Frost indicated that the government was proceeding carefully with the plans and had called on outside experts to assist in figuring the great highway project. He spoke of first tenders being called some time in June.

Among those on the platform with their leader were William House, Jr., chairman; Mayor Ross Burtt; candidate for West Hastings Elmer Sandercock, and Mr. Frost's Minister of Welfare, Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Conservative candidate in Northumberland county.

SPEAKS OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Mr. Frost who at no time raised his voice to criticize the opposition, explained that he could talk at great lengths about the accomplishments of Conservative government in Ontario. He dwelt on the development of vast iron ore deposits at Marmora and credited the enterprise of his mines department for locating the deposit by electronic prospecting in the first place. The mine is now in production, he noted, after some $20,000,000 has been spent. The Bay of Quinte is now seeing the traffic of boats bringing the concentrates to the smelters across the lake.

He predicted great development of uranium discoveries in Faraday and Cardiff townships near Bancroft, that will call for the investment of millions to bring them into production. He foresaw the lives of people changed for the better by the development of these uranium mines.

"I don't think the atom will be used to destroy man," declared Premier Frost, voicing a belief that science will use the atom to improve the future of mankind.

Mr. Frost believes that achievements of a government cannot be added up by columns of figures, or exhibited in bricks and mortar, but can be weighed by the prosperity of the country. He paid high tribute to his Cabinet minister, Hon. William A. Goodfellow, saying that after the Conservatives appealed for a vote of confidence from the people of Ontario three and a half years ago, there came old age pensions for the needy 65 and over, and pensions for the maimed and the the blind. He declared that during the Conservative regime there has been progress in education, equality in taxation and progress in human betterment. He said that the government had balanced the budget and kept the province's credit good.

"We gave the go ahead to the St. Lawrence seaway project," he added. I" only say these things in relation to projects we have undertaken."

"I promise that we will give you in future, as in the past good government," Mr. Frost declared, asking, at the conclusion of his talk, for support and help from the voters.

CANDIDATES SPEAK

Called on to speak, candidate Elmer Sandercock congratulated the local organization on the way it had been working. He invited those present to follow their leader to Belleville.

In a brief message, Hon. W. A. Goodfellow said that he always felt at home with the people of Trenton. He contended there was nothing complicated about government.

"It is a group of people doing jobs for people as they would like to have it done for them," he explained.

He stated that no member of the Frost government showed more concern for his electors "than my good friend 'Sandy' Sandercock." "Support 'Sandy' by giving him your mandate," suggested Mr. Goodfellow.

When Mr. Frost stepped down off the platform he clasped the hand of a stalwart Conservative and admirer Wm. H. Ireland, speaker in the House during the Howard Ferguson government. Then the Premier placed his arm around Trenton's "Mr. Conservative" and exchanged warm greetings.

Machine Track Passes Over Body Of Little Girl

TRENTON (Special) — Barbara Rogers, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Rogers of R.R. 1, Frankford, has a good chance of recovery from injuries suffered last night when a seven-ton concrete pipe-lifting machine known as a Clark, passed over her mid-section near her father's Frankford Concrete Products plant near Frankford, 8 miles north of here.

The little girl was riding on the machine with her older sister, Carolyn, 10, and a younger brother, Walter 3. It is believed her foot caught in one of the wheels in the caterpillar mechanism and she was pulled under one of the tracks. Jim McCloud, the driver, picked the injured girl up off the ground and she was taken to Dr. J. K. Beech's office in Frankford. Given first aid the child was rushed to the Trenton Memorial Hospital in a car driven by her uncle, Arthur Rogers. Surgery was performed by Dr. H. Hutchison with Dr. Beech assisting.

The accident happend at 8.30 p.m. after the night-shift started at the plant.

SUFFERS BRUISES

A sleepy driver came to grief here early this Wednesday morning.

Donald Marshall Palmer, 30, of R.R. 2, Hilton, suffered bruises on both knees and a bump on the head when his car left the highway in front of 21 Carrying Place Road, glanced off a telephone pole, crossed a lawn, skinned eight fence posts, plowed through a hedge and crashed into a tree. Mrs. Paton, owner of the hedge and fence is claiming $50 damages. The next stop for Palmer's early model car may be at the wreckers since the damage confined to the front and right side is estimated at $200 and considered not worth repairing.

Township Land Under Debate At Meeting

TRENTON (Special) — Electoral representatives of Trenton and both Murray and Sidney townships met here in the town hall last night to discuss proposed annexation of township land by the town of Trenton. Representing the town were Mayor Burtt and councillors J. Gould, J. MacDonald and N. J. McNair. Reeve Bernard Wells spoke in the interest of Murray township residents, while Reeve H. Morrow and Deputy Reeve Byron Harder acted as spokesmen for Sidney township citizens. Some 25 interested persons listened to the discussions.

An outline of the town's proposals by Mayor Burtt was well received.

Both reeves assured the meeting that if the citizens in the areas involved wanted annexation they wouldn't oppose the movement. However they maintained that they would stand behind constituents if they wanted to remain citizens of the townships.

The town's proposals will be studied and discussed further at a later meeting.

Walter Brown, CNR Engineer, Makes Last Run

A large crowd of relatives, friends and well wishers was on hand at the Canadian National Railways station, early Tuesday afternoon, as engineer Walter Brown, 276 Foster Ave., rolled a long freight in from the east for the last time.

WALTER BROWN

It was the end of the line for "Walt" who had railroaded for nearly 44 years and yesterday was retired from the service. The two-unit diesel carried in white chalk letters the words "Brownie's Last Run".

A native of Toronto, Mr. Brown started with the railway back in 1908. After a few months he quit the railway but three years later it again beckoned and in 1911 he started again as fireman at Belleville.

Since 1926, he has been driving steadily and since that time has pulled the throttle on every type of CNR engine and train.

"And I have enjoyed every minute of it," he declared on retirement.

Diesel engines are his first love, "They are wonderful", he says.

Mr. Brown completes his long service with the railway with a fine record. He has been fortunate in never having an accident.

Although natives of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make Belleville their permanent home.

They have two daughters both living in Belleville, Mrs. Charles Shannon and Mrs. Jack Kelleher and seven grandchildren.

Labor Merger Obstacles Are Overcome

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR (CP) — Backstage moves have helped clear the way for the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to endorse today its prospective merger with the Canadian Congress of Labor into a 1,000,000-member centre.

Hostility over some aspects of amalgamation was largely wiped out, informants said, at a session that broke up late Tuesday night among TLC executives and top Canadian officers of major congress unions.

Police Blotter

Provincial police at Belleville have been asked to assist in locating Margaret A. Harris, age 15 of Carrying Place, who is reported missing from her home. The girl was wearing a blue jacket, red, white and blue skirt and blue and white saddle shoes.

Raymond Reid, Johnston street, reported that signal lights had been stolen from the back seat of his car while it was parked at the rear of Front street stores.

Suspected break-ins at two apartments in different parts of the city were investigated by police.

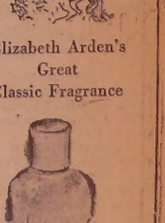
At one of the apartments, over Neilson's warehouse on Wellington street, it was believed children had found the door unlocked. Nothing was taken.

Entry to the other apartment on Ann street had been made in the tenant's absence and paper was found burned on the electric stove, the smoke having blackened the apartment walls.

B.B.C. Re-opens Tomorrow

The Belleville Bargain Centre re-opens its doors tomorrow morning under new management. Since the fire destroyed the premises over two years ago the store has been closed. However, after extensive planning and complete renovations, the store situated at 385 Front Street, across from the old Fire Hall, will open on Thursday morning at 10 a.m.

The B.B.C. has been stocked with a fresh supply of new merchandise priced to sell at moderate prices. The new manager, Mr. James Brett, a former resident of Belleville, is well-known in this district. Mr. Brett has had many years of past experience in all fields of merchandising. He will stress fast self-service at low, low prices. The general public is cordially invited to attend the re-opening of the B.B.C.



Manslaughter Charge Laid

STRATFORD (CP) — A manslaughter charge has been laid against Mrs. Madeline Smith of Listowel in connection with death of her husband, William, 42, last Sunday.

Instructions that the charge be laid were issued Tuesday by crown attorney W. E. Goodwin following a consultation with constable William Sachs of the Listowel police force.

An autopsy performed on Smith indicated he suffered a violent blow to the side of his head Saturday night and died some hours later. He was found dead in bed Sunday.

Police said Smith was struck with a rolling pin.

TRAFFIC ACT AMENDED

Amendments to the Highway Traffic Act, passed by the last session of the Ontario Legislature, came into effect Monday.

The Ontario Intelligencer has already carried two items dealing with these amendments.

One was a report by The Canadian Press, the other a reprint of an editorial which appeared in the Ottawa Journal.

The Canadian Press report dealt mainly with increased penalties for certain offences, such as careless driving, drunken driving and driving with ability impaired by alcohol. These changes may have some effect in reducing infractions of the law but will not affect the average driver, who already endeavors to drive with care. One point, however, may be worthy of note. The amendments provide that crowding the front seat of a vehicle with persons or goods constitutes "careless driving."

The editorial in the Ottawa Journal listed several amendments of a different nature, amendments which will affect every driver.

For instance, in future traffic on the main highways will have the right of way at all times. Perhaps this amendment does no more than recognize a situation which has existed in fact, if not in law, for many years. Few drivers would think of pulling out from a sideroad onto a main highway unless the road was clear. Nevertheless, until the amendment to the Traffic Act, a driver on a sideroad had the right of way over a vehicle approaching from his left, once he had come to a full stop. Moreover, although the Jornal did not mention the fact, an Ontario court not long ago ruled that, while the driver entering a main highway from a sideroad must stop before turning onto the highway, the man who was turning onto the highway from a private lane was under no obligation to stop before entering the highway. No wonder the Legislature changed the law!

Two of the more important amendments are not, as we understand it, yet in effect. One of these amendments says that all motor vehicles must come to a full stop when they overtake a school bus which is loading or unloading children. The Journal says this law will come into effect "as soon as regulations regarding proper signals on the bus have been adopted." It does not say when that will be, but presumably not before fall, at the earliest. A similar law is in effect in many, if not all, of the states in the U.S. It makes sense. Perhaps, though, it would have been well to have made it applicable to all buses, not just school buses. Adults boarding or alighting from a bus are sometimes thoughtless about approaching traffic.

After next January, all new cars must have a turn-signalling device, which will be required on all motor vehicles after July, 1956. But, as we understand it, the obligation to signal a right turn, as well as a left turn, is now in effect. If the car has no signalling device, the signal must be given manually. Signalling devices make this regulation much easier to observe. Their universal use should decrease the number of accidents at intersections—providing drivers use them properly. The devices however, are not foolproof. Any observant motorist will be able to note, on almost any short drive, one or two approaching vehicles, on a straight highway, with signal devices busily flashing. The drivers have forgotten to turn off the signal after making the turn for which the signal was given. Just what may happen when a forgetful driver, with a right-hand signal flashing, comes to a corner where he wishes to turn left is easy to imagine.

What was once merely sound practice for pedestrians is now obligatory. They must walk on the left side of the highway, facing the on-coming traffic.

The Journal observes that the amendments are so sweeping that they should be required reading for all drivers. "Those who want to avoid future trouble should obtain a copy," says the Journal. We would like to add that it seems to us the Department of Highways has a responsibility here, to make this information easily available. The amendments, translated from legal language into a form which the average motorist can easily understand, should be published in advertisements in all Ontario daily and weekly newspapers.

HOLD IT, PLEASE!

Commercial photographers, getting their gear in shape for the annual battle with June wedding groups, must have read with envy that report from Mount Hamilton, California, about an enormous photographic map of the heavens.

The astronomers took 1,246 photographs, about the same number that the average commercial photographer is certain he must have taken any Saturday afternoon in June. But these astronomers took seven years to do the job. Then they pieced the whole thing together and called it a map. Must be nice, the June wedding photographer will muse, to photograph something which holds a pose for seven years or longer.

Only, of course, these stars are not standing still. They were rushing at an even faster pace than the most flurried mother of any June bride. But they were so far away that the movement did not matter. Some of them, in fact, were so far away that when new pictures are taken thirty or forty years from now, no change will be noted on the films. But after all, that will be immaterial. For the photos will not show where some of these stars are today—but where they were 200,000,000 years ago. And what's the difference, between friends, between 199,998,045 B.C. and 199,998,005 B.C.?.

TOO MUCH

(After a visit to the doctor)

Of meat, too much
I eat. Too much
I try to do. I play too much.
I'm much too stout.
To find this out,
I sometimes think I pay too much.

I smoke too much,
I joke too much.
Out late at night I stay too much,
All this I know,
But still I go
To hear it said and pay too much.

I tire too much,
Desire too much.
Of pie I put away too much.
But never he
Will say to me:
"For this advice you pay too much."

What to Do With Old Ties

(Windsor Star)

Gentlemen in England have a perpetual problem not common to menfolk on this continent. It is what to do with their old ties?

Undergraduates and graduates of the famous schools have their distinctive ties. So have the members of certain plush clubs. There is no difficulty about the purchase or wearing of them. The trouble comes when they become somewhat soiled or show signs of wear. They just can't be thrown away as is done here.

The reason: Imagine the embarrassment if some rascal or degraded person happened to get hold of them! Such ties are a badge of honor. They are almost a token of admission to certain strata of society. If everyone could get these ties and wear them, there would be class chaos. The most improbable things could happen, and probably would.

Imagine the consternation if a London dockworker or a Clydeside boilermaker walked into a swank club, on the strength of his tie, and ordered a Scotch and soda!

Should Not Despise Spices

(Wingham Advance-Times)

A good number of people who look down their nose at garlic have never tried it. Neither have they tried a good many of the other exotic spices and herbs which are used to enliven dishes in almost every other country except Canada. Salt, pepper, sage and in advanced households, bay leaves, seem to be the gamut for most Canadian cooks. We doubt if any other country in the world would boast of its "good plain cooks" the way Canada does. You don't have to be Italian or Jewish to appreciate garlic or other herbs used in "foreign dishes." All you need is enough nerve to try them in the first place.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

STRUGGLE IS INEVITABLE

A great prize fighter in this country lays it down as a dictum that if in the ring you are going to hit your opponent, you have to get near enough to him to let him hit you.

There are many people who don't like this sentiment. They like to finish off their adversaries but they do it at long range. One of the best things we can teach our children is this rule which the fighter laid down for himself, namely, that if we are ever going to come out victorious in the fight of life, we have to get into a position where circumstances can buffet us. We win no victories from an ivory tower. We have to be in where the fight is tough. We have to take as well as give. If we want to be able to hit hard blows, we have to get near enough to life's realities to let them pommel us.

Why can we not realize that life is a proving ground, a classroom, a stadium in which we run our race, a ring in which we fight out battles? It will all be over soon, even for those who live to advanced age. The life of the oldest is only a fraction of a second on history's clock. And while we are here, struggle is our key word.

Apart from the grace of God, men fight one another; under the grace of God, they fight their own evil tendencies and contend with the hard circumstances of life. But they must fight.

U.S. View of British Vote

(New York Times)

The early returns from the British general election all point to the expected Conservative victory. In a British election the Laborites normally do better as the first returns come in than they do later, because their main voting strength is in the big industrial cities, whereas the Tories draw their traditional support from farmers, the professional middle classes, land-owners and business men. However, the victors in a general election must cut across these traditional lines. In 1951 the Tories got more than 6,000,000 votes from the so-called working classes.

The Conservatives had every advantage in this election. That shrewd old Tory, Sir Winston Churchill, times it and he obviously knew what he was doing. The Conservatives could have stayed in power another year, but by picking a favorable moment they figure to give themselves five more years—and with a good majority this time instead of the slim sixteen-seat advantage they had in the last House of Commons.

The cards they had to play were prosperity, brilliant leadership, party unity and the hopes of peace symbolized by the top-level Four-Power meeting. The Socialists could not deny the prosperity, but harped on the high cost of living. The party is hopelessly split between the moderate, responsible Attlee wing and the radical left wing under Aneurin Bevan.

The six crucial years that the Laborites had in power from 1945 to 1951 were fruitful and successful on the whole, but they drained the party of policies and ideas. In this election the Laborites had nothing new or positive to offer. The deaths of Ernest Bevin and Sir Stafford Cripps left irreplaceable gaps. The Labor party is going to be faced with a long and necessary period of renovation, both of men and of ideas. And there will have to be a reckoning with "Nye" Bevan, who is the Socialists' heaviest handicap at the moment.

On the Conservative side the picture is all hope and brightness. Sir Anthony Eden, R. A. Butler and Harold Macmillan, who will presumably again be, respectively, Prime Minister, Chancellor of the Exchequer and Foreign Secretary, are a formidable team. The party is full of promising young men. Sir Anthony could rightly boast as the campaign was ending that "at the present time this Britain of ours is selling more, buying more, saving more, exporting more and eating more than it has at any time in the history of the country."

And there is always Sir Winston Churchill, who will still be a member of parliament. It is hard to envision him as a backbencher or as anything but a dominant figure, yet he wants to stand back and presumably will. The 1951-55 parliament was his crowning achievement to date in an incredibly long political career, and obviously he is content for the present to rest on those laurels. But the country and the world need his wise counsel and experience and a way must be found to cast him in the role of elder statesman.

Foreign policies were not at stake in this election. It will be a comfortable feeling for the White House and the State Department to know that a strong, steady, friendly government is going to run Britain for the next five years. The friendliness was never in question with either party, but the Bevan wing of the Socialists could have made trouble on some issues. Sir Anthony and Harold Macmillan are men of independence and forcefulness, and despite the Laborite taunts they are not going to be servants of Washington by any imagination nor would any thoughtful American want them to be.

The Tories sought a better mandate from the electorate than they had from 1951 onward. Britain is still experimenting with social democracy and the Welfare State, still faced with stern challenges to meet the economic conditions of a very much changed world. The traditional Tory principles of protection, conservatism and laissez-faire are ancient history. The new Toryism has stolen much of the Socialist and Liberal thunder and would, by American standards, be considered left of centre. Yet it has "conserved" much that is solid and orthodox in British philosophy. It has more faith in the workings of free enterprise and in the individual than the Laborites have shown. It is a party with a past, but one that has adapted itself to the present and that faces the future with courage and hope.

Little Box Acts as Guide

(William A. Burns, in Natural History Magazine)

If you should drop into the American Museum of Natural History in New York city, you would see visitors walking about the exhibition hall, wearing a grey box over one shoulder, an earphone on one ear and a rapt expression on their faces.

Ask at any information desk and you'll find they are wearing a Guide-a-phone, one of the most revolutionary devices for museum education and entertainment that has yet been developed.

It enables museum visitors to hear carefully prepared lectures about the groups as they walk around the exhibits. As each hall talk progresses, the soft sound of a bell in the ear tells visitors when to move to the next group.

At the end of the tour, which takes 20 minutes in each hall, the talk begins again for new users of the instrument or for those who may have missed the first part.

The Guide-a-phone is actually a tiny radio receiver, housed in an aluminum case that weighs less than a pound. The exhibition halls equipped for its use each contain a closed wire loop that acts as an aerial.

Recordings of the lectures are played from a centrally-located control room, the electrical impulses are carried to the hall and broadcast from the wire loop. The receiver picks up impulses, amplifies them, and the visitor hears the talk through a single earphone.

Recently, the sounds of Nature have been added to the lecture.

You can now hear the roll of Pacific surf on a coral atoll, and screaming of sea birds on the Great Barrier reef, the roars and coughs of a family of lions, the trumpetings of African and Indian elephants, the cry of a puma, the gurgling of a New Hampshire brook, the sounds of a Georgia swamp at midnight, the shrill whistle of an Arctic blizzard, and many other background effects that add considerably to the lectures.

Dancing Problem

(Hamilton Spectator)

And what happens to the fellow with a dozen paid-up mambo lessons left when everybody starts dancing something else?

Chicago View Of Oil Boom

(Edmonton Journal)

We have seen some fantastic prose about the "oil boom" in Edmonton and Alberta but nothing which quite equals the following from the Chicago Sun Times:

EDMONTON, Alberta — Across the Canadian muskeg twist miles of oil pipelines, gleaming wetly like serpents in the pale sunlight.

The fierce red fires of wasting gas — enough to cook the meals of all Chicago — roar from 100 flare pits.

Up and down the broad, clean streets of bustling Edmonton roll the oil millionaires in their limousines and foreign sport cars.

The Texas-size province of Alberta is in the midst of the chilling, almost terrifying excitement of an oil boom.

In remote farm kitchens at night, families talk under the gleam of smoky kerosene lamps about what they'll do when the money rolls in.

The magic word in this north country is Pembina, meaning 410 square miles of trouble lying 65 miles west of Edmonton.

"Bigger than East Texas," say the people of Edmonton with the delightful accent that is their English heritage.

The geologists, men of caution and vast experience, say the optimistic claim may be absolutely right.

Wow! Or perhaps we should say, phew! But there is more in this delightful vein. While readers are still chuckling, we quote again:

Indians, wearing blue jeans and mackinaws of bright green and red colors, plod along the roadways. Ducks, pioneers of the northward migrating, flying up from lakes — still partly covered by snow-white ice.

There is beauty in abundance but also a cruel, treacherous joker. It is a thing to drive oil men next door to madness.

The muskeg, that is.

Muskeg is the Canadian word for swamp, bog or slough. But don't compare it with the soggy areas that may wet your ankles daintily around Fox Lake, Ill.

As we wipe the tears from our eyes, we can only regret that the Sun-Times was not present when the oil boom began with the Leduc discovery more than eight years ago. What a field day it would have had then!

Personal Health Talks

Prevention of The Rheumatiz

Before physicians knew anything about vitamins some of them considered cod liver oil the best remedy for chronic rheumatism. Joint disability lasting a year or more was just plain rheumatiz in the nineteenth century, generally ascribed to "exposure to cold and damp." In the twentieth century the profession was debauched by the mushroom growth of the twin evils, trick specialism and phony "clinics". The operators engaged in these rackets found plain old rheumatism awkward and unprofitable, so they quietly tossed it into the ashcan and gave all their gullible customers a diagnosis of "arthritis."

Now there's a malady a resourceful practitioner can exploit endlessly. And it seems as though the customers never tire of paying for the very latest experiment that gives "promise" of curing arthritis.

I do not mean to imply that arthritis (joint inflammation) doesn't occur. Streptococcic, pneumococcic, tuberculous, syphilitic, and gonorrheal infection of the joint is properly called arthritis.

In most instances of real arthritis, if the trouble lasts more than year, there is a history of acute inflammation in the beginning—heat, pain, redness, and swelling of the joint, usually associated with some elevation of body temperature (fever).

In chronic rheumatiz there's no such history, as a rule. The trouble develops gradually—in any weather or climate, in any walk of life—month by month or year by year advances from bad to worse unless . . . .

The treatment of real arthritis is not within my province. This is a health column. If you want medical advice, diagnosis, or the significance of any symptom you may have worked up, consult a physician.

Chronic rheumatiz, in my opinion, is physical degeneration of the joint or joints, due principally to nutritional deficiency through the years from early childhood to breakfast this morning.

In the past five years I have accumulated a bulging file of letters from folks who declare that since they began following the advice I give rheumatiz has been greatly relieved or cured.

If my teachings about joint trouble strike you as pretentious or unreasonable, forget what I say. However, I assure you that in any case it can do no harm to follow my suggestions for a few months. At the same time I warn you that it will do no good to follow my suggestions for only a week or two. Medicine might have some obvious effect in a week or two, but it takes at least two or three months to get positive benefit through better nutrition.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON DOCTORS

I have an especial liking for Doctors, though I have used their services sparingly over the years. I worked a part of my way through college by serving two Doctors—good ones, too. And I have the fondest recollections of the family Doctors that came to our home in my youth. Their cheer and laughter were their best medicine, no matter what the ailment.

I have lived long enough to learn much about many Doctors, as well as Surgeons. I have many of their books in my library. I have been inspired by the writings of the great Dr. William Osler. I go to Doctors as I go to a service station to have my car inspected and served each month or two.

It has amused me as the Doctor asks me many questions and writes everything down. I am sure that when I am gone he reads much between the lines he has written, for most Doctors are shrewd and great students of human nature, though they never let on that they have any such knowledge. They know that they must impress their patients with what they have to offer in service so as to create confidence in these same patients.

The Doctors who have helped me most have been those who gave me little medicine and few drugs. The friendly ones have told me that a good percentage of those who call have no ailments except those they have created in their own minds! The great Doctor is that one will teach his patient to have confidence in himself, and forget himself as much as possible. We must live and become nourished, by our work, our joys, and our services to others.

People live longest—and happiest—who refuse to worry and who dismiss all fears from their minds. The mind is a wonderful institution. We have learned but a fraction about its great power, and its ability to guide us usefully and with enthusiasm to our objectives — and who can know the extent of his possibilities?

THE PACKSACK

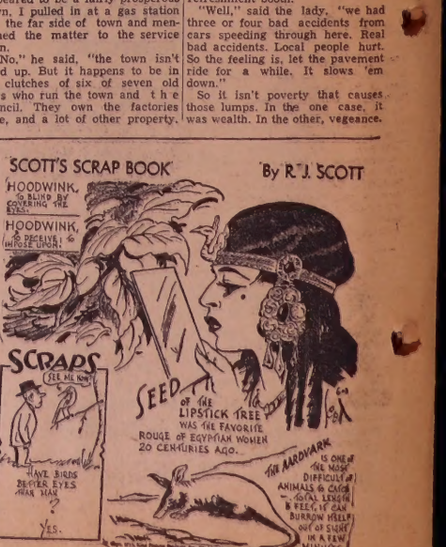
By GREGORY CLARK

When you motor on highways that pass through towns and villages, you cannot help but notice how neglected and even decayed the pavements in some municipalities have been allowed to become. The normal impression you gather from this circumstance is that the community with the bad pavement is probably hard up. In some cases, it doubtless is. It is advertising the fact to a pretty wide world.

But on a recent motor trip, I got some new light on the question. Jiggled and badly shaken by a most atrocious pavement in what appeared to be a fairly prosperous town, I pulled in at a gas station on the far side of town and mentioned the matter to the service man.

"No," he said, "the town isn't hard up. But it happens to be in the clutches of six of seven old boys who run the town and the council. They own the factories here, and a lot of other property. They've got mortgages, and they own pieces of smaller businesses, like stores and so on. They have a lot of influence on the council, and if taxes go up, they're the big tax payers. So they just obstruct improvements, that's all. That explains the pavement."

"Well, what about the townspeople?" I protested.



"We're kind of an easy-going town," said the service man. "We're just waiting around for those old boys to die off."

In another smaller town, where the pavement was a scandal, I made my enquiries at a wayside refreshment booth.

"Well," said the lady, "we had three or four bad accidents from cars speeding through here. Real bad accidents. Local people hurt. So the feeling is, let the pavement ride for a while. It slows 'em down."

So it isn't poverty that causes those lumps. In the one case, it was wealth. In the other, vegeance.

U.N. Turns Down Requests Of Mothers Respecting Births

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations has turned down several requests from sentimental mothers to let them give birth to their babies on United Nations territory here.

It has also put a firm foot down on what one UN official called 'screwball requests" by persons wanting to be buried in the UN rose gardens on New York's East river.

Several persons, including at least one delegate, have died in the UN buildings but there hasn't been a baby born on the international premises yet.

A rumor swept the building recently that a woman had been taken to the UN clinic for delivery of an infant. The rumor was false. But it brought up another question: "What would be the nationality of an infant born in this UN area?"

Answer from UN legal experts: The baby would be American, just like any other infant born outside the fence that separates the UN's 18 acres from the rest of New York City and the U.S.

That would be so whether the parents were Americans or foreigners. Under U.S. law, anyone born in the United States is an American. And the UN follows an axiom that all U.S. laws apply here except those specifically legislated against. This is ensured in the UN headquarters agreement with the United States, approved by a joint resolution of Congress.

Former Liberal Member in Que. Sent For Trial

SWEETSBURG, Que. (CP)—Gaston Ledoux, former Liberal member of the Quebec legislature, Tuesday was committed to trial at the fall assizes of the Court of Queen's Bench on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

Ledoux, who resigned May 18 as Liberal member of the legislative assembly for Shefford will remain at liberty on cash bail of $500.

The court heard more than half a dozen witnesses, one of whom placed Ledoux at the scene of a garage robbery at Magog, Que., April 29.

The testimony was given by Roy Hamlin, shot and wounded by police while allegedly trying to escape from the scene of the robbery at the Belanger garage in Magog. He testified that Ledoux was with him in the garage at the time.

Hamlin, described by police as a former member of the John Dillinger gang, gave his address as Sudbury, Ont., but also said he owns a home at Glenn Falls, N.Y. Police said he is wanted by law authorities at several points in the United States.

Arrested here by RCMP were William Thacuk, 42, his wife Violet, 31, Alfred Lauzon, 52, Bernard Fowler, 45, Sherman Lawr, 45, Murray Miles, and his brother Donald, 33.

Russian Leaders Waiting For Car Enjoy Wrestling

BLED, Yugoslavia (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev, Communist party boss of the Soviet Union, and A. I. Mikoyan, a deputy premier, were not disturbed much when the car taking them from Rijeka to Postojna was stopped by a flat tire Tuesday.

Correspondents following the convoy of cars saw the two Russian leaders go into a nearby field and have a good-natured wrestling match while they waited for repairs.

Khrushchev is 61, Mikoyan 60.

Arrest Is Made In Winnipeg Murder Case

WINNIPEG (CP) — Detectives arrested 25-year-old Donald Earl Hambleton Tuesday and charged him with murder in the slaying of Harold Wolrich, a building caretaker.

The arrest came two days after the 66-year-old caretaker was found beaten to death in the basement of a downtown warehouse office building.

Police said Wolrich was "very viciously" beaten about the head with a wood clamp. He was believed to be the victim of a prowler who had rifled cash boxes in offices in the building to steal $12.50.

FROST SAYS

ASSIST MUNICIPALITIES

"Across the province people like to hear of the possibilities of this land and what we are contributing to it," said Premier Frost. "Many things are trivial in the light of the possibilities of this country."

The premier cited "the great extension in assistance to municipalities," as one of the great changes in the provincial budget in the past 12 years. In 1954 the provincial government gave $165,000,000 in grants to municipalities, an increase of $65,000,000 over the grants in 1944.

"In Belleville and Hastings the increase has been 11 times," he said, "from $247,000 to $2,250,000. Grants have increased 15 times for education in Belleville and the same thing holds true for Stirling and Bancroft."

"For the new hospital in Trenton, of 95 beds capacity, the government contributed $200,000. In Bancroft, the previous government, in the last year of office, gave the hospital $635. This year our government gave $12,000.

"In Belleville, in the last year of office, the previous government gave $8,700. Last year our government gave $122,000. The contribution to your hospital addition was about $150,000.

"This all adds up to progress, to the betterment of the people and the betterment of facilities.

"With all their promises of health insurance and hospitalization, in the nine years they were in office, the previous government added not one bed to this province by means of hospital contributions.

"We are giving you a platform of accomplishments, not promises," said Premier Frost.

"We have a great highways program in Ontario," said the Premier. "One of the problems of bringing the program to the best basis in America is the problem of estimating and engineering.

"It is no small task to finance the immense sums needed in the province," he said.

CAREFUL APPRAISAL NEEDED

He pointed out that financing required "planning and a careful appraisal of the money market," and that some $1.8 billion had been borrowed in Canada and the New York market.

He then mentioned the highways program scheduled for the Quinte district.

"I come here with no bundle of promises," he said. "I promise only a broad development of the province, including municipal assistance, conservation, education, strengthening of the hospital program and so on.

"I prefer not to indulge in trivialities," said Premier Frost, "but perhaps I should talk about the leader of the opposition."

Mr. Frost referred to a Liberal advertisement headed "Who Got Your $28,000,000?" and said it was "totally misleading and the most disgraceful advertisement I ever saw.

"It was calculated to make the people believe that $28,000,000 of their money had been stolen. Some clever fellow in an advertising office figured that one out.

"It is so unfair and dishonest it raises the question of the sincerity of the whole campaign of the opposition," he said.

"The highways investigation was instituted as a business measure related to the job of estimating. I told the opposition leader in the house, these things."

The premier stated that the investigation began in October, 1952.

"In the fall of 1953 the opposition figured it had no platform or political appeal and sought to make political capital of this investigation. In January of 1954 the leader of the opposition began making reckless statements, and he has continued to make them even after they have been proven to be utterly, completely and totally wrong."

COMPLETELY UNTRUE

Mr. Frost said he confronted Mr. Oliver in the House on January 18th of this year with a story in which the Toronto Star quoted him as saying there had been payment for a non-existent bridge.

"That story was completely untrue in every aspect. It had no foundation in fact or in imagination. Mr. Oliver never corrected it.

"Now he is making statements he never made in the legislature. One of the amazing things of the last session was how little he (Oliver) said of matters he now speaks perpetually about.

"On February 2nd, 1955, Mr. Oliver is quoted as saying: 'I promise you will know the real story yet of the $27,000,000 overpaid to highway contractors.'

"He uses 'overrun" in his advertisements now. His February 2nd statements are completely untrue. I told him he was referring to overpayments. Oliver should know overruns are not overpayments."

The premier then stated that in the last six years of the previous Liberal government there were overruns of 40.5 per cent over estimates. From 1944 to 1951 overruns were 30.5 per cent over estimates.

"These things were done under a system in use over 30 years. It was honest but outdated. They were not overpayments."

"In 1952 we started a new system and now overruns are a thing of the past."

In discussing the highways investigation Mr. Frost said that the select committee of the legislature had at its disposal the findings of other investigating bodies and the results of investigation by "205 highly specialized persons of great integrity."

Mr. Oliver had himself appointed to this committee," said Mr. Frost. "He was a judge when he was appointed to this committee. Did he act like a judge? He had no intention of acting like a judge. He proceeded to make fantastic statements with no real basis in fact or fancy.

"Instead of finding facts his attitude was to attack the government which had started the investigation as a matter of business re-organization."

SOME DISHONESTY FOUND

Premier Frost stated that the investigating committee looked into 1,641 contracts and that out of this number "some dishonesty or irregularity was found in six or eight."

"Why lead the people of the province to think that the highways department was dripping with greed and graft. Only three contractors were found in dishonesties. The great thing found by the investigation is the integrity of provincial civil servants."

Mr. Frost then read statements made by Mr. Oliver in Eastview, Russell and Chatham in which he said that $2,500,000 had been given away in one division in 1953; that the loss may reach $10,000,000; and that $10,000,000 spent in the Port William division went down the drain, and called them "untrue, completely untrue."

The Premier said five investigating bodies had looked into details of the highways department including the provincial auditor, J. D. Woods and Gordon, management consultants, the courts, the select committee of the legislature, and "the people of Ontario" in by-elections in Leeds, Russell and Nipissing.

"Who called the by-elections? I did. The government majorities were overwhelmingly increased. In Russell, in the previous election the member had a majority of 10. When Mr. Oliver was through down there in September last year the majority was 3,000."

That is what the jury of the people thought when they investigated the highways matter."

Mr. Frost then stated there was no foundation to Oliver's charge that there has been a stranglehold on information concerning the highways investigation.

"This information is public information and you should know it," he said, speaking directly to Mr. Oliver. "I tabled the judge's comments and the evidence given, in the house."

NO LOSS ANTICIPATED

"I have said it before and I say it again, in the adjustment of these matters by a board of experts, the people of Ontario will not lose one cent. When we found irregularities we went into it meticulously and laid charges in court. In matters of overpayment recovery has been made."

"This government has done a job no other government could have done. This government has done a great work and performed a great service," he said, in referring to a reorganization of the business methods of the highways department.

"Ontario now has the best methods and procedures anywhere. It is our desire to improve them by experience."

Mr. Frost then went on to speak about Hydro frequency conversion. In the course of these remarks he said that Mr. Oliver "didn't bother to attend the committee meeting" at which Dr. R. L. Hearn, at that time chief engineer of Hydro, appeared "to answer any question on the administration of Hydro.

"Not a single member of his party on that committee asked Dr. Hearn a single question. He (Oliver) could have had the answers had he asked and he well knows it.

"Why did he make no charges in the house. He is only a meek, little mouse in the house. He said he would run his own business and that is what he is attempting to do."

Premier Frost concluded his address by predicting great development in the Quinte district with the opening of the seaway and the development of 1,250,000 horsepower on the St. Lawrence.

"I come to you with a list of government achievements," he said, as he called on his audience to assist the re-election of the sitting members, who were with him on the platform.

INTRODUCED BY CANDIDATE

Premier Frost was introduced by W. Elmer Sandercock, and the thanks of the audience were expressed by W. E. Tummon, former Conservative M.P. for Hastings South.

Norris Whitney, MLA for Prince Edward-Lennox, spoke briefly, urging workers to bring out the vote. He expressed his confidence of a Conservative victory.

Roscoe Robson, MLA for Hastings East, seeking his fifth term in the Ontario legislature, said he was "thrilled more this time than any other," because he was supporting Mr. Frost, "the greatest leader Ontario ever had."

"I am told that on June 9th some Liberals are going to support Mr. Frost," said Mr. Robson. "Others are going to vote Liberal with the hope in their heart that Mr. Frost will be returned. In speaking with John Public in Hastings East I am sure that I will be returned to help Mr. Frost form the 25th legislature. I am sure my colleagues will be returned, too," he said.

W. Elmer Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West, said the government "has done great things from one end of this riding to the other."

Mr. Sandercock mentioned that roads had been extended, some 15 to 18 schools had been built in the riding since 1948, that Hydro had been extended to people in the north end of the riding.

"It is a pleasure to introduce the greatest premier Ontario ever had," said Mr. Sandercock. "Even the Liberals admit he is a fine man and who wants to do the fair thing for everybody."

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, spoke briefly at the conclusion of the meeting.

Premier Frost, accompanied by Roscoe Robson, visited the Tyendinaga Indian reserve at Deseronto Wednesday morning on his way to a political rally in Morrisburg Wednesday night.

PROCEDURE

When seated in the theatre, the escort asks on behalf of his guests, "Ma'am, may we have permission to smoke?"

Permission is always granted and Margaret usually takes one of her own cigarets and uses a long cigaret holder.

At the nightclub, the party is discreetly led to a side table.

"What would you care for, Ma'am?" asks the host.

Her favorite menu—iced melon, consomme, smoked salmon and veal cutlet—"just one please."

The first dance goes to the host but the princess is careful to ration out the others to each young man in the party.

In the early hours, usually around 2:30 a.m., the princess is likely to say, "I think I had better be going."

She never carries any money and her lady-in-waiting tips the woman attendant in the powder room 10 shillings.

A few days later the young man gets a letter from the lady-in-waiting:

"Her Royal Highness has commanded me to thank you for a most pleasant evening."

Weddings

CANNON—DYER

Gladioli and ferns formed the setting in Holloway St. United church, Belleville, on Saturday, May 28th, at 2.00 p.m., for a lovely spring wedding, when the Rev. Sidney E. Larman, pastor of the church, united in marriage, Barbara Anne Dyer, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Dyer, to Kenneth Harman Cannon of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cannon.

Mr. Clifford Templer, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Harry Cannon, the bride wore a lovely bridal gown of white nylon lace and white satin, in floor-length, fashioned with fitted bodice having the neckline outlined with seed pearls, and long sheath-like sleeves lily-pointed over the wrists. The full skirt was accented by a frilled front panel of nylon net. She wore a shoulder-length veil of nylon lace caught by lily-of-the-valley and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of Bettertime roses and lily-of-the-valley mingled with white maline tufts and tied with a white satin bow.

Miss Margaret Empey, of Marmora, was maid of honor, gowned in floor-length nylon net over mauve taffeta with lace bodice and matching jacket. She carried a nosegay of tawny, gold roses, mauve sweetpeas, and lily-of-the-valley tied with mauve streamers, and wore a matching headdress.

Miss Shirley Parker, and Miss Sheila Fisher, both of Belleville, were bridesmaids, wearing yellow and mauve floor-length gowns respectively, similar in style to that of the maid of honor. They carried nosegays of Queen Elizabeth roses, mauve sweetpeas, and lily-of-the-valley, tied with yellow streamers, and wore matching headdresses.

Little Carolyn Hegadorn was a demure flower girl in a lime green taffeta frock. She carried a little basket of yellow Sweetheart roses, mauve sweetpeas and lily-of-the-valley, with rainbow colored streamers, and matching headdress.

Mr. Bernard Cannon of Belleville, attended the bridegroom. The ushers were, Mr. Evan Bouvay and Mr. Dale Embury, both of Belleville.

Following the reception, which was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother, wearing beige nylon lace over taffeta with white accessories, and corsage of pink carnations, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in blue taffeta, with pink carnation corsage, the young couple left for a wedding trip to Detroit, Michigan. The bride travelled in a pink suit with white accessories and wearing a white carnation corsage. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Cannon will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Ottawa, Detroit, Picton and Demorestville.

DE GENOVA—BRENNAN

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, May 21st, at 10 a.m., for a pretty wedding when Leona Marie Brennan of Corbyville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Brennan, became the bride of Donald James De Genova, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. James De Genova. The Rev. Peter Murphy officiated before a background of lovely purple and white lilacs, tulips and fern.

The Rev. Sister Wilhelmina, organist, provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, who rendered "Ave Maria" and during the signing of the register "On This My Wedding Day."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Leo Brennan, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white nylon net and lace over satin, in ballerina length, fashioned with fitted bodice accented by a Chantilly lace jacket lined with satin, having a Peter Pan collar trimmed with seed pearls and satin applique, and long "V" pointed sleeves. The skirt of billowing net was enhanced with deep inserts of matching lace. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a seed pearl encrusted headdress, and she carried a cascade of red roses.

Miss Elma Brennan, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in waltz-length nile green nylon net over satin with ribbonette overlays. She wore a sequin-encrusted headdress in matching color, and carried a hand bouquet of Talisman roses and sweetpeas.

Miss Rosemary Brennan, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, attired in mauve nylon net and lace over satin, in waltz-length. She wore a matching headdress, and carried a hand bouquet of Talisman roses and sweetpeas.

Mr. John De Genova of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Fred Brennan and Mr. Michael De Genova acted as ushers.

The wedding reception was held at Club Cedars, Cannifton, where fifty-five guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing nylon organza with black and white background and white trim, white accessories, and corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, gowned in navy blue sheer, white accessories, and red rose corsage.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the bride chose an Airforce blue suit with navy and white accessories, white nylon bolero jacket, and corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. De Genova will reside in Belleville, upon their return.

Guests attended from London, Ontario, Toronto, Read and Montreal.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored by several showers, one at Read, with Mrs. Annie Brennan and Miss Rosemary Brennan, as hostesses; at Corbyville, with Mrs. C. Embury, Miss Irma Embury, Mrs. William Anderson and Mrs. A. Tweedy, as hostesses and at Belleville with Mrs. Frank Liberty as hostess.

23rd Convention Hastings, Pr. Edward W.A. Held at Madoc

The 23rd annual convention of Hastings and Prince Edward Woman's Associations of Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada was held in Trinity United Church in Madoc.

The convention opened with community singing and theme hymn and prayer.

Moira W.A. gave the morning devotional period with Mrs. McInroy, Mrs. Farrell and Mrs. Vandewater taking part, and Mrs. G. Foster singing a solo.

Mrs. A. N. Pyear, the president, was presented with a corsage from her home W.A. at Carmel. Mrs. Brooks made the presentation.

Mrs. K. Jones gave the treasurer's report. Receipts for the year were $600.58. Expenses were $386.65 and the balance $213.93.

Mrs. R. C. Jackson, of Madoc, welcomed the guests. She said the convention is regarded as a means of promoting friendship and helpfulness among the W.A. groups. Mrs. Hodgins, of Tweed, replied to the welcome.

BELLEVILLE GREETINGS

Mrs. Fred Wilson brought greetings from Belleville Presbyterial W.M.S. All women of the church should be members of both the W.M.S. and W.A. "Let us, a group of Christian women, realize the responsibility that has been given us."

Mrs. W. T. Elliott, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference W.A., brought greetings.

Mrs. Pyear, in the president's address, spoke of attending Dominion Council. She mentioned especially the session on "Know Your Church," led by Dr. Winnifred Thomas. There is not an office in the church where the door is not open to women. In all places where they serve the church is richer for the ready heart and hand of women. Quotes from the president's address: "God has a memory for faces, like a mother, so there is hope for all." "Psychology knows the needs of the world, but the church knows what the world needs." "We sit down to a banquet of consequences." "There is no standard of faith for all nations. Man is capable of sin because he was able to put Jesus on the cross. The church has the pattern of how the nations can be a brotherhood. Mrs. Roosevelt (who was in Toronto at the time of Dominion Council) is travelling all over the world, doing her part to bring about a world brotherhood.

"Should we stop learning because we have matured? May we never cease to have open hearts and open minds to learn."

Invitations were read from Tabernacle Church, Belleville, and Grace Church, Trenton, for 1956 convention. Tabernacle invitation having been received first, was accepted.

Mrs. Shaw, of Tabernacle Church, Belleville, sang "Fear Not," accompanied by Mrs. Reid of Madoc.

PANEL DISCUSSION

Mrs. M. R. Davidson led a panel discussion on "The Church Cares For All Its Children," assisted by Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Grills, Mrs. Dobbs, Mrs. Westover and Mrs. Alyea, who each told of work in homes for children, homes for senior citizens and redemptive homes.

Reports of secretaries were given. Mrs. Marsh on "Devotions and Christian Citizenship"; Mrs. O. M. Newton (on parsonages), who felt that some organizations had not been too generous with the parsonage.

Mrs. H. Elliott (on Visiting and Christian Fellowship) said "Let us promote a real Christian fellowship; spend money for good books and literature, which can be used to loan to sick and shutins.

Mrs. M. Crawford as literature secretary, said she had sold 845 pieces of literature and that financial returns were good. She mentioned especially some new books.

In reporting for co-operation with the board of Christian Education, Mrs. Sherry mentioned some work done—donation to Quin-Mo-Lac; bursary for Albert College; providing supplies for Sunday School.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Warren introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. A. Packman of Stirling, whose subject was "Know Thyself." She said, "the world is passing through a revolution, many people are not indifferent to good, but they are confused and helpless. They seem lost and have nothing to which to hold. How much responsibility do we have? We can be proud that God has called us to serve. Buildings are destroyed by bombs, lives are ruined by hate, God is able to re-set the foundation of a new world if only we will help. Each one must begin with herself. Be honest with ourselves. Get rid of the rubbish that clogs our lives. Get rid of the things that hinder. Their strength shall be as the strength of ten because their hearts are pure.' A little African girl prayed, 'Lord, light a candle in my heart that I may see what is therein and sweep out the rubbish'."

Mrs. Packman closed her talk with prayer.

Following the morning session, the Trinity W.A. members served a delicious dinner .

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session opened with a devotional service, conducted by Bloomfield W.A., in charge of Mrs. Baxter, Mrs. Denike and Mrs. Leavens with Mrs. Stanton at the piano; the theme being "How Big is Your Hand?"

Mrs. Baxter said, "Man's progress is measured by his ability to use his hands. Florence Nightingale used her hands to care for the sick. The home-maker uses her hands to make a happy home; King George quoted 'Put your hand into the hand of God'; Christ used His haands in useful toil; His hands healed the leper, gave sight to the blind; broke bread and fed the multitude; nails were driven through His hands. After it was over loving hands carried His body away for burial. His were the hands that blessed. He called little children to Him and blessed them."

A skit: "A Model Executive Meeting," by members of Bridge St. W.A.: Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Wood, Miss H. Sulman, Mrs. Massey, Mrs. Broad, explained the duties of the officers of a local W.A.

Mrs. W. T. Elliott brought to the convention the Albert College campaign and asked for the support of local W.A.'s.

Mrs. Ray Watson, of Bancroft, sang a lovely solo accompanied by Mrs. Hulin.

AFTERNOON SPEAKER

Mrs. H. Elliott introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. K. R. Rose, of Toronto. Mrs. Rose said in part: "There are 206,618 members in W.A. groups in Canada. What great good could be accomplished if each member resolved to make her group the best ever. The W.A. has as its aims: first, to deepen the spiritual life of its members; second, to develop a fellowship of Christian women, to encourage personal evangelism and stewardship. One talent given to God and His grace will accomplish much. Third, to inspire the women to a greater interest in the church and knowledge of what our church is doing. Different groups make donations to worthy causes outside the church. First, we should consider the projects that are part of our church work."

Mrs. Rose spoke of the work done at the Victor Home for Girls in Toronto, where last year a total of 119 girls and 88 babies were given care. All strata of society are represented. Perhaps for the first time some of these girls are offered a normal home life without censure, criticism or sentimentality.

The girls share the work in the home under staff supervision. 11 occupations were represented and ten denominations.

Speaking of work among senior citizens, Mrs. Rose spoke of the Ina Grafton Gage Home where there were 31 ladies in residence at the end of the year and a long waiting list.

The home provides a real home for many old ladies, whose only source of income is the old age pension. There are ten ladies living there who are over 90 years of age.

Mrs. Rose asked for interest in overseas relief. At the depot clothes are sorted and packed, woollens are sprayed to keep moths away. Clothes are urgently needed, so send clothing and a donation of money to ship the goods overseas.

Mrs. Rose also spoke of the new United Church training school where women are trained for mission work at home and abroad. Sufficient money was raised to build, equip, and furnish the school.

Five Oaks is a Christian workers centre where lay people are trained for Christian service. Mrs. Rose outlined some of the meetings to be held there during the summer.

Mrs. M. R. Davidson brought the report of the nominating committee and Mrs. J. A. Lott installed the officers for the ensuing year.

The Rev. J. F. Lane, pastor of Trinity church, pronounced the benediction.

Melrose W.I. Sponsors Most Successful Lilac Tea, Bazaar

Beautiful baskets of double white and mauve lilacs filled each window ledge and every available space on the platform in Melrose Hall last Thursday evening and added a fragrant and friendly atmosphere to the "Lilac Tea" sponsored by Melrose W. I. with three neighboring Institutes as their guests.

The Hall was given over to the small tables, each with its white cloth and yellow serviettes stamped with the Institute crest, where the guests were seated during the program.

Receiving at the door were: — Mrs. J. McLaren, president of Melrose W. I. and Mrs. T. Leslie, a former district president, who organized four new branches during her term of office.

A large window decorated with streamers of blue and gold, the Institute colors, formed a lovely background for the long tea-table centred by a large bowl of mauve and white lilacs, while silver candle-holders with tall blue and yellow candles, and gleaming silver services completed a charming arrangement with Mrs. R. MacFarlane and Mrs. Roy Badgley presiding.

At the front of the hall a hobby display was artistically arranged by Mrs. E. Lazier as convener. Paintings, needle – point, tatting, crochet-work of all patterns, knitted infants' wear, quilt covers, afghans, and rugs were displayed and revealed much talent among the members. A large assortment of salt and pepper shakers was most amusing and drew forth many compliments.

During the evening the following program was given and greatly enjoyed by all: solo, "That Wonderful Mother of Mine," by Mrs. Ewing; accordion music by Mrs. R. Atkins (Quinte Branch); two numbers by a trio (Carmel Branch); duet by Beverly Cook and Marlene Latchford; reading by Mrs. Ewing, (Cannifton-Corbyville Branch); solo, "I Dream of Lilac Time", by Miss M. Blatherwick; skit, "Good Neighbors," by Mrs. N. Crawford, R.R. 8, Picton; press reporter, Miss Ethel Horton, 9 Grier St., Belleville.

Secretaries — Visiting and Christian Fellowship, Mrs. Herman Elliott, Thomasburg; Christian Citizenship, Mrs. K. Wood, R.R. 2, Consecon; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. D. G. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DOES YOUR HUSBAND KEEP TELLING YOU HE LOVES YOU?

Is there anything in the world that means more to a wife than the simple little words of endearment, and gestures of affection, that keep her assured of her husband's love?

Only the woman who is cold-bloodedly out for all she can get in the way of material possesions would rather hear her husband say: "Here's a hundred dollars. Get yourself some new clothes," than "You're the light of my life, sweetheart. What would I ever do without you?"

This need of women to be repeatedly assured that they are forever beloved, seems hard for many husbands to understand. Having followed up their courtship declarations of love by marrying the girls, they apparently believe that the wedding amply demonstrated their devotion in a way that should satisfy them for the rest of their lives. One of the most maddening things many a wife has to hear when she asks a matter-of-fact husband why he doesn't tell her he loves her any more is: "You know I love you, dear. Why should I have to keep on telling you so? Didn't I marry you?"

From a young woman of 30 who has been married five years comes a letter which tells this familiar story once again.

"My husband takes care of me and our two children wonderfully, and we never lack for anything in a material way. We have been happy together, yet something is missing, and that is that he never tells me he loves me. I am thankful with all my heart that I have a husband with his many wonderful qualities, but sometimes I feel really starved for affection—for the kind of loving words, the tender kisses, the little attentions that keep a wife happy in the knowledge that her husband loves her, after years of marriage, just as much as he ever did.

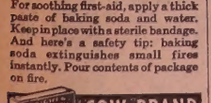
"Do you think I'm unreasonable in wanting this kind of attention?"

No, of course this wife is not unreasonable in wanting the outward and visible signs of the love for her that surely he husband feels deeply within. But the fact is that people have to accept each other pretty much as they are.

There are those who find it easy to express their feelings, and those who find it difficult. To some, the impulsive gesture of warm affection comes natural; to others it is next to impossible. That is the difference between the demonstrative and undemonstrative person, and if you are born one way, it is a task, indeed, to turn yourself into the other kind. It may be that this woman's husband is the undemonstrative type.

Of course most wives can answer this by saying that it seemed easy enough for their husbands to express their feelings during the courtship; that it was only after marriage that they settled back and wanted the wives they had won to take their love for granted. And it is quite true that sometimes failure on the part of a husband to be demonstrative is pure laziness and nothing else.

What I think should be done in a case of this kind is for a wife who feels "starved for affection" from her husband to keep up these small but important demonstrations of love herself, and not to stop them because she seems to get little response.



Let her never fail to give her husband a loving kiss when he leaves for work in the morning, and a big one when he gets home at night. Let her make many little opportunities to let him know, by just a word or two, how much he means to her. When he helps with the dishes, or does some other little chores for her around the house, a quick kiss adds extra warmth to her thanks.

If she will keep on doing these things, she will get a good deal of emotional satisfaction out of expressing her own feelings instead of keeping them bottled up, and some day her husband may surprise her by showing that the custom has become contagious.

Cooking School Review

By Mary Moore

Readers in and around Brandon who read today's column will be familiar with our little offering.

Others of you will be curious to know what goes on.

The news is that we had a Mary Moore Cooking School in Brandon and a wonderful time was had by all—especially me.

Now I am back home at my desk and am ready to do two things, (1) repeat the program for the benefit of the folks in the Brandon area who couldn't get tickets for the cooking school and (2) share the school with readers in other parts of Canada who knew nothing about it.

To go through the four shows with their programs will take some time but I think you will be satisfied with my plan. I am going to give you the recipes as they were made up on the stage by Miss Kavalec, my demonstrator.

Each recipe bears witness to its qualities in terms of a cooking school: attractive appearance; brand newness; speed; economy; flavor.

To go through the four shows shows will require at least 8 columns, so I will space them out over the next 8 weeks. Those who are interested can watch for them. The first two recipes may be baked in the oven at the same temperature—different lengths of time though.

TASTY MEAT LOAF

One pound of shoulder beef minced, 3-4 pound shoulder pork minced, 1-4 pound sausage meat, 1 egg, 3-4 cup tomato juice, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon sage, 1 cup dry bread crumbs, 1 1-2 cups of your favorite dressing or celery stuffing. Mix the ingredients in order, as for a meat loaf, keeping the dressing separate. Arrange in greased loaf pan in alternate layers of meat mixture and dressing, beginning and ending with meat mixture. Bake in loaf pan 9 by 5 by 3 at 350 deg. for 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 hours.

CELERY STUFFING

One cup soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons melted fat, 1-4 cup celery cut fine, 1-2 teaspoon celery salt, dash pepper, 1 tablespoon onion minced. Mix lightly with fork. Use between layers of meat mixture.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES

Five or six medium sized sweet potatoes, 1-4 cup water, 1-4 cup corn syrup or honey, 1-4 cup raisins. Pare the sweet potatoes and cut in slices not more than 1-2 inch. Arrange in a casserole with raisins. Combine water and syrup and pour over, coating the potatoes. Cover. Bake on lower shelf at 350 deg. about 1 1-4 hours.

SAUCEPAN SPAGHETTI

(Top of Stove)

This is a spectacular success. Needs a 3 quart covered saucepan. Three tablespoons oil or shortening, 1-4 cup chopped onion, 1 clove garlic crushed, 3-4 pound ground beef, 6 ounce can tomato paste, 4 ounce can mushrooms with liquid, 2 1-2 cans tomatoes, 1 bay leaf crushed, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon meat sauce, 8 ounces spaghetti broken, 1 1-2 cups water. Place the shortening, garlic, onion in saucepan. Cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add beef and stir to brown evenly, 5 minutes. Add bowl of sauce ingredients. Add spaghetti and stir well into liquid. Cover. When steam appears around the edges of cover, turn heat to low. Cook 45 minutes without peeking. Do not remove lid until ready to serve.

BEAUTY

POSTURE AND BODY BALANCE

So you want to be pretty. You want a neat, trim figure, and you want to be able to wear your clothes beautifully. All well and good. But have you ever stopped to realize the value of posture in achieving your desires? How you carry yourself has much to do with the way you feel, as well as the way you look.

As sorrow and discouragement leave you feeling washed out, so your spirits sag when your body sags. Physical vigor and proud carriage help one to keep cheerful and happy. There is an ever present bond between mind and body; what effects one unfavorably is likely to affect the other.

Poise and grace of movement contribute to feminine lovelness. They do for the body what cosmetics do for your complexion.

Incorrect posture is not only ruinous to the feminine figure but it can be injurious to health since, if the internal organs lack proper support, fatigue and various aches and pains may result. When body balance is maintained there is no muscle strain. The torso is supported with the least possible effort.

Be mindful of proper stance when walking. A light, springy step is good for your circulation and your complexion; also promotes a zestful feeling.

Throw more weight on the ball of the foot than on the heel. Coming down on the heels lends an awkward appearance. Keep the feet parallel and close together. Walk so that a person approaching you will not see the soles of your shoes.

To sit pretty, place yourself far back in the chair with spinal column fully extended. Let shoulders and arms have an easy pose. Cross your ankles, if you wish, but not your knees.

GIFTS FOR WEDDING ATTENDANTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what gifts are appropriate for the bride to give to her attendants? What gifts are appropriate for the groom to give to his attendants? —D.F.

Here are suggestions for gifts for the bride to give her attendants. A piece of jewelry (real or imitation) to be worn to the wedding: necklace, bracelet, a clip or pair of clips of a clip-brooch combination, ring. Vanity case or compact. Evening bag. Pair of earrings. Comb-in-case, perhaps with small ornament as handle to case. Charm bracelet, or one or two charms for bracelet. Cigarette box or case or lighter. Traveling clock or boudoir clock. Jewel box. Short silver or gold key-chain with initialled tag. Silver or gold bill clip. Pen and pencil set. Fitted dressing case or overnight bag. Accessory for desk or dressing-table. Small silver tray.

Summertime funtime is hard on clothes. So keep your youngsters dressed in appropriate play clothes and you'll be money ahead! We've all the short shorts, Bermudas and pedal pushers they like to live in!

And here are suggestions for gifts for the groom to give his attendants: Cuff links, studs and or stud box. Wallet. Bill Clip. Leather traveling clock. Cigaret case or box or lighter. Key ring. Military brushes. Tie clip. Pen and pencil set. Fitted traveling case. Silver or gold pencil. Belt buckle. Collar pin. Silver or gold knife, or combination knife and-pencil. Wrist watch. Leather jewelry box. Camera.

Suggestions concerning these gifts to attendants: . These mementoes of the important occasion should, I think, be lasting. (Not, for example, handkerchiefs.) 2. The bride gives identical presents to all her bridesmaids, and usually a somewhat different (perhaps in design or size) present, but of the same kind, to her honor attendant. The groom gives identical presents to all his ushers, and usually a somewhat different present to his best man. 3. Many brides and grooms make a point of choosing for their attendants presents that can be engraved (or marked) with the date of the wedding and or with the initials of the attendant and or with the initials of the bride and groom.

HER FATHER OR HER UNCLE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For the past 12 years I have been living with my aunt and uncle. My father and family reside in another state. I am to be married in the near future, and I am in doubt as to whom I should have give me in marriage, my uncle or my father. Would it be permissible to have them both, or would I have to make a choice between them? I don't want to cause any hard feelings. But as my aunt and uncle have no children of their own, and as my uncle is going to pay all the expenses of my wedding, I thought it would be proper to have him give me in marriage. What do you advise? — Reader

It's difficult for a stranger to advise about this, for there must be so many personal angles involved, and you haven't explained about these. However, unless there is some extremely significant reason against having your father give you in marriage, and also if you are sure he is coming to the wedding, I think you should give him this honor.

Ascot Chapeaux Problem Solved With 2-in-1 Hat Combination

By MURIEL PENN

LONDON (Reuters)—One of the yearly problems confronting fashionable London women is what type of hat to wear at the Ascot races, especially if the weather promises to be wet and windy.

This year, Madame Susan Mirman, one of the royal milliners, has found the perfect solution to every woman's Ascot dilemma in a two-in-one hat featuring a large cartwheel with shallow crown and below-brim back snood finished with a bow or a flower.

If the wind blows or the weather turns suddenly wet, the wearer merely removes the brim of her hat, leaving a charming, close-fitting cap or Dutch bonnet.

EQUALLY SMART

One model in Madame Mirman's collection is in van Gogh yellow edged with black. Another combines red and dark blue in two equally smart, but totally different looking models, with or without broad formal brim. A third two-in-one combination features a cool-looking, oval-shaped hat in embroidered off-white linen suitable for the hottest summer day. The little white cap left when the brim is removed could be worn with anything and on almost any occasion.

Hats generally this season follow this pattern: they are either very large, for formal wear, or they are small and head-hugging.

For the daytime, they are normally trimmed with narrow silk or velvet ribbon. For formal occasion and evening wear, flowers or tiny oranges or lemons are feajured. Flowers even largely replace the beads, pearls and sparkling diamonds which have been so popular for the last two seasons.

One of Madame Mirman's most attractive after 5 o'clock hats consists of a chignon of red flowers held by red velvet clasps. Original, too, is a cluster of lemons arranged on a black velvet "leaf" and worn well forward over the eye.

FAVORS OSPREY

Osprey is the favorite trimming of M. Erik who shows collections in both London and Paris. One of his smartest shapes is just a cartwheel with matching, or sometimes shaded, osprey falling over the brim and giving a wonderfully soft and flattering effect.

A blue straw cap has a "halo" trimming of osprey. A white hat is covered with osprey shading from pastel blue to deep blue at the brim. The hard lines of a large black cartwheel are softened into a flattering feminity by black osprey.

An amusing novelty in this collection is a satin cap called calypso, covered with satin petals painted with mother o' pearl lacquer in cream, blue and pale green, reflecting the light of the sunny islands of the Caribbean.

Another model, in white pique, is covered with daisy petals tipped with pink.

All the top milliners are featuring cottons for hats this year, alongside satin, velvet, woven straws, braided straws and even raffia.

113 NUNS DISMISSED

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (Reuters)—The Argentine ministry of health has dismissed 113 nuns in six old age and orphan homes. Lay nurses will replace the nuns in the homes, nationalized eight years ago by President Juan Peron, who now is in a controversy with the Roman Catholic Church.

CONSERVATIVES

The Conservative proposal was the second attempt to put the matter before the Commons. An earlier amendment by Mr. Drew was ruled out of order by Speaker Rene Beaudoin because of its references to government waste had been covered in non-confidence motions defeated earlier this session.

Mr. Drew accepted the Speaker's ruling but said Commons business would be strangled if previously defeated motions were going to "wrap a veil of invincibility around the government."

NO CCF SUPPORT

CCF Leader Coldwell said he cannot support Mr. Macdonnell's proposal. It would mean abdication by Parliament of one of its fundamental duties, the scrutiny of government expenditures.

He added that he does not condone extravagances and feels some spending, especially in defence, can be cut.

But Parliament was not playing its role of checking expenditures. The fault was partly that of the electors who had not chosen a more evenly divided Commons.

It was scandalous that the public accounts committee had not met this session. The opposition was as responsible as the government for that.

Mr. Coldwell said the time may come when Parliament will become so ineffective in dealing with government expenditures that something like a commission will have to be called in to do the job.

Mr. Drew said government spending has become the greatest single cause of inflation which has made the dollar worth less than half its 1939 value.

"The lengthening shadow of government now extends over 25 per cent of all expenditures in this country," he said. Of that spending by all levels of government, the federal administration had a 77-per-cent share.

Government was Canada's biggest business. Its spending had grown eight times since before the Second World War. The owner of any private business which had grown like that would seek outside guidance to ensure the business was well-run.

Government agencies such as the CNR, CBC, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and others should be investigated to see where they fit into Canada's private enterprise system.

Mr. Drew referred to increases in various expenditures. He said that since 1939 non-defence department spending on telephone, telegraph and other communications had grown to $7,356,000 from $689,000. For defence branches of government, that item had increased to $6,843,000 from $57,000.

Long-distance telephoning was one of the easiest ways of throwing money away. In most cases letters were just as good.

Will Appeal Term

TORONTO (CP)—William Bilton, 34, was sentenced Monday to six months determinate and six months indeterminate when convicted on a charge of indecent assault.

The former school teacher in suburban Long Branch also received six months concurrent on each of six similar charges involving boys. An eighth charge was dismissed.

Defence counsel John Bowlby said he would appeal.

Albert College Students Exhibit Art Work at McCarthy Theatre

The lounge of the McCarthy Theatre has been adorned for several days with the art work done by students of Albert College, and will continue on view till Saturday of this week. The display is well done, and includes some fine work, and now that examinations will soon be a thing of the past and a long holiday before, it is an excellent time for these budding artists to get out and learn Nature's secrets, bask in the beauties unfolded, and transport to canvas and paper the scenes that meet the eye.

POSTERS

There were several posters bearing on the industrial and historical objects of foreign lands and Canada. Italy showed a vivid band of mottled crimson surrounding a circle enclosing representations of the country's outstanding industry: a bottle of wine; the leaning tower of Pisa and the high leather boots.

Puerto Rica, the violin and the ball, music and games; France, music, dancing and the fine confectionery for which it is noted.

Canada, too, was portrayed and its ten provinces with its sunsets; waterways, garden produce, hunting, wireless, boating, education and granaries.

Venice was also shown with the canal and its several gondolas seen through stately pillars.

IMPRESSIONISTIC DESIGNS

The impressionistic designs were colorful, clear and crisp, neatly executed.

Some black backgrounded pictures, which seem to be gaining favor with these young artists, were interesting, depicting a mountain scene with glowing sun; a home with tulip bordered paths; and one in perspective showing a narrowing gorge with overhead bridge and train.

Three fine drawings of dogs' heads were shown: one of a sad-faced hound, one of a retriever, and one of a Boston Bull, all of which fully caught the characteristics of each type at its best. The eye - expression was especially noteworthy.

COMMERCIAL ART

The commercial art included some fine drawings of an aerial view of a rocket plane with its red and white and blue circles; another WD952 was shown above the clouds, and the blue sky above; an automobile, and a plane in flight. The highlight of this section of art was the ink drawing of an ocean liner docking. Its fine, powerful lines denoted both grace and speed.

A group of pleasing oils and water colors done by Alfred and Bryan Jay drew the attention and deserve comment. One depicted a lighthouse on a rocky shore, wave drenched—a moonlight scene; another was of a sunset showing a group of buildings backgrounded by tall trees done in green and shades of brown, the foreground was a stream reflecting the golden tints of the sunset and the green of the trees.

Another was that of a landscape with a winding stream, tree bordered with autumn skies, and still another done in sepia tones of a Dutch windmill showing a stream with sail boat, was most pleasing, as was the moonlight scene, a miniature of the first moonlight but with a different atmosphere. Here, the moon was partially obscured by scudding purplish blue clouds. A pretty monochrome in soft brownish beige was attractive with its leafless trees, stream and buildings, which lent interest to the composition.

PENCIL DRAWINGS

The pencil drawings were exceptionally well done; that of the hunter being tossed by the rhino; the mustangs resting beside the tree in the vast open spaces, with the winding stream, which later joined the river at the rear running along beside the tall mountains at the back. The winter scene was also nicely done; but the drawing which held the attention was that of the mountain lion crouching with malignant eyes. This was so life-like one could almost hear the meaningful snarl.

The two-master schooner in oils possibly a copy, showed care in detail, and expressed the fury of the wind. The architecture of the old world was reproduced in the reddish buildings with their turrets, the solid bridge spanning the stream, all denoted the versatility of these young artists, and a love of detail, as well as color.

OTHER DRAWINGS

Other drawings included the interior of Albert College hall, the college itself, a basket of roses, a fine racing pinto, dappled brown and white; pencil designs in checks, crisscross and scrolls. A maple tree in autumn dress; purple mountains, a quick wash of color; a well-drawn basket of roses; and various crayon works, as well as an undersea picture of mermaids and exotic fishes; geometrical drawings containing cubes, globes, triangles. One design was done entirely of large and small dots or spots in colors of browns, reds, greens and yellows, which was noteworthy for its clarity.

As a whole, the display denoted love of color, careful design, pleasing sense of composition and merits honorable mention.

Canada's Fault Says Tania Long, Correspondent

CALGARY (CP) — If United States citizens often show ignorance of Canadian affairs, it could be Canada's fault, says Tania Long.

"You're just too good neighbors" she says. "You just don't have enough bad news," meaning news that would make headlines in the U.S.

Miss Long in private life is Mrs. Raymond Daniell, wife and assistant of the New York Times' chief correspondent at Ottawa. She visited Calgary in the course of a Canada-wide jaunt, during which she is collecting material on several subjects such as British Columbia's industrial expansion, the Sons of Freedom, Alberta oil, Hutterites and NATO air training.

WIDE EXPERIENCE

She is a veteran of news service in five countries: Germany, France the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada. An American citizen, she was born in Russia in 1913 of a Russian mother and Irish-American father, who was a newspaper correspondent.

She attended school in Germany, France and England. She went back to Germany in 1938 and became assistant correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune. She went to Paris in 1939 and to London a few months later.

She was married to Raymond Daniell in 1941, when he was head of the New York Times bureau at London, and has been his assistant in newspaper work since.

Object to Limit On Payments To Unemployed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government was asked today to continue payments to unemployed workers regardless of the length of time they are employed.

It was also urged to abolish the distinction between allowances for seasonal and regular workers.

The recommendations were made in a brief presented by the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor to the industrial relations committee of the House of Commons in Ottawa.

The House committee is holding hearings in connection with bill No. 328, which would modify Canada's unemployment insurance legislation.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1, 1955

Oliver Says Liberal Regime Would Revive Cheese Subsidy; CCF Leader Assails Daley

Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said at Cornwall yesterday a Liberal government would reintroduce a subsidy on cheese immediately. Such a move would build up the province's failing cheese industry, he said.

CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald spoke at a rally in St. Catharines, where he charged Labor Minister Daley with displaying a "blatant anti-labor prejudice" in his administration of the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

Mr. Oliver said the Progressive Conservative government wiped out subsidies on wool, cheese and sugar beets when it won power in 1943. Millions of dollars had been paid out in subsidies by the Hepburn government and the agricultural fabric of the province consequently was strengthened.

In supporting Peter Manley, a Cornwall farmer and Liberal candidate for Stormont, Mr. Oliver told his listeners their candidate "will be one of the Liberal cabinet ministers who will form the next Ontario government."

"If you re-elect the Frost administration you will condone all the bad things that administration has done. You will be saying 'Well done, my good and faithful servant. We are glad you have stolen in the past and hope you will steal more in the future."

HITS "INCOMPETENCY"

Mr. MacDonald, making his first campaign trip to the Niagara peninsula, said it is possible the province can "survive the bumbling incompetency of most of Mr. Frost's cabinet."

But Mr. Daley's attitude and actions represent a "serious threat to the good name of Ontario and the future well-being of this province."

The CCF leader said Mr. Daley displayed a "shocking prejudice" in his administration of the Fair Accommodations Practices Act—"a willingness to smear, without a thread of supporting evidence, Negroes as Communists when they are doing nothing more than fighting for basic human rights and decency."

"His administration of the Labor Relations Act . . . cannot help but stir up labor-management strife. But Mr. Daley alone is not responsible for the policies—it is the responsibility of the government."

Mr. MacDonald cited what he said were two examples of the labor minister's administration.

One was where three men, fired recently from Beaverton Plastic Manufacturing Company, registered grievances and were taken to arbitration. The arbitration board's report said the men were fired for union activity, a violation of the law.

Mr. MacDonald said the report ordered full back-pay and jobs for the men, but Mr. Daley refused to sign the arbitration award. Mr. MacDonald said that after more than a month the men still are unemployed.

In the other case, he said municipal workers at Cayuga sought to form a union, but the council invoked section 78 of the Labor Relations Act and at present the situation is deadlocked.

CRITICIZES HYDRO

At Morrisburg, Mr. Oliver said hydro has tried to get land too cheaply in its dealings with persons displaced by the St. Lawrence seaway project.

He said people should get payment for their land immediately rather than having land expropriation proceedings dragging on endlessly. He said the delay serves no purpose and builds up animosity toward governments.

In an address at Whitby, Premier Frost suggested that the Toronto Star, "an old friend" that he picks up for "light reading" may have been engaging in a little bit of discrimination.

He said The Star recently called Mayor Wilfred Spooner of Timmins a Frenchman.

The premier then referred to a story on the editorial page of Tuesday's edition of The Star. The story said the premier with Perth candidate Fred Edwards and ex-mayor Tom E. Henry of Stratford recently visited the home of Rev. Edward Corcoran of the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Stratford because "they wanted to butter up the Stratford Roman Catholic vote without giving offence to the equally large Orange vote at the other end of the riding."

The story said "the ostensible excuse was to pay respects to Mrs. Martha McPhee, who lives with Father Corcoran and is more than 100 years old."

Premier Frost said he had been asked by Mr. Henry to visit the 101-year-old woman whose niece is housekeeper in Father Corcoran's home.

"These things are small politics, too small for our people of Ontario," the premier said.

Mr. Frost suggested if there is anything wrong with the method of awarding highways contracts the man to turn to is one recommended by an official of the Ontario Liberal Association.

The premier was referring to a statement made Monday night at Kingston by Mr. Oliver.

Mr. Oliver said a $1,200,000 road contract was awarded a firm which has never built a mile of highway before. Mr. Oliver said the firm received the contract because the president is a defeated Progressive Conservative candidate in Kent East riding and the secretary-treasurer is president of the riding's Progressive Conservative Association.

Premier Frost suggested that Mr. Oliver ask Deputy Highways Minister M. A. Elson about such contracts because Mr. Elson is chairman of a departmental board which studies and awards contracts.

He said Mr. Elson was recommended to him for the deputy minister's position by Colin Campbell, secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association.

The premier said that Mr. Elson, before coming to the highways' department as deputy minister, was construction manager of a firm in which Mr. Campbell is an officer.

Mr. Campbell was minister of public works in the Liberal government of the late premier Mitchell Hepburn.

The premier said the procedure of receiving and awarding contracts depends on a firm's financial backing and ability to do the job. He had never heard the name of Huron Construction Co. Ltd., the firm mentioned by Mr. Oliver.

FLY GERMAN FLAG

STRATFORD (CP)—Dr. Ludwig Erhard, West German trade minister, Tuesday said his country's industrialists are "very much interested" in opening plants in Canada. The minister toured the plant of Fischer Bearings Manufacturing Ltd. here. The new black, red and gold flag of the German Federal Republic was flown over the plant alongside the Union Jack.

New Breed of Hogs Superior In Many Ways to Yorkshires

LACOMBE, Alta. (CP)—Animal husbandry experts here for seven years have selected, tested and cross-bred hogs to develop a new breed. The result is a white-haired, flop-eared pig which contains the blood of the Berkshire, but not of the Yorkshire strain.

Scientists who evaluated and analyzed the experiments say the breed is superior in many ways to the Yorkshire, leading source of Canada's breakfast bacon. Results of the experiments were announced previously in Ottawa.

They say the average birthweight of the new breed is about a half pound greater than the Yorkshire. The young pigs of the new breed mature earlier. In addition, the scientists say these new pigs have a good temperament and the sows are good mothers.

The crossbreds of the new breed and the Yorkshire appear to be superior or at least equal to either breed in all economic traits.

Work on the new breed started as a result of recommendations by a committee appointed by the federal department of agriculture in 1946. The committee was appointed to study the swine breeding situation in Canada and the work of the department in relation to swine breeding problems.

After investigation of research work in Canada and the United States, the committee recommended that more research be done to improve the Yorkshire hog. It urged development of a white bacon breed with no Yorkshire blood in its foundation, suitable for breeding with the Yorkshire. This approach was suggested as part of an effort towards utilizing hybrid vigor which has crosses between breeds differing in genetic background.

In 1947 the Lacombe station started the work. By 1954 they had produced a hog that was estimated to be 55 per cent Landrace, 23 per cent Berkshire and 22 per cent Chester white. Inbreeding has been held at a minimum. The present level is about 13 per cent.

In 1953 the testing of Yorkshires and the cross-breds of the two breeds was extended to the Dominion experimental station at Scott, Sask., and in 1954 a unit of the breed was established at the experimental farm at Indian Head, Sask.

Additional co-operative tests are in progress with commercial breeders who are being supplied with boars to which half of their sows are bred, while their remaining sows are bred to their own boars. It will be some time before results from these tests are available.

Mining Magnate Provides Bail

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul Payette 55-year-old mining magnate, Tuesday put up the remaining $40,000 of the $50,000 bail imposed Monday pending his preliminary hearing June 7 on charges of obtaining $217,000 from an American investor under false pretenses.

Payette was arraigned Monday on charges of obtaining the money from Sidney D. Blue of Larchmont, N.Y. in a deal involving stock of the Miller Coppermines Limited, of which Payette is president and chief stockholder.

Story Said False

HAMILTON (CP) — Police said Tuesday night a story told by a finance company clerk of being kidnapped and robbed of $1,700 in cash and $3,500 in cheques by three men was false.

Joan Vanfleet 19, of Hamilton, who said she had been robbed, was taken into custody Tuesday night and booked on a charge of robbery. She was released on $2,000 bail.

Also arrested and charged with robbery were Bill Parker, 29, Robert Gordon, 25, and Joyce Clifford, 23, all with no address.

Police arrested the men and woman after questioning Miss Vanfleet.

Earth Moving Machine on Way To Seaway Project

CHICAGO (AP) — A big earth moving machine for the St. Lawrence seaway project was somewhere on the Great Lakes today bound for a site near Massena, N.Y.

Two giant dragline barges, with the equipment lashed to their decks left Chicago Sunday on what has been dubbed "Operation Big Scoop." The barges, which were riding in tandem, had an overall length of 390 feet.

The equipment is owned by the Badgett Mine Stripping Corp., of Madisonville, Ky. The company was awarded the first earth-moving contract by the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., for $1,372,800. The so-called 'monster' will be used by the company to move 40,000,000 cubic feet of earth on the seaway job.

Two tugboats had pulled the equipment up the Illinois river from the Mississippi river and were to haul it through Lakes Michigan, Huron, Erie and Ontario to the Long Sault canal, north of Massena.

The equipment will carve a three-mile-long ditch, 442 feet wide and 42 feet deep, for the seaway.

NAME CHURCH OFFICIAL

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Rev. Thomas B McDormand of Toronto, author and widely-travelled clergyman, Tuesday was named first permanent general secretary-treasurer of the Baptist Federation of Canada, effective Nov. 1.

Will Take U.S. 35 Years to Pay Cost of Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' share in the cost of building the St. Lawrence seaway probably will be paid off in 35 years, the convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress was told Tuesday.

Lewis G. Castle of Duluth, Minn., administrator of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., said the corporation is authorized to take 50 years to pay the debt.

But, he said, estimates of revenues from shipping tolls and power sales on the Atlantic to Great Lakes waterway indicate the shorter repayment period.

MADOC

"Saskatchewan Life" Told By Former President

MADOC — Trinity Ladies' Club held its May meeting at the home of Mrs. G. C. Moon with a large attendance. Mrs. A. Adams conducted the business period.

Mrs. Fred Lane had charge of the program and the devotional was taken by Mrs. Drinkwalter. Using springtime as the theme, verses from Psalm 71 were read in unison. Miss Grace Raney read a poem, "Garden Seeds." Mrs. Stickwood gave a thoughtful article on "Spiritual Housecleaning" and Mrs. Arbic a prayer.

Mrs. Storring read a poem in keeping with Mother's Day, "How is it With You?" A duet in song was given by Jacqueline Storring and Marilyn Devolin, "Whispering Hope."

GUEST SPEAKER

The club was fortunate in having Mrs. George Anderson as speaker for the evening. Mrs. Anderson spoke on "Saskatchewan," being a resident there for many years. The club members were given an enlightening picture of Saskatchewan in the last 50 years, and the remarkable progress the country has made despite the many "setbacks" it has endured.

Mrs. Anderson also showed slides of some of the highlights of the province, which is this year celebrating its Golden Jubilee.

Mrs. Lane graciously thanked the speaker and the hostess, Mrs. Moon, and a social hour followed.

MARMORA

Talk on Electrical Industry Given at C. Of C. Meeting

MARMORA — M. C. Saddler, sales representative for the Canadian General Electric Company, was guest speaker at the dinner meeting of Marmora and District Chamber of Commerce held in the Royal Hotel on Thursday.

President Harold Olsen presided over an attendance of over 30. He introduced visitors and also the guest speaker.

The speaker ably dealt with the electrical industry in relation to Canadian progress. He traced the knowledge of electricity back to Benjamin Franklin's time and to 1882 when its development was looked upon by many in an unfavorable light.

He cited a few newspaper reports bearing adverse criticism in those days which now furnish material for humor.

3 ELECTRICAL ADVANTAGES

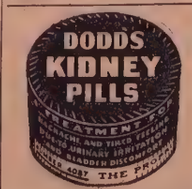
He showed how electricity has brought about three great advantages in that "it introduced economics into our way of life; it furnished great utilities for the industrial realm and also gave us utilities in our home life with promise of more to follow."

"Four-fifths of electricity," he said, "goes to industry. It will continue to grow in demand now it is so well established. Also the demands of the farming communities have sky-rocketted beyond the dreams of the electrical industry. We are all living electrically in this age more than was ever contemplated."

The speaker was thanked for his enlightening talk by Gordon Jarvis.

Following adoption of minutes of last meeting past president Alex. Fraser, prior to reporting as treasurer, a favorable balance on hand, reported that the Red Cross drive undertaken by the Chamber this year, realized $803.50, a sum well in excess of the objective locally for Marmora and district.

DEVELOPMENT ROAD GRANT



Reeve Irwin McCoy, of Marmora and Lake township, disclosed that through the efforts of Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P., a development grant had been received for the improvement of the road north of the village to the Vansickle Settlement.

Donald Marett referred to a report appearing in the press that day of the proposed paving of a mile of road between Havelock and Cordova in Belmont township. These matters, with a few additional ones, were left over to the directors meeting to be held following adjournment.

The secretary, A. M. Jones, was asked by the president to announce the agricultural tour to be held on June 22, starting at Belle Vista Motel at 1 p.m. at which selected farms and a cheese factory would be visited over a fairly wide area.

Grenville Meiklejohn supplemented the secretary's remarks, after which the latter mentioned the tour would end at Marble Point Lodge, Crowe Lake, with a buffet luncheon and dance.

Three films, in which the importance of clean water and its conservation were established, namely, "Freedom and Power," "Pipe Line to the Clouds" and "Clean Water" were viewed with interest.

Indonesia's Reds Spending Money at Terrific Rate

By WARREN WHITE

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters) —How Indonesia's Communists are getting the money which today makes them the richest party in this country is a subject of considerable speculation.

The Communist party is growing faster than any other. It is spending more money on publicity. It has, apparently, no connection with business. Most other parties can at least point to some commercial supporters.

Opponents of the Communists accuse them of receiving money from the Chinese Communist and Russian embassies. So far, however, no one has publicly offered any proof of this.

The Chinese Communist embassy is one of the city's most affluent and members of the Chinese community openly boast of their financial support. They claim the embassy needs no funds from China because money is supplied by local Chinese businessmen.

The Russian embassy, at present consisting of a number of bedrooms in the Hotel des Indies, also is said to have considerable funds available for spending in Indonesia.

Whatever the source of the Indonesian Communist party's funds, its affluence is amply demonstrated by its vigorous rate of spending. The Communists hold the biggest political rallies. To one recent rally in Jakarta, buses and trucks brought thousands of trade unionists and party supporters from neighboring areas up to 20 miles away and, after the speech-making, took them home.

But in spite of its financial strength and organizational vigor, the Communist party still is not considered a major political factor for the promised elections.

In the last six months, the Masjumi (Moslem) party has strengthened its organization and taken a more active anti-Communist line to match its avowed anti-Communist policies. The Masjumi is considered likely to emerge as the biggest parliamentary party after the elections.

The Nationalist party, at present leading the governing coalition, is considered likely to be the second strongest party, with the extreme right Moslem group, Nahadatul Ulama, in third place.

The latest date given for Indonesia's first election is Sept. 29. But elections have been promised every year since 1952 and have been postponed from month to month and from year to year.

If now is 5½ years since Indonesia was granted sovereignty by the Netherlands. Privately, politicians say that they do not expect elections to be held before next year, despite firm official assurances to the contrary.

Jobless Payments By Ottawa Are Causing Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—Indications escaping from closed federal-provincial meetings point to a difference over when Ottawa should begin contributing to unemployment relief costs.

Federal authorities feel direct relief for the unemployed should remain a provincial-municipal problem until the number of jobless is equivalent to one per cent of Canada's population.

The provinces, it was learned here, believe the federal government should contribute to relief payments whenever there is any unemployment at all. At present Ottawa makes no direct relief payments to the unemployed not covered by unemployment insurance.

ST. LAURENT PROPOSAL

The closed talks grew out of federal-provincial conference in April and a proposal made then by Prime Minister St. Laurent. He suggested federal aid, at whatever point in the number of unemployed it may start, might initially cover 30 per cent of relief costs, "increasing to 40 per cent of the excess over a specified figure and then to 50 per cent of the excess over another figure."

The conference advisory body, composed of provincial deputy finance ministers, economists and welfare officials, met Monday to go over statistics prepared by a preliminary meeting of technicians last week.

The statistics were gathered following the April conference to indicate unemployment and welfare costs to provinces and municipalities.

A federal spokesman said agreement was reached on how to interpret the facts and figures. Now it would be up to the prime minister to name a date for a meeting with provincial ministers in search of agreement on a detailed formula for putting the federal relief offer into practice.

RCAF Staging War on 'Skeeters'

OTTAWA (CP)—Mosquitos won't be buzzing around Canadian military establishments so much this year. The RCAF has started spraying operations dubbed "Operation Airspray 55."

It is being carried out by two Dakotas, one from the RCAF's communication and rescue flight at Namao, north of Edmonton, and the other from RCAF station Rockcliffe, Ottawa.

A mixture of oil and DDT will be used in the spraying operations.

Gore

GORE — Local Junior Farmers attended their annual May festival at Tobe's County Gardens on Monday evening where a large crowd enjoyed the fun. Miss Sybil Redner is receiving the congratulations of her many friends on having been chosen and crowned "Miss Rural Prince Edward" on that occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Winston Pulver motored to Lindsay, on Monday, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Pulver's aunt, Mrs. Dan McQuarrie.

Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Redner were in Peterborough on Monday, attending the funeral of a friend.

Several W. A. members motored to Madoc, on Thursday and attended the convention.

Mrs. M. Frame and son, of Northfield, Minnesota, have returned to their home after holidaying at Mr. Lorne Brickman's, and with other Prince Edward relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Morden, Peterborough, and Miss C. Morden, Toronto, were holiday week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Fox and Gerald.

Mrs. N. Vanclief was hostess for the May meeting of Victoria W.A. on Wednesday and Mrs. Alfred Cairns entertained the Centre group on the same day.

Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Redner are being congratulated on their new grand daughter in Oshawa.

All are thankful for the wonderful rain.

MILE RACE FOR BELLEVILLE

John Landy and Roger Bannister started something when they cracked the four-minute mile barrier. Not only did they set a popular style in record-breaking, but apparently unwittingly concoeted a track virus that seems to be gaining in popularity.

The less-than-four-minute mile was achieved the other day by a Hungarian and two Britons in the same race. Other runners will emulate the feat in the not too distant future. Some day some fleet-footed sprint Mercury will crack Landy's world mark—and the fun will start over again.

Mile runs in various track and field events appear to be one of the most poular events. Marks for the distance went high, wide and handsome in several secondary school meets this spring.

Now, we understand, a movement is afoot to hold a mile race, open to sprinters of the district, which will be a feature of the Belleville Exhibition. Tentative plans call for the race to be run on the track of the Exhibition Grounds. Nothing of a concrete nature has been decided as yet but the idea has the blessing of the Belleville Fair directorate.

The idea is a good one. There are a number of high school sprinters in the district—at least 13 schools have them—so the event should attract a large number of entries. It has been suggested that the race be a wide-open affair as regards entries, which should make it even more attractive.

Another suggestion put forward is that some sponsor be secured to donate a trophy, a challenge trophy—and make the district mile an annual event. While a world record will not be broken, the mile race, if it materializes, should be a good shot in the arm for track and field in the district, a phase of sport that has had little attention here over the passing years.

CARRY LOTS OF WEIGHT

Approximately three-quarters of a ton of "rasslin" beef-on-the-hoof will parade in pachydermic splendor in Memorial Arena Friday night. And that's no "baloney." Take Doug Hepburn, Canada's Strong Boy, who tips the beam at over 300, then there's Bob McClarity, Lou Plummer, Pat Fraley, Rick Raines and Sammy Berg, none of them the economy size and all of whom have to take deep breaths when they "want in" a telephone booth. Plummer and Raines, old tag-team buddies who never warranted halos, should split 500 pounds, while Fraley is not exactly a walking toothpick. We have not seen Sammy as yet but imagine he goes well over the 200-lb. scaling. Ray McClarity is no slouch in the ring and he is scheduled to meet Whipper Billy Watson for the British Empire title in Toronto on Thursday night. Hepburn is making his Belleville debut that night and no doubt a large crowd of the faithful will be on hand to see the fabulous weight-lifting champion of the world in wrestling action.

A NEW T.T.T.?

Jack Christie, amiable secretary of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, is a nice fellow. His friendliness, personality, etc., is matched only by that of his charming wife, Dorothy. We have known both Jack and the missus for several years; Jack in his official capacity, and both socially.

During the years it has been our job to report some unusual incidents. This earned for us the title of "T.T.T." (Teller of Tall Tales), bestowed jointly by Mr. Christie and one Chick (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Appel.

Now it has come to pass that we must pass this title to a worthy successor. On Mr. Christie's small, but extremely capable shoulders falls the titular mantle. He earned it yesterday when he sent us the following story.

It seems Jack decided to paint the eaves-trough on his home at 6 Glen Eden Crescent, Toronto. He placed a ladder in position, then was called to the house. A minute later came a resounding crash. "There," quoth Dorothy, "goes your ladder."

Investigating, Jack could not find the ladder. Then he gasped in amazement. The ladder was standing in position on the opposite side of the house. With this assist from the breeze he decide to paint the eaves-trough on this section, but the wind was blowing so hard it blew the paint out of the brush.

Work was impossible so Jack went to the front of the house and discovered the wind-blown paint had covered the eaves-trough there.

The mystery was how did the ladder get from the front to the back of the house, having to travel through a rose arbor enroute? It was not solved until the Christie television set was turned on. It was out of kilter, so an investigation followed.

Old Sherlock Holmes Christie discovered the ladder had blown clean over the top of the domicile and in its travels had jolted the TV antenna out of position. It looked like a gretzel on a binge.

So the Christies returned and instead of listening to their favorite program, "How to Make Both Ends Meat in Spaghetti Balls," from a Buffalo station, they heard a bullfight in Acultapec, Mexico, and Godfrey firing the hired help in a studio in New York.

UPSETS HOWARD

HALIFAX (CP)—Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., scored a sensational upset win over Richard (Kid) Howard of Halifax Tuesday night with an unanimous 10-round decision in a non-title bout.

Howard, Canadian champion and world's eighth ranking lightweight, looked hopelessly outclassed as the speedy Lane, ranked No. 10, hammered him unmercifully with a two-fisted attack that had the Halifax boxer reeling from the opening round.

Howard weighed 138½, Lane 136½.

IT WENT THATAWAY

BOSTON (AP)—No official time was recorded for the first race at Suffolk Downs Tuesday because the fog was so thick no one could see the start.

Not until the horses hit the home stretch in the six furlong test could the customers—or the timer—get a glimpse.

Eke Out 2-1 Win Over Phils As Bucs Blast Brooklyn 6-3; Tribe Edges Orioles In 13

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of the facts of life in the major leagues is that a team can't win many ball games on four hits.

No one knows it better than manager Leo Durocher of the New York Giants and he's far from happy at the prospect of facing the western clubs in 12 games starting tonight with the Cincinnati Redlegs.

The Giants eked out a 2-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night and collected four paltry hits in the process. Three of the blows figured in the Giant scoring. Davey Williams broke it up in the ninth with a single against the right field wall, scoring Don Mueller who had walked and moved to second on a sacrifice.

JUST NOT HITTING

"The pitching hasn't been too bad, everything considered," said Durocher. "There were plenty of situations in some of our losing games when a hit in the right place would have made the difference. But we just aren't hitting—at least we aren't hitting in the right places."

Even the Giants' first run against the Phils was tainted. Herman Wehmeier tried to pick Sal Maglie off first base and threw wildly.

That sent Maglie to second and Whitey Lockman promptly followed with a double, equalling the run the Phillies scored in the first.

The Giants triumph shaved a Dodgers who dropped a 6-3 decision to Pittsburgh Pirates. In the only other game on the schedule, Cleveland Indians pulled to within 2½ games of New York Yankees by edging Baltimore Orioles 2-1 in 13 innings.

LEAD BY 5½

The Dodgers now lead the National League by 5½ games, hardly a precarious position.

Losing to the Pirates was particularly irksome to the Brooks because Bob Friend, on the mound for the Bucs, became the first pitcher of the season to whip them twice. He received credit for a relief victory over the Brooks a week ago.

Friend gave up nine hits and was in trouble only in the fourth when Roy Campanella and Sandy Amoros hit home runs.

Jim Wilson, a tough bird, went all the way for Baltimore and had the power-packed Indians shut out until Dave Philley hit a home run in the ninth to tie it. The only assistance he received in the batting department was Gene Woodling's homer in the third.

Philley set up the winning run in the 13th when he walked. Sam Dente broke it up with a double.

SUPERTEST FOR POWERFUL GETAWAY!

Royals Gain Top-Spot Tie With Toronto

Veteran Ken Lehman, pride of the Montreal pitching staff, has found the International League to his liking while he strives to win another chance with the parent Brooklyn Dodgers.

Lehman, who has had three tryouts with Dodgers but failed each time, gained credit for his seventh victory of the season Tuesday night as Royals moved into a first-place tie with the idle Toronto Maple Leafs, nipping Columbus Jets 4-3.

In the only other games scheduled, the lowly Buffalo Bisons outlasted Syracuse Chiefs 0-7.

The victory gave Montreal a 30-15 record for a percentage of .667 while Toronto has won one less game but has lost one less for a mark of .674. The two clubs battled each other to the wire last year, with Toronto winning the pennant.

Lehman, a 27- year -old left-hander, led the Montreal pitchers last season with a 18-10 record and this year has a mark of 7-2 for a .778 percentage.

Montreal scored twice in the second inning off starter Leroy Wheat, Lehman driving in the second run with a single. Columbus took the lead in the seventh on two singles and a Montreal error, good for three tallies.

Royals tied it in the eighth and Bobby Wilson's ninth-inning single drove in Jim Williams with the winning run.

Bob Trice, who replaced Wheat in the seventh, was charged with his fourth loss against a single victory.

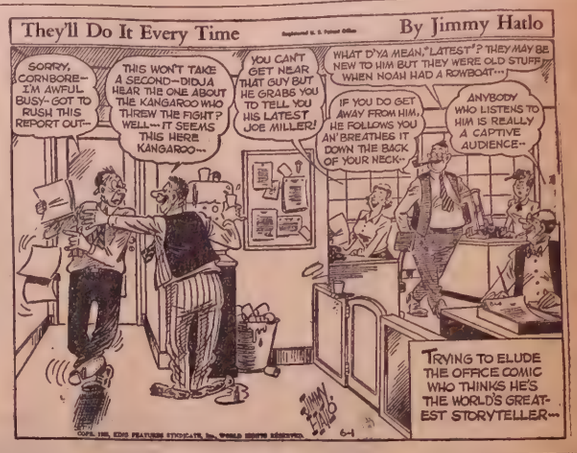
Syracuse outhit Buffalo 12-10, Lou Heyman hitting a three-run homer in the fourth and Mel Clark another in the fifth. Rookie Walt Streuli, Steve Demeter and George Bullard made the big difference for Bisons.

Streuli drove in six runs on three singles, while Demeter got a triple, a double and three walks. Demeter scored four runs, and Bullard crossed the plate three times.

Harold Erickson, second of three Buffalo pitchers received credit for the victory while Don Erickson, no relation, took the loss after relieving Gene Snyder in the first inning.

Brass Tipped Harry Walker

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Baseball fans around town were telling this story today about the way Harry Walker found out he was to be the new manager of the St. Louis Cardinals:



Walker, the manager of the International League Rochester Red Wings, and George Sisler, Jr., the Wings' general manager, were sitting around last Thursday in the hotel suite of Dick Meyer, Cardinal general manager.

"Rochester needs pitching," said Walker to Meyer. "I need a pitcher real bad. Is Stanky going to keep 11 pitchers up there all season?"

Meyer thought a minute, then replied:

"I can't answer that question, Harry, because on Saturday night the matter will be in your hands—you'll be managing the Cardinals."

Sisler swears the story is true. Walker's promotion to succeed Eddie Stanky was announced late Saturday.

NHL Tinkers With Regulations, Studies Present Player Probs

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Clubs in professional hockey spent $80,000 for nine players in the inter-league draft Tuesday but only two National Hockey League clubs dipped into the minors for new talent.

New York Rangers drafted forward Ross Lowe from Springfield of the American Hockey League and defenceman Jim Bartlett from Chicoutimi Saguenenns of the Quebec Hockey League.

Boston Bruins picked one player—forward Orval Tessier from Montreal Royals.

Clubs in the AHL, which have the privilege of drafting from the QHL and the Western Hockey League, grabbed six players.

Springfield came up with three—defenceman Ernie Roche from Montreal Royals and forwards Ivan Tennant and Gerry Ehman from Edmonton, both of whom belonged to Detroit Red Wings and were on Edmonton's list but played with Quebec Aces last season.

PICKED TWO

Hershey Bears, AHL farm club of Boston Bruins, picked goalie Gilles Boisvert from Montreal Royals and defenceman Hugh Coflin from Edmonton.

Cleveland Barons drafted centre Ray Powell from Quebec Aces.

Following the draft sessions, joint meetings decided to:

1. Study, at request of the AHL, the question of draft evasion;
2. Curb extra-curricular schools, training camps and exhibition jaunts for young aspiring players;
3. Take up with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association the question of further reimbursement for sponsored junior clubs;
4. Apply, so far as the minor leagues are concerned, for permanent disability insurance—similar to that in the NHL;
5. Accept the NHL proposal for TV restrictions as a means of helping the minors through blackouts;
6. Move the NHL intra-draft meeting forward, in the interest of clubs and players, so it will come before any fall training camps open.

MONTREAL (CP)—Professional hockey rules committee has rejected suggestions that a minor penalty expire when a goal is scored and did a minimum of tinkering with the rules now in effect.

Minor changes were made largely to speed up face-offs and deal with delaying tactics and abusive language.

The suggestion that a penalized team which is scored on should immediately get back the player serving a minor penalty will be considered further by the Western Hockey League. The WHL may try the rule in the nature of an experiment next season but as a universal rule it was rejected, said president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League.

Abusive language from a team bench will bring an immediate minor penalty instead of a misconduct penalty as under the previous rules. The penalty will be served by anyone named by the team coach unless the referee has singled out the abusive player.

Added to misconduct penalties was a provision that anyone intentionally knocking the puck away from an official will be assessed a 10-minute misconduct.

In face-offs the referee will be empowered to drop the puck if one team is delaying resumption of play whether their face-off man is ready or not. Similarly, regarding icing the puck, if the defending side does not play it promptly there will be a face-off in the defending side's own end.

The referee was empowered to order the start of the official between-period intermission if there is a stop in play within five minutes of the end of the period and if play is not or cannot be immediately resumed. The remaining time will be played after the intermission and the clubs will then change ends for the subsequent period.

National Hockey League to Discuss Gallinger Suspension

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League, its business with the minor professional leagues cleaned up, takes up what appears a routine agenda at today's annual meeting with one exception.

On the agenda is an application from Don Gallinger asking the league governors to lift the life suspension imposed on him nearly seven years ago.

The expulsion was for conduct deemed by the league detrimental to the welfare of hockey and to the league itself through Gallinger's "association with a known gambler."

Gallinger, a former forward with Boston Bruins, is expected to appear personally before the governors So is his lawyer, Ronald J. Reid of Preston, Ont.

THROUGH WIRE TAP

The league acted on information obtained unexpectedly—through a wire-tap Detroit police had set up in investigating the activities in fields other than hockey of one James Tamer, known in Detroit as a gambler.

A wire-tap was not legally recognized in Michigan and details of the allegations by the NHL against Gallinger were never made public.

Gallinger received an indefinite suspension March 9, 1948. Six months later the NHL made the ban definite and for life.

Billy (The Kid) Taylor of Oshawa Ont., a teammate, was expelled at the time Gallinger was given the indefinite suspension.

At that time president Clarence Campbell of the NHL said Taylor was dropped because of his association with Tamer, "a criminal and gambler of Detroit," and for wagering on the result of a hockey game. Campbell emphasized then that no NHL players were involved other than those dealt with and that no "fix" of a game was attempted by any player.

WON BY BOSTON

The specific game investigated was one between Boston and Chicago Feb. 28, 1948. Boston won 4-2. Gallinger did not get a goal or an assist.

Gallinger filed notice of an appeal of the suspension in September 1948, but the appeal was abandoned. At that time Campbell said the grounds on which the expulsion order was based "are not being made public but Gallinger is free to do so if he wishes."

Nothing more was announced by the league or the player. The Ontario sports federation subsequently refused to recognize the expulsions of both Taylor and Gallinger and permitted them to play amateur softball and baseball in Ontario.

PANTHERS OWNER

Gallinger, now 30, is owner of Kitchener Panthers of the Intercounty Baseball League.

Gallinger played with Boston Bruins from 1942 almost until the time of his suspension. While the league was carrying on its investigation Gallinger was traded to New York Rangers. The Rangers were not involved in the affair in any way.

At various times during the last few years Gallinger has been reported anxious to clear himself and have the expulsion lifted. He is also believed to have obtained support for his present application from organizations and individuals.

The application is expected to come before the league governors this afternoon, winding up the meeting.

Nelson Flirts With Comeback

NEW YORK (AP)—Byron Nelson the Roanoke, Tex., rancher who once was undisputed king of the touring pros, is flirting with a golf comeback at the age of 43.

The U.S. Golf Association announced today that Nelson, in virtual retirement since 1949, had filed an entry in both the United States and British Open championships.

Pointers Win Over Madoc By 18-10 Score

A nine-run seventh-innings explosion paved the way to an 18-0 victory for Point Anne over Madoc at the Ox Point diamond last night in a free-hitting Belleville District Softball League battle.

The northern village crew had crept to a 5-4 margin in the sixth when the Ox Pointer bats suddenly erupted paced by Johnny Green's three-run homer with none out. The Pointers added four more in the eighth but with the veteran Pat Maracle weakening in the last two innings, the Madoc crew shoved over six runs in the eighth and ninth to cut the margin.

The teams were all even at two-all going into the fourth when the Pointers shoved over three runs off Roger Mallory's sacks-cleaning double. The Madocers added two in the sixth off a brace of hits and then the roof fell in..

Schofield walked the first two Pointers in the seventh then Johnny Green blasted a towering homer to send in three. Shaw relieved Schofield and he was promptly tabbed for four clouts, including Jake Wade's base-clearing triple. An error, a walk and Johnny Green's single helped matters. Nine runners crossed the plate.

The Pointers picked up where they left off in the eighth, nicking Shaw for five clouts, sending home four runners before the side was retired. They needed it for the Madoc crew came to life with their bats as Pat Maracle weakened. They blasted the veteran for six hits for as many runs in the last two innings, one a three-run homer by Hatch and another two-run four-baser by Nickle.

Pat Maracle went the route for the Pointers, striking out eleven and walking four. He aided his own cause with three singles. Schofield started for Madoc and was relieved by Shaw in the seventh after giving up eight runs for seven hits and whiffing one. Shaw was nicked for ten runs off eight hits.

Twenty-eight runs crossed the plate off as many hits and eight errors contributed to a wild free-wheeling game.

Bronson paced the Madoc offensive with three singles. Nickle had a homer and double, while Hatch had a homer and single. Everyone on the Madoc team hit safely but Carswell and Shaw. Johnny Green's homer and single featured the Pointers attack, although Pat Maracle had three singles. Rog Mallory had a double and single, with Jake Wade's base - clearing triple helping no end. Logue was good for a couple of singles while Bennett, Abelard, Johnny Elliott, Whalen and Gerry Goyer added their loners.

The teams:

Madoc: Sherry, Carswell, Brown, Bronson, Nickle, Hatch, Hagerman, Tufts, Schofield, Shaw.

Point Anne: Elliott, Whalen, Mallory, Wade, Green, Goyer, Maracle, Bennett, Logue, Abelard, Horwood.

The score;

Madoc 011 002 033—10 13 2
Point Anne 020 300 94x—18 15 6

Schofield, Shaw (7) and Sherry; Maracle and Green.

Umpires: "Red" Townsend, (plate), Lum Carson.

The game was the opening clash in Point Anne and was marked by special ceremonies. Mr. Al. Drysdale, acting superintendent of the Canada Cement Plant was the pitcher. Mr. Earle Anderson, general foreman held the bat, while Mr. Harry Wagar, chief clerk, accepted the offering.

Makes Offer To Flyweights

LONDON (AP)—Promoter Jack Solomons said Tuesday he has made "a tremendous offer" to world flyweight champion Pascuel Perez of Argentina to defend his title against Welshman Dai Dower in Britain.

A reply is on the way, he said.

Perez successfully defended his title Monday night with a fifth-round knockout of former champion Yoshio Shiral in Tokyo.

After the fight, Perez said he would be prepared to meet Dower, the British, British Empire and European champion, in Britain "if the price is right."

In London Tuesday night, Dower stopped French bantamweight Pierre Gress in the ninth round of a 10-round non-title bout.

"Just Lousy Nothing Else" Says Dusty

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm just lousy. What else is there to say?"

That was Dusty Rhodes, the toast of New York last year, speaking today as he reflected on his paltry .130 batting average.

Pinch-hitter extraordinary, clutch hitter superb, the terror of enemy pitchers—that was the role the New York Giants outfielder played last year as he cut a swath through the National League.

This time around he has been a bust as a pinch hitter—1 for 16 for an .059 average. His over-all mark isn't much better—7 for 54, including a horsecollar in three tries against Philadelphia's Herman Wehmeier Tuesday night. The Giants won the game, 2-1, with no help from Rhodes.

"I have no excuses," he said gloomily. "I'm terrible."

But he pointed out that there is a slight ray of hope. He's had one comparable batting slump in his career. That was in 1948 with Springfield of the Three - Eye League. He was sputtering along at a .220 clip in July but finally finished up operations with a .304 mark.

Petes Rally To Beat St. Kitts

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Peterborough Trailermen scored 11 consecutive goals after they were down 5-0 in the second period Tuesday night to win their senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game with St. Catharines Athletics 18-12.

High scorers for the Peterborough team were Harry Wippell with five goals and two assists, Bob Allen, four goals, Jim Heffernan, four goals, Lou Nichol, two goals. For the St. Catharines team Doug Smith with four and Norm Corcoran with three were the top scorers.

Kansas Boss Outfits Club With New Suits

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Wealthy president Arnold Johnson made another splash with his cash Tuesday for the benefit of his Kansas City Athletics.

Just what it'll run to in dollars and cents wasn't totalled but each player gets a cut.

It all happened because the As (1) got some of their street clothing pretty well ruined when a torrential downpour flooded their dressing room at Municipal Stadium one night last week and (2) because they whipped the tough Detroit Tigers in both ends of a doubleheader at Detroit Monday.

The team was flying home from that memorable Memorial Day triumph. Johnson, accompanying the club, congratulated his club and told them "I want you all to have a new suit of clothes."

It was Johnson's second expenditure in as many days. He bought the new club's first bonus player Sunday, 18-year-old Cletus Boyer of Alba, Mo., for an unannounced price. The Kansas City Star said the price was close to $50,000 including two automobiles for the Boyer family.

Majors Edge Brantford 6-5

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London Majors made the most of their scoring opportunities Tuesday night to score a 6-5 victory over Brantford Red Sox in an Intercounty Senior Baseball League contest.

Both teams rapped out six hits but wildness on the part of Red Sox hurler Robertson kept him in trouble. He walked eight.

Bob Simpson, on the mound for the Majors, was in trouble only once. That was in the top of the ninth when the Red Sox rallied for four runs on three singles and a London error.

The Majors sewed matters up in the bottom of the eighth when they pushed over four runs, three of them coming on Don McLennan's triple with three on.

McLennan with a triple and Jimmy Wilkes of the Red Sox with a double had the only extra base blows in the contest.

Leonard Seeks Tourney Gold

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stan Leonard, Canada's top professional golfer of the last 15 years, Tuesday resigned as professional at Marine Drive Club here to take a crack at the U.S. golf trail.

Leonard, 40, said the move was "something I have always wanted to do."

He has been pro at Marine Drive for the last [illegible] years.

Leonard said he will "pick his spots" on the tournament schedule for the next two years.

He leaves Saturday for the International matches in Washington, DC., where he will represent Canada with Saskatoon's Pat Fletcher. He will also play in the rich Tam O'Shanter tourney in Chicago later this summer.

Fistic Circus Heads For European Rings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A fistic circus featuring middleweight champion Bobo Olson and ringmastered by manager Sid Flaherty will head for Europe in August for a series of one-night stands.

"We'll wind up in London, probably in September, with Olson meeting Don Cockell," Flaherty said today as he and Olson prepared to fly to New York for a June 22 date with Archie Moore for the light-heavyweight championship.

Flaherty figures — and Olson agrees—that a London fight with Cockell would be a good way—and a lucrative one—to wind up the tour.

"Isn't Cockell a little too big?" Olson was asked.

"Big?" replied the self-assured ace of the Flaherty menagerie. "Sure, he's big, but he's just fat. Makes no difference to me how big he is."

Flaherty said arrangements for the bout are being made through an agent he sent to England that they did not hinge necessarily on whether Olson defeated Moore.

"It wouldn't be a light-heavyweight title defence anyway," Flaherty said. "Cockell never could get down to 175. It'll be 10 rounds and I think it ought to draw pretty well. Big man against little man, you know."

Orfuns Down Bobcats 8-3 For Second Win

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

The Belleville Orfuns racked up their second victory of the young softball season at the CNRAA Park last night, when Bruno McCurdy tossed a two-hitter at their inter-city rivals, the Bobcats, to gain an 8-3 decision. It was the third loss in as many games for Bob Temple's club.

Breaking a 1-1 deadlock with two runs in the third frame, the Orfuns went on to score another pair in the fifth and close out with three more in the eighth, while the Bobcats managed their final two tallies in the ninth.

McCurdy allowed a triple to Dave Lockyer in the third inning and a single to Stan Creeggan in the fifth but neither figured in the scoring. He claimed five on strikes but issued free passes to 12, leaving 11 stranded on base.

Junior Day sweated on the hill for the losers for 7 1-3 innings, being touched for seven safe hits and all eight runs. He fanned two and walked seven. Skip Dracup came on in the eighth, giving up a double and walking three.

Don Barclay and Jack Wardhaugh drew walks as the lead-off batters in the Orfuns half of the first frame and with one out Batchelor also worked Day for a free pass. Glenn Young then drove in the winner's first run with an infield out but Jones was also walked before the third batter was out.

The Bobcats came back to tie the score in the second with McCurdy walking Woods, Bone, Donovan and Day in that order to force in the run. Lockyer tagged his triple in the third with only one out but he died on third.

Jackie Wardhaugh punched a single to right field to open the third inning rally, Hull walking and the runners advancing on a wild pitch. Young claimed his second RBI with another infield out scoring Wardhaugh and Hull crossing the plate on a wild pitch. Shortstop Doug Hull opened the big guns in the fifth with a line homer to centre with none on and John Batchelor followed with a bullet double to the same place. Dave Jones then cracked a single down the left field line for the 5-1 score.

NINE BAT IN FRAME

Spafford sent nine men to bat in the frightful eighth, Locke walking, McCurdy singling and Barclay safe on Duesbury's throwing error for one run. Claude Carr's deep fly to centre scored another and that was all for Day. Dracup walked the first man he faced and Batchelor whacked his third hit of the night a double to send Barclay home. Two more walks followed but Hull was called out for leaving third base and Vic Bromley holsted out to centre to end the rally.

Walks led to the Bobcats final runs, Duesbury and Harry Wardhaugh getting passes and advancing on a wild pitch before Creeggan and Lockyer hit long fly balls to bring them home.

John Batchelor led all hitters with two doubles and an infield single while McCurdy had a pair of base hits. Hull had a round-tripper, while singles went to Jack Wardhaugh and Dave Jones.

CBS Studying Problem of What Public Wants, Expects in TV

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) —CBS is approaching the problem from the right end with its projected $100,000, nation-wide study of what the public wants and expects of television.

Some in the industry have contended the public gets what it deserves because it can get rid of bad programs by tuning them out and knocking down the ratings. But that gives the viewer no chance to tell what he'd like that isn't on TV at all.

The study projected by CBS will go further than merely determining mass taste. The committee also will concern itself with ways in which the public interest is best served. This presumably would include the question of whether certain groups of viewers may be getting little or no consideration by TV because their numbers are small.

SMALLER SURVEY MADE

It may be months before results of the study are known. Meanwhile, an inkling of what it may include is provided by a survey by the American Council for Better Broadcasts. This group, in which many civic organizations are represented, made a survey in which 5,661 persons from 18 states participated.

Here are some excerpts from the report:

"More good music is the most insistent wish unfulfilled on radio-TV. By 'good' is meant classical. Popular music is plentiful."

"If only we could get some good children's program, as educational, nature and animal movies, cartoons and hobby-type programs, the children would be challenged to learn at the same time. They would not get over-excited before supper and would do constructive things."

SERIALS RESENTED

On what they don't like, the survey report included this:

"They continue to resent vociferously the low calibre of daytime serials and westerns and other crime shows for children. They especially resent the number of them, which leaves them and their children little choice on weekdays."

Notable Increase of Violence In Scripts Being Presented

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The man who is trying to put a restraining hand on movie violence is square-built, English-born Geoffrey Shurlock.

Last year, the 60-year-old Shurlock succeeded Joseph Breen as Hollywood's production code administrator. That means he and his staff survey most of the scripts and all the finished pictures and advise studios on censorship matters.

If films conform to the production code, they get a seal certifying them to be shown in American theatres. Rarely do producers try to sell movies without a seal. "The Moon Is Blue" was one of the few exceptions.

As Hollywood's top censor, Shurlock tries to avoid the limelight. But because movie violence has become such a big issue, he granted an interview on the subject.

"We saw this coming last November," he said. "There was a notable increase in the amount of violence in scripts being presented. Those are the pictures that are in release now.

"We cautioned the producers that too much violence would bring a reaction from the public. I think we are making some headway in convincing them that violence should be toned down. But the results will not be evident in the theatres for another six months.

"One of the reasons I foresaw this trend toward violence was the Academy Awards. The top winners two years in a row were two extremely violent films—'From Here to Eternity' and 'On the Waterfront.' It was inevitable that others would follow."

How does the code authority gauge the public's reaction to film content?

"The audience is our partner in this business," said Shurlock, veteran of 23 years with the code. "We watch the reaction carefully, through the Legion of Decency, the 13 women's groups that review pictures, the Protestant Film Council, plus the important trade and newspaper reviewers."

Shurlock said he will not admit the claims of some critics of Hollywood that crime pictures contribute to delinquency.

"Perhaps two or three kids are induced to try crime out of the 800,000,000 children in the world that see movies," he said.

Shurlock said he and his staff are looking more closely at scenes of violence in current scripts. One of the suggestions he has made to producers is to have actual beatings "off frame." In other words, lead up to the violence and show the result, but leave the blows to the audience's imagination.

Americans Lead British Amateur

ST. ANNES, England (AP)—Captain Bill Campbell, a voluntary bench warmer during the 1955 Walker Cup matches, was returned abruptly to that role Tuesday, but the United States retained a strong hand in the British amateur golf championship with 22 survivors.

Campbell held himself out of the cup matches at St. Andrews, turning over the job of crushing the British to the other eight members of his team. Playing his first match in Britain over the tricky Royal Lytham and St. Anne scourse, the tall West Virginian lost, 2 and 1, to an unknown Briton, Reginald Pattinson.

Although Campbell didn't make it, before the day was over eight Americans, including two Walker Cup team members, had reached the third round and four won their first-round matches. In addition, seven who won their opening matches Monday and three who received first-round defaults Tuesday weren't called upon to play.

Wallace Wins

DETROIT (CP)—Gordon Wallace 160½, of Brantford, Ont., scored a six-round decision over Henry Hank, 158¼, of Detroit Tuesday night in the co-feature of a boxing card at Motor City Arena.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The distinction between defence bids should be clear cut to a successful pair of bridge partners. This is particularly so in the case of a simple overcall and the takeout double.

The simple overcall shows a hand containing a minimum of five tricks, a five card trump suit, a sure trick among two high cards. The takeout double shows a hand as good as an opening one bid.

A hand as good as an opening one bid also promises a minimum of five tricks. So, the difference between it and a simple overcall lies in the other departments of values. What are they?

The opening one bid promises four high cards with two sure tricks among them. The simple overcall may have only two highs in which may be only one sure trick.

The opening one bid may show a biddable suit containing four cards. The simple overcall promises a trump suit that contains five cards or more. These are important distinctions.

A defender may have a hand with a takeout double. The hand may also have the stuff promised by a simple overcall. In that case, what should be his choice? The takeout double. See why?

The takeout double shows greater strength in sure tricks and high cards. It offers greater encouragement for continued defence by the pair; tells partner they have less worry from defeat.

South opens with one diamond when you have this west hand:

♠ A 8 6 3
♥ K Q J 7 5
♣ A J

Your west hand has what it takes for a simple overcall of one heart. Also what it takes for a takeout double. Then, double by all means. Do not simple overcall in hearts simply because you have it.

If you simple overcall in hearts you may not learn what partner has. If you double for takeout you may learn he has spades that may help make game in your pair. Show your stuff.

Condemn Owners

CHICAGO (AP) — A coroner's jury of building experts Tuesday condemned the owners, operators and agents of a skid road hotel "for gross negligence" in connection with a May 6 fire that took nine lives.

However, it said the deaths were accidental.

The fire occurred in the Comfort Hotel where 77 men were sleeping in six-by-seven-foot cubicles with corrugated iron walls and wire screen ceilings. The cause was not determined.

AT THE BELLE

Disney's Latest, Also Greatest

"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," based on the celebrated novel by Jules Verne, is the mightiest film in Walt Disney's career. Hollywood's outstanding Academy Award winner has given the dramatic sea story a lavish production in CinemaScope and Technicolor, with an impressive cast starring Kirk Douglas, James Mason, Peter Lorre and Paul Lukas. "20,000 Leagues" is starting today at the Belle Theatre.

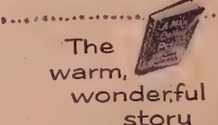
More than a year of pre-production planning was required to bring this classic to the screen. Much of that time was spent on the design and construction of a perfect duplicate of Verne's famous submarine, the Nautilus, for which the United States Navy's first atom-powered sub is named. To recreate the sets and inventions conceived by the famed French novelist, cost Disney nearly a quarter of a million dollars. The Buena Vista release features the most extensive underwater footage ever seen on the screen. These sequences were filmed on location in the Bahama Islands, where the troupe worked 30 feet below the surface of the Caribbean. Following that two-month stretch, another three months were spent on the sets at the Burbank studio to complete the epic film. Richard Fleisher directed from a screenplay by Earl Felton.

Paul Smith's music is a highlight of the lavish feature. Accenting the score is a ringing chantey, "A Whale of a Tale."

Added enjoyment may be seen in the presentation of the First Donald Duck cartoon in CinemaScope, Walt Disney's "Grand CanyonScope," in Technicolor.

BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"YOU FOR ME"



Peter Lawford, millionaire playboy whose one philanthropy is a hefty annual donation to the Clara Barton hospital, receives chilly treatment from Jane Greer, surgical nurse, when he checks in for emergency treatment. Lawford complains, announces he is withdrawing his financial help, and Jane is fired. Gig Young, a doctor romantically interested in Jane, arranges a deal whereby, if she can talk Lawford out of his decision, she'll get her job back. Jane tries, and Lawford falls for her. However, Lawford's soon-to-be-ex-wife frames him and Jane in a motel in a blackmailing demand for more alimony; then, after Lawford has proposed to her and agreed to reinstate his hospital support, she decides Gig is the man she really loves. Lawford shrugs this off and goes on the prowl for another beautiful chick.

For Thursday, June 2, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)— Some friendly rays linger from yesterday but, on the whole, the day has restrictions, some obstacles to hurdle. Extra care suggested in details, preparations, ferreting out flaws.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — The impetus and tempo you maintain will largely determine your results at day's end. The demands of your position and schedule should guide you. Neither overdo nor lag behind.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)— Little outside help likely now, but this should be a challenge to your initiative and ability to do well with the tools and advantages at hand. Don't force matters.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)— Your moon's aspect warns against over-sensitiveness now. Up and doing in activities and interests of a broad nature—those which can affect many people.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Neither dull nor very auspicious aspects. Scan requirements early; patiently, cheerfully tackle immediately urgent tasks first, then the others, and you should find the day fairly satisfying.

August 23 to September 23— (Virgo)— Don't confine yourself too stringently to routine affairs. If new opportunities are available, take advantage of them.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)— You may find small tasks, little homey affairs in the front line. These are often neglected yet they are essential to the whole picture of a day's achievement. Think; proceed hopefully.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Today's influences suggest self-restraint and patience. A goodly pinch of humor will help in all directions. You can make good work and intelligent effort pay; today calls for your best.

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius)—The somewhat negative influences of your Jupiter and other planets suggest close attention to duties, money interests, promises, agreements. Keep harmony at home; be gracious.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Keep emotions under control and don't voice opinions too strongly. We all gain more quickly when we seek and give sound advice with a smile. Familiar duties, home affairs should run smoothly.

January 22 to Febbruary 20 — (Aquarius) — Similar now to Sagittarius. It is important now that you neither daily nor heed ill-advised suggestion. Be patient, particularly in essential details.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—Tie loose ends together so that you may get important matters the time and attention they require. Today's influences are somewhat mild so you must furnish the pep and energy yourself.

You born today are energetic, fun-loving and ever ready to go places and do things. But, you must not permit restless manoeuvres to interfere with the ambition to make a name for yourself and security for your family. Use self-control and don't try to satisfy every desire for a change. You have unlimited talent for accomplishment, are likeable, persuasive; can attain much information and knowledge if you put your better self to patient and steady effort. Keep studying and improving and engage in an enjoyable— and, possibly lucrative—hobby during free hours. Confide in family, pray for God's blessings daily. Birthdate: Thos. Hardy, novelist; Sir Edward Elgar, composer.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

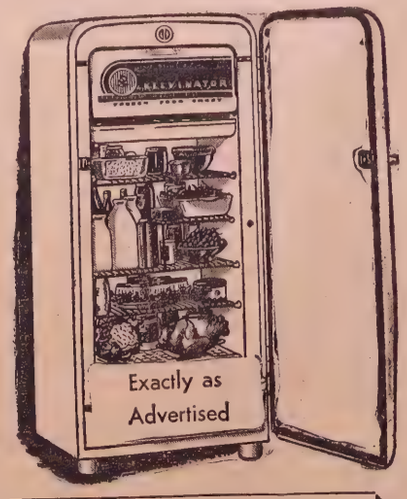
Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.



All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Union Congress Unable To Settle Railway Strike

Labor Body's Efforts Fail, So Eden Expected To Act

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Eden today held an emergency cabinet meeting as trade union leaders failed in an effort to end Britain's rail strike, now in its fifth day.

A rail union leader declared that there was 'no immediate hope of any solution" to the stoppage.

The union chief was Jim Campbell, secretary of the 400,000-member National Union of Railwaymen, whose members are not striking. He was called to a 75-minute talk with leaders of the 8,000,000-strong Trades Union Congress in a bid to find a peace formula to end the stoppage by more than 60,000 locomotive engineers and firemen.

NEW THREAT LOOMS

The prime minister and his cabinet was expected to consider adopting even more drastic emergency measures to deal with industrial creeping paralysis caused by the walkout.

The cabinet also was expected to discuss a second deadlocked strike, involving some 20,000 dock workers in seven seaports. And a Scottish coal miners' demand for more pay also threatens trouble.

New measures in the rail strike could include calling in troops to move essential supplies and maintain government services.

For the time being, however, Eden appears to be relying chiefly on the peacemaking effort by the powerful Trades Union Congress, British labor's central body. Although a state of national emergency was declared Tuesday night, government efforts so far have been directed toward maintaining public utilities and other essential services.

TUC OPPOSES STRIKES

The TUC, which opposes both the rail and dock strikes, has given its seven-man general purposes committee a free hand to negotiate for settlement of the walkout by the 67,000 members of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen.

The striking railroaders rebuffed the first approach Wednesday night by the TUC committee, but chairman Charles Geddei said "new moves" were in the offing.

The ASLEF is demanding that the strikers' base pay be boosted restore their traditional differential over wages of less-skilled workers. The differences were narrowed in the new wage scale announced by the state-owned lines in January.

The transport commission, which operates the railroads, feared that raises for ASLEF men would touch off fresh wage demands by the rival National Union of Railwaymen, which is not on strike. The commission suggested that the two unions get together on a single package demand. The NUR was willing, but ASLEF leaders insisted that the commission deal with them separately.

There have been sporadic layoffs of workers in many parts of Britain as factories dependent on rail transport began to run short of material. Spokesmen for the chemical, steel, automobile and building industries said 1,000,000 or more employees might be out of work next week if the rail tieup persists.

Roses Unruffled But Boat Floats 60 Feet in Air

ATLANTA (AP) — A baby whirlwind danced into an Atlanta yard Wednesday, whipped a 100-pound boat 60 feet into the air and ripped a hole in a house roof.

But the wind missed everything else in the yard of Donald E. Magennis.

The boat floated for 20 or 30 seconds in the air and then landed on Magennis' back porch, damaging it severely.

Petals on rose bushes in the yard were unruffled.

Britons Climb 'Killer Peak' In Himalayas

DARJEELING, India (Reuters) A team of British mountaineers led by Dr. Charles Evans today was reported to have conquered mighty Kanchenjunga, "killer peak" of the Himalayas, hitherto the highest unclimbed mountain in the world.

News of their success came two years, almost to the hour, after the dramatic announcement in 1953 of the conquest of Mount Everest. Evans was a member of the triumphant British Everest team.

The 28,146-foot Kanchenjunga—"five treasures of the snows"—was said by mountaineers to be a tougher proposition even than 29,141-foot Everest, the world's highest, which lies 80 miles to the west.

All-India radio said the team climbed Kanchenjunga May 25 "and reached within five vertical feet of the summit."

Evans had previously promised the Sikkimese people, on whose border the mountain lies that his team would not set foot on the actual summit, which the Sikkimese believe to be the abode of their gods.

Trades And Labor Body Approves Proposed Merger

WINDSOR (CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada Wednesday endorsed the proposed terms of merger with the Canadian Congress of Labor. CCL approval will unite 1,000,000 union members in a single labor body.

When convention delegates gave a standing, cheering vote on unification, the 600,000-member TLC became the first of the four big central labor bodies of North America to accept formally the provisions of amalgamation with their long-standing labor rivals.

Today's Chuckle

Appearances can be deceptive. For instance, the dollar looks just like it did ten years ago.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Almost all of Ontario will enjoy ideal June weather today with afternoon temperatures in the 70s in southern regions, and around 80 degrees in parts of northern Ontario. An area of low pressure in the north central states will bring some cloudiness and occasional thunderstorm to western sections of northern Ontario today, and as this disturbance moves gradually eastward, a few scattered thunderstorms will move into most of northern Ontario Friday.

McCANN CANNOT DISCLOSE STORY OF DEMPSEY CASE

Facts Would Raise Hair On Head Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann, declaring he has "not anything to hide," says he is sorry tax laws compelling him to secrecy prevent giving his side of Ontario's politically-explosive Dempsey case.

"If I had the privilege, I could unfold to you a story that would raise the hair on your head," he said in the Commons Wednesday.

"But instead of that, I am obliged to sit here and to be pilloried. . . ."

Dr. McCann made the statement angrily in reply to CCF demands that he disclose all details of his connection with the case.

MOTION OF INQUIRY

The demands were coupled with a CCF motion for a commission of inquiry into the minister's department. It was proposed by Alistair Stewart, Winnipeg North Centre, who said Dr. McCann's "political instincts" have cast a stigma on his department.

The motion — one of non-confidence in the government—was defeated by a vote of 171 to 16, all opposition groups except the CCF voting with the Liberals.

Although much of Wednesday's debate centred on Progressive Conservative attacks on government spending, the fireworks were touched off by CCF references to the Dempsey case and criticisms of Dr. McCann's position as a director of the Guaranty Trust Co.

PROBATED WILL

The company probated the will of the late John Drohan, eastern Ontario lumberman who in 1951 gave $6,800 in campaign contributions to James Dempsey, Progressive Conservative member of the last Ontario legislature for Renfrew South.

After learning that Mr. Dempsey had not reported the contributions, Premier Frost of Ontario withdrew his support of Mr. Dempsey in the present Ontario election campaign.

Lack of Money Brings Halt To Extension Work

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Albert Johnson, secretary of the Ontario Temperance Federation, Wednesday told the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada that extension work of the Alcoholics Research Foundation has come to a halt because of lack of money.

He said Toronto, Ottawa and London were chosen as sites for clinics and a university-hospital link had been established in Kingston following a statement by Health Minister Phillips of Ontario that 23 clinics would be set up in the province. Progress then stopped, he said.

Mr. Johnson said solution to the problem of Ontario's 50,000 known alcoholics lies in the minds, hearts and convictions of people.

Plans to Kidnap 40,000 Subjects And Leave Queen (Bee) Alone to Die

COHASSET, Mass. (CP) — Mauran S. Pearce Jr. has figured out how to get rid of the 40,000 bees and 200 pounds of honey filling the partitions of his home.

He's going to sponsor a queen bee of his own to kidnap the little stingers from their rightful ruler.

Pearce found that his house had been invaded by a queen bee and her following and called in John F. Hubbard, a bee expert who estimated the bee count and amount of honey.

Hubbard plans to erect a pipe with a one-way valve which will permit the bees to leave the house but not re-enter. The pipe will be fitted into the hole at the side of the house through which the bees enter and leave.

The pipe will be connected through a hose to an artificially made bee hive. As the bees leave Pearce's home, they will enter the man-made hive where Hubbard will deposit a new queen bee. No longer able to get into Pearce's house to their queen, the bees will naturally snuggle up to the new queen.

In time, Hubbard figures, the old queen will die. Then, if all goes well, the entrance into the house will be opened up and the followers of the new queen will rush to take the honey out to her.

The Pearce family, meanwhile, will sit out the siege. "Come back in the fall," Hubbard said, "I may have some honey for you."

Common Market and Currency For West Europe Proposed

MESSINA, Sicily (AP)—Foreign Minister Johan Beyen of the Netherlands today proposed an international conference to create a common market for all products and a common currency for Western Europe.

Beyen made his proposal as the six-country coal and steel community's council of ministers met here for the second day. The ministers, from France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, are studying the possibility of broadening their organization to include similar pools on transport, electric power and nuclear research.

Beyen's proposal was the most sweeping recommendation for Europe an economic integration that has yet been made here.

The Dutch foreign minister recommended that the proposed international conference be open not only to the six members of the coal-steel community "but to all others who would like to join in a stronger European economic co-ordination."

There havt been suggestions here that Britain might be invited to sit in on such a conference. Italy has proposed that Switzerland, Austria and perhaps Spain would be invited.

According to Beyen's idea, such a conference would consider the advisability and means of setting up a new authority to bring about the creation of a general common market, without economic frontiers.

Under the coal-steel plan, the six member states removed their trade barriers on these products and gave them the benefits of a common market within their countries.

Canada Plans to Immunize Half of Children Against Polio

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada plans to immunize at least 3,000,000—more than half—of its children with Salk polio vaccine by next March 31.

Health Minister Martin, speaking Wednesday night to the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, said upwards of 750,000 children already have received the inoculations "with complete safety."

"It is our objective," he added, "to immunize no less than 3,000,000 children by the end of the current fiscal year."

Government records show that at last April 1 there were 5,184,948 children on family allowance rolls, a close count of the number of Canadian children under 16.

Last month the health department estimated that about 1,000,000 children will receive the Salk vaccine before July when the polio season usually begins rising towards its peak.

A health department official said the children will receive at least two shots of the vaccine by next March 31. In most provinces, two shots are given two to four weeks apart and a booster shot seven months later.

Canada's immunization program started on a wide scale about 1½ months ago after the vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk was declared safe and effective following test inoculation of some 5,000,000 children in the United States and Canada last year.

Production of the Connaught Laboratories at Toronto, turning out all the vaccine now used in Canada, will be supplemented by output of the Institute of Microbiology at Montreal starting in August and by U.S. commercial supplies when a double-check of American manufacturing methods is completed.

Dogs Blamed For Killing Their Mistress

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (AP)—Two Doberman pinscher dogs Wednesday apparently attacked and killed their own mistress, state police said.

The body of Mrs. Winifred W. L. Bacon, 64, of Pemberton, was found lying near the ocean on Island beach, about three miles south of Seaside Park. A male and female dog were racing madly about her.

Her left arm and shoulder were almost torn off and police said the male dog had blood over his mouth and face.

Detectives were baffled as to what might have caused the dogs to attack Mrs. Bacon, who had been their owner for four and two years, respectively.

The animals were impounded by county authorities and will be examined for any evidence of rabies.

Windows Crack As Planes Break Sound Barrier

TORONTO (CP) — Windows cracked and police switchboards were jammed with calls in Toronto's west end Wednesday as explosions announced jet aircraft breaking the sound barrier over Exhibition Park.

One woman said nearly 1,000 persons crowded into the streets nearby, fearing an explosion had occurred at a paint manufacturing company.

Police checking the cause with the air force were told:

"It will be a lot louder next Saturday during the air show."

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Wood, retired financier who died March 20, left an estate of $3,093,600 to his immediate family, and paintings by Rembrandt and Franz Hals to the Art Gallery of Toronto. His will was filed for probate Wednesday. His house and 20-acre grounds valued at $165,000 also were bequeathed to the Art Gallery.

Expect Germany Will Be Admitted To Aviation Body

MONTREAL (CP)—Unless Communist member countries make a rare attempt at interjecting politics into the International Civil Aviation Organization, the West German Republic is considered likely to succeed in her first attempt to join a United Nations agency.

Most delegates to ICAO's annual general assembly steered clear of making an out-and-out prediction on the possible fate of West Germany's request for admission to ICAO. Actual voting on the request is not expected until near the close of the two-week session, which began Wednesday.

A senior United States delegate termed the request "perfectly routine," adding that it "would greatly surprise us if any objections were raised to German admission."

Dr. W. McCree New Moderator Of Presbyterians

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A pioneer Presbyterian minister, Dr. Walter T. McCree, 75, of Toronto, has been elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The new moderator, who comes out of retirement to take the post, was elected Wednesday night at opening sessions of the 81st general assembly. He will be chief spokesman for the next year for 800,000 Presbyterians in Canada, fourth largest denomination in Canada.

TOOK DRASTIC STEP

CUENO, Italy (Reuters)—A 32-year-old peasant went on trial Wednesday for stringing wire across a road near his farm to trap unwary motorcyclists. The accused, Giovanni Aymar, allegedly caused six motorcyclists to crash because he objected to the "clouds of dust" raised by motorcycles roaring by.

SLEMON THINKS UNIFIED AIR DEFENCE COMING

Military Action Taken Air Chief Tells Writers

MONTREAL (AP)—Air Marshal C. R. Slemon, chief of the RCAF, strongly implied here that there has been a military decision, but no political action, to set up a supreme air defence command for North America.

He told visiting U. S. and Canadian aviation writers Wednesday that Canada's air defence command, which has headquarters at St. Hubert near here, and that of the U. S., operating at Colorado Springs, Colo., already are moving in the direction of a single over-all command.

"All the planning, development, selection of weapons, and all the decisions are aimed at the ultimate position of a supreme command and everything that goes with it," he said.

The air marshal added that while there has been military action in this direction, "the decision has not been taken politically — but it will be taken."

He said that even though the two air defence commands work together closely and harmoniously, a unified superior command is essential to adjust conflicting interests and to prevent the possibility of conflicting orders.

The remarks of the chief of air staff, at a briefing on defence activities of RCA.F came as a surprise to the aviation writers, since little has been said publicly on the subject.

A spokesman for the U. S. air defence command declined comment. He said the matter would involve the U. S. state department and the Canadian department of external affairs.

DIVIDE RESPONSIBILITIES

Air Marshal Slemon also declared that Canada, specializing in fighter defences, is relying upon the U. S. to fulfill its primary responsibility of developing long-range bomber offensive power, through strong support of the U. S. Air Force's strategic air command.

He urged aviation writers to take great pains to withhold from publication information which might be of value to a potential enemy.

Detroit News Says Company Accepts Plan In Principle

'Job Security' Proposal 'Unprecedented In Industry'

By NORMAN WALKER

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit News says the Ford Motor Company has offered the United Auto Workers (CIO) a "job security" plan accepting the principle of the union's guaranteed annual wage demand.

The newspaper says it learned from "a high union official" that the Ford offer entails a $55,000,000 fund "unprecedented in industry."

"It appears to represent some of the thinking of both Ford's previous 'partnership in prosperity' offer and the union's guaranteed annual wage plan," The News says.

"It accepts the principle of providing for a Ford employee while he is out of work—the principle on which UAW president Walter Reuther insists."

REVEALS NEW OFFER

Reuther said a new offer, requiring more union consideration, had been made by Ford Tuesday, causing the union to postpone a threatened strike from Wednesday midnight to next Monday.

Without describing the new offer Reuther has said that it still left Ford and the union "far apart" on reaching a contract agreement.

The new Ford deadline is only a day ahead of the Tuesday date for expiration of the UAW contract with General Motors Corp.

With the emphasis in the negotiations previously on Ford, the imminence of a showdown with GM has led to speculation that both major firms are almost equally under fire. Few had expected that both companies would be strike-bound at once.

PLEDGES STRIKE

Walter Reuther, president of the UAW and the CIO itself, pledged in granting the Ford contract extension to Monday that the UAW would stage a strike in Ford operations then if there were no "satisfactory" settlement.

The union still is pressing its guaranteed annual wage demand calling for year-round pay for workers laid off in slack production periods. The only Ford answer to this demand has been a combination offer to permit workers to buy Ford stock at half price, borrow during enforced idleness and get severance pay upon discharge.

Carl Stellato, president of Ford's biggest local at the huge Rouge plant here, told a workers' mass meeting Wednesday afternoon that Ford had bettered this offer, but he declined to reveal details. He said half a dozen union economists were trying to evaluate the new Ford proposal.

AGAINST RENEWAL

On one point, amid loud cheering from the estimated 20,000 Rouge plant workers, Stellato said the UAW is adamantly against any renewal of a five-year contract.

"We're not going to delay the fight for the shorter work week for five years," Stellato said. The UAW has said its next proposal, after the year-round pay plan, is reducing the present 40-hour standard work week without loss of pay.

The crowd of workers, some going to their jobs and others leaving their shifts, booed the company stock - purchase plan and cheered loudly for a guaranteed pay plan. The workers appeared disappointed that a midnight walkout had been averted.

Airmen "Played Along" With Reds But Not Sold on Communist Life

By ROY ESSOYAN

HONOLULU (AP)—Four American fliers, chipper and gay despite more than two years of Chinese Communist brainwashing attempts, planned to rejoin their families today.

Nine of their closest relatives, collected from across the United States in an air force plane, were scheduled to land here this afternoon. The four jet-fighter pilots, all captured in the Korean War, planned to be at the airport.

The airmen—Lt.-Col. Edwin Heller, Capt. Harold E. Fischer, Lieut. Roland W. Parks and Lieut. Lyle W. Cameron—told of their prison experiences at a press conference Wednesday night a few hours after they arrived from Hong Kong.

They talked freely but balked on two points—whether they signed a confession to win their freedom and whether their planes crashed in Chinese or Korean territory.

They said they had "played along" with Red attempts to brainwash them, and had pleaded guilty to Communist charges of "intruding China" and "provocative attack."

But, they insisted, they remained unaffected by the Reds' attempts to sell them on life under communism.

Maj.-Gen. S. Smith, U.S. Pacific air force commander, struck a sober note. He told a small army of press, radio and television men:

"We have four men here. There should be 15. Please keep that in mind."

Smith referred to 11 other American fliers still held captive by the Communists. The implication was that anything the four might say might be used against the 11.

The men themselves indicated that there are still "40 or 44 American nationals still in China," possibly including some navy personnel. They said they had heard of a navy plane shot down.

In Washington, the state department said it believes the Chinese Reds hold 63 Americans.

The returning fliers made only an indirect reference during the press conference to Sgdn. Ldr. Andrew MacKenzie of Montreal, released late last year by the Reds.

The reference came when a reporter asked the Americans if they had seen any "outside country life."

Parks replied: "Yes, at one time shortly after MacKenzie left in September . . . they took us on an excursion to an old park in Mukden. . . . It was the only chance we ever had before we moved to Peiping and then finally out of China."

The grim facts of the quartet's life in captivity failed to dampen the good humor of their press conference.

All agreed they were treated better than they had expected. But that could mean, as Fischer said, "I was glad I was alive."

Their food, Heller said, was "the basic Chinese food, rice." This was varied with side dishes "from sea weed to birds' nests."

Taxpayer Squares Conscience With Revenue Dept.

There is such a thing as an honest taxpayer — even though it took a few years for his honesty to mature.

The latest disciple of Diogenes is an anonymous tax evader of some years standing who has now squared away his tax bill and his conscience.

Two $50 bills and a note explaining that the sender, a Peterborough man, had omitted to report his correct income some years ago, arrived at the district taxation office here a few weeks ago. The writer explained that he had become a Christian and wanted to make amends.

H. A. Parker, director of taxation, acknowledged receipt of the money in an advertisement in the Peterborough Examiner of May 31st.

The ad read: "The director of income tax, Belleville, acknowledges with thanks receipt of $100 conscience money mailed from Peterborough on 17th May 1955, by an anonymous taxpayer."

Responding to the toast on behalf of the school, Mr. A. E. Orr, principal, extended his best wishes to the graduates, for their present progress and for their future success in whatever vocation they may choose to enter. On behalf of the faculty of BCIVS he welcomed the graduates to return to visit their school at any time in the future.

Fred Cooke Ends 35 Years' Service, 15 as Excise Officer

Thirty-two years service at the H. Corby Distillery Limited, 15 of them with the excise department, were ended last week for Fred Cooke, 66 Octavia street, second officer in charge of the excise staff.

On the occasion of his retirement, Mr. Cooke was honored by an informal gathering of friends and fellow officers, who presented him with an automatic toaster and a handsome mantel clock. Max Matthews spoke on behalf of the customs and excise department, mentioning the high esteem in which Fred was held by his associates. George MacDonald, assistant manager, H. Corby Distillery Ltd., expressed the best wishes of the company, noting that Mr. Cooke had been a valued employee before joining the excise department 15 years ago.

A former member of the British Merchant Marine, Mr. Cooke won his master mariner's certificate before joining the Royal Navy in which he served during World War I. He rose to the rank of Lieut. Commander.

In 1923 he made his first trip to Canada and decided to give up the life of a sailor. He took employment with Corby's Distillery and for the next 17 years held many responsible positions both at Corbyville and at distilleries in the U.S.A. He joined the excise department in 1940.

Guests at the presentation party included Wilfred Laporte, vice-president and distillery manager; W. J. Cook and F. W. Sprague, former chief excise officers under whom Mr. Cooke served. Letters of commendation were read from S. D. Yeo, director of excise duties, Ottawa and H. Quinnery, excise inspector, (Ontario).

Entertainment at the party included the showing of a film based on the life of Sgt. Lou Diamond of the U. S. Marines. The film was loaned by Herb. Diamond of this city, brother of the late Sgt. Diamond. "Danny Boy" Smith gave an excellent performance of ventriloquism.

In retirement Mr. Cooke plans to spend much of his time at his favorite hobby — that of stamp collecting — reminiscing of the days of "wooden ships and iron men."

Transport Load Of Turkeys, Meat Burnt in Crash

A Toronto transport driver, George Borrowdale, escaped with a shaking up and minor cuts to his head and face Wednesday morning, when his transport blew a front tire east of Madoc, sideswiped a rock cliff, then turned over in the ditch and burned up.

Although dazed by the crash, Borrowdale managed to crawl from his cab just seconds before the wrecked machine caught fire.

The accident occurred about five miles east of Madoc on No. 7 highway. When the tire blew out the machine veered and sideswiped the face of a rock cut, then overturned in the ditch. The transport, carrying a load of dressed turkey and meat, was completely destroyed along with its load.

Premier Frost Pays Tribute To Mohawk Indians on Reserve

DESERONTO — Premier Frost stopped off here Wednesday morning and told an assembly of Mohawk Indians from the Tyendinaga Reserve that the province's Indians while they now possess all the rights of other Canadian citizens, they need not be fearful of losing any of their traditional rights by accepting them.

The Conservative government always will be desirous to protect and strengthen "All those things which are more than justly due to your people," he assured the assembly.

He felt sure he could make the pledge to maintain that attitude on behalf of all succeeding governments.

Premier Frost noted that he was among the Indians as one of their honorary chieftains. (The title was conferred on him by the Six Nations Tribes of which the Mohawk people are members).

In the flag-bedecked Reservation Council House a dominant spot was given to the Queen Anne silver communion service, presented to the Mohawk tribe by the English monarch in 1710.

Commenting on the communion service the Premier told the gathering they should be proud of it, since it represented the appreciation of the English monarch of the Mohawk peoples as good subjects.

"I freely acknowledge the contribution made by the Indian Confederacy to the strength of our country," Premier Frost said.

A MEATY QUESTION

Hon. J. C. Gardiner, Canada's minister of agriculture, says that Canadian housewives "know about as much about meat as the man who's selling it."

At this point you pays your money and takes your choice.

Either Mr. Gardiner does not know much about meat. (He says he does).

Or he does not know much about butchers.

Or butchers do not know much about meat. (This is a distinct possibility among the younger generation of butchers who have been taught that the customer is always right.)

Or else Mr. Gardiner does not know much about housewives, which is rather difficult to believe in the case of so astute a politician.

For the unhappy truth is that Canadian housewives, as a class, do not know much about meat.

There are some housewives, of course, who could match wits with any butcher. But the class average is pushed down by a host of housewives who vociferously demand poor meat and sometimes are willing to pay premium prices for it.

No meat is good meat unless there is an adequate amount of fat in it.

To many housewives, fat in meat is just waste. Perhaps they are not entirely to blame. Too many of the housewives have husbands—and children—who laboriously cut every scrap of fat off their helping and consign it to the garbage can.

But even Jack Spratts who can eat no fat ought to know that you cannot cook lean meat properly unless there is some fat in the joint—or steak or chop.

Of course, there are some people who never eat properly cooked meat. Unless it has been reduced to a shrivelled up brown lump as dry as sawdust, they do not consider it cooked. Even fat cannot save a roast from destruction if it is deliberately over-cooked.

There is, we suppose, no reason why people should not eat burned offerings if they so desire. But there is also no reason why the rest of us should have to tolerate meat cooked without sufficient fat in it. Modern merchandizing methods are a step backward to those who really appreciate good meat. To meet the demands of an uninformed majority, some butchers are trimming too much fat off meat, before placing it in display counters where it can be quickly grabbed up by a passing housewife, who buys meat as nonchalantly and with as little care as she would purchase a can of soup or a bar of soap.

GRADUATION SEASON

This is the season of graduations.

For scholars from Grade I to Ph.D level, spring marks completion of another year in the course of their formal instruction. It should not mark completion of their education because education is a lifelong process that goes beyond formal instruction.

It is worthwhile, however, to review the instructional process as its products pass in review.

The most obvious thing about graduation is that it is the beginning of another phase in the student's life. What has preceded graduation is a preparation for what follows. A successful preparatory period cannot be measured entirely by the student's standing at graduation because, as yet, the knowledge gained, the lessons learned, the habits developed, and the character molded have been tested only by examination and not by living.

Graduation is important, however, because it emphasizes that the student is the most important part of the educational process. Graduation is a recurring reminder that schools, teachers, books and courses of study are merely instruments to advance the understanding of students. Too often, it seems, the writing of texts, the setting of courses, the construction of schools and the training of teachers become ends in themselves.

Seeing individual students receiving diplomas for individual achievement is a valuable reminder that mass education does not educate the masses; it educates individuals. Group instruction produces heterogeneous results depending upon the individual's ability, application and interest.

The success of a formal educational process can be measured, to some extent, by the degree to which it tests the individual student's ability and by the extent to which it prepares him to meet the tests of later life.

Mass education can not, and does not, improve society unless the educated individual freely chooses to use his talents in such a way that his fellow men share the benefits of his labors. Improving society is education's secondary goal. Improving students is education's primary objective.

At a time when the cost of public education is being forcibly brought home to the public by an accelerating school building program, increased tuition fees and demands for expanded curricula, it is well for the public to remember that the school's first responsibility is to its students. While the student's first responsibility is to himself, it would be well for him to remember that to those to whom much is given, much is expected.

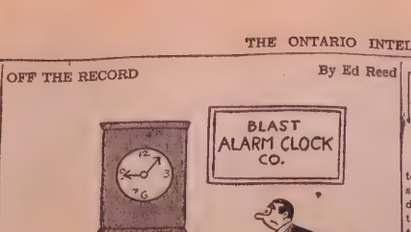
MAN'S WALLET



When I see the wallet slip
From the pocket on his hip,
What is coming next is very plain to me.
It is not a roll of cash
He is just about to flash.
The pictures of his children I must see.

He is proud beyond a doubt
As he quickly takes them out,
And I know a word of praise he wants to hear.

"They are wonderful," I say.
"Very beautiful are they,
And that pretty, chubby baby is a dear."

At such pictures I have gazed.
All their charms I've promptly praised
And of rivalry I've never shown a sign,
But, some day before I die,
Since five children small have I,
I shall force some boastful man to look at mine.

Arthur May, a student at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, has a clever tame crow and he tells of the accomplishments of his bird in the contributors column in this month's Atlantic Monthly magazine. His letter received very favorable comment by the editor.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Holt of Stratford and Manchester, England, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Cooke, Ann St.

Transistors Come of Age

(Wall Street Journal)

Transistors the mighty mites of electronics, are ready to make their first long commercial steps.

That's the view of men who've guided development of the matchhead-size replacements for vacuum tubes from laboratory curiosity to practical use in little more than half a decade. Today, transistors are found in hearing aids, portable radios, telephone equipment, guided missiles and some other military gear.

Within the next couple of years, transistors will be used widely in all types of radios, some TV sets, computers, cordless clocks, high fidelity phonographs, aircraft instruments, communications equipment, automatic pilots, street lighting controls, automatic dimmers for auto headlights and a wrist radio transmitter.

Transistors are amplifying devices with crystalline metal hearts, usually germanium, instead of filaments in a vacuum that do similar work in traditional electronic tubes.

Transistors are tough; they'll keep right on operating through shocks that would shatter a vacuum tube. Western Electric, Inc., engineers estimate the devices should have an operating life of 770,000 hours—almost 88 years—against about 5,000 hours for the average vacuum tube.

Red Does Not Enrage Bulls

(Nature Roundup)

Red does not infuriate a bull any more than green, blue, or plain white does. It is the movement that attracts his charge, for the bull, like nearly all other animals, is color blind.

Where the idea originated is not known, but "as a red rag to a bull" has become part of our language and belief. Farm women were always careful not to wear red in or near the pasture, and men avoided red shirts. Perhaps centuries ago a farmer's daughter started across a field in red clothing and was chased by a bull.

Red has always been used in the Spanish bull ring and always will be, though it has been demonstrated in practice that a bull will charge a white cloth as quickly.

Hard to Please

(Windsor Star)

A Milwaukee woman is asking a divorce because her husband acquired 20 cars in their five years of marriage, but never bought her a dress. Evidently she remained unmoved by the fact that a man so variable in his vehicular tastes preferred her as she was.

How to Talk to USSR

(London Economist)

The point must be grasped that, to negotiate with a totalitarian, semi-oriental power is an utterly different business from negotiation among like-minded free nations. It is usual for western democracies to go into a conference with a proposal that is already realistic, in the sense that the other side might quite conceivably accept it as it stands. British negotiators in particular like to offer a compromise straight away, believing that the other side then feels a moral obligation to do likewise. Normally, this is an admirable approach. But reasonableness from the start means that there is scarcely any room for subsequent retreat.

Soviet negotiators have a wholly different tradition. They enter a conference as if entering a prepared battlefield; the first move is a thrust which takes them as far as the other side will retreat, and if it reveals a weakness in the opposing ranks the thrust will be followed through. The Russians—and other Communist negotiators—normally begin with a proposal far above their minimum target, and if their opponents give ground there follows no reciprocal compromise on the Russian side but a fresh stiffening of attitude.

Soviet negotiators undoubtedly set themselves minimum terms too. But they retreat to these only if they realize from the start that early agreement is essential. Otherwise they are prepared to talk for months, or even, as in the case of the Austrian treaty, for years, constantly bringing up new reasons for stalling.

No impatient public opinion harasses their rear; no political opposition assures the Russian public that it could do better than this dilatory government; no free Soviet press caricatures Mr. Molotov as "old iron pants," no matter how long he sits at the conference table. But when the tactical situation changes and the Russians do decide to come to terms, this is presented to the world, no matter how long it has been delayed, as a great victory for peace.

Mr. Molotov has been known after weeks of stonewalling, suddenly to announce one morning that "the Soviet delegation has a proposal to make", and to put forward as his own the very formula that western negotiators had been vainly pressing. This technique ensures that any settlement reached seems to be due to Soviet initiative, and a defeat for the "warmongers". And it reveals how little the West need bother about saving the Russians' "face"; they are quite capable of doing that themselves.

The Austrian story perfectly illustrates these tactics . . .

There are plenty of other examples. The present Iranian government, for instance, has now secured a settlement of frontier and other issues with Russia, a feat which was not achieved by the Mossadegh regime. Reasonable terms were offered this year because the Russians feared that Iran might join the Turkish-Iraqi alliance. Yugoslavia, too, has been reaping a harvest of Soviet concessions, the result of its firm stand during six years of threats and attempted subversion.

What does this mean for the western negotiators who will shortly sit down with the Russians? The Soviet government is now clearly bent on creating a neutral belt in Europe and Asia, a belt which it hopes to extend deep into the territory at present guarded by western alliances. It is ready to pay a price to achieve this.

It is thus mistaken and dangerous to argue, as so many do, that Moscow must be offered big concessions in exchange for the reunification of Germany on the ground that it would be abandoning terrain now held by the Red Army. The fact is that the Russians see a demilitarized Germany as the obvious means of achieving their foremost aim—the eviction of all American forces first from Germany and then, as a logical consequence, from Europe. The political loss involved in the sacrifice of the Ulbricht regime might well be accepted by Moscow for the sake of the much greater objective.

But Moscow will make a sacrifice of that sort only if pressed relentlessly . . .

Putting together the basic argument about the danger of proffering concessions, and the fact that the coming conference will deal not only with Germany but with wider problems of international security, one reflection becomes obvious. It is the melancholy reflection that the West has perhaps made an irretrievable mistake in previous dealings with the Russians; that from the moment when it became clear that the Russians were breaking the Yalta and Potsdam agreements which promised political freedom to Czechoslovakia and Poland, the West should have relentlessly pressed the maximum demand for the restoration of that freedom.

Is it too late to make good this mistake? It is all too easy to imagine the outcry that would be raised if free elections for Poles and Czechs were now claimed, on the basis of Yalta, as the price for any German reunion that involved American withdrawal. Such a demand would be derided on the ground that Moscow would never consider it. But Soviet policy is not immutable; Austria and Yugoslavia have shown that even Mr. Molotov will back down, given time; and who knows what the Russians might not prove willing to pay for their big prize?

Russia is undoubtedly interested in obtaining security in the West, in parallel with China's similar aim in the Far East. A Peking commentator recently made some play with the idea that relaxation in the West would lead to relaxation in Asia. In other words, a neutral Germany and the removal of the Americans from Europe would help Mao Tse-tung to secure a neutral Asia and the removal of American bases from Formosa and Japan.

The Communists are playing for enormous stakes. They are prepared to play a slow, persistent game, and he who matches them must be equally prepared to stick at a high bid, if necessary for months on end. For in this analysis of Communist negotiating methods there lurks an element of great hope. If western negotiators have the courage to ignore the clamor for quick and specious results, if they match Russian skill and endurance with their own, may it not prove that the decade-long deadlocks on all the great postwar issues are yet soluble?

The Communists have climbed down, abruptly, unexpectedly, and with a bland indifference to the loss of face which is thought so important in the free world, on issues such as Austria, Korea, and Yugoslavia. Is it not possible that some day they will climb down on greater issues, such as world disarmament, and for the same reason—that they reckon the game no longer worth the candle? And if they are not pressed in this bold but patient way, what chance is there that they will ever abandon their present attitude? It is indeed in a combination of boldness and patience, and a stern disregard of all clamor for immediate concessions, that the free world's best hope lies.

Ship's Log

(London, Eng., Time and Tide)

Historical research sometimes has its lighter moments. In the log of HMS Pearl, some of whose men fought gallantly on land in the Indian Sepoy's mutiny, there is the following entry under the date of Jan. 8, 1858: "5 p.m. Dressed ship in honor of the arrival of ladies from Lucknow. 7. Undressed do." (Ditto.)

METHODS OF MEANNESS

Two women were speaking about a third woman. There is always dynamite in a situation like this. Said one woman: "Martha always appeared a bit high-hat to me." "High-hat?" replied her friend. "I can stand people who are high-hat but Martha has a way of particularly getting on my nerves. She has a way of always making the other woman feel that her slip is showing."

There are subtleties of criticism that are even harder to endure than insult. Probably the most hateful type of person one ever encounters is not the person who criticizes him but the person who, by what he does not say, conveys the impression that one is hardly worth talking to anyway. Some people have a loftiness of manner a jaunty disregard of their fellows, a smiling condescension that is much worse than an ice pick under the fifth rib.

You say you know someone like that? Now wait a minute— are you sure you are not a bit that way yourself sometimes? The person who blurts out is not so devastating and annoying as the person who appears to be checking you off the list as uninteresting and inconsequential. Men's quarrels seldom are as bitter as women's quarrels because men pound the table and yell at one another, whereas women kill off their opponents with a lofty glance or a toss of the head.

There are wholesome and unwholesome ways even of being mean.

"Shot" Happy Racketeer Exploits The Credulous Customer

A member of the local "killnick" tells me my body does not assimilate the calcium in the tablets I have taken with great satisfaction for two years. He claims it gets into the blood stream more readily when he gives it in "shots" . . . (Mrs. E. B. H.)

Ben Told by a doctor that a person past middle age shouldn't take too much calcium, as it is likely to cause kidney stones . . . (A. Y. W.)

How much is "too much." I wonder? This is a simple variation on the hokum some physicians solemnly handed the customers fifteen or twenty years ago—that "too much" vitamin D might cause the arteries, liver, lights et cetera to harden, or something. They never told how much vitamin D was "too much."

I was at one time badly crippled with arthritis (writes Mrs. D. B.). Following your suggestion I began supplementing my diet with calmium and D three years ago. Now I am 73, seem to be entirely free of joint trouble, and I'm living an active, normal, happy life. But wait, Doctor, there's no bowling today. You've got to stay right where you are and hear the rest of my sad story.

(The lady is right. There's no bowling today. Believe it or not, it rained gently, steadily all last night and this morning — a $10 million rain—so, pray continue, Ma'am).

Now various acquaintances tell me that—

1. Calcium and D is very bad for anyone to take for any length of time.
2. It is very bad for anyone's mind.
3. It will cause me to lose my hair.
4. It will cause infections.
5. It is very bad for the kidneys.
6. It causes hardening of the arteries.

Of course, the lady continues, I'd be the last to realize it if my mind was affected, but as for my hair, I have a heavy head of hair, I have locks long, brunette, with 30 inches long, brunette, with only a few gray hairs as yet . . . (Mrs. D. B.)

Characteristically, the lady doesn't know precisely what preparation of calcium and vitamin D she used to supplement her diet, whether she still uses anything for the purpose or relies on high calcium diet alone to maintain optional health.

Another correspondent says her husband had been using calcium and D for about two years, with apparently fine results (characteristically she does not say what her husband's trouble is or was), but one day the doctor, attending another member of the family, saw the vial, asked who was using them, and advised the man to throw them away unless he wanted to get arthritis. (Mrs. H. H.)

Le'me see, now. Have we covered all the imagined hazards? Well, no, there's still calcium deposits—but that's the subject of a piece to follow.

KEYS

I dare say that every man, and many women always carry a small chain of keys with them. I didn't realize how many there were that I considered essential until I thought I would cut the number down, but every one was important! Seven in all: Office, home, typewriter, car, garage, overnight grip, and safety deposit box.

Keys have a romantic cast to them. Having no further use for a key to the front door of a friend, I embedded it in the mortar of my stone fireplace at my summer island retreat. The Mayor of the City of San Antonio, Texas, once presented me with the key to his city—a key I have carefully preserved. I may need to make that city a happy refuge some day! It's a city I always like to visit.

I had a beautiful great key given to me by an old friend in Cleveland, Ohio. I understood that it was at one time the key to the old city hall, but someone stole it from my home, to my sorrow.

Much has been written about the key to happiness, to success, and to acclaim. There is but one important key and this is W-O-R-K, by name. There may be other keys to different phases of the great structure of Life, but this one will open any door that is worth being opened. And it may be best to carry this key around within your heart. You will learn when best to use it!

People who put their brains to the task have helped to eliminate many a key that might otherwise add ounces to our daily chain. Our luggage has patent locks, and our watches no longer need a key—in fact there are watches now that need no winding! We live in a wonderful time, regardless of its fears and worries. Let us all try to be friends and helpful to one another. The time is so short!

THE PACKSACK

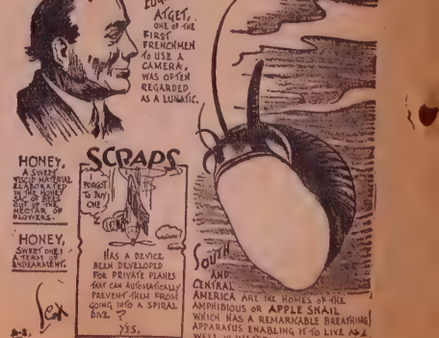
By GREGORY CLARK

For Christmas, my wife gave me the first beautiful blue flannel blazer I have ever owned. Very handsome garment, with the badge of my old first-war regiment, long disbanded, worked in flamboyant gold thread on the left breast. A moose head, with radiant horns.

It must be forty years since I owned a navy blue or dark blue suit. Early in life, I took to Harris tweed for a jacket with lots of pockets, and grey flannel pants. The blazer was as novel and exciting to me as a plug hat to a Zulu.

But shortly I found my wife and friends starting to brush my shoulders off, every time they looked at me. Indeed, strangers at gatherings of any kind that I graced in my new blazer would take atuomatic little whiffs of their hands at my shoulders. And on looking into the matter, I discovered with some humiliation, that my shoulders were usually besprinkled with what could likely be nothing else than dandruff.

I went straight to my barber, whom I have had for thirty years and who is as familiar with my head as he is with his own untended back lawn. He was outraged at the suggestion that I had dandruff. His examination of my thatch bore him out.



"Now," he said, "if I were an enterprising businessman or a dishonest man, and sometimes it is hard to distinguish between the two, I would treat you for dandruff for the next six months, and make myself a few pretty pennies out of you. But since I am neither, but just a tired old barber, I will tell you what you've got. You've got tall friends."

I admit I am only five foot two and sixteen-seventeenths inches.

"Your tall friends," he said, "flick their cigarette ashes on you. They've been doing it for years, and you never noticed, in tweeds."

From now on, I am standing apart from my tall friends. It is humiliating to think of one's self as an ashtray, blazer or no blazer.

Haggis Juniors Drop First Game To Picton, 8-1

Dick Fitzpatrick's Picton Lightfoots opened the Belleville and District Baseball League by handing the Belleville Juniors an 8-1 defeat in "Little Spain" last night with Jerry Miller setting the city lads down on four hits.

Miller hurled excellent ball after giving up the first run of the game in the second frame. Wayne Fox driving in the tally with a sacrifice fly. He whiffed 13 juniors. Marv Stacey was his battery mate.

Stan Reid went the distance for Paul Haggis' crew, giving up nine hits. Cameron Buskard was the Belleville catcher.

F. Bolton sparked the victors at bat with three hits while Keith MacDonald, Marv Stacey and Joe Haydon each claimed two. Gord St. Louis had a double for the losers with singles going to Gerry Goyer, Ted Batchelor and Wayne Fox.

The game was fairly even up until the seventh, Picton in front 3-1, but the more experienced Lightfoots piled up the runs in the late innings to win going away.

Don Dolan of Belleville was the plate umpire.

The Juniors play their first home game this "week-end" at the Exhibition Park, starting at 2.00 p.m. with John Mowatt's Wellington club providing the opposition.

Belleville Lineup — T. Batchelor, J. Casey, G. Goyer, W. Fox, C. Kingston, McCann, G. St. Louis, C. Buskard, H. Stoliker, S. Reid.

The second award went to Miss Deanna Edwards, of Bonarlaw School, speaking on the subject, "Hastings County." Her teacher is Mrs. George Williams.

Third award to Allan Wallace of West Huntingdon school, choosing the theme "Cow Boys and Indians." Mrs. Russell Pyear is his teacher.

Fourth award to Miss A. Grey, 9th line school, Rawdon, who spoke on the subject, "Changes Since Grandmother's Day." Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn teacher.

The other two speakers were from the Bonarlaw school, and were not eligible to compete for an award. Miss Joyce Williams spoke on "Camp Merry Wood, the Rotary Camp at Perth for Crippled Children." This was quite appropriate as Joyce is a victim of polio, also

Those in attendance enjoyed an educational and interesting program.

Chateau Laurier Bandleader Quits After 17 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Len Hopkins, the bandleader who came to the Chateau Laurier for a three-week trial and stayed for 17 years, played his theme "Linger a While" for the last time Wednesday.

He leaves here to be musical director of radio station CKNW in New Westminster, B.C.

Successor to the 44-year-old bandleader from St. Thomas, Ont., has not yet been named.

Hopkins, who will leave shortly with his wife Georgena and their son, Johnny, 14, for the new job, says he isn't sure whether he will quit entirely as a bandleader.

"I'll see when I get there if it's possible to form a band and carry on in a small way."

Hopkins opened in the new Hotel Vancouver in 1939 and played there three months. Mart Kenney took over from him.

Hopkins was invited to play at the Chateau Laurier's Canadian grill on May 10, 1938. Since then he has played here every year, taking the summers off to perform at famous Canadian summer resorts including Alberta's Jasper Park Lodge.

Esther Lillian Dance Recital At Collegiate Much Enjoyed

By EUGENE LANG

In the Collegiate Auditorium last evening the footlights shone forth on the world of the Ballet for two-and-a-half hours as dancers by the dozens emerged from the wings onto the stage in over two dozen sequences of performances that ranged from tiny tots of pre-school age to young ladies of the teen-age set. This mass of dancing Canadiana represented the pupils of the Esther Lillian Studio of the Ballet in their annual Dance Recital.

A recital such as witnessed by the hundreds in attendance last evening is the result of countless hours of long and diligent practice and rehearsal by all the participants under the expert guidance of their instructresses, Mrs. Lillian Latchford and Mrs. Esther Hughes, operators of the Esther Lillian Ballet Studio. In this profession of the ballet every movement of the body has a decided meaning, be it the gesturing of the hand, the gentle toss of the head, the undulations of the torso, the rise and fall of the arms, the smooth articulations of the legs, the intricate deftness of the feet or the graceful posturings of the toes. And above all, these movements of the dancer must be fitted in most adroitly with every note of the accompanying music, be it a subtle waltz, a rousing can-can or unnoticed rhythms that pervade a quiet adagio.

These are only a few things required of those who endear their life to the ballet, but it pays off to the pupil in the knowledge that her creation in motion has been felt by her audience in her performance, also that her teacher can feel that elation in a job well done with each dancer, that she has brought into being. Esther and Lillian should feel just as proud of their young ballerinas as the ballerinas themselves should in knowing that they are being given the best that these two teachers can offer and that the hours of practice drudgery has its merits such as the recital presented annually.

COSTUMES TASTEFULLY CHOSEN

Space does not permit the evaluation of each and every number, but let it be said that every dancer from the tiniest tyke (some seemed just out of the shell) to the admired adolescent did their very best, and if the odd misstep did occur or the precision of ensemble groups was not of Rockette perfection, it still had the overall effect of putting their conscientious best into their dancing.

The costumes, designed by Lillian and Esther were tastefully chosen in regard to their color appeal, and their harmoniously fitting cleverly into the sequences for which each was adapted.

The guest artist was Miss Carole A. Mitchell, of Picton, who was solo danseuse in two numbers in performances that were impeccably projected with subtle shadings of movement and perfection of detail. She was accompanied by Mrs. Glb. Stackhouse, of Northport. Mrs. F. J. Bradley did a most commendable job as accompanist throughout the entire program—a task of no mean accomplishment when one considers the many different styles of accompanying that must be given the various numbers, ranging from the simple waltz to the difficult Liszt Finale number. Mrs. Mary Deacon brought the recital to a close by handing out eleven Cecchetti Award Certificates that had been successfully won by various pupils. These certificates were awarded by Miss Betty Oliphant of Toronto, Hon. Secretary and Examiner of the Imperial Society of Dancing, who earlier this year examined the pupils on their dancing prowess and ability. Floral tributes were given to Miss Mitchell, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Latchford.

PUPILS TAKING PART

India Gradually Moving Outposts Deeper in Jungle of Naga Territory

By V. M. NAIR

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India is gradually moving her outposts deeper into the jungles of the Naga territory bordering China and Burma.

Braving the fierce tribesmen, who still occasionally indulge in head-hunting, Indian government officials have brought a semblance of law and order to nearly 25,000 square miles of hitherto unadministered jungles in northeastern India.

But there are still several thousand square miles of wilderness never brought under civil administration. There, nearly 800,000 tribesmen belonging to 12 major tribes lead a primitive existence, governed by tribal laws and customs based on superstition and witchcraft.

Head-hunters rarely respect international boundaries. Three years ago, tribesmen of Ponyu village in Burma attacked Naga village in Indian territory and took away 32 heads as trophies.

To deal with the problems of this border area, the Indian government has created the Northeast Frontier Agency, but the hill tribesmen are often contemptuous of the plainsmen assigned to administer them. Educated members of the tribes now are being appointed to the agency administration. More are to be selected when suitable candidates become available.

Once dependent solely on witch-doctors for curing their ailments, the tribesmen now have at their disposal 18 hospitals, 44 dispensaries, and 25 mobile health units in the area.

Before 1947 there were no schools in Naga territory. Today, 170 schools are attended by 6,500 tribal boys and girls. Tribesmen are also being trained in trades. More than 2,000 miles of road, bridle paths and tracks are to be constructed before the end of 1956.

The Indian authorities are anxious to win over the Nagas, for upon their loyalty to the New Delhi government will depend the security of India's sensitive north-eastern frontier with China and Tibet.

Chevrolet Sets Production Record For Day

DETROIT (AP)—Chevrolet Motors Wednesday reported its United States plants set a one-day production record on May 31 with a total of 10,164 car and truck assemblies.

The record volume brought May production for the big GM division to 211,416 cars and trucks. This also was a new mark, topping the June, 1950, total of 211,133 units.

Chevrolet reported its output for this year's first five months came to 966,493 cars and trucks. Included in this total were a record 808,263 passenger cars.

COURTESY PLAN

LAKE PLACID, N. Y. (AP)—This Adirondack mountain village plans to dish out courtesy in nickel lots. Mayor George C. Owens said Wednesday that police will supply nickels for all vehicles parked before meters showing overtime flags. An envelope will be left under the windshield so that the motorist may mail the nickel back if he wishes.

Officer Proved Truck Could Go 60 Miles Per Hr.

TORONTO (CP)—Norman Martin, 29, claimed in court in suburban Scarboro Wednesday that his truck wouldn't go faster than 40 miles an hour. He was accused of driving 65 miles an hour.

The magistrate, told the truck was a 1955 model, asked a policeman to take it to the same stretch of road and try it out.

The officer, constable John Rocksborough, reported after the trial run that he hit 60 "and could have done more."

The magistrate thereupon fined Martin $10 and costs.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Wednesday that the officer who tried out the truck said it would not go faster than 40 miles an hour.

New-Car Theft Ring in Oshawa Believed Broken

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police said Wednesday they believe they have smashed a widespread new-car theft ring operating out of the General Motors Corporation plant at Oshawa.

They said they think the ring had accomplices inside the huge automotive plant. All the cars were taken from company parking lots. With information obtained inside the plant, police said, it was possible to get licence plates for the vehicles.

Police said they have made four arrests in connection with the investigation and have recovered seven new cars. Heading the investigation were Insp. Robert Wannell of the provincial police criminal investigation bureau and Insp. Duncan Ferguson of the Oshawa police.

The two inspectors flew to Kirkland Lake last Saturday and arrested taxi driver Allister Smith on a charge of car theft. They said they also recovered a stolen car, registered in the name of a dead man.

Also charged with car theft are Alex Borabski and Jack Meagher, Oshawa; and Gustavn Knutson, 51, Toronto.

Weddings

REID—BLAKELY

Thomasburg United church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, May 28, at 2 p.m., when Eileen Patricia, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blakely of Thomasburg, was united in marriage to Russell Clare, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Reid, Roslin, Ontario. The Rev. H. B. Herrington of Keene, Ontario, a former pastor of Thomasburg church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Baskets of white and red peonies, snowballs, spirea and spikes of bleeding heart, attractively arranged, adorned the front and altar of the church, while bouquets of lily-of-the-valley graced the pulpit.

Mr. Fred Porter, cousin of the bride, played the Wedding March. Immediately before the bridal party entered the church, Mrs. Donald Holbert sang "Because", and during the signing of the register, "O Promise Me". She wore a light grey sheer dress and hat, with corsage of red roses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charmingly dressed in white net over lace with matching lace bolero and wore the gift of the bridegroom, a three-strand prismatic choker with matching earrings. Her bridal bouquet was of red roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Barbara Blakely, cousin of the bride, chose a pink net ensemble for her attire and carried a nosegay of sweetpeas, while the maid of honor, Miss Shirley Reid, sister of the bridegroom, was gowned in green net over brocade. She also carried a nosegay of sweetpeas.

The groomsman was the bride's brother, Gerald Blakely, and the ushers were Lorne Reid, brother of the bridegroom and Glen Kellar, cousin of the bride.

After the wedding, the bridal party and guests motored to the home of the bride's parents, where the reception was held. The guests, about 65, were received by the bride's mother, wearing pink nylon over taffeta with corsage of pink and white carnations, and assisted by the bridegroom's mother, dressed in navy sheer with a corsage of red roses.

Misses Marilyn Carleton, June Kellar, Helen Maines, Maxine Cross and Audentia Cross served the dainty repast after which the Rev. H. B. Herrington proposed the toast to the bride, to which the bridegroom responded.

For travelling the bride chose a powder blue suit with navy and white accessories.

After a honeymoon in New York State, via Ivy Lea bridge and Watertown, returning by the Peace bridge and Niagara Falls, the couple will reside in one half of the duplex house on the farm owned by the bridegroom's father, west of Roslin.

The bridegroom is employed in Belleville and will continue to work there.

Friends and relatives were present from Keene, Bancroft, Belleville and other points as well as from Thomasburg.

France Displays Synthetic Persian Lamb Coat at Fair

By PAULINE KENNDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — France has come up with a fabric persian lamb for women's coats and boasts that "only a moth can tell the difference."

The fabric, made by secret process from artificial silk, is being displayed in coat form at the Canadian International Trade Fair here this year. It is guaranteed moth proof, snow proof and rain proof.

The designers added a touch of real persian lamb to collar or cuffs —a challenge to distinguish the difference.

The fabric, which comes in grey, black and brown, has the exact tight curl and twist of real fur. The only difference is in weight, touch and price.

SYNTHETICS LIGHTER

Synthetic coats run about 1½ pounds lighter than Persian lamb for full length models and are not quite as silky and soft to the touch as the real thing.

Biggest advantage to the buyer is low price. In Canada full length coats sell from $175 to $195, three-quarter lengths for $165, shorties cost from $109 to $135, depending on styling, and capes and stoles run around $79 to $89.

The fabric, called "Fabrilam," is made in France, and shipped to 17 countries to be made up in suitable styles.

In Canada, coats are designed in Montreal. Many of the models are modifications of current French styles. Box shortie and wrap-around jackets are most chic and some have persian lamb or real mink collars. Others have smart braid fret-work designs.

Marital Counsel Service Needed Says Lawyer

The Coronation Club of Bridge Street United church held its monthly meeting on Monday at the parsonage.

Following the brief spiritual and business periods, Mrs. R. Chaplin, president of the club, thanked Mrs. H. Davis for her kind invitation to the club to hold this meeting in her home.

The well-known Belleville lawyer, Mr. Kenneth G. M. Ross, was introduced by Mrs. Anne Acton, as guest speaker for the evening.

Mr. Ross chose to speak on "The Rights of Women". He began by saying that before Christianity, women had no rights or privileges. However, the advent of Christianity created respect for women in the home and gave her new influence in society.

RIGHT TO VOTE

Then the industrial revolution during the 18th century brought women out of their homes and into factories. Eventually, women became employed in offices, and finally in the 20th century, the women received the right to vote —first in 1918, and then in 1928 by the Equal Franchise Act, which gave them the vote on equal terms with men.

In 1883, Mr. Ross stated, the Married Women's Property Act, first provided that a married woman was capable of acquiring, holding and disposing of at will any personal property.

Mr. Ross went on to discuss the great importance and necessity of a will; the grounds for divorce; the custody of children; and the laws concerning desertion.

MARRIAGE COUNSELLOR NEEDED

At the close of this most interesting talk, Mr. Ross pointed out the great need for an "Institution of Marriage Counselling" in Belleville. It was his suggestion that a panel of medical, spiritual, financial and legal representatives could suppl ypre-marital and post marital counselling of a clinical and confidential type.

Mr. Ross was thanked for his very fine talk by Mrs. Joan James.

The meeting was brought to a close with coffee and refreshments.

Bride-to-Be Feted With Many Gifts

A surprise bridal shower was held recently in honor of Miss Shirley Kerr, bride-elect of the month, at the home of Mrs. Charles Treverton with Mrs. Jack Skelly as co-hostess.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and a wedding bell.

The large number of girls who gathered spent the evening arranging a beautiful bride's book.

The bride-to-be was invited to a special chair. Mrs. Skelly gave a reading, "Wedding Preparations" and Mrs. Treverton read the address. Miss Beverly Gow wheeled in an old-fashioned baby carriage decorated in pink and blue and filled with gaily wrapped parcels.

Shirley graciously thanked each one for the lovely gifts.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses which brought a delightful evening to a close.

Y'S MENETTES

On Tuesday evening the Y's Menettes club met in the YMCA for a pot-luck supper as their closing meeting until the fall.

The table was attractively arranged with centrepiece of iris and a great variety of delicious food.

After a sumptuous repast, the president presided and a short business discussion was held.

The meeting closed with the induction of new members' and installation of officers for the coming year.

'Examinations Night' Held By Studio Club

On Monday evening, the Harmony Studio club met at the home of Mrs. Charles Scott, Madoc Road. Mrs. Scott, the chairman, opened the meeting with a cordial welcome to all.

The program took the form of "Examination Night". During the evening, the pupils from Grade three to eight played examination work which is being prepared for the Royal Conservatory of Music examinations to be held in June.

L. Dussek, "Toccato" by J. S. RECITAL WORK

The following pupils played recital work: Gloria Whittle, "Sonata" by W. A. Mozart; Mary Catherine Clare, "Minuet Waltz" by Chopin, "Gypsy Rondo" by Haydn.

It was announced that the annual music recital of Mrs. E. Veley, RMT, will be held at the Belleville Collegiate in June.

Refreshments brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Christ Church C. C. Plans Future Activities

Christ Church Contact club met in full force Monday night as the date of their "Melody Tea" (Sip and Shop to Music) was fast approaching.

Many hands never stopped as bazaar articles got their final touches; buttons and buttonholes on the lovely sun togs, frills on the novelty dolls; felt bags were stitched together, more tickets distributed, prices established on knitting, aprons and many children's articles.

In all, it was a busy spot and the hours seemed to fly by as the final preparations took place.

Time out was called by president, Marguerite Cooke, and a short business session followed to review arrangements for the week. General convener for the tea and bazaar, Florence Lennox, outlined the various booths, and all arrangements and each member present was assigned her respective job, whether it be at a bazaar booth, in the kitchen, tea room or nursery.

Hostesses Olive Rose, Evelyn Ethier and Freda Patterson served refreshments, bringing to a close a most rewarding evening.

White Shrine of Jerusalem Sponsors Dainty 'Good Luck' Tea

The spacious home of Mrs. Clifford Smith, 110 Bridge Street West, was charmingly adorned with baskets and vases of pink weigelia, fragrant dark red peonies, mauve iris, lemon lilies and purple African violets for the attractive afternoon "Good Luck" tea held under the auspices of the White Shrine of Jerusalem. More than 100 attended.

Receiving at the door were, Mrs. Emily Stevens, Worthy High Priestess; Mrs. Tom Lloyd and Mrs. Clifford Smith, the hostess.

The tea room hostesses included, Mrs. Maude Elliott, Mrs. Ruby Flemming, and Mrs. Margaret Cherrie, whose graciousness was most pleasing.

LOVELY TEA TABLE

The tea table, lovely with its hand crocheted Queen Anne cloth in ecru shade, was centred by a crystal bowl of white daisies, spikes of purplish blue delphinium, blue bachelor buttons, white snapdragons and rose colored peonies. Tall, white candles in crystal holders, and the ornate and beautiful silver service completed a lovely arrangement.

Those who presided included: Mrs. Coral Adams and Mrs. Ida Ashby; Mrs. Ethel Stewart and Mrs. Dora Elvidge; Mrs. Essie Naylor and Mrs. Hazel Baragar. Those who served were, Mrs. Eva Hick, Mrs. Martha Armstrong, Mrs. Theressa Kilpatrick, Mrs. Glndys Gray, Mrs. Violet Slavin, Mrs. Nora MacDonald, Mrs. Glenna Black, Mrs. Anne Fisher, Mrs. Maude Patrick, Mrs. Mary Hearns, Mrs. Caroline Smith and Mrs. Dolly Lindsay.

Replenishing the dainty plates of sandwiches and little cakes were, Mrs. Clara Ironside, Mrs. Margaret McKay, Mrs. Anne Little, Mrs. Anne Chapman, Mrs. Ivey Tugnett Mrs. Margaret Stalker Mrs. Metta McGhee and Mrs. Minnie Niblock.

SUBTLE MAGNETISM

The homecooking table convened by Mrs. Nan Cathcart, assisted by Mrs. Kay Bushell and Mrs. Mabel Adams, was prettly adorned with fluted bands of yellow embellished with large, cut-out four-leaf clovers, emblematic of "good luck", with the subtle magnctism of its little, white-iced cup cakes in white baskets, centred by a red strawberry; its blueberry, raisin, rhubarb and mincemeat pies, date loaves, Chinese chews, toothsome snowballs, cherry delights, apple jellies, marmalades, taffy tarts, and individual cherry pies; nut-topped cookies; chocolate cakes; crescents; scones; and maple-iced spice cake, drew many purchasers.

The candy table was also decorated in like manner with fluted bands of yellow, and large, four-leaf clovers. Here, for those whose sweet-tooth predominated, were pretty, little cup-baskets with lacy butterflies; others were covered with rose-design paper. All were overflowing with maple creams, nut-filled; chocolate fudge; vanilla creams; rice crispies, and candy strawberries, which tasted as good as they looked. There were also packages of candy canes — the tasty sweet which never grows old—and little 'frying pan' suckers in flavors of raspberry, orange and lime. These dainty concoctions were in charge of Mrs. Mae Black, Mrs. Margaret Helson and Mrs. Janet Williamson.

POTATO DRAW

Since the rise in price of that good, old stand-by, the potato, Mrs. Minnie Moorman and Mrs. Christine Buck took advantage of this, and had for sale by ticket, a basket of them which went to Mrs. Eva Hick. the lucky winner.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor and Mrs. Illa Clapp presided as treasurers for the afternoon.

A dainty tea pleasingly convened, and highly successful, bringing merited commendation to the conveners, Mrs. Barbara Reed and Mrs. Helena Darvell.

Women's Activities

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS

IF IT'S REAL LOVE, YOU WON'T HAVE TO "WONDER"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young woman of 21 and I work in the same office with a young man, 28.

When we first started going out together, we had an understanding that we would just be good friends, but now he seems to be getting serious, and I find myself thinking about him practically all the time.

I am wondering if we could have fallen in love, but since he has never told me he loves me, how can I tell? We have been going together about four months. — B.J.H.

Dear B.J.H.:

Give yourself a little time, and give the young man a little time. After all, four months is a fairly short period to determine whether a relationship is just a good friendship or something that might lead to a proposal.

If you and this young man are always happily companionable; if you share the same interests and enjoy doing the same things; if you have about the same standards and ideals, and agree, for the most part, on your ideas of what is important in life, it may well be that you will grow closer and closer together and eventually want to marry. But don't try to rush either yourself or your young man. Lasting love develops gradually and, if you give it time, you won't have to wonder if it's real love. You'll know for sure, one way or the other.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HER STEPFATHER?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a very puzzled girl of 15, who has been quite friendly with a boy of the same age.

He and I are fond of each other, but the problem is that my stepfather doesn't like either me or my boy friend. You always hear parents talking about how young people get together and have fun, but my dad doesn't want to take us anywhere, yet he hollers if we go any place with someone else.

For example, one time my boy friend's brother, age 23, asked my boy friend and me to go to Chicago to the baseball game with him and his fiancee. My boy friend asked my parents in a very nice way if I could go. I couldn't. Yet if I ask my dad to take my boy friend and me along when he goes fishing, he always says no. He says he doesn't like to have a lot of kids making a lot of noise. Personally, I think both my boy friend and I know enough to keep quiet at our age, and both of us love to fish. We go quite often with his parents.

What can I do about my stepdad? He even goes off to bed every time my boy friend comes to the house. Isn't that kind of childish? — C.

Dear C.:

I don't like to criticize anyone's parents, but I'm afraid that, in this case, I can't do anything but agree with you that your stepfather's attitude is, indeed, pretty childish. I can't possibly understand why he refused to allow you and your boy friend to go to the ball game in Chicago, nor why he won't take you fishing with him, especially when your boy friend's parents are willing for you to go along, nor why he should be so silly as to go to bed when your boy friend comes to see you.

It seems to me that your mother should step into this situation and do something to help get things straightened out so that you would be able to have normal good times with your friends, both boys and girls. Have you talked to her about this at all? Or does she consider your stepfather the boss of all that goes on in the house and hesitates to discuss anything with him?

If you haven't talked to her about the problem, I suggest you do so. And if you have, and she isn't willing to try and get your stepfather to change his attitude, then I suggest that you go to some teacher in school whom you like a lot and tell her about the problem. Or do you think it would be possible to talk it over with your boy friend's mother? You seem to be on friendly terms with his parents, so perhaps if you explained how things are to his mother she would be understanding and helpful.

Why don't you try these suggestions and then let me know what happens?

Now's The Time for Good Rhubarb Dishes

By Mary Moore

Are you counting rhubarb in on your meal-planning as much as you might? While it's at its best and cheap is the time to make it a star performer in the role of early summer dessert treats. And when you're buying it, do be fussy. Select crisp, tender stalks that are fairly thick. They're better if either red or pink or at least partly so. Then you can have on hand once a week a bowl of delicious. . .

RHUBARB SAUCE

Wash and cut rhubarb into 1-inch pieces. Put in a heavy saucepan and sprinkle with sugar (to 3 cups of rhubarb use about 1-2 cup sugar, this will vary according to taste). Cover bottom of pan with water and cook slowly until soft. This amount will serve four people but I recommend that, while you are making it, you do at least double the quantity. Rhubarb sauce keeps well and is wonderful to have on hand ready to serve—with hot gingerbread, for instance! . . . And another way to use it follows:

RHUBARB FLUFF

Two cups hot rhubarb sauce, juice of half a lemon, 2-3 cups sugar, 1 cup whipped cream. Mix the rhubarb, lemon juice and sugar and allow to cool. When cold fold in the whipped cream and pile into sherbert glasses. This amount will serve six.

Variety in cold drinks is always welcome and rhubarb can star here too:

RHUBARB PUNCH

Four cups rhubarb cut into small pieces, 2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup orange juice, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 1-8 teaspoon salt, soda water or gingerale.

Cover the rhubarb with one quart of water and cook until very soft. Then strain through a coarse cloth. Add sugar and bring to a boil stirring constantly. Add the juices and salt and chill. At serving time, mix with equal quantity of soda water or gingerale and serve with ice. This amount will serve ten.

I've found that oranges and rhubarb pair off in a most friendly manner, and I might add that paired off in these tarts they'll make friends for you too!

ORANGE RHUBARB TARTS

Two pounds rhubarb (about 6 cups) cut into small pieces, 2 oranges in peeled segments, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon gelatine, 12 baked tart shells, whipped cream. Combine the rhubarb, oranges and sugar and put in a greased baking dish. Bake at 350 deg. for 1 hour. Soak gelatine in 2 tablespoons of cold water and dissolve over hot water. Stir gelatine mixture into cooked fruit and cool. Fill the tart shells with chilled fruit mixture and top with whipped cream.

Mother's Helper

A CHILD likes to help himself from his own box of animal crackers, but usually you don't want him to eat them all at once. You'll probably find he won't notice if you've secretly removed half the crackers beforehand. Save the box, if you can, for the other half.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WIFE'S CRY-BABY ATTITUDE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband has been asked to be best man in a large, formal church wedding. The prospective groom is a man with whom my husband works. I have met this fellow once, and have never met his bride-to-be. My husband and I are having a serious argument about his having accepted this invitation to be best man. I say it was wrong for the groom-to-be to ask him. Also, my husband accepted without first discussing it with me. Of course, I was hurt. I say if they had visited us and I had met the bride-to-be, then I could understand.

However, my husband insists that he is going to be the best man for his friend, and that I can stay home or I can go to the reception. He says they are his friends, and it doesn't matter if I am there or not. Am I supposed to go to the church? If I do, I would have to sit alone, as I wouldn't know anyone there. Where would I go while the wedding party go to have photographs taken? Please tell me as soon as possible who and what is right about this problem of ours. — A.R.

Your husband is completely right. It is apparent and it should be apparent to you, if you would let it be, that your husband very much wants to accept this honor to be best man to his coworker. Apparently there is no real reason why he shouldn't accept. You should act your age, should be an understanding and cooperative wife. It is ridiculous for you to think up so-called reasons why he shouldn't be allowed to do what he so much wants to do. I'm glad he isn't giving in to your selfish, cry-baby behaviour. Perk up, look your prettiest and act with grace and graciousness at the wedding and at the reception, and make your husband really proud of you. Don't worry that you will "have to sit alone" during the church ceremony. What's so difficult about that? Flip that chip off your shoulder, go delightedly to the reception, chat with other guests, introduce yourself when you like to. And have a happy time!

GIFT TO ACKNOWLEDGE ANNOUNCEMENT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I received a wedding announcement with an enclosed "At Home" card giving the address of the married couple and the date after which they would be at home at that address. Of course, the wedding had already taken place when this announcement was mailed. Am I right in assuming that this announcement requires a wedding gift? S.M.

It is not at all a "must" that you send a wedding present when you receive a formal announcement of a marriage. How you acknowledge an announcement depends on the circumstances of the wedding. For example, if the wedding was small and few invitations were sent but many announcements, you, if you are a close relative or friend of the bride or groom, would probably wish to send a wedding present. But if the wedding had been large and you received an announcement rather than an invitation, you would not be expected to send a wedding present.

50th Anniversary In Profession To Be Celebrated

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—A maternity nurse who has delivered more than 9,000 babies soon will celebrate her 50th anniversary in the profession.

Annie Head graduated from the Chatham Public General Hospital in 1905, and has spent most of her service there. When she started, the hospital was gas-lit and had no telephone or elevator. She frequently helped carry patients upstairs on stretchers.

In the early days there were frequent typhoid outbreaks and she went to her first case in a horse buggy driven by the family doctor.

MONEY WAS SCARCE

When she was a student Miss Head earned $2 monthly for the first year, $4 monthly the second and $6 monthly in the third year. After graduating, she received $10 a week, and was on call 24 hours a day.

She has made a specialty of premature births, and she keeps in touch with many of her former patients.

Miss Head has been head of the hospital nursery for the past 10 years and says she hopes to bring many more babies into the world in the years ahead.

YOU CAN WIN $2,000 THIS WEEK in the exciting DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE-HUNT!

A notice, "Answer the telephone Saturday night with the words "Dominion Stores — Salada Tea Bags", placed by a Hamilton man above his telephone prompted his wife, Mrs. Bruce Carr, 16 Stanley Avenue to answer the telephone at 8.01 last Saturday night with these magic words. As a result, Mrs. Carr won a $4,000 bonanza which included last week's Grand Prize of $2,000 plus an additional bonus prize of $1,000 for having a Salada Tea Bags label and a cash register slip in her possession. The Carr's number was the first number called Saturday night in the Ontario-wide Dominion Stores "Famous Brands" Fortune-Hunt.

You can win $2,000 this week in the DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE-HUNT. First, find the "Phantom Famous Brand" listed on this page but not illustrated. Next, if your telephone rings between 8 and 9 o'clock E.D.T. next Saturday evening, DO NOT ANSWER HELLO or you will be automatically disqualified from an opportunity to win $2,000.

Instead of answering HELLO, say "DOMINION STORES" and then state the name of this week's "Phantom Famous Brand." If you do, and if is the DOMINION FORTUNE-HUNT calling, you will win the Grand Prize of $1,000.

$1,000 BONUS! If you win the Grand Prize and have in your home all the time a box top or label from this week's "Phantom Famous Brand" (or a reasonable facsimile) PLUS a DOMINION cash register slip dated this week and totalling $5.00 or more, you will qualify for a bonus prize of $1,000.

$100 CONSOLATION PRIZES! If the DOMINION FORTUNE-HUNT calls your telephone number and you make the mistake of answering HELLO, but can still name this week's "Phantom Famous Brand," you will qualify for a consolation prize of $100.

GRAND PRIZE MUST BE WON! If this week's Grand Prize is not won on Saturday night, it will be added to next week's Grand Prize of $1,000. This will be repeated if necessary until someone wins the accumulated Grand Prize.

Employees and agents of Dominion Stores Limited and their families are not eligible for this contest.

Find the "PHANTOM FAMOUS BRAND!"

Below are listed a number of Canada's most famous brands of food and household products. ALL BUT ONE of these products are illustrated on this page. New "Roof-of-The-World" Air Service Starts Friday

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new "roof-of-the-world" air service will be inaugurated June 3 by Canadian Pacific Airlines with a flight from Vancouver to Amsterdam via the North Pole.

Officials say practical problems in preparing for polar operation are surprisingly few and simple and it is expected the route will be one of the best in the world today.

Skyways are clear and unruffled and alternate airports, weather stations, radio ranges, beacons and other navigation aids speckle the entire airway.

Pilots are being thoroughly drilled with study and "paper flights" supplementing a full program of preliminary flying over the route.

Each of the huge Douglas Super DC-6B airlines, of which four now are in operation and two more are to be delivered early next year, will have a crew of eight—captain, senior first officer, first officer, two navigators, three flight attendants (one European steward, one Canadian stewardess, one European stewardess).

The airliners cost more than $1,250,000 each and weigh 53 tons. Passenger comfort is assured by use of an air-conditioning system, maintaining cabin pressure and supplying filtered air of the required temperature and humidity in all compartments.

The non-deviating gyro compass and polar grid charts which permit accurate pathfinding in polar areas replace magnetic compasses which fluctuate wildly over the pole.

At the start the polar route to Europe will be flown once weekly in each direction. Eastbound flights will leave Vancouver every Thursday, arriving in Amsterdam 18 hours, 30 minutes later. A refueling stop will be made at Churchill, Man., en route.

Westbound flights, against prevailing winds, will stop at Sondestrom, Greenland, to refuel. Departures from Amsterdam will be scheduled for Friday evening, reaching Vancouver Saturday morning.

Schipol, Amsterdam airport, is on a former lake bed 13 feet below sea level and is one of the best equipped air terminals in existence.

Designed as a free port for entry to Europe it has been planned to provide transit passengers with every comfort between connecting flights, plus complete freedom from customs or immigration formalities.

Frankford

MEN'S ASSOCIATION

FRANKFORD — Trinity Church Men's Association held its last meeting for the season on Monday night in the form of a "Ladies' Night." A fair attendance saw two interesting films, after which pie and ice cream and tea were served by the men.

Mrs. C. Smith, on behalf of the ladies, thanked the men for their invitation.

The rector spoke briefly in appreciation of the work of the men.

The Sunshine club of the Sunday School held a regular meeting recently with Miss Dorothy Brown, president, in the chair. Plans were made for next season. Violin lessons were held by Mr. George Brown. Grace Pearson conducted the sewing class. A grab-bag contest was held, the prize going to Marlene Houlden.

Other games were led by Jean Anderson, and a humorous recitation was given by Margaret Cooney.

The rector congratulated the club on its successful work and complimented the leaders on their efforts.

A period of time for stamp collectors is to be added to the evening's work.

Tasty refreshments were served by the girls.

Red China Gives Menon Buildup As Arbitrator

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Red China apparently is giving a deliberate buildup to India's V. K. Krishna Menon, a frequent bitter critic of the United States, as the man to negotiate settlements between Washington and Peiping.

Menon often follows the Communist line in international affairs. He is regarded by American officials as friendly to Red China.

He will be coming to the U. S. in a few days for United Nations meetings in New York and San Francisco. His public reputation has been so much increased by Red China's handling of the release of four American airmen that officials are reluctant to give him the cold shoulder.

They dare not permit the world to get the impression that the U.S. would pass up any reasonable opportunity to ease tensions.

ALWAYS A CHANCE

Furthermore, there is always a chance that, because of his cordial contacts with people like Red China's Premier Chou En-lai, the Indian diplomat may really be able to contribute to some settlement. State Secretary Dulles and his Washington associates do not want to foreclose such a possibility, much as they would prefer to deal with someone else.

Marmora

FEAST OF PENTECOST

MARMORA — The Feast of Pentecost was observed at the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, on Whitsunday with masses at 8 and 9.30. At the latter, which was High Mass, one of Marmora's sons who entered the priesthood, Father Francis Quinlan, of Vancouver, B.C., was the celebrant. The Rev. Father W. P. Healey, P.P., delivered the sermon. The altar and sanctuary were choicely decorated with spirea and peonies.

W.M.S.

The annual service of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held in that church on Sunday morning. Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, past president of the Bay of Quinte Conference W.M.S., as guest speaker, gave an inspiring message concerning the church's missionary efforts in that direction. Francis DeCarroll, guest soloist from Campbellford, was much appreciated for his two solos "The Lord's Prayer," and "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked." The pastor, the Rev. K. J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., also participated in the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lyons and family, of Brampton, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. B. Thompson, of New York, at the latter's Marmora residence.

New Zealand Decides to Face Up To Responsibilities in Antarctic

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

WELLINTON (CP) — After a long period of neglect, New Zealand has at last decided to face up to its responsibilities in the Antarctic.

An expedition which is to go there next year, probably under the leadership of Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Everest, may be the forerunner to permanent New Zealand occupation.

Almost alone among countries claiming sovereignty of territory in the southern continent, New Zealand has consistently ignored until now the huge area which is formally under its administration.

But as Canadian eyes have turned urgently north in recent years, so New Zealand has begun to look south. Rumors that the United States was seeking H-bomb testing sites in Antarctica, though promptly denied, brought New Zealand to a realization that the region could closely affect its safety.

SHAPED LIKE WEDGE

Later announcements that the Americans planned to fly planes from New Zealand to airfields of compacted snow in the Antarctic demonstrated that the country was within easy bombing range of bases in the southern continent.

New Zealand claims sovereignty over the Ross Dependency, which lies due south. It is a great wedge-shaped slice of the Antarctic, extending right to the pole and covering 175,000 square miles.

It is a key area from the access point of view, as the Ross sea is navigable to within 800 miles of the South Pole. All successful expeditions to the pole have used this route.

Although New Zealand has administered the dependency since 1923, control has been exercised by a single official in an office in Wellington. Although there have been inspection trips to the south in whaling ships, no New Zealand official has ever landed or set up a post in the territory.

Now the New Zealand government has made a grant of £50,000 toward the cost of an expedition and, more important, has undertaken to share in the organizing of a base in McMurdo sound, in the Ross Dependency.

This base will serve several purposes. It will enable New Zealand to carry out its share of research in the 1957 international geophysical year. It will also serve as the terminal for the British attempt that year to cross the entire Antarctic continent by land for the first time. This crossing will be made from the Weddel sea and will be via the South Pole.

5 Crew Members Of Train Required To Subdue Youth

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—It took five crew members of a CPR passenger train two hours to subdue a youth who ran wild on a train after drinking eight ounces of whisky.

Ernest Garner, 21, of Port Arthur, who had boarded the train at Marathon, a small town about 300 miles east of Fort William, butted his head through two train windows and fought crew members before being tied up and sat upon. Passengers in his coach had to be removed to another coach.

When the train stopped at Upsala, just west of here, police were advised by the train conductor to remove the man. Constable Dougals Forbes of Upsala, found Garner in a vestibule of the train held down by five of the train crew.

He handcuffed Garner, and tied his feet with rope, but that didn't prevent him from lunging through the rear window of the police cruiser. Only Ray Boshart, Upsala hotel employee, who was helping the constable, prevented him from being injured by holding on to his ropes.

Garner, who said he didn't know what he was doing, pleaded guilty to resisting arrest and causing a disturbance in a public place by swearing and possessing liquor. He was fined $218 and costs.

Prospector Parachuted Into District

BURNS LAKE, B. C. (CP)—The tale of the parachuting prospector came out of the north today, fully documented by two witnesses.

It concerned uranium prospector Art Bellos, who couldn't wait for the ice to go out of Tehentlo lake, 250 miles north of here.

Hugh Russell, Pacific Western from the lake with two U. S. prospectors, John Stoneburg of Washington, D C., and Justin Pompeo of Hartford, Conn.

The pilot said he had told Bellos earlier this year that chunks of ice still floating on the lake, made it impossible to land. Bellos told him he would get in somehow.

He hired another plane and a pilot whose name he declined to disclose and parachuted in.

"It was one of the most amazing things I've witnessed," said Stoneburg, who had wintered at the lake with Pompeo.

"We didn't even see the plane in the overcast. Then Bellos was floundering in the water about 30 feet offshore. He had his geiger counter in a waterproof case around his neck. He was laughing and treading water. We rafted out our air float and pulled him to shore."

Bellos himself, relaxing in his hotel room here, dismissed the episode as an every-day event.

McCANN CANNOT

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) has claimed Dr. McCann, federal member for Renfrew South, showed Mr. Frost photostatic copies of receipts for the 1951 election contributions The receipts were reported found in Mr. Drohan's papers after his death in 1952.

CERTAIN INFORMATION

Dr. McCann has said he gave certain information to Premier Frost April 27, when the federal-provincial conference was meeting here. He has said Premier Frost, as provincial secretary, was entitled to the information.

Under renewed CCF attack Wednesday, he said:

"I am sorry, just as you are, that I am denied the right to discuss this matter because of the provisions of secrecy which obtain in the Income Tax Act and in the Dominion Succession Duty Act."

He said Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF—Dauphin), one of his critics, had taken "the mean advantage of putting on the record newspaper stories which say 'They are informed' or 'We have been told' and in which I told you upon my word of honor that there was not a word of truth."

"In 20 years in this House I have never heard of anything more despicable than the method which you and your seatmates there took to put this thing on Hansard."

"MUST COME CLEAN"

A. M. Nicholson (CCF — Mackenzie) said Dr. McCann "must come clean and give a full and frank account of the operations of the department."

Mr. Zaplitny said that since Dr. McCann has refused to answer all questions, a commission of inquiry would be the best means of getting information which Parliament could not.

He said he hopes an investigation will estblish how newspapers learned of the information given to Mr. Frost by the minister.

"If the premier of Ontario was not authorized to make that information public, then he was the person who contravened the secrecy provisions of the act.

"This is something which should be cleared up."

COMMONS QUESTIONS

He referred to questions now on the Commons order paper. One of them asks where Dr. McCann obtained photostatic copies of documents shown to Premier Frost. The minister already has declined to say whether information he gave the premier came from the revenue department or from Guaranty Trust Co., and whether Mr. Frost asked for the information.

Speaker Rene Beaudoin intervened repeatedly in the debate to enforce points of order. He said that because of the nature of the CCF motion the Dempsey case could not be dealt with. He suggested the proposed commission of inquiry would be no more successful than the Commons had been in getting information.

Opposition Leader Drew said he will question Dr. McCann about the Dempsey case when the estimates of the revenue department come before the House.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1955

PCs Spending at Astronomical Rate For Past Twelve Years Charge Made by Liberal Leader

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver charged Wednesday night that the Progressive Conservative government has been spending at an astronomical rate in Ontario for the last 12 years.

Mr. Oliver said not even great expansion could justify the figures.

"Take stationery as an example" the 51-year-old party leader said at a rally in Ottawa, the latest stop in his campaign for the June 9 Ontario general election. "In the last year of the Liberal regime the stationery account was $600,000. Ten years later we find it has grown to $2,471,000."

"Fantastic? Of course, but that is not all. The 1943-44 travelling expenses for all government departments amounted to $421,387. In 1953-54 it was $5,371,000."

TELEPHONE BILLS

Mr. Oliver also mentioned telephone bills. In 1943, when the Liberals were last in power, the bill totalled $128,000. It had grown to $688,000 two years ago.

"I have cited these figures to show that extravagance is not confined to Hydro and highways," Mr. Oliver said.

Premier Frost suggested at a Progressive Conservative rally in Cornwall that municipalities experiencing expansion difficulties should study the metropolitan form of government as a solution to their problems.

Mr. Frost also spoke at Morrisburg and to a gathering of Mohawk Indians at Desoronto.

CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald, in the north country again, said at Timmins that Progressive Conservative policies on natural resources development have been a "tragic failure."

PULPWOOD RESOURCES

"We are within 20 years of the time our present stands of commercial pulpwood will be finished," he said. "Beyond that our pulpwood resources will depend on enforcing modern forest management policies coupled with an extensive government reforestation program—neither of which the Frost government is doing."

Mr. Oliver said the premier intends to give a St. Lawrence seaway contract to the Canadian Comstock Company after June 9, although tenders on the contract closed May 10.

He challenged Mr. Frost to say whether Comstock was a bidder on a power-house construction contract No. 59.

"Is it the premier's plan to give this contract to Comstock after the election?" the Liberal leader asked. "I challenge him to answer that when he speaks here."

Mr. Frost is scheduled to address a rally in Ottawa tonight.

HYDRO CONVERSION

Speaking in support of candidates for seven Ottawa and district ridings, Mr. Oliver said Comstock's contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission for conversion from 25- to 60-cycle power in southern Ontario cost the people millions of dollars more than it would have cost had it been left in a "business-like manner."

He has charged repeatedly during the campaign that a cost-plus five per cent contract with Comstock is "the most nefarious of its kind."

Turning to last year's hearings on highway department contract irregularities Mr. Oliver challenged the premier to tell what happened to $25,000,000 spent in the highway contract over-runs.

He said Mr. Frost had called him a "liar" in a recent campaign speech. "I say he is not telling the truth and only covering up when he directs abuse at myself."

Mr. Oliver was introduced by federal Finance Minister Harris, who said the Ontario Liberal leader has placed Mr. Frost on the defensive during the present provincial election campaign.

FROST ADDRESS

Premier Frost, speaking in support of Ovila Larin, Progressive Conservative candidate for Stormont, said the metropolitan system is working in Toronto and offers interesting possibilities to other Ontario municipalities which are "bursting their boundaries."

He described the metropolitan form of government as an experiment for which there was no guide or example in America.

The premier suggested that Cornwall, a city of 17,500, consider the new form of government as an alternative to annexation which has been opposed several times by adjoining Cornwall township.

He said the provincial government had done everything it could to ease the burdens of municipalities such as Cornwall which are experiencing difficulties as they and the province expand.

He mentioned the continuation of provincial grants to areas annexed by other municipalities and recognition of the problems of farmers through legislation allowing their land to be assessed as farmland.

SEAWAY COMMENT

Turning to St. Lawrence seaway problems, Premier Frost said he was disappointed that the project is not all-Canadian. However, Ontario residents must view the matter in the light of what is good for the whole country.

"We think the U.S. was tardy in coming in to the seaway and I don't think they came in on too generous a basis," he said. "We're paying the big end of the show."

"I should like to see locks on the Cornwall side and the building up of what might then be termed the port of Cornwall. This should be our ultimate aim and job."

At Morrisburg, Mr. Frost said communities and persons uprooted by the St. Lawrence seaway and power project "are entitled to a square deal in every regard."

The premier told Ontario's 35,000 Indians that in accepting the vote, a right they have for the first time next Thursday, they are not relinquishing any of their treaty rights.

CITES WHITE PAPER

At Timmins, Mr. MacDonald said a white paper on renewable resources last year showed the province is within 17 years of practical elimination of timber resources.

Mr. Frost and his candidates through Ontario may tell the people what they are doing, "but their own official publications solemnly warn how inadequate those policies are," the 41-year-old CCF party chief said.

On natural gas, he said public policies now are taking shape and what is emerging is a policy which is the "most shameful sell-out to powerful financial interests in the history of Canada."

The policy was that natural gas will be handled on a north-south basis—western Canada gas to be pumped south and United States gas pumped north.

"Instead of using the natural gas developments as a means of strengthening the national base of the Canadian economy, we are going to be tied in regionally with the United States."

"If this policy had been followed in the last century our railroads would have been built north and south and Canada today would be economically . . . just a collection of northern states in the American Union."

He said one result of the policy is that most of northern Ontario is going to miss natural gas. It will become available at a much later date—"perhaps never."

"Gone with it will be the greatest single opportunity northern Ontario has ever had to build the secondary industries you so desperately need."

Mr. MacDonald said the Progressive Conservative government retreated from its earlier consideration of building a distribution system for gas because of pressure from oil companies.

"Attorney - General Porter told the legislature last year it wouldn't be fair to bring natural gas into Ontario at a price competitive with existing fuels—the voice was the voice of Dana Porter but the policy was that of the powerful oil companies."

HITS POLICY

Mr. MacDonald said the provincial government adopted the policy because it is a free-enterprise government which "placed the private profits of the pipe-line promoters ahead of the public welfare. Its interest, like the interest of most business handling our natural resources, doesn't extend any further than you can throw a dividend."

He said a CCF government would shape public policies so that the province's growing wealth would be used to meet the needs of the people.

Besides going to Ottawa, Mr. Frost will visit Alexandria and Vankleek Hill today. Mr. MacDonald is at Englehart and Mr. Oliver speaks at Arnprior and Renfrew.

City Editor Jailed

CLEVELAND (AP)—City editor Louis Clifford, 48, of the Cleveland Press served a one-hour contempt of court sentence Wednesday in the custody of the Cuyahoga county sheriff.

The newspaper paid fines and costs totalling $647.87 imposed in September, 1953, when The Press was convicted of ignoring a judge's ruling against photographs at an arraignment in common pleas court.

Of the fines, $500 was against Clifford and $100 against Sam Giamo, a reporter. A fine against James Thomas, the photographer involved, was suspended.

Conservatives Hammer Away At Federal Govt. Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative Opposition hammered away at government spending again Wednesday in the Commons but their efforts to have an independent commission inquire into operation of all government departments met with defeat.

A Conservative motion to this effect, in the form of an amendment to a government supply motion, was voted down 137 to 49. It was technically a motion of non-confidence in the government.

The Social Credit group and four independents voted with the Progressive Conservatives while CCF members joined the Liberal majority in defeating the motion.

The vote followed close on another division. In this one, a CCF sub-amendment demanding an inquiry into the department administered by Revenue Minister McCann was defeated by a vote of 171 to 16. All opposition members except the CCF voted with the government.

Opposition Leader Drew said his party could not support the CCF motion because it would limit to one department the wider inquiry sought by the Progressive Conservatives. He and John Diefenbaker, Prince Albert, led the Conservatives' attack on government spending.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Hoover commission which had saved billions in United States government administration had described conditions in Washington as "creeping socialism." If that were the case in Washington, then Canada had a "galloping socialism" judging from all the boards and agencies set up by the government to compete with private enterprise.

Government objection to a proposal that could only result in saving money brought to mind the quotation "millions are but trifles." All government spending, except for defence was to be higher this year.

"And a net decrease," interjected Finance Minister Harris.

"Yes," Mr. Diefenbaker shot back, "a net decrease of $4,000,000 out of $4,500,000,000."

He mentioned the incomplete government printing bureau in nearby Hull, Que.—"that golden elephant that already has cost $12,000,000"—and the "luxury" building of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation outside Ottawa as things that should be looked into.

The country was entitled to something more than a "cavalier brushing aside" of suggestions for an independent inquiry.

Mr. Drew said Parliament was told the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal being built by the CNR was to be managed—but not owned or directed—by the Hilton hotel organization of the U.S.

Yet the Canadian Good Roads Association had to get approval from the Hilton organization in New York when it sought reservations there for a convention in 1958.

This, said Mr. Drew, was a "humiliating confession." It showed the need for getting behind the government's veil of secrecy. It was a question of "whether we're going to sell out Canadian agencies of government to those whose interests are in another country."

Mr. Drew said his party's estimate that $5,000,000 could be saved in government spending in Canada is "very conservative" on evidence of what had been done in the U.S.

George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) said it is Parliament's duty to scrutinize government spending but because of the Liberal majority in House committees it was almost impossible to effect cuts.

"If this government had to operate as a business does, it would go bankrupt in six months," he said.

Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) said the government's attitude is an "example of arrogant, autocratic and irresponsible government." He challenged Prime Minister St. Laurent and other cabinet members to make a statement. Mr. St. Laurent and some ministers were present but made no move.

Ancient Lachish To Form Centre For Villages

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Under a new scheme to settle Israel's unpopulated border areas, ancient Lachish, west of the Jordan-held Hebron hills, is to form the centre of a cluster of villages and farming estates.

By the end of this year, 3 new villages, with a population of some 1,500 families, will form the nucleus for the projected Lachish development. The first settlers already have arrived to prepare their future homes in a region deserted for nearly a score of centuries.

The Lachish project, conceived by David Ben-Gurion, Israel's minister of defence, while he was in retirement at a Negev village, aims at reviving the use of lands which once supported large populations.

STRENGTHEN BORDERS

Perhaps the main underlying motive for Ben-Gurion's project, however, is the desire to translate Israel's hold over remote border areas into a living, thriving reality. A thicker population along the frontiers, Ben-Gurion often has said, means better protection against marauders from neighboring territory and against the fear of military incursions.

On a flat-topped hill overlooking a sheltered valley lie the ruins of ancient Lachish, a fort-like city which dominated the road between Egypt and Palestine for thousands of years and whose history dates from the bronze age and down to the Jewish period.

Joshua was there. King Rehavam fortified the city walls and King Amaziahu is said to have been killed within its precincts. Assyrian, Babylonian and Persian kings came to Lachish and left their mark on the city.

FAMOUS B. C. LETTERS

It is there that the British archaeologist, the late James L. Starkey, made in 1935 and 1938 the discovery of the "Lachish letters." These 21 documents inscribed in ink on potsherds, belong mostly to the last few months before the capture of Lachish by the Chaldeans in 589 B.C.

The Lachish project covers an area of 187,500 acres, of which some 70,000 acres are arable and the balance suitable for pasture and afforestation. According to blueprints of the Jewish agency's settlement department, the irrigated areas eventually will feed a large population.

The area is to be divided roughly into four parts: the west growing citrus; the centre for cotton, sugar beets and peanuts; the east, for pasture and grains; and the north for fruit orchards.

The villages, of co-operative and communal types, will consist of 80 to 100 families each, plus 15 to 20 families of artisans and specialized workers. Every six to eight villages will have a district centre with a population of between 800 to 1,000 families. The district centres will, in turn, be linked to a regional centre, which will be a town with a population of some 15,000 to 20,000 families.

Visas Approved For 12-Day Tour of Russia

TORONTO (CP)—Fourteen Canadian newspapers and radio women have had visas approved for a 12-day tour of Russia.

The press women will be entertained by Russian journalists in Moscow and taken on inspection visits around the country. They will be allowed to take both still and movie cameras.

They leave Paris by air June 26 for Moscow. Word that visas had been issued was received from G.N. Popov of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa.

The 14 are part of a group of 72 members of the Canadian Women's Press Club touring Europe this summer as part of the celebrations of the club's golden jubilee.

Visa approval lists include four Vancouver women, seven from Toronto, two from London, Ont., and one from Montreal. The group will leave Montreal by air for Scotland June 14.

New Townsites For Villages Are Approved

CORNWALL (CP) — Residents of nearby Mille Roches and Moulinette have approved location of a new townsite proposed by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

New Town No. 2, which will replace the hamlets slated to be flooded by the St. Lawrence power project, will be situated in a square mile area adjacent to the western boundary of Cornwall township. It will be located less than a mile from the shore of an 80-mile artificial lake to be created by the project.

In approving the town's location, about 300 residents of the two communities voted 6 to 1 in favor of the site proposed by Hydro.

They had earlier expressed preference for a site to the east of the proposed location. The latter site, hydro engineers and planners said, was too low and would present problems on drainage and other services.

Residents of the area passed a resolution calling on Hydro to provide services for a new industry to replace a paper mill which closed two years ago at Mille Roches because of the impending seaway-power development.

Seaway Awakens People to Idea Of Planning

TORONTO (CP)—The St. Lawrence seaway project has awakened the people of Ontario to the "idea and necessity of long-range planning for development," Dr. E. G. Pleva, head of the geographical department at the University of Western Ontario, says.

During a panel discussion of seaway problems and implications at the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Geographers, Dr. Pleva said he saw the project as an integral part of overall progress which was making the Canadian Great Lakes watershed the "number one development area in the world."

Other panel members were P. Camu, member of the geographic branch, department of mines and technical surveys, and H. Wood, lecturer in geography at McMaster University.

While accepting Dr. Pleva's optimistic assessment of the benefits likely to be derived from the seaway, Mr. Wood challenged him on his overall picture.

The influence of the seaway on the broad area of southern Ontario has been grossly exaggerated," he said. "Every little town and village has been led to believe that all now will be changed."

Mr. Wood described the economic effects that could be expected along the so-called "Seaway Valley" area between Prescott and Cornwall, placing particular emphasis on the new town projects at Morrisburg and Iroquois. He said local public opinion in these towns is "very strongly developed and cannot be ignored."

"I wish they could see sense and get together but they do not appear to be prepared to do so."

He said the great number of small communities in the area were the product of conditions that now had altered and that economically a reduction in the number of communities and an increase in their size seemed advisable.

"Unfortunately in Iroquois and Morrisburg there has developed a violent public hostility to what is termed a 'shot-gun marriage,' he added. "It is therefore not possible to consider a rational union at the present time."

In the creation of the new towns the importance of attracting industry cannot be overestimated, Mr. Wood said.

Of larger communities in the area, Mr. Wood said every evidence he had collected pointed to Cornwall as the town likely to derive the greatest profits from the seaway project.

"Cornwall has everything to gain and nothing to lose from this scheme."

MARMORA

Agricultural Soc. Discusses Rural Fairs

MARMORA — A meeting of the directors of the Marmora Agricultural Society was held recently in the council chambers under presidency of Carl Heath.

A request from the Ladies' Auxiliary of Marmora Branch, No. 237, Canadian Legion, to use the booth on the fair grounds during the progress of ball games was granted on condition that the Auxiliary dispose of its own garbage after each game.

Upon motion the entertainment committee was allotted $250 for defraying expenses of the entertainment at the grandstand at the fall fair, which as in past years, will be held on Labor Day.

RURAL FAIRS

Mrs. Charles Lajoie, who was a delegate to the convention of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies at Toronto, furnished an interesting paper on the main points of that convention, which was largely concerned with the betterment of rural fairs. Mrs. Lajoie also furnished some valuable points relating to fair exhibits in general.

Mrs. Albert Campion, also a delegate, gave her impressions and suggested the local society should sponsor a 4-H Club to further publicize the Marmora fair. She was also of the opinion that the services of a daily paper reporter and photographer should, if possible, be arranged to cover the exhibition for best results.

A third thought of this delegate was that the landscaping of the grounds would lend further prestige to the fair.

DANCE DISCUSSED

The matter of holding a street dance in June was discussed and the subsequent amending of the motion now fixes the date for the night of frolic as June 29.

The meeting adjourned to reassemble again in the council chamber at 8.30 p.m. on June 22.

Algonquin Park Being Turned Back to Its Primeval State

TORONTO.—The hands of the clock are being turned back in Algonquin Park. Set aside in 1893 as "a public park and forest reservation, fish and game preserve, health resort and pleasure ground for the benefit, advantage and enjoyment of the people of the province," the 2,700 square mile park was becoming "too civilized."

Now, the Department of Lands and Forests which administers the park is going to bring it back to its primeval state, in part, at least.

In the old days, a railway line ran across the southern end of the park. Cottage sites and those for commercial camps were permitted under long-term leases. Then came a highway and more and more leases were taken out. Eventually, there were more than 500 leases. Cottagers built docks, began to post "no trespassing" signs. More commercial enterprises wanted to come in with what government officials feared would be a "Coney Island" instead of a quiet, peaceful near-wilderness.

Meantime, lateral roads began to extend from the single highway, most of them timber roads, for the park had been logged from its earliest days. The airplane also began a general invasion, with commercial operators—some outside the park entirely—flying fishing parties in to the more isolated lakes. There were many protests from sportsmen who had paddled and portaged for days to reach some of the famous speckled trout waters only to find a party of airborne fishermen there ahead of them.

BUY UP LEASES

Now, Lands and Forests Minister Clare E. Mapledoram has called a halt. As leases expire, the Crown is buying them up. In the first year, 39 leases, five of them commercial, were purchased by the Government. The Department also has its eyes on those lateral roads and in some cases is closing them off with bulldozers and letting them revert to nature. Aircraft landing in the park today is limited to six landing areas where they must stand inspection to see that rules and regulations are carried out.

Parking and camping space adjacent to the highway has been available for years but now it is being greatly extended. The spots have toilet facilities, water and fireplaces, the latter helping greatly to reduce the fire hazard created by indiscriminate fire building.

The park has a museum, one of the most beautiful buildings of its kind in the Province, which contains flora and fauna of the park, famous among biologists and naturalists throughout the world. There is plenty of room for the man who wants to set up a tent beside a quiet lake — but there is no fixed tenure.

One of the most attractive features of Algonquin Park is the nature hikes over well - marked trails and with expert guides to describe the birds, trees, animals and reptiles.

For the fishermen there are the speckled trout lakes and streams, the big lake trout, excellent black bass fishing and, in at least one park lake, the hybrid splake or wendigo, the cross between the speckled and lake trout which has been developed in recent years in the Department's research laboratories at Maple, just north of Toronto.

ANIMALS NOT MOLESTED

No hunting is permitted. Deer stroll casually on and along the highway or beg at the back doors of cottages, hotels or camps. The black bear is abundant and, within a quarter of a mile of headquarters at Cache Lake, they may be seen any evening feeding at a natural amphitheatre which is used as a garbage dump by one of the major hotels.

Beaver also may be seen at work almost anywhere in the park, but especially along a narrow road which runs from the main highway to Lake Opeongo, largest lake in the park. There are marten, mink, fisher and an occasional moose to be seen and photographed.

In announcing the decision to bring Algonquin Park back to its natural state, Mr. Mapledoram pointed out that all these things had been threatened by the encroachment of too much civilization. There is plenty of room along the highway and plenty of people visited the museum and took nature hikes last year. But to the north, where the lonely canoeist can, within a few minutes, be out of sight of automobiles and seldom see anyone for days other than a park ranger, Algonquin Park is to be as peaceful and quiet as it was in the past.

Canada's Aircraft Industry Expects To Remain Busy

TORONTO (CP) — Canada has spent $1,300,000,000 on military aircraft, engines and electronics since the Korean war, an aircraft production expert says.

"The future level of the industry will stay reasonable—70 per cent of past production," Thor E. Stephenson, director of aircraft production in the defence production department, told the Aviation Writers Association conference.

Mr. Stephenson said Canadian aircraft industry had done well by specializing in fields of specific interest. Government policy was to build aircraft and equipment used by the services in Canada.

Mr. Stephenson told delegates that in the last four years Canadian armed forces have received 3,700 new aircraft—700 from other countries, the remainder from plants in this country. Seven hundred Canadian-built planes had been exported.

British Drifters Will Test Fishing Method in Gulf

PICTOU, N. S. (CP)—A fleet of British fishing boats is poised to head out into the Gulf of St. Lawrence in a revolutionary search for herring that may give the Nova Scotia fishing industry an entirely new look.

The new vessels are drifters—not vagabonds but fish hunters from which nets are thrown overboard to drift. The nets are supported by brightly-painted buoys and follow the same currents herring use as highways.

In the past, Nova Scotians have made the sea, which they consider their heritage, pay off by shipping, rum-running and many kinds of fishing. But drifting is something new.

Dory-men fishing from Lunenburg-based schooners made their home port famous in the early 1900s.

Their sailing ships were slowly replaced by trawlers and draggers that dragged their nets behind them.

The traditional fishing grounds have been Atlantic banks; off the province's south shore and the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

BREAK NEW TERRITORY

The gulf is fresh territory for big-time Nova Scotia fishermen, and the path is being broken by Englishmen. Crews of the new Pictou-based boats were recruited in Lowestoft, England.

The Gulf of St. Lawrence is a crossroad for huge schools of fish moving south from Labrador or to and from the St. Lawrence river estuary and the sea.

Getting along with People

GETS THINGS DONE!

One of the basic "secrets of success" of Premier Frost's administration is the practice of friendly co-operation with others on behalf of the people of Ontario. This effective principle of teamwork is directly responsible for many of Ontario's greatest accomplishments in recent years.

Teamwork with Ottawa secured Old Age Pensions for all at 70 and for needy senior citizens at 65 . . . goodwill at Washington and Albany got the St. Lawrence Power project and the huge Niagara developments under way after years of talk and friction . . . co-operation with Ottawa is speeding completion of the Trans-Canada Highway through Ontario . . . and above all, partnership between the province and our 930 local municipalities has built millions of dollars worth of new schools, hospitals, roads and welfare projects.

SPECTACULAR INCREASES IN MUNICIPAL AID ARE A GREAT TEAMWORK ACCOMPLISHMENT OF PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT

Ontario's 930 local governments are the keystone of democracy in our province. Their various municipal councils and boards represent the level of government closest to the people. Their responsibilities comprise almost all of the essential services affecting the standards of community progress.

One of the most spectacular achievements of the Frost Government is the tremendous increase in the financial assistance which has been extended to these municipalities in the last decade.

From our provincial Revenues, which have expanded 3½ or 4 times (because of the increased productivity of our fast-growing province) assistance to municipalities has been expanded 8 or 9 times.

In total Grants, the municipalities received something less than $20 million in 1943 under the previous administration. In 1955 this has been expanded to over $167 million.

This vast sum of $167 million is half as large again as the whole provincial budget of 1943. The amount given to the municipalities exceeds, by a wide margin, the total amount the province receives from the Federal Tax Rental agreement.

Assistance to Municipal Roads has increased from about $3 million in 1943 to over $40 million this year.

FROST GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE TO EDUCATION totals over $102 million this year compared to $13 million when the present government took office. Practical co-operation between the Province and the municipalities is achieving Equality of Opportunity for Ontario's school children. Above, a modern Ontario school.

FROST GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE TO HEALTH AND WELFARE is twenty times greater than in 1943. Teamwork between Government and dedicated citizens and organizations is achieving an unsurpassed Human Betterment record in Ontario. Above, Premier Frost inspects a new cancer therapy unit.

Provincial Assistance to Education has increased from $13 million to $102 million this year. It now includes grants for primary and secondary schools, vocational training, adult education, teacher training and superannuation, retarded children, bursaries for needy students and financial aid to our universities.

Provincial Assistance to Health and Welfare projects for our people has been increased twenty-fold in the decade. Prior to 1944, the provincial government did not assist in the addition of a single bed to our public general hospitals. Since then, many thousands of new beds have been added. 1955 will be the biggest year in hospital expansion in our history. Millions of dollars annually are paid out by the province for hospital construction and maintenance.

Unconditional grants, the first in Canada, were instituted in 1954 and extended in 1955. These grants, based on population, are for local welfare and other projects at the discretion of the local council. They are a great new source of revenue to our municipalities.

All Provincial Government Grants to municipalities, school boards, etc., recognize the varying needs of each, having regard to local assessments. The purpose is to give equality of opportunity. On a general average across Ontario, the government's assistance is equal to about 50 percent of local tax levies. In other words, every $1 raised by the municipalities is supplemented by 50 cents in provincial government assistance.

FROST GOVERNMENT AID TO MUNICIPALITIES:

- HAS RISEN FROM $20 MILLION IN 1943 TO $167 MILLION
- IS HALF THE TOTAL OF ALL LOCAL TAXES IN ONTARIO
- IS 44% OF ANNUAL PROVINCIAL EXPENDITURES

Waiver List Used as Decoy States Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — The fact that Bob Feller's name appeared on a waiver list doesn't mean a thing, said general manager Hank Greenberg of the Cleveland Indians Wednesday.

"Bob Feller has no desire to leave the Cleveland club and we have no intention of letting him go," the Tribe boss said in an interview with Ed McAuley of the Cleveland News.

Several days ago it became known that a waiver list issued to other American League clubs by the Indians contained the names of Feller, Ralph Kiner, Vic Wertz and Art Houtteman.

Greenberg said he has protested to William Harridge, president of the league, over what he termed a "leak" of those names. The lists are supposed to be confidential, to be seen only by club officials.

GETTING CALLS

The general manager said he has been getting telephone calls. He said the callers "naturally don't understand the workings of the waiver system."

He said everyone on the club, "including Al Rosen, Bob Lemon and all the others, have been on the waiver list at one time or another. Did this mean we were trying to sell them at $10,000 each, or any other price? Of course not."

Greenberg did not go into details on how the waiver system actually works.

McAuley, however, explained some of the uses to which it is put. If a club wants to trade an outfielder, for example, it puts his name on a waiver list along with Feller and three or four 'decoys.' If anyone "claims" Feller, his name is quickly withdrawn, of course. If anyone "claims" the outfielder, his name is withdrawn too—but then the clubs get down to bargaining for a trade. The "decoys" are simply to disguise which player is in the market.

American Pair Wins Doubles

By ALEX DIMEO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Leo St. Julien doesn't like birthdays or calendars—they remind him that he's reached an age when he should quit tearing around a racetrack in a flimsy sulky.

When the wiry little French-Canadian began racing 23 years ago, he owned two horses and raced them himself. Now, at 57, he has one horse and drives her only at workouts.

"Some people say I'm nothing but an old chestnut and should stay at home," he says. "But I always tell them Leo is going along and will be out here racing till the day he dies."

FAMILIAR FIGURES

Mr. St. Julien and his 77-year-old wife, born in Wisconsin, have become familiar sights at the track, mingling with drivers and owners who were just toddlers when the St. Juliens first came to Quebec.

His career as a horse-owner and driver began when he retired as a sales representative for a milling company in 1929, after setting up the company's office in Quebec. Previously, he had travelled throughout Canada and the south-western United States.

Mr. St. Julien's day as a race-horse owner begins at 5 a.m., in a comfortable mid-town flat. After breakfast he boards a bus for the three-quarter hour ride to the track on the outskirts of town.

Then his horse Helen Volo has to be fed and watered before he takes the six-year-old mare out for her daily morning workout.

At noon, Mrs. St. Julien, who doesn't speak French even after 35 years of marriage, heads out to the track with a basket of partly cooked food.

The finishing touches to the lunch are done on a hotplate in a converted stable used as a living quarters.

The track management, as a special gesture to Mr. St. Julien, has given him stabling accommodation, rent-free, for the rest of his life. Helen Volo is kept in one stable while another is used as a storeroom for hay, straw and oats.

Outside there is a small patio where the old couple sit in the afternoon to watch colleagues working out their horses on the dusty track.

If there's a race being held that night, the St. Juliens usually have a supper of hot dogs or hamburgers and stay over. If not, they go home at suppertime.

On nights when Helen Volo is entered in a race, they always place a $2 bet on her to win.

Mr. St. Julien first became interested in horses on his father's farm at Vaudreuil, near Montreal. During his career as a sales representative, he almost always had a saddle horse.

"Since we didn't have any children, we always talked about getting a horse for harness racing to have some interest after Leo retired," Mrs. St. Julien said. "We'd both be lost now without this."

Although Mr. St. Julien neither drinks nor smokes he doesn't credit good health at 57 to either abstinence.

OWNED BALL CLUB

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—R.W. (Dick) Burnett, 57, colorful owner of the Dallas baseball club, died Wednesday. The Dallas oil man paid a record price for a Texas League franchise—more than $500,000—in 1949 when he bought the Dallas club.

A man with big dreams and big ideas, Burnett hired Charley Grimm, now manager of Milwaukee in the National League, at $30,000 a year to manage Dallas in 1950. Grimm only stayed one season on a three-year contract.

Burnett brought the first Negro baseball player into the Texas League in 1952 when he signed pitcher Dave Hoskins.

Snider Robbed Of Record By Six Feet

BROOKLYN (AP)—Two yards of chicken wire was all that prevented Duke Snider from joining the select group of seven sluggers whose names are in the record books with four home runs in one game.

Those six feet forced the sweet-swinging center fielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers to settle for three homers and a double, a pretty mean feat even if the Duke did miss the record books as the Dodgers defeated the Milwaukee Braves 11-8 Wednesday night.

"For a minute I thought I had the fourth one, too," Snider said afterwards. "I hit it real good but it sort of sunk on me and hit the screen. I have no idea what the pitch was but it must have been a sinker."

It was the second time in five years that Snider missed by a matter of feet hitting four homers in a single game. On Memorial Day 1950, the Duke smashed three homers and a single against the Philadelphia Phillies. Then too, he came up in the eighth inning with a chance for four and just like Wednesday night, he sent a drive against the right field screen.

Snider now tops both major leagues with 15 homers.

RECALL HURLER

DETROIT (AP)—Warner (Babe) Birrer, 25-year-old righthanded pitcher, Wednesday was recalled from Buffalo by Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers sent righthander Van Fletcher to Buffalo on 24-hour recall and shipped righthander Bennett Flowers to the International League club outright. Birrer, who spent the last two years in the army, has a 2-4 record in 12 games for Buffalo.

Aces' Manager Punch Imlach Has Troubles

MONTREAL (CP) — The most forlorn looking man at the hockey meetings that wound up Wednesday was George (Punch) Imlach, general manager of Quebec Aces.

Imlach doesn't know yet whether he will have a team in the Quebec Hockey League next season.

After the inter-draft meeting of all pro leagues Tuesday Imlach found three of his players had been drafted and he was plagued with offers for other players—through cash deals.

Imlach's problem is this: The Aces and the city of Quebec haven't come to a financial agreement for continued use of the city-owned Coliseum next season. The Aces have already been given permission by the QHL to suspend operations for the 1955-56 campaign. But if an agreement is reached, the Aces can withdraw the request for suspension when the QHL meets again June 29.

In view of this unsettled situation, Imlach has been fair game—and the most succulent in sight—for all clubs looking for players. Veteran owner Eddie Shore of Springfield put the bite on two players in the draft and Jim Hendy, boss of Cleveland Barons, ran off with the prize pick—centre Ray Powell.

SET UP BOARD

STRATFORD (CP)—Composition of a board of arbitration to hear Stratford police bids for increased pay and fringe benefits was announced Tuesday. Date for the board hearing has not yet been set. D. Park Jamieson of Sarnia will be arbitrator.

Moe Norman Wins Tourney

HAMILTON (CP)—Moe Norman of Kitchener Rockaway won the Burlington Golf Club invitation tournament over a record 129 Ontario amateurs Wednesday in a two-hole playoff with Eric Hanson of Toronto Scarboro as darkness closed over the course.

Norman chipped to within one foot of the cup with his second shot on the par-three second hole where the championship was decided. Hanson had wound up with a nine-foot putt when he chipped on to the green but failed to sink it.

Earlier Norman turned in a 68-71—139 and Hanson a 65-74—139 in the annual Burlington tournament, one of four on which Willingdon Cup qualifications are based.

In third place was Jerry Magee of Lambton with a 71-70—141. In fourth place was Bill Morland of North Bay with a 72-69—141 and in fifth place Nick Weslock of Windsor Essex with a 71-71—142.

Weslock set the Burlington course record of 67 in 1946. The record, which was shattered Wednesday by Hanson's round of 65.

Government May Raise Some Tariffs Today

OTTAWA (CP)—A tightening of anti-dumping legislation on subsidized imports and some upward tariff revisions is expected to be announced today by the government.

Though details have not been disclosed it appears likely Finance Minister Harris will ask Parliament to approve initiation of a duty on ethylene glycol and an increase in the duty on canned and mixed fruits.

The government collects dumping duties on imports shipped to Canada at a price below that prevailing on its home market. Officials now feel that in some cases the home market price is unfair since it may be unduly low through a government subsidy.

The expected revision may permit collection of a duty on such goods equal to the subsidy paid on their home market.

The present duty on canned mixed fruit is one cent a pound. The government had charged 2½ cents but brought it down at the suggestion of the tariff board.

Canadian fruit growers and processors have been appealing for higher protection, however, and the government, it was learned, has been negotiating at Geneva under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade for a higher rate. The United States, chief exporters to Canada, had to agree to the change.

RARE PLAY!

One of the strangest plays ever recorded in organized baseball came to light the other day during the game between the Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers. In short, New York's largest baseball crowd of the season almost witnessed the fabulous rarity of a home-run "inside the backstop" after the batter had struck out.

It happened this way.

Wes Westrum, the Giant catcher, was struck on the head in the fifth inning by the back-slashing bat of Sandy Amoros, Dodger fielder. The blow stunned the catcher to the extent that Amoros, who had struck out, could have raced all the way around for the "homer" had he been more intent on the game than the well-being of the Giant backstop.

Several seconds elapsed before the fleet Amoros leaped over the prone Westrum and streaked for first base. He did this only after the screaming entreaties of the Dodger bench. It took the stunned Westrum longer than that to locate and retrieve the ball. Sandy pulled up at second base on the "error."

Later, Westrum said he had lunged forward and to the inside to gather in Hoyt Wilhem's fluttering third-strike knuckler Wilhelm had heaved past Amoros. His lunge brought his head in the path of Sandy's bat.

Westrum said he had blacked out completely after the bump on the noggin and "I probably wouldn't have found the ball yet if Leo hadn't been screaming and pointing to it from the dugout.

"It's a fine way to get charged with an error," he added ruefully.

The Giant catcher was removed from the game for first aid treatment by the club physician. However, except for his pride and dignity and a small patch on his scalp above the right ear, he had completely recovered in a short while.

The strange play had the Giants and other veterans digging deeply into memory to recall a similar incident. Freddie Fitzsimmons, Giant coach, said he had never seen such a play in all his years of baseball. Leo the Lip echoed that statement. "You see a catcher get hit on the hand or the arm now and then, but I've never seen anyone get hit on the head before," added the Giant manager.

By a strange quirk of baseball fate, it was a similar play that started Westrum on his way to the major leagues, and the Giants. He recalled that it happened while he was playing at Crookston, Minnesota, in 1940. "Fred Neilsen, the team's coaching manager, had his head really split open—he had four stitches taken in it. I was sent in to take his place and that started me on my way to the Giants."

QUITE A GUY!

Roy McClarity, Canadian wrestling star from Winnipeg, will oppose Lou Plummer, the Texas tornado, in the feature bout in the ring at the Memorial Arena on Friday night. McClarity has not only gained prominence in his own country, but has established himself as a major figure in the U.S. He is widely known through the many important televised matches in which he has appeared. In meeting the rugged Plummer, McClarity's famed speed and skill figure to get a severe test.

Doug Hepburn, fabulous strongman who is another leading Canadian athlete, will wrestle flinty Pat Fraley, of Kansas City, in the semi-final. When the rugged Fraley encounters those outsize muscles of Hepburn's, the irate Irishman may have some of the belligerence squeezed out of him.

HODGE PODGE

Paul Haggis' Belleville juniors got their baseball baptism of fire last night when they met the strong Picton Lightfoots in the opening game of the Belleville District Baseball League on the Prince Edward diamond. Paul and "Joe" Kelleher have rounded out a promising squad of youngsters who will be heard from before the bugles sound "playoffs." Picton has a husky team on paper and under the capable coaching of Dick Fitzpatrick should go a long way . . . . Toss away that ladies' softball league schedule. "Red" Doran says a new one is being drawn up which will include an entry from Madoc. Harry Brown says the Madoc lovelies constitute a good team and will make the city slickerettes step for the honors . . . . The Orfuns travel to Point Anne tonight to tangle with the Ox Pointers in a postponed fixture. The Pointers showed plenty of power the other night against Madoc and have a trio of untried youngsters who will be heard from ere the season winds up . . . . Remember Saturday, June 4, is National Golf Day and for a buck you can try your luck at beating Ed Furgol or Patty Berg, all depending on whether you win the bread — or eat it. Patty, who is substituting for the ailing Babe Zaharias is no elouch with a driver or brassie and you distaffers will have to go all out to beat her score. You can shoot as many rounds as you like, providing, of course, you pay a dollar for each effort. The money goes to junior golf development, the Red Cross and private charities . . . . Tomorrow night the Temple Bobcats clash with the Ox Pointers at the CNRAA Park in what should be a dilly of a softball battle starting at six-thirty. Both teams are win-hungry and that means some ultra-softball . . . . Pat Gilmour will bolster the Point Anne squad . . . . Frankford and Madoc tangle at the same time on the former's diamond starting 8.30 . . . . This "week-end" baseball makes its city debut at the Fair Grounds with Paul's juniors playing hosts to Johnny Mowatt's Wellington Dukes starting 2 p.m. Why not take an hour or so off and go up and see the local youngsters go through their paces. They could do with a lot of moral and financial support. After all Paul's kids are the lone medium that is keeping baseball alive in this village . . . . Then there's the wag who, when asked how to prevent fish from smelling quipped "cut off their noses."

VOTERS REJECT PARK

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Despite prolonged clamor for big league baseball in Los Angeles, voters have rejected a proposed $4,500,000 bond issue for a new park. There was little enthusiasm for the issue. Opponents argued that a major league franchise would be operated by private interests and the public should not be asked to carry the financial burden of building the park. The measure was defeated 160,167 to 131,894.

Snider Snags Milwaukee 11-8 As Redlegs Snafu Giants; Indians, Yankees, Chisox Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Without Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phillies could give Pittsburgh Pirates a good run for the National League cellar.

But so long as Robin persists in winning 20 or more games a season, Phillies will stay out of the basement. Roberts has won 20 or better in each of the last five years and 1955 will be no exception if he continues at his present pace.

The seventh-place Phillies have won just 19 games and Roberts has won eight of them, including a neat six-hit 3-1 decision over Chicago Cubs Wednesday night.

For a time this year it appeared Roberts might be on the skids. He sputtered to a 3-3 mark May 7, hardly the pace for a 20-game winner. But in less than a month he has won five games and shows a fine 2.30 earned-run average.

PHILS SHOW NEW ELAN

The Phils themselves seem to be snapping out of the doldrums. They have won nine of their last 11 games, and, although they are just above Pirates in the standings, are only four games behind the third-place New York Giants.

Ernie Banks hit a home run for the Cubs for their only run off Roberts Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the National, Brooklyn Dodgers licked Milwaukee Braves 11-8, Cincinnati Redlegs whipped the Giants 5-2, and St. Louis Cardinals slapped down the Pirates 6-2.

In the American League, Cleveland Indians shut out Baltimore Orioles 5-0, New York Yankees won a doubleheader from Kansas City 3-1 and 6-1, Chicago White Sox edged Boston Red Sox 4-3, and Detroit Tigers blanked Washington Senators 9-0.

THREE HRs FOR DUKE

Duke Snider was the big gun in the Brooklyn victory, hitting three home runs and just missing No. 4. His fourth try hit the right field screen and he had to settle for a double. Snider now has 15 home runs for the season.

The Redlegs got one of their rare well-pitched games and aided by home runs by Ted Kluszewski and Roy McMillen, had no trouble with the Giants. Joe Nuxhall held Leo Durocher's men to five hits. Nuxhall had a four-hit shutout until the ninth when Willie Mays hit a homer with Don Mueller on base.

Luis Arroyo tossed his sixth victory against no defeats for the Cards. Ken Boyer and Bill Virdon each collected three hits for the winners. Arroyo is developing into one of the league's top southpaws.

WYNN EASY WINNER

The Orioles didn't have a chance against Early Wynn as the Cleveland ace set them down with four hits. The Tribe is three games behind the Yanks. Al Smith hit a homer for Cleveland.

Johnny Kucks stopped the As in the first game although ne needed help from Tom Morgan in the ninth, and Whitey Ford went all the way for the Yanks in the second game. Neither team got a hit until the sixth inning of the opener. Irv Noren singled home Andy Carey to break it up in the ninth. Carey had a three-run homer in the nightcap.

Ted Williams went hitless in four trips to the plate in the Boston loss to Chicago. Sherman Lollar produced the big blow for the White Sox, a three-run homer. But they still needed a single by Chico Carasquel in the eighth to score the winning run.

Lefty Billy Hoeft tossed his second straight shutout for the crippled Tigers. He held the Senators to two hits while his mates collected 10.

MINOSO BETTER

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Minnie Minoso of Chicago White Sox Wednesday was released from a hospital after nine days of treatment for a minor skull fracture suffered in a Yankee game May 17.

Royals Grab First Place In International

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The big question around the International League today is, "Who do you like for first place?"

Montreal jumped into the top spot Wednesday night without even playing. The Royals were rained out with Columbus, and Havana Sugar Kings dropped the defending-champion Toronto Maple Leafs to second place, a half game behind, by blanking Leafs 8-0.

In the other games, Richmond Virginians extended their winning streak to four games as they downed Rochester Red Wings 4-1 and Syracuse Chiefs rocked Buffalo Bisons 5-1.

Veteran righthander Connie Marrero, former Washington Senator, hurled a neat three-hitter against the Leafs. Nino Escalero provided the batting power, driving in four runs.

The Cubans took a two-run lead in the third inning, tallied four more in the fifth and added two in the eighth off reliefer Ray Shore. Escalero drove in his first run in the third and slammed out a three-run homer in the fifth off starter and loser Eddie Blake.

FASZHOLZ BOMBARDED

Vic Marasco collected three hits in four trips to the plate and drove in the first Richmond run with a homer in the third inning. Russ Kerns hit a homer in the fifth and Richmond ended their scoring in the fifth off loser Jack Faszholz. Niles Jordan picked up his second victory of the season.

Solo homers by Ben Tompkins and Mel Clark and Ed Kazanski's three-run circuit clout provided the Chiefs with their seventh victory in eight starts.

Veteran Syracuse southpaw Kent Peterson recorded his first victory of the season but was deprived of a shutout by rookie Walt Streuli's hot bat. Streuli got three singles for a perfect night, which brought his string to six hits and a seven RBIs in seven official times up over the last two games. Rookie pitcher Jim Stump took his fourth loss.

British Boxing Foul Rule Unfair Says Canadian

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—The president of the Canadian Boxing and Wrestling Federation Wednesday night attacked the stiff British foul disqualification rule and called for modification along the lines of the Canadian and United States foul point system.

G.K. Garnett of Saint John said the British rule is often unfair to the fighter who accidentally hits a low blow during a heated exchange of punches. He cited the Yvon Durelle-Ron Barton May 24 light-heavyweight battle in London as a typical example of the "unjust nature" of the British maxim.

"Durelle (of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B.) was disqualified in the third round for an alleged low punch. The decision was looked upon with much disfavor as a result of his showing up to the time of the disqualification," Mr. Garnett said. "Many of the British writers were of the opnion that if the fight had not been stopped, Barton would have been in for a bad night. Therefore, Durelle did not have a fair chance."

Under the British boxing board of control edict, the referee may stop a fight for a blow or incident he decides is covered by the all-inclusive foul rule, whether it be a below-the-belt punch, butting, or otherwise. The National Boxing Association of America's ten-point must system, adopted recently by the Canadian Federation, is more lenient and fair, he said.

Points are deducted for each foul committed in fights under NBA jurisdiction. This replaces the method of taking a fight, or even a round, from a boxer because of a single foul.

ROOKIE GIVEN BONUS

CLEVELAND (AP) — Wayne Causey, 18-year-old Infielder from Monroe, La., high school Wednesday became the third youthful baseball player given a bonus by manager Paul Richards to sign with Baltimore Orioles.

Causey will receive an estimated $25,000 during the next three years. Richards previously had given 20-year-old Jim Pyburn from Auburn University $30,000 and John Bruce Swango, another 18-year-old high school boy, $35,000 for the same period.

Gallinger Reinstatement Request Referred to Board of Governors

MONTREAL (CP)—The request of a former Boston Bruins forward for reinstatement in the National Hockey League has been referred for study to the league's governors.

Don Gallinger of Kitchener appeared personally Wednesday at the closing session of the NHL's annual meeting to plead for removal of a life suspension imposed on him eight years ago. His association with Detroit gambler James Tamer, turned up in a wire-tap investigation in 1948 by Detroit police, was considered a black mark on hockey.

The ban, through an agreement between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and all other professional leagues, has kept Gallinger out of organized hockey since that time. He is believed seeking reinstatement so he can become a coach, club official or hold some other position in amateur hockey, possibly at Kitchener.

TWO GOVERNORS

Only two NHL governors heard Gallinger's plea, Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens and Walter Brown of Boston. Other teams were represented by general managers, who will report on the hearing to league governors.

The governors will then file their views with NHL president Clarence Campbell who will pass them on to Gallinger's lawyer, R. J. Reid of Preston, Ont.

Campbell said it was the feeling that "in view of the seriousness of this matter which had engaged the attention of the league seven or eight years, there was no need for any great haste."

The clubs' representatives first went over the case and the formal application while Gallinger and his lawyer sat in the hotel corridor near the meeting room. Then they were called in.

They remained nearly an hour. Then they came out and again waited in the corridor. Gallinger, a hefty red-haired fellow now 30 years old, appeared a bit upset emotionally. He was dressed in a neat gray suit and chatted quietly with Mr. Reid.

TO CLEAR HIMSELF

Asked what was his purpose primarily in presenting the application he said: "To clear myself and for the benefit of my children. I may also have the opportunity of being associated with hockey."

A few minutes later Gallinger said his lawyer was called into the room to talk with Campbell, who then was alone. Then they left without comment.

Gallinger and a teammate, Billy (The Kid) Taylor were suspended in 1948. Taylor was expelled immediately following the league's investigation. Gallinger at first was given an indefinite suspension and later it was made a life ban. At the time Campbell said Taylor had wagered on the result of a hockey game but there was no attempted "fix."

PLAYERS DISCUSSED

Some 30 players are believed to have been mentioned Wednesday in various waiver discussions which took place behind closed doors. No announcement was made about final results of the waiver talk. A number of the players dealt with were understood to belong to minor-league farm clubs of NHL teams.

There were also a few minor rule changes and one addition—the NHL representatives decided that games must be started on time and resumed promptly after the 10-minute intermission between periods. Also, in future, a team will need the consent of the visiting squad to put on a between-periods show or presentation that is likely to delay resumption of the game.

4. To get the best distance and greatest accuracy out of your woods try this: position your brassie with the sole flat on the ground. Have the face of the club squarely behind the ball and at right angles to the direction line to the hole. Now get set with your knees flexed but still not loose. Bend over from your hips but keep in balance. If you tend to swing off your feet put a bit of your weight back on your heels. For a brassie shot play the ball forward of center. Both toes should be pointed outward slightly but the left toe more so than the right. In gripping the club do not exert yourself too much. Golf is a game of rhythmic relaxation. You mustn't have your muscles fighting each other. Now you are ready to swing smoothly, easily.

Elgins Begin To Show Power; Majors Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Thomas Elgins are showing the power that carried them to the Senior Intercounty Baseball League title last year.

They defeated Galt Terriers 11-7 Wednesday night at Galt with a 15-hit barrage that knocked four Galt pitchers from the mound and gave them their fifth victory in eight starts this season.

Elgins are in third place behind London Majors and the league leading Oshawa Merchants.

Majors, meanwhile, remained in second place with a 5-1 win over the Red Sox at Brantford. It was the only other game Wednesday night and ran Majors' number of wins to five with only two losses. Oshawa has a perfect record of two wins and no losses.

RETIRED THE SIDE

Elgins' Al Dumouchelle was steady on the mound until the eighth when relieved by Gene Florcyk who retired the side. Dumouchelle was ahead 6-4 at the time and got credit for the win.

Elgins started off strong, taking a 5-0 lead by the end of the third inning. Galt entered the scoring with one run in the fourth.

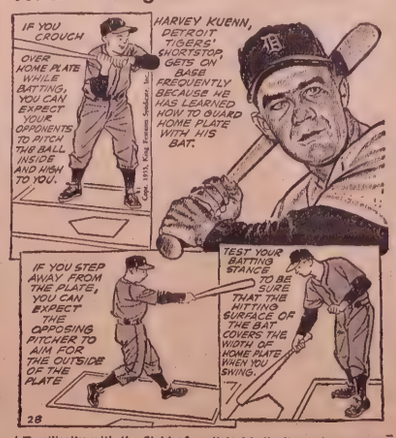
Terriers pushed across three more runs in the sixth to make it 5-4 but Elgins had added six more runs by the end of the eighth.

Jim Martin was relieved by Andy Yednock in the third, who was later replaced by Al Duncan. Alf Gavy finished the game after Duncan was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning.

GAVE EIGHT HITS

Southpaw Lew Fisher was the winner of the Red Sox-Majors game, giving up only eight scattered hits.

The Sox were hitless until the seventh inning when Fisher yielded a walk to opposing pitcher John Hreljac and a double to Jimmy Wilkes to give Red Sox their only run of the night.



Hreljac gave Majors 13 hits to score single runs in the first, seventh and ninth and two in the fifth. Russ Evon was London's big hitter with four singles in five trips to the plate. He was followed by Don McLennan, with a first-inning homer and two other hits.

Wilkes had three hits for the Red Sox. Ron Campaign had two.

Next scheduled game in the league will see the fourth-place Kitchener Panthers at Oshawa tonight.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout and Instructor

Familiarity with the flight of a pitched ball often means the difference between success and failure for a batter. If you see enough pitches you will know where each one is going and thus will be able to control yourself and your bat under all conditions.

Fresno Thompson, vice president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, feels that a good way to give a batter confidence is to put him in the batter's box and throw the ball at him from the pitcher's mound after warning him that you are going to do so. George Selkirk, the former New York Yankee star and veteran manager, believes that you can give a boy confidence by standing him against a brick wall and throwing tennis balls at him to give him practice in dodging them.

Both Thompson and Selkirk have learned from experience that a player will have a much better chance of developing into a good hitter if he has learned to judge the flight of the pitched ball and to know that he can dodge any wild throw.

Once this knowledge is gained, players can begin to learn the refinements of batting which can improve their hitting. They can learn, for instance, that it is difficult to hit high inside pitches if you crouch over the plate, or outside pitches if you step away from the plate as you swing.

PEP BEATS CAM

BOSTON (AP) — Artful Willie Pep scored a fourth-round technical knockout over Joey Cam of Boston Wednesday night after opening a deep gash over his left eye midway in the third. Both fighters weighed 129.

Pep, twice former featherweight king, opened the cut, apparently on a butt, in a close-quarter exchange and was applauded by the 2,486 Arena fans as he danced away and refused to take his obvious advantage.

NHL AGREEMENT

WINNIPEG (CP)—Jack Perrin, general-manager of the new Winnipeg entry in the Western Hockey League, announced Wednesday his club will have a working agreement for the 1955-56 season with both the Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

The club has signed Alf Pike, former NHL star and coach of Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series, to handle the team, but so far has not signed any players.

Baseball Still Popular Game Says Giles

CINCINNATI (AP) — Warren C. Giles, president of the National League, took a rap Wednesday at those who say attendance at baseball games is declining because, he declared, it just isn't so.

"Again this year, sports fans are being fed the 'alarming' news that baseball is slipping and attendance is declining," Giles said in a statement.

"I would like to ask one simple question: Baseball attendance is declining from what?

"In other words, what measuring stick is used by these 'reporters' who seem to take great delight in passing along such mournful tidings?

"Why they write such a distortion of facts is beyond me, when attendance figures prove the game is more popular than at any time in history with the exception of the lush boom years following World War II.

BAD COMPARISON

"To make any comparison with the late 1940s, when every facet of our national economy ballooned beyond all reality, is preposterous.

"Alarmists are quick to point out, for example, that National League attendance in 1954 was only 8,013,519 compared to 10,388,470 in 1947. What they conveniently neglect to mention, however, is that the National League's 1954 attendance of more than 8,000,000 exceeded by 2,566,985 the top attendance of any year prior to the World War II.

"You never see or hear the point made that the NL's biggest year at the gate from 1900 through 1945 was in 1930 when the league attendance was 5,446,532. And, don't forget, the United States saw some real boom years during that period. In 1939 and '40, for example, times were very good and the free dollar was in abundance, yet our National League attendance totals for those years were 4,707,177 and 4,389,693 respectively. That was in the boom pre-war years. Compare that with our 8,013,519 of last year and tell me how attendance is declining."

GIVEN RELEASE

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Pete Suder 39-year-old utility infielder, Wednesday was given his unconditional release by Kansas City Athletics. Suder's release will make room for the Athletics first bonus baby, shortstop Cletus Boyer of Alba, Mo., who will join the club Friday.

Near-Accident Is Strong Argument Against "Flying" Baseball Teams

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — The day when the big leagues will draw up a rule against travel of entire clubs by chartered plane probably was brought closer by the near miss in which Milwaukee Braves figured two days ago above the outskirts of Montreal.

No matter how safe the air lanes have become, especially on scheduled flights in the great new liners, too much is at stake for individual teams to continue to subject their entire playing personnel to unnecessary risks. It would take only one serious accident to a contending club such as the Braves to tear a league apart for years and cause inestimable financial loss.

The Milwaukee club was flying to Quebec for an exhibition game with its farm team in that city. There is a continuing debate over details, but there is no escaping the fact that the rented transport carrying the Braves had a brush with a jet fighter flown by a Canadair, Ltd., test pilot and that both craft pulled away to avoid a collision.

Nothing happened—this time. It might never happen. But it still seems almost inconceivable that so great and sober an industry as major league baseball continues to lay itself open to a crippling disaster.

It would even be somewhat different if it were possible for clubs always to book passage on scheduled flights, whose equipment is the most modern and where every safety factor is rigidly invoked. This is not possible, though, and so they take several million dollars worth of athletes aloft, frequently in obsolescent craft.

Each club has a number of players who refuse to fly, and no pressure has been put on them. Recently, when there was much loose talk about moving big league clubs out to Los Angeles and San Francisco, it was taken for granted that air travel would become a must, and there was conjecture as to what would become of the non-flyers. Since the Angelenos voted

T.V., Radio Column

Spanky McFarland Is Located, Will Appear on Gobel Show

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes it's the little things that bother you most on television.

It was disconcerting on the Robert Montgomery show Monday night, for example, to see the supposedly thick glass railroad coach windows rippling like tissue paper.

In the latest episode of "Big Town," the reporter calling his newspaper office merely flicked at the dial of the telephone and surely would have ended up with a wrong number.

False cues also can be irksome, as on the new 'Appointment with Adventure'' series. In Sunday night's telecast Richard Derr played a mystery-man role and acted as though he might be a fugitive bank robber being sought by police. The impression was heightened by the way he guarded a dispatch case he was carrying. Later it developed he was a G-man in pursuit of the real bank robber, but the jealously guarded dispatch case never was explained.

The kiddies also become excited, although not necessarily offended, when one of their favorite TV regulars appears out of character. A recent instance was Fess (Davy Crockett) Parker on "My Little Margie."

The lost is found, and George Gobel has him booked as a guest for June 25 on his NBC television show.

That's the culmination of a feature in this column about George (Spanky) MacFarland being the only member of the cast of the old "Our Gang" comedies, now a TV hit, who couldn't be located.. He was found in Hollywood and will appear on the Gobel show.

Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the town" marks its seventh birthday June 20 and will observe the occasion with the June 26 telecast. It lays claim to being the oldest variety network show on the air. Kraft Theatre on NBC, a dramatic show, claims to be the grandad of them all, having celebrated its eighth birthday May 7.

The toughest lesson for a bridge player to learn is responses to a simple overcall. Not that the rules are difficult. It is that the responder must cope with such a wide variety of situations.

A simple overcall is a non-jump defending bid. It denies what a hand needs for an opening one bid. Thus, it admits the lack of as many as four high cards or of as many as two sure tricks.

The only promise it actually makes is two high cards of which one is a sure trick; a suit of at least five cards; enough tricks to make his bid if partner can help with two of his own.

For tactical reasons, the simple overcaller is likely to take a chance with less in any department. He could have more in each or all. But not enough in all to qualify as an opening one bid.

So, you can see what his partner is up against. He has a range of basic expectancy that runs from little to much that may be half way to either. He grapples with a lot of uncertainty.

However, life for responder is not as dangerous as these words may lead you to believe. He has something to sink his teeth into and chew on if he gets too hungry for a piece of the contract.

The first rule for him to remember is that a simple overcall does not force or invite or even encourage a response of any kind. Therefore, if ever in doubt he can always pass.

Sit with the east hand shown here:

South opens with a bid of one diamond. Your west partner comes in with a simple overcall of one heart. North passes. You sit there on pins and needles, nursing a flock of clubs.

If you bid clubs, partner may not like it. You do not like his hearts. If you like anything it is clubs. But partner is not asking you. Pass.

Can't Get Away With Violence In Movies Says Cornel Wilde

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Violence in Hollywood films has been hit from all sides. Here's one man who defends it.

He's Cornel Wilde, actor, producer and now a director. He starred in and helped produce "The Big Combo," one of the films which brought forth a wave of protest about too-rugged action in movies. Recently he directed himself in "Storm Fear." You can gather from the title that it is not a gentle subject.

"You can't get away from violence in drama," he said. "When you have two people in conflict it is bound to result in violence, either in words or action. If you do not have conflict, you do not have drama.

"There is nothing new about violence in the theatre. 'Oedipus Rex' is certainly a violent play, and it has withstood the test of centuries.

"Shakespeare is replete with violence. Look at 'Hamlet'. The stage is littered with corpses at the end of the play.

"When Orson Welles did 'King Lear' on TV, they showed an eye-gouging. I was shocked by it, but not repelled. It was good theatre."

Wilde admitted that the decriers of Hollywood had a case—"when violence is presented for violence's sake."

"If a brutal scene is shown for no reason except to shock, then it is bad. I think 'The Wild One' was an example of meaningless violence."

"The Big Combo" was criticized in England and elsewhere because of a scene in which gangster Richard Conte tortured Wilde. Conte put a hearing aid in the hero's ear and played a radio loudly. Wilde defended the scene as being more subtle and less brutal than the senseless beatings in many films.

"I don't think movies incite people to violence," added Wilde. "far from it. Kids seeing 'The Blackboard Jungle' would be repelled by the juvenile delinquents pictured in it, not inspired to follow their example."

What is the outlook for film violence in the future?

Producers chief Eric Johnston and chief censor Geoffrey Shurlock say they are trying to convince movie makers to tone down brutality. The results of more careful censorship of violent scenes may not be apparent for several months.

"But the code doesn't deal in source material," Shurlock explains. "We can't tell producers what kinds of pictures to make. We can only suggest that the movies should return to the family type of picture which was the backbone of the industry."

There seems to be no trend in that direction. One producer recently predicted that the Hardy Family series would be a flop if attempted today.

AT THE CAPITOL — Suzan Ball as the jungle princess is caught in the menacing grip of a tribal chief Anthony Quinn in the Universal-International Technicolor production of "East of Sumatra," co-starring Jeff Chandler and Marilyn Maxwell opening Friday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Abbott and Costello in the Foreign Legion."

AT THE McCARTHY THEATRE

'PETER' ROLE WORKS 'SMALL MIRACLE' FOR AILING STAR

Marjorie Rambeau, who plays a key role opposite Richard Todd and Jean Peters in "A Man Called Peter", the new Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope-De Luxe color picture now at the McCarthy Theatre, was the central figure of the most exciting and inspiring incident of the production. She described it as "a small miracle." Unable to walk without a crutch since she was mangled in an automobile accident nearly ten years ago, Miss Rambeau walked with only a cane in the picture. And she walked without suffering excruciating muscular spasms.

When she was invited to play the part she mentioned her handicap and it was decided that she could play the role seated (as she had done in previous pictures) and standing with the aid of a cane, but would not be required to walk.

However, when Director Henry Koster came to a scene in which for dramatic reasons, it would be better for Miss Rambeau to walk 100 feet down a church aisle, he asked Miss Rambeau if she were up to it. It was farther than she had walked even with the aid of a crutch but she agreed to try. She not only walked the distance but multiplied it many times due to retakes of the scenes. That night Miss Rambeau slept without pain for the first time in years.

Strange as it may seem, the story of Peter Marshall, whose faith in God motivated his entire life, seemed to have deep effect on every member of the cast. Miss Rambeau, who has been a prominent figure on the stage and screen for 54 years, said that her appearance in "A Man Called Peter" was the most rewarding experience in her long career.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Friday, June 3, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—An interesting, perhaps intriguing day. Advantageous for clever ideas, methods and management. Put new impetus into your work, whether it be remunerative, social or charitable.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Necessary changes in business, work or plans are under fine moon rays. New acquaintances likely; domestic conditions favored. A good day for mental alertness, study.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—A day for extensive undertakings and advancement, but sudden changes in plans and hasty decisions are not advised. Thoughtful, conscientious handling of affairs can bring benefits.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—With your moon and Mercury in fine position, the day offers new opportunities for accomplishment, for new business, for occupational gains. Family, friendships, religious interests can bring happiness.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Strongly favorable for military interests, for work on security matters, scientific research, for all worthwhile pursuits and business in general. Your day.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Stimulating, even exciting in spots; your efforts this favorable day will count for a lot. Try new ideas, expand in activities already begun, improve your fine talents. Read, research; recreate, too.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Your Venus' position now stresses a need for patience, especially in home affairs, artistic matters. But the day is a good one, nevertheless; advantageous for fresh gain in business connections, good deeds.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — One of those days when you bright, ambitious folks should feel rarin' to achieve. But this does not mean to overcrowd yourself with too many activities. Happy going!

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Jupiter's aspect advises care in money matters, handling finances for others and yourself. You can get ahead in work, sound business, new ventures, science. Fine rays ahead.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — In all hazardous work, especially handling machinery and tools or in travelling, sensible caution and preparedness are good. Advancement in familiar matters, good chances in sound new ventures likely.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Choose a sensible middle of the road course now and you should have satisfying results for your efforts. A progressive, remunerative day if handled rightly.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—You can be choosey or you can just forge ahead with tasks already planned and laid out. It's a bright, promising period for difficult matters, solving problems, studying; also for light tasks, good fun.

You born today are engaging in manner, quick of thought and action; accumulate a lot of data on many subjects but do not go deeply into any one of them. Variable in moods and desires, you may shift from one understanding to another before you have given the first one time to prove its worth. Productive stability and steadiness of effort are necessary requirements for you speedy, bright folks if you would attain as you should. You might participate advantageously in one or even two hobbies along with your occupation.

LOVE HOPELESS, SUICIDES

CATANIA, Italy (Reuters)—A 23-year-old Sicilian student hanged himself here Tuesday night because of a hopeless love for the beautiful Italian screen star, Pier Angeli, whom he had never met. His mother told police Rosario Gregorio had jumped off a balcony when Miss Angeli married the crooner Vic Damone in Hollywood last November, but was unhurt.

Little Benny's Note Book

I had to go to the market for a pound of hamberger meat, and Puds Simkins went with me on account of us 2 being the Forrin Intriggers and going everywheres together, and when we came out we saw a partly black dog tied outside the market, and Puds said, Look Operater One, a bloodhound.

I bet he belongs to the master spy, I said. Let's test him, Operater 2, to see if he's really a bloodhound, I said, and Puds said, How?

Let's rub our hands on this packidge of meat and then let him smell our hands, and if he's a bloodhound he'll try to follow us, I said, and Puds said, No, let's rub our hands on the packidge and then let him smell the packidge That'll give him a still stronger hint, he said.

Being what we did, and I had to quick pull the packidge away to keep the dog from grabbing it, and just then some lady came out of the market and untied the dog and walked away with him. Being a little lady with a big market bag full of stuff, and me and Puds quick ran and started to walk right in frunt of her, and the dog pulled on his leash as hard as he could, trying to reach the meat, almost making the lady drop her shopping bag, and the lady said, Spotty, stop that, come back here. Boys, will you please get out of the way? she said.

Which we did, walking right in back of her instead of in frunt and the dog turned around and pulled the other way, and the lady said, What in the werld have you boys got in that packidge?

Is that dog a bloodhound? I said, and she said, I'm going to walk on the other side of the street.

Which she crossed over and did, pulling the dog with her, and we didn't follow her on account of not wanting her to sispect we were Forrin Intriggers.

Screen star Rosalind Russell appeared at a baseball game Sunday night and left a $1,000 cheque from Logan. Motorists who visited the stricken town during the weekend chipped in $6,000.

3 Die In Flames; Firemen Thought House Was Vacant

Newspaper Reporter First To Find Bodies at Timagami

TIMAGAMI (CP)—Three people died early today in a fire in this northern Ontario town, 60 miles north of North Bay.

Dead are: Allan W. Doughty, 57, well-known hotel and tourist wholesaler; his wife, Muriel, 39, and her mother, Mrs. Barker, 75.

The fire broke out at 7:40 a. m. in the basement of the Doughty's one-storey frame house.

Firemen at first were not aware that anyone was in the house, because neighbors reported that Mr. and Mrs. Doughty had taken Mrs. Barker to Toronto for medical attention.

BODIES BY BEDS

It was half an hour before lands and forests department crews brought the fire under control and were able to get into the house.

Norman Thompson, 50-year-old Daily Nugget correspondent, forced his way into the house and found the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Doughty beside their bed. He carried them out and was almost overcome himself.

Mrs. Barker's body was discovered beneath her bed by lands and forests fire crews.

There is no regular fire department in Timagami.

The fire is believed to have started near the oil furnace. Oil from a gravity tank fed the flames, floating on top of the water poured in by firemen.

USE RAILWAY TANK

A neighbor, Percy Lowe, ran down to the dock where he got an extinguisher from a boat and with it he put the fire almost out.

Lands and forests men hooked their lines to the water tank of the Ontario Northland Railway and ran hoses several hundred yards to the house, in the northern end of the village.

It is believed the three victims were overcome by the intense heat and suffocated.

The fire destroyed the interior of the house.

Foot in Grave Since He Was 17, Says Man Now 92

PATCHOGUE, N. Y. (AP)—Michael J. Kane, who likes to tell about having one foot in the grave since 1880, celebrated his 92nd birthday today.

One night when he was 17 he was in a group serenading a newly-married couple and was wounded in the right foot when a shotgun—brought along by another young fellow as a noisemaker—went off by accident.

Kane's condition became so critical that his parents bought a cemetery plot for him. But an amputation above the ankle saved him. His parents buried the foot instead.

No Progress Made In Labor's Effort To Settle Strike

By STANLEY GODFREY

LONDON (AP)—Britain's railway strike ground into its sixth day today with labor peacemakers reporting "no progress at all." Industrial plants are slowing down from lack of materials from warehouses jammed with finished products.

Talks between leaders of the striking Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen (ASLEF) and the general purposes committee of the powerful Trades Union Congress (TUC) broke down Thursday night.

Nine of Britain's highest trade union leaders left the meeting to report to Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton: "No progress at all has been made."

Factories and workshops have begun to cut operations, with widespread unemployment in prospect if the strike does not end quickly.

Six major Welsh steel works announced they would bank their furnaces today and put 2,700 workers on odd jobs. Another firm sent 50 men on vacation "to avoid giving them the sack."

Dozens of other factories have issued "protective" notices—that they might have to close—or have gone on part time.

No new moves came Thursday from the government, which has declared a state of national emergency Prime Minister Eden still appeared then to be pinning his hopes on the TUC effort to reach a settlement.

SAY U. S. TO MOVE IN

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters)—The United States will soon triple its air power on Formosa as a result of the inclusion of the island in the Pacific air command defence chain, the Chinese Nationalist newspaper China Post reported. The report, which lacks official confirmation, says arrangements for such reinforcements have been agreed upon by the Chinese Nationalist government and the U.S. under terms of the mutual defence treaty between the two countries.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: A high pressure area, lying stationary over the Great Lakes, will continue to bring warm sunny weather over southern Ontario today and Saturday. In sharp contrast, a disturbance moving slowly northeastward across northern Ontario will cause occasional showers in those districts both days.

AUTO DEALERS MAY LEARN NEXT WEEK OF TAX STAND

Minister Promises To Consider Requests

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's final word may be given next week on repeated demands that auto dealers be reimbursed for losses incurred when the April 5 budget cut the excise tax on new cars they had in stock.

The demands, which in the last two months have come from all sides of the Commons, swelled anew in the House Thursday night.

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) said Finance Minister Harris should say at once what will be done about rebating the reduction to 10 from 15 per cent.

He said the minister had stated he would consider the requests. It would have been cruel to have said that, if rebates were not intended.

DEALERS' LOSSES

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) said dealers' losses ranged from a few hundred to a few thousand dollars.

"This may not sound like much to the minister of finance who is used to thinking in astronomical figures, but it means an awful lot to some people."

William Benidickson, parliamentary assistant to Mr. Harris, said the minister's decision probably will be made known next week.

He said, however, that giving a rebate would create a precedent which might bring similar requests on other goods affected in the same way.

TWO OF SERIES

Mr. Fleming and Mr. Hansell were two of a series of opposition members who spoke on the matter as the House dealt with a series of resolutions to implement the income and excise tax changes announced in the budget. The resolutions were adopted and bills were introduced to effect the proposals.

The main income tax changes were a cut averaging 10 per cent in personal income taxes, effective July 1, and a reduction of some four per cent in corporate taxes on business earnings over $20,000, made retroactive to Jan. 1.

Cost of Living Was Higher Again During April

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs rose for the second consecutive month in April, driving the consumer price index to 116.4 from 116.1.

The bureau of statistics reported today that the three-tenths of a point rise was due almost entirely to an increase in the price of potatoes. This increase also accounted for an advance in the food sub-index to 112.3 from 111.

The shelter index covering rents and home ownership costs edged up to 128.8 from 128.7, establishing a new high.

The costs of other commodities pushed that index up to 118.3 from 118.2 due to higher prices for men's haircuts and theatre admissions which outweighed decreases in the prices of auto tires, insurance and toilet soaps.

A seasonal decrease in coal prices and lower insurance rates on household effects drove the index for household operations down to 116.4 from 116.9. The clothing sub-index remained unchanged at 107.9.

Excommunication For Peron Likely Vatican Intimates

VATICAN CITY (AP)—President Juan Peron of Argentina is in danger of excommunication and already may have incurred this grave penalty of the Roman Catholic Church.

A consultant of the Vatican's congregation of the holy office, whose prefect is Pope Pius, said today:

"We cannot yet say whether he has fallen into state of excommunication, nor can we deny it.

"But certainly, he is in grave sin, and with him all the legislators who have adopted the law on divorce, eliminated religious education from the schools and concurred in the arrests of priests and Catholic laymen.

"What is certain, if the president has not fallen into the state of excommunication, is that he is a very short step from it."

Excommunication, one of the major penalties of the church, cuts persons from benefits and membership in the church.

Beaverbrook's Paper Would Scrap Railways, Use Roadbeds For Trucks

LONDON (AP) — The Evening Standard says Britain should give serious thought to scrapping its strike-torn railway system and using the roadbeds for motor traffic.

Lord Beaverbrook's paper recalls that Brig.-Gen. T. I. Lloyd, deputy chief engineer of the war office, once suggested removing every rail on the 20,000 miles of Britain's main lines and building high-speed superhighways on them.

In a small country with distances short and traffic dense, railways are out of date, his argument went.

"The railway strike gives every reason for reopening this suggestion," says The Evening Standard. "Never before has the importance of the country's highways, as the channel both for passenger traffic and the transport of goods, been so forcibly emphasized."

Meanwhile other transport authorities urged the nation to make more use of its canal system, which totals 2,400 miles. The canals in 1953 carried 13,000,000 tons of freight, about one twenty-fourth of that borne by railways.

Charge Father Used Hatchet On Wife, Daughter and Self

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today a family quarrel over a proposed marriage apparently touched off a hatchet attack in which a mother and daughter were severely injured.

Called to a west-end house by a taxi driver about 9 a. m., police said they found Mrs. Paulin Czubkowska, 52, and her daughter, Christine Anne, 21, in a bedroom splattered with blood. They had head injuries.

Also in the house were the husband and father, Walter Czubkowska, 52, who had a severe head injury.

A police inspector said later the mother appeared the most severely injured. He said he fears she will not survive.

Police said they found a hatchet stained with blood on the bedroom floor.

Police were called to the flat by taxi driver Gene Huntley. Huntley said he received a call to go to the house. He said when he got there he found Czubkowska with his clothes covered with blood. He went upstairs and discovered the two women in the blood-soaked bed.

Inspector George Elliott, in charge of the investigation, said the man apparently attacked his wife and then his daughter and then used the axe on himself. Other officers quoted the semi-conscious man as saying, "I've wanted to do this for a long time."

The taxi driver quoted the blood-smeared man as saying:

"I think I just killed my family."

Neighbors said an argument started about 8 a. m.

A police inspector said that, as far as he could discover, the argument was over the daughter wanting to get married. The father was "death against the marriage" the officer said.

The cab driver called police and ambulances from the house. Officers said there was evidence of a scuffle in the room where the two women were found. They said bloody footprints suggested the two put up a frantic fight for life.

Police seized a hatchet. Its handle and head were caked with blood. Newspapers found in the room also were marked with bloodstains.

The driver said he took the man with him into the house. They went together to an upstairs room where they found "blood all over the place," he said.

Authorities said neither of the women is expected to survive.

Mrs. Shirley Ferri, a neighbor, said she heard "terrible screaming", and thought a child had been hit by a car. She said she ran outside and found the noise was coming from the house next door.

"You could hear feet pounding, people shouting and screaming," she said. "It was terrible."

She said she then saw a man "covered with blood" run outside to a parked taxi.

The cab driver told police the man said to him, "I've wanted to do this for a long time."

Canada to Put Dumping Duty On State-Subsidized Imports

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has become increasingly concerned with a rise in the flow of subsidized goods in world trade. To protect Canadian industry, imports of state-subsidized goods will be subjected to a special dumping duty equivalent to the amount of the subsidy.

Finance Minister Harris announced the government move in the Commons Thursday as he outlined a number of tariff revisions, including increases and decreases. All moves become effective today.

The tariff changes:

1. Duty-free ethylene glycol, used in making anti-freeze, will bear a tariff of 10 per cent. The rate on mixed or blended glycol is reduced to 10 per cent from 20 and that on finished anti-freeze, formerly 20 per cent, is cut to 15.

2. The toll on canned mixed fruit and fruit cocktails is doubled to two cents a pound from one. Melons, formerly two cents each, now are duty-free. The duty on canned peaches is cut to 1½ cents a pound from two for Commonwealth countries and to two cents from 2½ for the United States and most other countries.

3. An old tariff item providing for a drawback or refund of duty on bituminous coal converted into coke for smelting is restored. This is a technical move to protect the validity of coal subventions since there is no duty on coal and none is contemplated.

The tariff action, taken on appeal by Canadian industry, affects mostly the U.S. The revisions, Mr. Harris said, were negotiated at Geneva under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. The coal and mixed fruit in exchange for reductions on peaches, melons U.S. agreed to higher rates on glycol and finished anti-freeze.

God Help Aggressor if War Breaks Out Says Air Chief

By VERN HAUGLAND

TORONTO (AP)—The Western powers are "keen, anxious and willing" to go to war against the Russians whenever they want to attack, the RCAF's top adviser on air material said Thursday night.

"If we fight the Russians, we will beat the pants off of them or anyone else who wants to take us on," Air Vice-Marshal J. L. Plant told the Aviation Writers Association.

"In the event of any hostilities breaking out, God help the aggressor."

Air Vice-Marshal Plant told 300 U. S. and Canadian aviation writers, attending their annual conference here this week, that while the Western powers must fear complacency, they must also fear—particularly, fear of Russia.

The former chief of staff to Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander-in-chief of the Allied forces in central Europe, said aviation writers "sometimes quoting people like me," have contributed recently to "a flap—a helluva panic" over growing Russian air strength.

He said there is not the slightest question as to Western military superiority over Soviet Russia.

"Without weapons of mass destruction, we could lick the Russians hands down—and why we should be scared I'm damned if I can see," he said.

"We do have weapons of mass destruction, and we are going to plant them on them the minute they kick over the traces."

A world-wide atomic war appears to be inevitable, Air Vice-Marshal Plant said. As long as the Western powers have the greater military capability and the greater stockpile of war materials, he added, the Russians are not going to take offence when other nations disagree with them.

"But the minute we have equality, therein lies the danger of somebody losing his temper."

Canada, he said, has a program which will produce the world's finest supersonic plane; a product still very much on the secret list. Presumably he referred to the Canadair CF-105, which has been announced as being under development.

He said Canada is prepared to build anything, at a competitive price.

The aviation writers also were told that Wheeler Airlines Ltd., St. Jovite, Quebec, has assembled 80 U.S. and Canadian light planes —the largest such fleet ever mobilized—to spray 2,000 acres of budworm-infested spruce forests in New Brunswick and Quebec with DDT.

FORD REPORTED WILLING TO PAY HALF-YEAR WAGE

Offer Provides Hope Strike May Be Averted

By NORMAN WALKER

DETROIT (AP)—Tense auto industry labor talks centred today on the extent of employer liability under a supplemental jobless pay plan which one large producer—Ford—has accepted in principle.

Ford acceptance of the basic idea behind the United Auto Workers (CIO) guaranteed annual wage demand—that employers foot part of the bill for maintaining workers' income when they are laid off —provided hope that a strike Monday among Ford's 140,000 workers in the United States could be averted.

However, Ford is reported to have agreed to provide its laid-off workers with weekly payments, supplementing their state unemployment compensation benefits, for only a maximum 26 weeks, or half a year.

SEMI-ANNUAL GUARANTEE

This would amount to a guaranteed semi-annual wage instead of the full 52-week pay assurance sought by union president Walter Reuther.

The company is reported to have offered to supplement a workers' state unemployment insurance payments for the first four weeks he is idle to provide him with an aggregate of 65 per cent of his regular take-home pay.

For the next 22 weeks Ford is reported to have proposed lesser company-financed payments that would aggregate 60 per cent of take-home pay.

SCALED DOWN

The UAW had originally demanded combined state and company payments roughly equalling full normal take-home pay. Later it scaled this down to 80 per cent of full earnings before tax and other deductions.

U.S. Lieutenant In Final Round Of British Golf

ST. ANNES, England (AP)—Alan Slater, the Yorkshire engineer who has been the tournament's giant killer, and Joe Conrad, a lieutenant in the United States Air Force, today entered the final round of the British Amateur golf championship, to be played Saturday.

Slater chalked up a pair of convincing victories in the quarter-final round this morning and in the semi-finals this afternoon. Conrad also had an easy time in winning his two matches.

Lost Prospector Laid Down to Die But Socks Bring Indians to Rescue

TIMMINS (CP) — A prospector who lay down to die on the banks of a northern Ontario river owes his life to two Indians who spotted his socks on a pole.

Lawrence MacGregor collapsed on the banks of the river after hanging his socks atop a pole in a last-hope attempt to signal help. He had been lost for seven days when he tried to take a short cut back to the site his prospecting group were using for a camp.

The 43-year-old prospector had a compass, some wire, an orange, an apple and some chocolate when he lost his way in the Armstrong district, 125 miles north of Port Arthur.

A plane passed overhead early on the sixth day but MacGregor had nothing to attract the occupants of the craft. Tom Webster, field engineer with the prospecting crew, was aboard the plane. It made several passes over the area to indicate the direction in which a railway would be found.

On May 26, MacGregor said he tied his socks to the pole and lay down to await death on the bank of the river. Shortly afterwards the two Indians found him and took him by canoe to their camp. He then was transported by railway speeder and RCAF truck to Armstrong. MacGregor said he remembered nothing about the four portages the Indians traversed to get to their camp.

He had his first meal in seven days after a doctor had examined him at police headquarters at Armstrong. He was brought here to tell his story and had sworn to secrecy because his employers first wanted to record claims in the area. Nature of the mining claims was not known.

Experimental Plant To Be Built At Des Joachims

Hydro, Federal Govt., CGE Will Share 15 Million Cost

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's first nuclear power station will be completed in three years. It will be situated at Des Joachims on the Ottawa river about 10 miles northwest of the Chalk River atomic energy plant.

The Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission announced the site and completion date for the experimental plant Thursday night and said the project will cost between $13,500,000 and $15,000,000. It will be built on Hydro property near the big Otto Holden generating station. And will produce up to 20,000 kilowatts.

Hydro Chairman Richard L. Hearn said the plant will "provide a practical means of studying nuclear station operation in conjunction with other types of generating stations, as well as facilities for continued research and design improvements."

SHARED CONSTRUCTION

The plant will be known as NPD —nuclear power demonstration— and will be constructed jointly by Ontario Hydro, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. Hydro's share has been estimated at between $3,000,000 and $3,500,000. CGE will pay a substantial part of the cost and the federal government will cover the balance.

The output from NPD will be fed directly into Hydro's southern Ontario system, Dr. Hearn said. Although the first flow of power will be far from economic, he said he is confident engineers and physicists will find the road to development of nuclear fuel at costs competitive with other fuels.

Dr. Hearn said the Des Joachims site was chosen because Hydro already owns a large acreage there on which the power plant can be erected and because it is close to the Chalk River plant.

The plant is a result of study started in November of 1953. General direction of Hydro's participation in atomic power has been under Dr. Hearn, general manager and chief engineer at the time of the scheme's inception. He was also a director of AECL.

HEAVY WATER

It is understood the reactor will be of a type employing fuel in the form of rods immersed in a heavy water moderator and designed only for power production. This type was said to be chosen because it seems to be as promising as any other for production of economic power in the next 10 years.

It is understood to be better suited to Canadian resources since natural uranium may be used as fuel. It is likely to require the smallest development program, since its technology is better known here than any other type.

It was also announced Thursday that Hydro is participating in the Atomic Industrial Forum Inc., a non-profit organization of industry and education engaged in development and application of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. The forum includes members of leading industrial labor, financial and education institutions in the United States.

Woman Driver Didn't Know How To Dim Lights

STRATFORD (CP) — Maybe it was lucky the woman driver didn't know how to dim her lights.

A provincial constable patrolling Highway 7 blinked his lights two or three times at a car whose bright lights were blinding oncoming autos. When the lights did not go down, the officer went back to give the driver a lesson in courtesy and perhaps a ticket.

The constable had a lecture prepared but the two women in the car out-talked him so fast that he finally drove away to get them some gasoline.

It appeared the tank was empty, and it was a new car. The woman didn't know where to find the gasoline gauge. She didn't know how to dim the lights. In fact she wasn't sure what dimming the lights meant.

When the officer returned he explained the purpose of those little dashboard gadgets.

Says Local Churches Should Care For Aged

TORONTO (CP)—Homes for the aged should be supported by local congregations and not by assembly funds, a Presbyterian Church official said Thursday.

Dr. Clifton J. MacKay of Montreal, chairman of a special committee on homes for the aged, recommended that a foster home care plan be instituted for the aged. This would be subsidized and supervised by local congregations.

Dr. MacKay gave his committee's report to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He said the committee studying the problem decided finance and support should be dealt with on the rural and urban level.

'WASHED ITS HANDS"

Rev. David Lane of Clinton, Ont., charged that Dr. MacKay's report "washed its hands of the aged."

He said other churches are making provision for their aged and cited the cottage scheme that allows old persons to live in small separate homes within a low income.

The doctors were identified as a Dr. Archibald of Sydney and a Dr. Arnold of Haileybury.

2 Plead Guilty To Theft of Two Diamond Rings

Pleading guilty in Magistrate's Court today to the theft of two diamond rings from the Paul Mercier jewellery store on Front St., Edgar Loree, 42, of Montreal, and Clarke McTavish, 45, of Toronto, were remanded one week for sentence.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills remanded the two men until next Friday to allow the return of their records from Ottawa.

Loree and McTavish were arrested Tuesday afternoon after they had visited the Mercier store. After the men left the two rings were noticed missing from the window showcase by clerk Jeannette Barrett.

Suspecting the two men, who a few minutes previously had left the store, Mrs. Barrett notified the store owner and a few minutes later the two men were spotted driving down Front St. Police were notified and Constable Thomas Schrieder stopped the pair opposite the city hall.

The two missing rings were found shoved between the cushions of front seat of the car and the men were taken to the police station by Constable Schrieder, where they were formally charged with theft.

Police Court

Traffic cases, two third-offense drunk charges, two theft charges, and a charge under the city dog by-law comprised the morning magistrate's court docket.

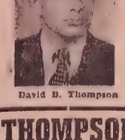
Three and four month jail terms were handed out to the two third-offense drunks, while the one was given an additional month for having liquor, so both will spend the next four months in custody.

Two men pleaded guilty to the theft of two diamond rings from the Paul Mercier Jewellery Store and were remanded for sentence.

Traffic charges, all of which had been settled out of court, made up the big end of the court docket. Included were speeding charges, parking and "stop" street charges.

Speeding summonses for motorists clocked at excessive speeds by the city's new speed timing device are beginning to reach the court docket with close to 20 such cases listed on the morning docket. All had been settled out of court.

Altogether 183 speeding summonses have been forwarded to speeding motorists, police chief Walter Probert noted. The summonses already mailed out are for court appearance at dates still in the future. In addition to the 183 summonses already sent, another 100 will go out in the near future.



General Motors Talks Postponed

OSHAWA (CP) — Contract talks scheduled for today between General Motors and the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) were postponed to June 9.

The union said the postponement will give the company additional time to study a number of minor contract changes suggested by the union earlier this week.

The talks affect about 9,000 workers represented by the union's Local 222.

Dr. Ralph Hayward, Indian health services physician in the Sarnia area, to be forwarded to the federal health department.

Canada's Queen of Universe Will Visit Enos David's Appliance Store

Salesmen, among other things, stress the beauty lines of products in their stores, but a Belleville appliance dealer this weekend will feature the girl with the most beautiful lines in Canada in his store.

Tomorrow morning, Canada's Queen of the Universe, Toronto's Joyce Landry, who raised whistles when she appeared in a glamorous Mountie costume at the Miss Universe contest in the United States, last year, will be the centre of distraction in Enos David's appliance store.

No, she has not switched occupations, she's still one of the country's leading models and will appear as such in the store —highlight of David's fifteenth anniversary celebrations.

Owned and operated by Enos David, the present location has been in business as an appliance store since the fall of 1952, when Mr. David took over the building from the Model Home Furniture.

At that time the move was a necessary one. When Mr. David first opened business in the city in June, 1940, he located his appliance store in the Boymore Building at 340 Front Street. With the end of the war and the boom in the appliance business, that location started creaking at the seams for want of space. Then came the biggest thing on the home market since Henry Ford introduced the Model T car and that was television.

MOVED WITH TIMES

An entirely new business, requiring then as now much effort on the part of the dealer, which in turn made greater the need for more space. David moved with the times and into the present situation.

The post-war hunger for home appliances also made itself felt in another angle of business. Consumers also wanted value for their money and to satisfy them meant a dealer had to buy in volume—probably more than could be handled at one location. The answer was additional outlets.

In September 1953, Mr. David branched out into Trenton and the following year, to serve his customers in Prince Edward County, took over the old-established Picton furniture business of the Gilbert Company.

Now in Belleville and Trenton he offers for sale TV, appliances and records while the Picton store also retails furniture in addition to these lines.

In business for 34 years David came here from Cochrane in Northern Ontario.

He says: "I believe that a business in a community is not only for making a living. It should be more than that. It should provide a service in the community. I have always felt that if you consider the needs of the customer first you never have to worry about your own."

In marking his years in business here, Mr. David will have Joyce Landry appear in the communities where his businesses are located and also have her draw for different items of merchandise at the stores.

Northern Canada May Be Key To Entire Defence of West

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—In the opinion of senior officials here, northern Canada may be the key to the defence of the entire Western alliance.

This is an outline of the latest defence thinking:

Unless Russia could knock out North America's industrial power, it could not hope to win a major war, in Europe or anywhere else.

To make an onslaught unlikely, North America — in effect, the United States—must possess a deterrent power. This deterrent is the U.S. strategic air force.

But Canada and the U.S. must also have the means to protect their retaliatory capacity.

This can be done by providing early warning of an attack to give the strategic air force time to get off the ground and avoid destruction and by providing RCAF and USAF fighter planes to blunt the initial enemy strikes until massive retaliation has taken effect.

FACE NORTHERN CONDITIONS

The increased range and speed of bombers means North American air defences must be pushed more and more into Canada and closer to the Arctic circle. This brings all the problems of construction, maintenance and manning under northern conditions.

Because of the destructiveness of hydrogen bombs and the resulting radioactive fallout, the most logical defence is to shoot down enemy bombers as far as possible from the populated areas of Canada and the U.S.

This solution raises tremendous problems, political as well as military.

MORE MEN FROM U.S.

The political problem mainly concerns manpower. More U.S. servicemen will probably be added to the 3,000 now stationed in Canada.

Canadian and American planners are studying a vast expansion of the North American defence network in Canada.

Air Marshal Roy Slemon, chief of the air staff, is reported to have said at Montreal Wednesday that Canada and the U.S. are moving toward a completely unified North American air defence system with a single over-all commander.

Opposition leader Drew asked in the Commons Thursday whether the air chief was stating government policy.

Defence Minister Campney replied Air Marshal Slemon "was simply stating a trend in military thinking." But it was not government policy to seek appointment of a supreme commander.

Steels, motors and utilities were particularly strong. Canadian Vickers jumped $3, Canadian Car and Canadian Car A 2¾ and 2½ respectively, Ford A 21, General Motors $2 and Loblaw Groceterias B, Lang, Distillers Seagrams and International Paper $1 each.

McIntyre shot up 3⅝ to 81½, a 1955 high, in a firm golds group and Preston East Dome climbed 30 to $9. Ventures jumped 3⅛ among holding companies.

Gunnar continued its recent sharp rise in the leading uraniums group, climbing c. Pronto jumped 60 to $8.85, Rayrock 35 to $3.25, Nama Creek 33 to $2.28, Consolidated Denison 30 to $9.50 and Can-Met 24 to $2.61 among lower-priced issues. Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were generally steady to 50 cents a hundredweight this week at the Ontario public stockyards. Calves were slow at steady prices. Hogs were 50 cents to $1 higher, while sheep and lambs were generally unchanged.

The cattle run was some 800 head more than last week and about 200 head more than the same week last year. Included in the fresh run were 730 head of western cattle, mostly stockers. This figure is comparable to last week. Shipments to eastern Canadian slaughterers totalled 12 cars, an increase of three cars over last week and there were no exports to the United States.

Increased marketing of all grades of slaughter cattle failed to cause any weakness in the price structure. Cows showed gains of fully 50 cents. Slow sellers were long-fed mature steers weighing upwards of 1200 pounds. This grade sold at discounts of up to 50 cents. Heifers continued in broad demand.

Prices: Choice steers, all weights $20-21, with choice weighty steers selling up to $21.25; good steers were $19-20 with mediums at $16-19; commons were $12-16; choice heifers were $18.50-19 with sales to $19.50; good heifers were $17-18 with mediums at $14-17; commons were $12-14, boner steers and heifers were $10-12; choice fed yearlings were $20-21 with sales up to $21.50; one lot of seven head sold at $22; good fed yearlings $19-20; with mediums $17-19; Good cows were $15-15.50 with some good butcher cows selling at $16; good light heifery cows sold up to $16.50 with canner and cutter cows down to $9. Good heavy bologna bulls were generally $15 with good light butcher bulls up to $16; common and medium light bulls sold down to $10.

Replacement cattle: Demand for this class was fair; good stockers sold at $20-21; mediums were $18-20 with commons at $16-18.

Calves were about 600 head more than last week and sold slowly at the close at steady prices. Good and choice vealers were $21-24 with early week tops of $25; mediums were $15-20 with commons at $10-15.

Hogs were about the same as last week. Grade A hogs sold locally were 50 cents higher than last week selling at $28; two loads shipped off the market brought $28.50; sows were unchanged at $18 dressed while stags sold at $14 dressed.

Sheep and lambs were generally $28 with some early sales touching $30; medium Ontario feedlot lambs were $20.50. Good light sheep sold up to $11 with common and heavy sheep down to $4.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was steady with offerings adequate for a steady demand.

Butter solids: Ont., first grade, tenderable 58; non-tenderable 56-56½; western 58¼ (nominal).

CBC in Black House Is Told

OTTAWA (CP) — A $16,960,000 assist from Canadian taxpayers is expected to shove the CBC $4,562,000 into the black for its television operations in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

The radio side, however, should show a deficit of $306,000 despite $10,760,000 from the federal treasury.

These expectations were offered Thursday before the Commons broadcasting committee by A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors.

The $4,562,000 "surplus," Mr. Dunton said, will be used to finance TV services in the current fiscal year.

CANADIAN CHANNELS SAFE

The committee was told television channels in Canada near the international boundary can't be used by United States transmitters unless Canada is prepared to trade some territory.

W. B. Smith, head of the department's broadcast and measurement section, in replying to questions about the possibility of U.S. pressure to take over such unallocated channels said:

"I don't see how it can be done unless we are prepared to trade some of our land. All these channels are fixed to pieces of geography that you can't move around very easily."

Under a Canada-U.S. treaty, there was some latitude in setting the channels, but Canada could lose none.

Air Vice-Marshal Would Abolish Canadian Army

TORONTO (CP)—Air Vice-Marshal John L. Plant, the RCAF's air member for technical services, said Thursday night the army should be abolished to make manpower available for a stronger air force.

Canada's limited population is not sufficient to support both a fully effective army and air force, he said. He was speaking at a dinner of the Aviation Writers Association.

"My suggestion to the government, if they ever ask me, would be to do away with the Canadian Army and put the money into a few aircraft.

"We should put our effort into the things that cost the most dollars and take the least number of men."

He said he was not voicing government policy but was prepared to support his statements.

Court Dismisses Paper Companies' Combine Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal has dismissed an appeal by 27 paper companies against a conviction of combining to unduly prevent or lessen competition in the fine paper industry.

The written judgment Wednesday by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach amended the conviction by striking out a reference to "a conspiracy to lessen or prevent production or manufacture." Otherwise the original conviction stands.

Mr. Justice Roach wrote:

"In my opinion the evidence established beyond a reasonable doubt—indeed I think it is overwhelming—that the two groups conspired with one another to prevent or lessen competition in Canada in the purchase and sale of fine papers."

Restrictions Prevent Canada From Building

OTTAWA (CP)—Construction restrictions in Rome have prevented Canada building a combined embassy residence and office on a large lot purchased some years ago in a historically attractive section of that ancient city.

Jules Leger, undersecretary for external affairs, Thursday told the Commons committee studying his department's estimates that the lot would be sold and probably at a profit.

Meanwhile, the department was negotiating purchase of an office building in Rome likely to cost about $380,000 and would try to find another building for an embassy residence.

Other major building projects for Canada's foreign service mentioned by Mr. Leger included an extension to the offices in Paris, The Hague and Tokyo at costs of $585,000, $285,000 and $250,000, respectively.

The projects in Paris, The Hague, Tokyo and Rome are financed through "blocked currencies"—credits built up in the countries concerned as a result of the Second World War but which can be used only by spending the proceeds there.

Canada's missions abroad are to be linked with the external affairs department in Ottawa by a secret communications system, Mr. Leger said. He told the committee that a large increase in communications costs is for this purpose.

Let Them Talk Says Member

OTTAWA (CP)—A British Columbia Liberal Thursday disagreed with a Toronto Progressive Conservative's proposal that the CBC should refuse free time in election campaigns to Communist candidates.

Donald Fleming, Toronto Eglinton, told the Commons broadcasting committee that Communist speakers are 'wolves in sheep's clothing." They attempted to mislead Canadians by appearing to be patriotic but actually were out to destroy freedom.

Tom Goode, Burnaby-Richmond, said, however, that "the more you let the Communists speak the more people will have nothing to do with them." Canadians wouldn't listen to well-dressed, well-fed Communists talk against their country.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, said the corporation is obliged under the Radio Act to allocate free time during election campaigns to all political parties and candidates. The Labor-Progressive (Communist) party is a recognized political party in Canada.

He also told the committee that the CBC expects to hold talks next fall with officials of the various political parties on use of television in federal general elections.

Gilmore Contrasts Stalin With Khrushchev, Red Leader

EDITOR'S NOTE: Eddy Gilmore was stationed in Moscow for the Associated Press nearly 12 years under Stalin's rule. For the last week he has been in Yugoslavia reporting the activities of the Russian peacemaking Stalin with Khrushchev, the new mission. Here Gilmore contrasts Communist leader.

By EDDY GILMORE

BELGRADE (AP)—Joseph Stalin's glowering looks, his staff carriage, his black moustache, his pompadoured hair, epitomized the dictator.

Nikita Khrushchev, on the other hand, looks like a samovar salesman from Omsk. The hair that rims his fat neck is grey and the top of his head is as bald as the domes on St. Basil's Cathedral in Moscow's Red square.

Stalin seldom talked. Khrushchev seldom stops talking.

When Stalin did speak he was slow and deliberate—and as dry as the slate-like rocks of the Caucasus.

Khrushchev fairly bubbles, gestures with his arms and gets slangy.

Stalin's face was grim, angular and slightly pock-marked. Khrushchev's is as round as a harvest moon.

Stalin was short (five-feet-four) and stocky; so is Khrushchev. Stalin, 73 when he died, had a bear-like walk and an unusual stride. His right arm went forward when his right leg went forward. His left arm advanced when his left leg did.

Khrushchev's legs are muscular and—at 61—he bounces with short, almost mincing steps.

Stalin was bad tempered. Khrushchev may blow his top, but he smiles and laughs and even clowns. (He wrestled with Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan in a field beside a Slovenian highway while waiting for replacement of a flat tire on his car.)

Stalin, particularly in his last years, was careful about his dress and wore only tailored uniforms. Khrushchev is as sloppy as a bobby soxer in baggy blue jeans.

Stalin's personal security was as steel-like as his name, which meant steel. The closest I ever got to him in 11 years and nine months in Russia was at the British embassy one night.

You can walk right up to Khrushchev—if you do it politely—and start talking to him.

Times as well as men seem to have changed in the Kremlin—unless Khrushchev is a great actor.

Post-Election Buying Strikes London Market

LONDON (AP) — The London stock market, unruffled by two major strikes, swept to an all-time record high Thursday on a wave of post-election buying.

A rush of American buyers for British shares helped the rise. The buyers plumped for leading industrial stocks where big company earnings could be expected to yield increased dividend distributions.

Main target of the Americans was the giant Imperial Chemical Industries. Its shares went up two shillings, three pence to a record 55 shillings. Motor companies, electrical firms, builders, engineers and textile concerns all joined the climb.

WOULD IMITATE CANADA

KIAMESHA LAKE, N. Y. (AP) A machinists' union leader has urged the United States Congress to provide for the licensing of automobile mechanics, as now is done in Canada. The suggestion, from Harold Reardon, of the International Association of Machinists (AFL), came out of a panel discussion of the problems of automation as they affect the automotive trades.

AN ANALYSIS OF BRITISH POLITICS

Don Cook, of the New York Herald Tribune News Service, has come up with an interesting theory regarding British politics.

He sees history repeating itself.

"In the first half of this century," he writes, "it was axiomatic that the country went through a period of political dynamism and then settled down to consolidate. So far, the second half of the century is working out for Britain in the same way."

The sweeping political changes in the opening years of the century were, of course, engineered by the Liberal party.

Britain's political organism, in Cook's view, then settled down to digest these changes until "the spring of political dynamism began compressing" and was released by the voters returning the Labor Party to power in 1945. It was Labor's first innings without the restraining influence of being a minority government, dependent for its life on support outside the party's ranks. Sweeping changes were made. Now, Cook reasons, "the people want no more vast experiments" and a new period of consolidation has started.

There is much to commend this theory to the student of British politics. It fits the facts as they are known at this time. The difficulty with such explanations however, is that their "tailored-to-measure" appearance so often disappears under the pressure of events and they are often disclosed to have been no more than ingenious but superficial theories trimmed to fit the outward appearance of events but ignoring underlying causes more difficult to discover.

If, however, Cook should prove right in his analysis of the political trend in Britain, some interesting inferences can be drawn.

The Liberal party, which sparked political changes at the beginning of the century, has for all practical purposes disappeared from the political scene.

Is the Labor Party, which provided the dynamism to start the second half of the century, doomed to similar decay?

The Liberal revolution at the commencement of the century wiped out the last vestiges of aristocratic rule in Britain, by forcing the House of Lords to surrender its right to restrain the Commons through the amendment of financial bills.

The Labor Party's program in the late forties established the "welfare state" and this program has now, to all intents and purposes, been adopted by the Conservatives. They may reduce the scope of some of the measures but it is extremely unlikely that they will endeavor to remove them from the statutes.

The Liberal party gained power as the result of support at the polls by voters in many classes. Once the Liberal victory was achieved though, and it became evident that no attempt would be made to turn back the clock, a large segment of the Liberal party's support was transferred to the Labor party.

The Labor party, in its turn, has established the "welfare state." But, just as the Liberals really represented the middle classes, the Labor party represents organized labor. And many of its supporters are not members of organized labor. Will they transfer their loyalty to some new party? Or will the Labor party, learning a lesson from the Liberals, widen its scope of representation? This question gives new meaning to the quarrel between Labor leader Clement Attlee and Aneurin Bevan. Attlee, although not a union man, has ruled the Labor party by reason of the support he has received from union leaders, who form the right wing of the party. Bevan, although a former coal miner, is at odds with the union chiefs.

This does not mean that Bevan's policies are the type which will appeal to the unorganized working masses. But if the Labor party is to adjust its policies to meet the aspirations of the unorganized, the control of the unions over the party must first be broken.

This is not a task which the Labor party has to achieve immediately if it is to avoid oblivion. For, if Cook is right, it will be another half century before Britons are ready for another dose of "dynamism."

CHEESE IT!

Introducing some 2,000 Americans to Canadian cheese is the type of enterprise which calls for applause, under normal circumstances. Unfortunately, the circumstances under which it is proposed to perform this feat come July 4 are not normal. Even the possibility of acquiring 2,000 new converts returning home to sing the praises of Canadian cheddar in our neighbor to the south does not, in our opinion, justify the peculiar program which is planned.

The Kincardine Chamber of Commerce, on the shores of Lake Huron, is planning a motorcade from Sarnia to Owen Sound, a distance of some 160 miles. All Americans crossing the border at Sarnia on July 4 will be asked to join it. It will wend its way up the Bluewater Highway—which manages to stay well away from the water until it gets some distance past Owen Sound. On this trip the motorcade will pass through 15 towns and villages and at each community there will be a stop for a speech. Eating places along the way will feature "cheese and other Canadian foods."

The motorcade is expected to include upwards of 500 automobiles. Even Belleville's best cheddar would hardly be worth a trip like that.

"REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED"

"Refreshments will be served." If that tempting news you send
For the meeting that is planned, on a crowd you can depend.
Serious matters to discuss, just a few will heed the call.
But that happy little phrase will entice the members all.

No announcement equals this if you want to draw a throng;
"Refreshments will be served."
It has worked for ages long.

Offer cakes and coffee free when the business session ends,
And that fellow you will see who but once a year attends.

Club and church and lodge and school long have known beyond a doubt
"Refreshments will be served" always brings the people out.

Merely add those pleasant words to the notice when and where
The meeting is to be, and a crowd will gather there.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

This being the King's birthday, the flag of St. George is flying from the staff on the tower of St. Thomas' Church.

Many people visited Victoria Park yesterday and as the day was hot they enjoyed the cool breezes. Sailing punts, speedy motor boats, canoes and rowing boats were numerous in the harbor and in the bay in the vicinity of the park. Several sailing punts turned over and created some excitement for the spectators.

Miss Katherine Belair was home from Toronto to spend the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Belair.

Miss Margaret Lee and Miss Helen Truaisch are among those who will receive diplomas at the graduating exercises at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, which will be held tomorrow evening. Miss Margaret Lee will be awarded the prize for proficiency in emergency and surgical nursing.

Mrs. Allen Laidman and daughter, Margaret, of Barrie, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morley P. Duff, Alexander St. Mrs. Laidman rendered two very enjoyable vocal solos at the service in the Tabernacle on Sunday.

30 YEARS AGO

June 3, 1925

Miss A. G. Callery, Mr. W. G. Baker and Mr. W. C. Diamond of this city have graduated with the degree of Phm. B. at the College of Pharmacy, Toronto.

Mr. Walter H. Reeves has left for St. Paul, Minn., where he will act as judge at the Kennel Show.

Miss Snyder of Kitchener is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones, John Street.

The members of the Presto Music Club held their final meeting for the season at the home of Mrs. R. W. Brown, Catherine Street and a most enjoyable evening was passed.

Mr. Fred Davey Diamond is in Toronto to attend the convocation of Toronto University at which his son, W. Clarke Diamond, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Pharmacy.

40 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. John McGee of Stirling are in the city to-day.

The Ontario Baseball team was defeated by the Classics of Peterborough in a match played at the Agriculture Park here, the score being 6 to 5. The following composed the teams: Ontarios, — A. McGie, Noel, Gerow, Mills, Morrison, Kelleher, Symons, Phillips and F. Goyer; Classics — Rose, Kenneally, Nearary, O'Connell, Anderson, Rose, Corni, Davis and Hatrick.

An enjoyable evening was passed in the sergeants' mess at the armouries when the sergeants of the 15th. Regiment entertained the sergeants of the 39th. Battalion, which is now stationed here prior to going overseas. There was plenty of instrumental and vocal music; Prof. Ernest Wheatley and Sergeant Arthur Harman were the accompanists. Among the entertainers were Sergeant - Major Aris, Sergeant Douch, Fred Burks, W. Ralls, Sergeant Mather, D. Brown, F. Scriven, and the band. Sergeant-Major Howard Sharpe acted as chairman. Refreshments in abundance were served.

June 3, 1905

Mr. H. C. Duncan, accountant with the Canadian Bank of Commerce here for the past two years, has been appointed manager of the bank's branch at Bridgewater, Nova Scotia. Many friends regret the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan from the city.

Mr. E. W. Bensley has left for the west.

Mr. Arthur Parker has been transferred from the local branch of the Bank of Montreal to the bank's branch in Guelph.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Melburn of Sault Ste. Marie are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Melburn, Sinclair Street.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Croft Hulme have left to spend a short time in Quebec City.

From our file copy at this time in 1895: "Mr. Walter Alford has been awarded the contract to build a fine residence for Mr. H. C. Hunt on the Trent Road."

More of Life's Little Ironies

(Montreal Gazette)

Human nature is amazingly buoyant. Consider the tide of disappointments people have survived within the last couple of weeks:

The U.S. Census Bureau confirmed the suspicion that men are getting scarcer, both in rural and urban areas. In the cities, there are now 81 males to 100 females; on the farms, there are 102 males for every 100 females. (However, this ends an earlier problem of division; in 1950, the figures were 93⅔ and 104⅓ males and brides justly feared they might be getting one of the fractions.

In Rochester, Mrs. Frank A. Williams accepted the offer of her passenger, Sheila Dainty, to park her car for her. When total damages were calculated at $2,940, Miss Dainty revealed it was her first time behind the wheel. (Dainty is as dainty does.)

An office worker's spring salmon derby off Vancouver failed to get one salmon. Which might prove that fish food is brain food. The derby was being held by the staff association of the Income Tax Department. (Even B.C. salmon will learn it's a losing fight.)

The people of Fredonia, Kentucky, suffered an odd sort of disappointment. Back in March, they raised $2,000 to get crew drilling for water. A few days ago, the drill, down 265 feet, struck oil, but no water yet. (There is no report on what Fredonians have been drinking since.)

And the month isn't finished yet.

Sound Beats Barnacles

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

Barnacles, a kind of shellfish which attach themselves to underwater portions of ships, forming a crust which impedes their progress, lose interest in vessels made to vibrate with "silent sound."

Science appears to be on the verge of chalking up an important marine victory over the encrustations which can slow a ship's speed as much as fifty per cent and which cost millions of dollars annually to remove.

Tests made by a British group have shown that a swimming barnacle will avoid a ship equipped with a new device causing tiny vibrations and sound pitched so high that it is beyond the range of human ears.

Detroit Success Story

(Detroit Free Press)

About thirty-three years ago Jack Lurie borrowed $200 to open a fruit stand. Shortly, his brother Nate quit his job as a tobacco salesman to join Jack. Ten years later they were able to make a start as supermarket owners. Today they operate 59 stores (mainly in the Detroit area), do a yearly business of $110 million, employ more than 3,000 people and stand 14th among all supermarket enterprises in the nation.

Duck Jackets For Sheep

(Wall Street Journal

Out In New Mexico they're putting overcoats on sheep to protect the overcoats the sheep already have. The purpose is to reduce the costs of shearing sheep and of shipping wool.

The overcoats are 10-ounce duck jackets with zippers to allow for expansions as the wool grows. They were developed by a wool and sheep specialist from New Mexico A and M College. Tests conducted by Mr. J. R. Stauder on 3,000 ewes—half of them jacketed and half not — showed that both groups produced an average of five and one-half pounds each of clean wool. But the sheep with two overcoats picked up four pounds less dust, dirt and debris.

Since shipping charges are based on gross weight of the wool as it is clipped from the sheep and because shearing crews are paid more to shear sheep with dirty fleece the extra overcoat can save the ranchers a handsome sum, Mr. Stauder figures.

The reason for this economic ac husbandry is not hard to find. The government has withdrawn price supports for wool and substituted an incentive plan designed to let wool seek its proper level in the market place.

Since the government is no longer buying or lending on the wool the ranchers clip, there has been a surge of competition among the wool growers; the better the wool, the better their price both in the market place and under the government subsidy plan.

It may be, of course, that the sheep will become a bit restive now and then under the burden of the extra overcoat. But we hope it will not be nearly so burdensome as the two sweaters of high wool supports and high wool garment prices the taxpaying consumer has been wearing.

Operation Fish Drop

(North Bay Nugget)

It's practically raining fish in many parts of Northern Ontario as the Department of Lands and Forests carries out its annual spring fish planting program from the air.

Lake trout, speckled trout fingerlings, Kamioops and other game varieties are being dropped by planes of the division of air service from heights ranging from 500 to 1,000 feet. With the planting techniques now in use, biologists and other experts concerned expect 98 to 100 per cent of the fish to survive.

There still is a place, of course, for the ranger, conservation officer, camp operator or sportsmen's group to assist in the laborious task of packing the fish in to planting sites via special pack tanks. But major planting operations now are carried out by air, saving time, labor and money and resulting in better fishing for sportsmen.

Air planting has been used in other parts of Canada and the United States but not on as large a scale as Ontario's "Operation Fish Drop." The method is fairly simple now, with the advent of such aircraft as the Beaver, which can land on or drop close to small lakes accessible in the past only by trail.

It isn't a haphazard business. Lakes where fish are to be planted are first surveyed by department biologists to determine the amount of food available in the waters and its suitability. The fish then are trucked from provincial government hatcheries to the nearest air base, transported in aerated water to preserve their condition.

Special equipment is used in the cabin of the aircraft to keep the fish in prime shape in transit. From take-off the pilot reaches his destination in minutes, eliminating the long overland trips and delays which meant the loss of many fish in the past.

A low dip, a released trigger and the fish land in the lake with a minor splash. Observers report that the fish seem a trifle dazed for a moment in their new home, then swim away none the worse for the experience.

Strength for the Day

ONLY FOR THE FENCE

Sandlot baseball is a great institution. In fact behind it stands much of the virility and hope of the nation. Not one boy in a thousand who swings a baseball bat will ever swing it professionally, but he will be benefited by the game nonetheless.

When a youngster goes to bat, he has just one idea—a home run. No sacrifice hits for him. No singles which will enable someone to steal from first to third. He swings for the fences. Every time and always he is there to knock a home run. Anything less than that is a flop.

This, of course, is a spirit of youth, and should be; for any boy who does anything less than swing for the fences is not manifesting the promise of future leadership. The people who succeed are the people who cannot possibly entertain the idea of defeat. If they cannot possibly entertain the idea of defeat. If they cannot meet their immediate objective, they go around it. They step up to the home plate every time for just one purpose—to knock a home run.

As people grow older they will be satisfied with a lot less than home runs. They will learn that playing the game is not a one-man, spectacular affair. Baseball is a game, not a personal exhibition.

But teach the kids to swing for the fences. Our Lord in speaking about life's objectives put it this way: "Be ye perfect even as your Father in heaven is perfect."

Dandelion Domesticated

(Ottawa Journal)

We note with restrained enthusiasm an editorial in another newspaper singing the praise of the dandelion.

With much of what is said we find ourselves in general agreement. The dandelion is one of the most rugged members of plant life. Its power of survival is high and we doubt that anything short of an atomic bomb could cause it more than passing inconvenience. It comes early in the spring and stays late with us, and its rate of increase is evidence of Nature's misplaced bounty.

The dictionary calls the dandelion "a yellow-flowered wild plant." The yellow is correct, and a field of dandelions in full bloom is a sight to behold. But to call the dandelion "wild," when it likes nothing better than to make itself at home in the front lawn, to creep along the driveway almost into the kitchen, is surely a misnomer.

The dandelion perhaps was once wild, but long since it went domestic, like the house-cat, and adapted itself to town ways. Now it exists mainly to test the ingenuity and perseverance of amateur gardeners. Cut down by lawnmower or hoe it springs up with renewed strength, like the phoenix rising from its own ashes. The long tapering root can be dug out of the lawn with a sharp narrow spade, but if a tiny bit of root is left a new plant will come from it.

There are poisons against which the dandelion has not yet developed immunity— sprinkled on the leaves in powder or liquid the poison gradually works its way into the farthest bits of root and that dandelion is a dead duck. But in the meantime flowers go to seed in the neighbor's law or in the park across the way, the bits of fluff are carried far and wide by the winds, and next year's crop of dandelions is assured. It is a pity the strawberry, for example, is not so prolific and so durable.

Octopi Are Really Shy

(Cornwall Standard Freeholder)

The octopus has come up with a champion. Writing in Frontiers, the magazine of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, Myron Stearns says no beast of land or sea has been so misrepresented, feared and vilified. Stearns says the octopus is deathly afraid of anything larger than he.

The bad reputation which has been the lot of the octopus can be traced largely to fiction writers and seafarers. Pliny told of a 700-pound specimen and French sailors claimed that a tentacled-monster had slung its arms about their schooner and capsized it.

Then there was Victor Hugo, who, in "Toilers of the Sea," wrote that an octopus could swallow a man, a tale later lavishly aided and abetted by Walt Disney, added to the awesome picture in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Now it is asserted by Stearns that of the more than a hundred different varieties of octopi, few grow larger than three feet across, although in the Pacific one with a diameter of 20 feet has been caught.

Scientists who have studied the octopus generally agree they never intentionally attacked human beings. One man wrote of grabbing hold of an octopus which struggled frantically to get away. Again he wrapped tentacles of octopi around his arm "in familiar blood-drinking position" but the octopi let go. When he forced the suction cups of a tentacle against his bare arm they released as quickly as possible leaving only a temporary red mark.

It is apparent that the octopus has much in common with Ferdinand the Bull, who preferred sniffing flowers to snorting in the bull ring.

Personal Health Talks

All Your Nails Well Nourished

Growth of the nails, like growth of the skin as in the healing of wound or ulcer, proceeds at a rate which depends on the state of nutrition.

Most Americans get most of their daily calories directly or indirectly from what I call cheat-food, or what more polite nutrition authorities call inadequate food, meaning the stuff has been deprived of most of the vitamins and minerals before the food barons consider it pure and refined enough for the namby-pamby Yankee digestion. In other words refined white flour and refined white sugar yield most of the calories in the every-day diet of most Americans. So we hold these two high calory food staples, which keep so well that they, may be shipped anywhere and store indefinitely, mainly responsible for the national malnutrition.

A diet of refined white sugar and/or refined white flour will not keep animal or man alive as long as a diet of sugar cane or beet and/or wheat.

Now, before you make a note on your shopping list to get a trial package of crude or "natural" brown sugar and/or a pound of plain wheat next time you go to the grocery or market, I must warn you it is not that easy.

In order to procure plain wheat you must first find a farmer who grows it and then persuade the poor geek he won't get in trouble with the government if he sells you a few pounds of the stuff when nobody's looking.

And if by any chance you come across crude brown or "natural" sugar in the market you'll still be stymied by a trick notice stamped on the bag, to the effect that it is suitable for animal feed. That is not to say it is unfit for human consumption, but, after all, suppose the clerk asked what kind of animals you keep at your house?

If your nails do not grow as fast as they should—it takes three to four months for the nails to grow their full length normally —or if they are brittle, ridged, it isn't just the damage done by the hideous "polish" if you're short on brains. The trouble is malnutrition and if you hope to regain a state of good nutrition you'll have to cut out most of the cheat foods on which you worry along at present and eat the foods which everybody ate before the middle of the nineteenth century when the food barons began to "refine" things for the ignorant Yankee consumer.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BOOKS THAT NEED US

I walk into a new world every time I enter a second-hand book-shop. How often I have gone into one in the late afternoon and become so absorbed in my hunt and adventure that when I leave it has already become dark outside! It is wonderful to get lost and forgetful among books that are actually hunting us out!

When I enter such a shop I rarely have any book in mind that I might purchase, but before I realize the fact I spy a small volume that seems to say—"I need you and you need me." And so into the world at large we go with a new treasure. How often I take from my book shelves some silent friend that I selected (for which selected me) in a second-hand bookshop, modestly hidden away, unmindful of the stream of traffic outside.

I have dicovered books that have been autographed by the author to a friend, but that friend apparently lacked appreciation, so the book was sent to the second-hand bookshop "to serve time" until a little love would contract it and give it a new life! Said Christopher Morley: "A queer thing about books, if you open your heart to them, is the instant and irresistible way they follow you with their appeal."

Often books are as eloquent in their silence as the ones who wrote them. Especially when neglected and unhonored until some warm heart and alert eye gives notice to the proprietor of the shop that a discovery has been made, and that the consummation of a sale is in order! Browsing of an afternoon in an old bookshop, I spied a dark-bound little book which said in gold type on the front cover: "Casual Essays of The Sun." I paid a nominal amount for it and went my way, but I treasure it for a brilliant collection of New York Sun editorials, including that famous one, "Is There a Santa Claus?" The book was published in 1905.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

You may notice, as you motor around these days, that the best market gardens on the outskirts of cities and big towns have the most ramshackle buildings on them. Not always, of course; but often enough to be a puzzle to enquiring city slickers.

In most Canadian areas, there are patches of land specially suited to market gardening, perhaps some former swamp land rich in humus, or fields too precious in their particular soil to be handed over to housing enterprises. There, at this season, they glow, the dark soil striped and figured with lovely greens of the market garden, with that tailored look, that watched and tended appearance that characterizes market gardens as compared with the large, free patters of ordinary farming.

But the buildings are often shanties, shacks, rusty lean-tos, or beat-up old farm houses in advanced stages of decay. From the quality of the land and the crops, you would expect beautiful ranch-house bungalows.

As a city slicker, I drove in to one of the richest of these patches and put the question to a large, amiable man in overalls who could barely speak English.

He explained that this market garden, and many others in the region, were owned by people who long ago made enough money to retire to the city and live in ranch house bungalows. Market gardening is big business these days, especially on the fringe of large population centres. He himself, he said, was merely an employe. He had been a market gardener in the old country, and had brought out his family and friends. There they were, see, out in the rows and aisles of the far flung farm, bent down to the ground, weeding, cultivating, caring. You can't get Canadian women, he said, not near big cities, anyway, to kneel in the dirt like that, all day, with handkerchiefs on their heads, and never looking up . . .

The shacks and shanties? Oh, yes, sometimes the help live there. Mostly however they are just tool sheds now, or a place for the night watchman to live in. You've got to have night watchmen, of course.

So for a time I stood and gazed over the rich far gardens, with the stooping figures of women and men who never looked up at the sky of their new, strange homeland. Probably their sons and daughters will have time to look up.

Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

STIRLING — The fifth Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise began adjudications on Monday afternoon. St. Paul's United Church was nicely decorated with seasonal blooms. On the platform was displayed the various shields and trophies and these included a special one purchased by the festival to honor a beloved lady who had given so unsparingly of her time and talent along musical lines during her sojourn in Stirling.

The "Muriel S. Baker" trophy will be awarded to the highest individual marks in the Festival of Music class. The other trophy, "The Marjorie Gothard" trophy will be used for rural Sunday School choirs. Further particulars later in the story.

DR. OSBORNE ADJUDICATOR

Rev. A. Packman, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, opened with brief devotions and presided for the afternoon. Dr. Stanley Osborne, principal of Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, was the adjudicator. Mrs. Robert Patterson was secretary and Mr. George Carlisle, superintendent of the Sunday School, presented the silver and bronze awards.

The very capable and hard working secretary, Mrs. Walter Elliott, was a busy person in charge of the large registration.

RAIL STRIKE IN BRITAIN EMPTIES LONDON'S WATERLOO STATION

Waterloo station in London is practically deserted as a result of Britain's nationwide railway strike which began on May 29 by some 70,000 employees demanding more pay. Queen Elizabeth has proclaimed a state of emergency to allow Prime Minister Eden to deal with the strike which has halted 80 per cent of the country's rail transportation and created mass auto traffic jams. Along with a spreading dock strike, the rail crisis threatens to choke Britain's industrial boom. (Central Press Canadian.)

ROBBER SHOOTS FIRST

NEW YORK (AP)—A 66-year-old jeweler, who had killed one would-be robber and aided in the capture of another years ago, met death Wednesday in his east Harlem shop at the hands of another gunman who escaped. Joseph J. Bittar often said he would "never let a stickup man get away without a fight." He shot one bandit to death in 1948. In 1951 he fired a salvo at another man who tried to rob him. He didn't get a chance to use his gun Wednesday.

Iranian Communists Fail To Put Iran Into Soviet Orbit

By VINCENT BUIST

TEHRAN (Reuters) — Iranian Communists, who have twice failed since the Second World War to bring Iran within the Soviet orbit, appear to have been jettisoned by Moscow.

Blow after blow has fallen on the party organizers during the last 12 months.

In the opinion of Iranian army leaders, who organized the recent campaign against communism, the party's fortunes are at their lowest ebb since its official formation in 1942.

MUTUAL BETRAYALS

Brig.-Gen. Teimour Bakhtiar, 41-year-old military governor of Tehran, recently told an interviewer:

"Iran's Communist or Tudeh party is breaking up through a combination of decay inside and indifference by outside Communist leaders to its fate.

"It has no more printing presses for clandestine news sheets. Recruiting stopped long ago and party communications inside Iran have collapsed. Rivalry and dissension between three wings of the party—left, right, and a forceful provincial group—have led to mutual betrayals and helped us in tracking down important Tudeh figures.

"Their intelligence and training systems are no longer functioning and to all intents and purposes no activity of any kind is now going on. Soon we hope to report the dissolution of the Tudeh organization and the imprisonment or banishment of all its chief members."

IN MOSSADEGH'S TIME

Less than two years ago, Iranian Communists were riding a wave of nationalism which promised to put them on top. The wave was loosed by the former prime minister, Mohammed Mossadegh, who seemed powerless, or unwilling, to curb the political violence he had brought about.

Once before, in 1946, Communists made a bid to set up a Communist republic inside the borders of Iran. Jaafari Pishavari, a veteran Iranian Communist, succeeded in creating the short-lived Azerbaijan autonomous republic, while Soviet troops still occupied northern Iran. But when they withdrew the republic fell to the shah's troops.

Albert Conservatory of Music Presents Delightful Recital

First in a series of recitals presented by the Albert College Conservatory of Music was heard on Thursday evening at Memorial chapel culminating a year of study for advanced students of voice, expression, violin and piano.

The quality of the performance was worthy of a larger audience, but the appreciation of those who heard and applauded left nothing to be desired.

The lyric soprano voice of Beverley Ramsey and the fine tenor of James Laughlin blended in delicate harmony in two duets. As a finale Stainer's 'Love Divine, All Love Excelling" was most effective.

As a special request Evangeline Reilly sang charmingly Speaks "Morning".

Carrying a considerable part of the program's responsibility in his talented young hands, Raymond Taylor, both as accompanist and violin soloist proved himself a capable stylist.

The junior violinists, pupils of Barnett Taylor opened the musical program with harmonic assistance from their teacher, playing "The Queen", "Flow Gently Sweet Afton" and "Onward Christian Soldiers". Schubert's Sonata in D Major was a difficult number effectively rendered by Joachim Reimann.

Careful training by Greta Morden was evident in the fine readings of the students of expression, which included a classic favorite, by Mark Twain of Tom Sawyer's whitewashing the fence, sympathetically recited by Merle Rosen.

Students of piano under the tuition of Bessie Handley were heard in ensemble with Carolyn Franklin, Joan and Don MacKenzie as a piano trio, and in solo numbers. Vocal students were directed by Egerton Boyce, and accompanied at the piano by Rowena Boyce.

The president moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Tripp, the delegate to the annual, for an interesting report.

The Experts Say —

Volunteer Visiting Group Cheers Sask. Mental Patients

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SASKATOON (CP)—When Mrs. M. P. Toombs heard that 70 per cent of the mental patients in Saskatchewan hospitals never received a visitor she decided something should be done.

She organized a voluntary visiting group of 30 men and women more than a year ago who make the 200-mile round trip to Saskatchewan hospital in North Battleford faithfully twice a month.

"The visiting idea wasn't new," she said in an interview, "we copied it from Manitoba who started a similar scheme four years ago."

TRIP TAKES FULL DAY

But Mrs. Toombs, who is vice president of the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Mental Health Association, thinks her group has farther to go. The visitors give up an entire day, leaving by bus in the morning and arriving home at six or seven in the evening. They have weathered snow and rain storms but always managed to get through.

Mrs. Toombs believes that familiarity with a situation breeds understanding.

"So many people have a medieval outlook on mental hospitals," she said. "Our visiting plan has taken away all fear any of us may have had and each month more and more people volunteer to go."

At first patients were wary of visitors. "Many hadn't been out of the hospital or had a visitor for many years and didn't trust us."

But now they crowd the entrance gates and corridors to greet visitors.

"I don't know who has benefited most—the patients or us," she said. "It has been a mutual education."

After a few months of visiting the benefit to patients was notable. Many who had been badly dressed before sprucued up and appeared in clean clothes. The women put on makeup and the men fuss over ties and shoes when they know a mixed group from outside is coming.

Happiest about the success of the scheme are doctors and nurses at North Battleford. They say visiting has raised the hospital morale immeasurably.

At the hospital Mrs. Toombs' party splits into small groups to visit patients in all wards where they are allowed. They talk, help write letters and take orders for little trinkets and extras patients may want to buy. Later in the afternoon they organize craft and party groups.

SUGGESTS IMPROVEMENTS

"Just to know someone is interested gives mental patients a big lift," Mrs. Toombs said. "Too often they have been abandoned by their family and friends as hopeless cases and have little love or affection left in their lives."

Mrs. Toombs, a short motherly woman, has some suggestions for improved hospital care.

"I would like to see more cities start visiting groups such as ours," she said, "and I think the idea of a large mental hospital—built far away from the populated centres of the country should be abandoned."

She would like such hospitals to be smaller and spread through large centres so that families and friends could more easily visit patients.

FORMS FOR ORGANIZATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Very soon I am to have a position in an organization where I will have to send out letters, cards, cheques, and so forth. And I do so very much want to do the correct thing. Will you help me, please, by answering some questions I have?

My predecessor used "Mrs. Mary Brown" when addressing letters and cards. I feel it should be "Mrs. John Brown." which is right?

2. When giving a game for a newspaper announcement of a committee, I think it should be "Mrs. John Brown." Right?

3. When asking a presiding officer to speak from the floor, and permission is granted, shouldn't this officer be thanked for granting the request? I feel a "thank you" is a courteous gesture, yet this has not been done in this organization. Would I be wrong in doing this?

4. What salutation is used when writing a letter to a minister?—M.

You are so right about the first. Address letters and cards to Mrs. John Brown. (Whenever possible avoid using "Mrs. Mary Brown," which in all social contacts is incorrect. Since, as I judge, you will be dealing with social contacts, you are right in thinking you should use the formal name: Mrs. John Brown, for a married woman, and also for a widow.)

2. Right! Give the name as Mrs. John Brown, for a newspaper announcement of a committee and for similar occasions.

3. I entirely agree with your viewpoint that a "thank you" would be a courteous gesture.

4. The salutation of a letter to a Protestant minister without doctor's degree (for example, D.D. or LL.D.): My dear Mr. Wells. The salutation of a letter to a minister with a degree: My dear Dr. Clark.

INTRODUCTION ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am an 18-year-old girl. The other day an 81-year-old doctor whom my father knew very well in the city where he was born and raised, came to see us here in our home. When he was introduced to to me, I did not rise, for I thought I shouldn't rise when a man is introduced to me. Afterward, my mother and father certainly reproved me for not rising. Do you think they were justified? Katherine.

Yes, Ma'am, most definitely they were justified. As a gesture of courtesy and respect you should always rise when a man so much older is being introduced to you. You should rise to say your gracious 'How do you do, Doctor Bryant' . . . to, in this situation, shake hands with this gentleman. Also, since you are a member of the family you were rather in the position of co-hostess, and, therefore, should have risen not only to acknowledge the introduction but also to greet and welcome your father's guest.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

DEMOUNTABLE EYE LASHES

When you see close-ups of a lovely Hollywood starlet and notice that her eye lashes appear inches long, are you filled with envy? Probably. But you shouldn't be for actually, Nature never produced lashes of such abundance and length. For screen purposes, natural growth is supplemented by additional shafts that are placed on the lids with an adhesive agent.

Here is the method, in case you are interested. The operator places false lashes on the back of her left hand. In a small porcelain bowl she has some liquid adhesive, a transparent, medicated preparation that will do no injury to the eyes.

With square-tipped tweezers the operator lifts a single shaft from her left hand, dips the lower end in the adhesive, applies it to the upper eyelid on the under side of the real ones.

Additional shafts are placed on the upper lid only. If the natural growth is scanty, two spares are applied to each shaft that is already there.

With a small pair of scissors the artificial lashes are trimmed to a becoming length, depending upon the features of the subject.

If the eyes are close set they will appear more widely separated if the shafts are shorter at the inner corner of the eye, fairly long at the outer terminal. When the eyes are set far apart, the method is reversed.

When the eyes are narrow and an appearance of roundness would make them look wider and more beguiling, the extra shafts are left fairly long in the center, not quite as long at the sides.

Maveland's make - up artists claim, surprisingly, that curly lashes are not becoming to all types, any more than curly hair is becoming to every girl.

The Hollywood name for this treatment is "Eye styling." If you want stylish eyes you know now you can get them. All you have to do is to become a movie star.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

At the end of the letter which I am going to quote to you below Helen says, "This is not for publication of course—just for your own information."

Helen says that because it is a correction—a gentle criticism.

Now I welcome such help and am overriding her instructions because I want our readers to see it and benefit by it.

I am not revealing Helen's identity, so I hope she will forgive me.

LETTER:

Dear Mary Moore: It isn't often that I am moved to question anything that anyone writes but I feel that your advice to "Lois A." regarding a luncheon for 350 men isn't good, to say the least. The meal you outline is very poor value for $1.00—if you don't mind my saying so!

I was social convener of our W.A. for two years and am now president, so still have a finger in most pies. Twice a year we have a dinner for our Men's Association and you might be interested in our meals.

Last month a turkey dinner was served to 103 men at $1.25 per plate, and made a profit of about $70.00 and here is the menu served: Tomato juice, cold sliced turkey, hot gravy and dressing, Cranberry sauce (canned), cabbage salad, celery and radishes, mashed potatoes, carrots and peas, buttered rolls, coffee with cream, assorted pies.

The tables were decorated with daffodils and candles and a woman was engaged for two hours to wash dishes. Had we been charging only $1.00 we would have omitted the tomato juice, cranberry sauce, relishes, substituted bread for rolls, and turnips for carrots and peas. And we still would have made a nice profit. The turkeys were broad breasted bronze and three of them weighed 66 pounds 10 ounces, eviscerated. They were stuffed, ronsted and gravy made by a delicatessen for $1.00 per bird. The turkeys cost 53c per pound.

Don't you think our men would be disappointed in your menu? It is understood in our W.A. that we should make fifty per cent profit—that is, one hundred plates at $1.25 should return a profit of sixty to sixty-five dollars. I forgot to say the pies for our dinner were donated and would have cost $10 (twenty pies) if bought. Surely in a church large enough to have 350 men, there would be enough women willing to donate pies. After all, they can't all come to the church to work in the kitchen and dining room and most would be willing to help in some other way.

Hope you don't think I am impertinent! Only wish to help. I know how hard church women work and I want to see them get all there is in the work.—Signed Helen.

ANSWER:

Thank you Helen for this well meant and well received help.

JELLIED CRANBERRY SALAD (Courtesy Kae)

One package cherry jello dissolved in 3-4 cup boiling water. Add 2 cups cranberry sauce or 1 tin cranberry sauce (with whole berries) and 1-2 teaspoon salt. When cool and beginning to set, add—1 cup finely, chopped celery, 1 cup finely chopped apple, 1 cup shredded pineapple or crushed (canned), a few chopped walnuts and 3 tablespoons lemon juice. (Once when I wanted to make this stretch, I put the juice of the canned crushed pineapple in as well after measuring the drained pineapple and added enough plain gelatin (dissolved) to allow for the extra liquid.

NOTE: Be sure to use sweetened cranberry sauce.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

AN UNUSUAL WAY TO CURE AN UNFAITHFUL HUSBAND

There's nothing I like better than to have a reader who has had the same problem as that about which some other correspondent writes me, send a letter telling how she or he solved it, with the thought that it might help the person struggling with it.

For example, here is a letter from a wife interested in helping Mrs. T.I.A., whose letter was printed here three weeks ago. Mrs. T.I.A. had written of an unfaithful husband and said that she wanted the girl with whom her husband was having the affair to know that she would be glad to turn him over to her.

The woman who writes to tell her own experience says, addressing the wife directly: "I think you are giving up too easy."

Then she goes on to tell her own story.

After her husband had been making excuses for being away from their home in the evenings for some time, she says, she became suspicious and hired a detective. His researches into the husband's whereabouts confirmed her suspicions that he was having an affair with a girl who worked with him.

"Well," she continues, "I had a home to keep, and a boy of ten to raise, so I had an idea and it worked. I never questioned my husband, nor accused him of anything, but I started buying furniture for the house. I hired a girl to do my cleaning, washing and ironing. I bought myself clothes I had long denied myself and started to fix myself up like Mrs. Astor's pet horse. And my husband had to pay for everything. He never said anything, because he knew he was in the wrong and I guess he had a guilty conscience.

"After about six months, I noticed my husband wasn't staying out late any more, and when he went out, he always asked me to go with him.

"To sum it all up, the girl had thought my husband looked like a good prospect, and she thought she might take him for his home, his car and his money. When she discovered that he was having to give practically all his money to his wife, she dropped him like a hot potato. So, once again, I have my husband back the way he used to be and until this day I have never said one word to him concerning the whole affair. I just pretend it never happened.

"Of course I can never really trust my husband the way I did before, but I just made up my mind no one was going to take my home from me or deprive my son of a father, and I think if the woman who wrote the letter would let the girl know she meant business, she'd soon give up."

This was a smart woman, and her method worked for her. I pass it along so that the wife for whom she means it can think over her advice and decide whether or not it might work in her case.

Perhaps it might, but I don't think it could be trusted in every case. Some husbands might simply got mad and refuse to pay the bills their wives ran up.

It is too bad, also, that this woman feels she can no longer trust her husband as she did before. That is usually the way most wives who have had this type of experience feel, of course—for a time at least. But I hope that one of these days this particular woman's husband may give her the opportunity to talk the whole matter over so that there will be no secrets between them. For this, I believe, is the only way trust between them can ever be built up again.

Two members contributed to the birthday box.

Mrs. Bartindale read a letter from Mrs. Pierce Jones, literature secretary, regarding the book shelf and Mrs. Bert Searles gave a stewardship reading on "Tithing", after which Mrs. Fred Campbell gave some facts on "Temperance" stating that large amounts of money are spent on drink.

Mrs. Allyn Finkle opened the program with a reading "The Privilege She Had," and the plea of a missionary for prayers and help if her work is to be successful.

The worship service from the Monthly was followed "Anniversary in Angola". It is 75 years since the first Protestant missionary work was begun in Bailundo and it is there that the anniversary will be observed on May 7 and 8, 1956.

Scripture lesson, 1 John 3:16-18 was read by Mrs. Frank Finkle.

The special program for June was followed with Mrs. Allyn Finkle as narrator and Mrs. Fred Campbell as the first voice and Mrs. Leslie Finkle, as the second voice. This helped to remind all of some of the achievements of the Christian community in Angola and to think of the African fellow Christians.

After the benediction, the hostesses served refreshments.

Sunday School Lesson:

Every Age Wins Its Own Liberties

By ROY L. SMITH

Some battles, once fought, never have to be fought again. Other wars, even though they have been won by one generation, have to be won again by every other generation that follows.

FROM HEIGHTS TO DEPTHS

In Hezekiah the kingdom of Judah had one of the most upright and worthy kings in the history of the Hebrew nation; in Manasseh, his son, the people suffered under the worst. No more wicked monster ever sat upon a Hebrew throne, with the possible exception of Herod the Great, than that one whose story makes up this week's lesson.

He was a thoroughgoing collaborationist who embraced all the paganism of Assyria and did it eagerly. Verse 6 in this chapter suggests something of the infamy of his rule, but additional evidence is found in II Kings 21: 1-16. He even burned his own sons, offering them as a perverted sacrifice to Jehovah. A pagan rite offered in the name of the Hebrew Jehovah! For 50 years no Sabbath was observed, mishpat (the civil law which protected human rights) was held in contempt, and every abominable thing was encouraged by the government. There is an old tradition, never quite proved but generally accepted, that one of the first acts of the king's career was the murder of Isaiah, the prophet, he being sawn asunder with a wooden saw.

WHEN FEAR BRINGS PENITENCE

In the midst of his vicious reign, King Manasseh was taken as a captive to Babylon, where he underwent tortures which only the sadistic mind of the ancient East could have invented. In the midst of his terror he repented, and begged Jehovah for mercy, as a result of which he was restored to his throne.

But his penitence was exactly the kind of sorrow for sin which fear produces. As soon as he discovered he was safely off the hook he was back at his old tricks. It seldom happens that fear alone is enough to reform a man.

HAVE YOU HAD ENOUGH?

No organization in history, perhaps, has done as much in behalf of alcoholics as Alcoholics Anonymous. Let every right-minded man in the nation give thanks for the tens of thousands of slaves of the liquor habit that have been put back into respectability and useful living.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for June 5: "Manasseh's Sin and Repentance," II Chronicles 33.

But the first principle upon which the organization works is a very simple one. They say, in effect, "Have you had enough?" If the alcoholic is not ready to admit that he is whipped, and if he is not ready to say, "I am at the end of my rope and have to have help," they do not attempt to work with him. They know that they are only going to have to wait a little while. His end is in sight.

The great moment in the story of the Prodigal Son was that one in which he came to himself and said, "I will arise." Up to that moment no one could have done anything for him. It has been said many times that "Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

IT'S UP TO US

Our fathers became great through sobriety, industry, thrift, faith, and a high devotion to exacting ideals. But they were quite incapable of passing those virtues on to us. We must learn the lessons of discipline and self-denial for ourselves. We must become sober of our own choice, strong by our own imposition of self-discipline, and thrifty by our own efforts. Our fathers could do no better than when they gave us our chance. From that point on it is up to us!

Court Will Hear Witnesses' Case Early Next Week

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Appeals Court Wednesday permitted the provincial government to intervene in a case involving the constitutionality of Quebec's education laws and aimed at determining whether Jehovah's Witnesses are Protestants for education purposes.

The court, however, rejected a government motion for postponement of the hearing until the autumn.

Paul Emile Perron, an adherent of the Jehovah's Witness faith, is appealing a Superior Court rejection of his request for $1,000 damages and a court order to force the Rouyn, Que., Protestant school board to admit his three children.

He filed suit shortly after the Rouyn school refused admittance in September, 1952. Last autumn Mr. Justice Eugene Marquis ruled the Jehovah's Witnesses could not be considered Protestants and the board had no obligation to accept the Perron children.

In his appeal, Toronto lawyer Glen How, counsel for the sect, said the constitutionality of the provincial school laws would be attacked.

The attorney-general's department appointed Quebec lawyer Emery Beaulieu to intervene on the government's behalf and to ask for a delay to give the government time to prepare its case.

Mr. How argued that a delay would mean the children would be deprived of school for another year. Mr. Justice J. A. Gagne, president, announced the court's decision to hear the case next week.

Under Quebec's unique school system, both Protestant and Roman Catholic schools receive the benefits of public schools. In every community the religious majority forms a school board that is obliged to teach all children in the community.

The minority, whether Catholic or Protestant, can form a "dissenting" board that is not obliged to educate anyone but members of the minority religion.

Stevenson Will Probably Be Candidate

NEW YORK (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, a reluctant candidate for the presidency in 1952, is eager to make the race again next year.

He will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination provided he is convinced the party wants him to run.

This was learned Wednesday from a source in a position to know the plans of the former Illinois governor.

Stevenson was described as "willing to give it all he has" and confident the Democrats can win even though President Eisenhower decides to seek a second term.

FORD REPORTED

It thus appeared that Reuther has won the principle of his guaranteed annual wage plan from Ford at least, but is only part way so far in negotiations in achieving the implementing money arrangements he desires.

The union has concentrated its bargaining on Ford, with a walkout possible there after midnight Sunday. There was no word today that General Motors has accepted the supplemental unemployment idea in its separate talks with the UAW.

However, the union has generally been successful in getting terms won from one major car producer spread to the rest of the industry. GM's strike deadline is midnight next Wednesday.

It was clear today that the union was in a favorable position to drive a hard bargain with both Ford and GM, who are enjoying their greatest peak of prosperity and car production. Neither firm wants to be closed down by a strike—leaving the other free to operate without serious sales competition.

AUTO DEALERS

Besides the tax change on new cars, the 10-per-cent excise tax was eliminated on automobile tires and tubes, and a number of articles were cleared of the 10-per-cent sales tax.

ADDING TWO HOURS

The Commons Thursday also agreed to start morning sittings next Thursday, adding two hours to the present 5½ hours of afternoon and evening sittings. It was a compromise, after objections by Opposition Leader Drew, to the government's original plan of morning sittings next Monday. The session, which began Jan. 7 is expected to close about the end of the month.

Mr Fleming attacked continuation of sales taxes on clothing, furniture, prepared foods and medicine as "doubly iniquitous" and said such goods are "very necessities of life."

He said it is unfair that federal sales taxes should be imposed on purchases by municipalities and welfare organizations.

He also complained that payroll deductions of income tax are so high that many taxpayers must file claims for refunds.

MAKING INQUIRY

Mr. Harris said he is making an inquiry. There had been an increase in the number of claims for refunds, an "indication perhaps that the percentage being deducted might have to be reviewed."

J. M. Macdonnell (PC — Toronto Greenwood) urged against using taxes to soak the rich and said the incentive for business expansion must be maintained.

Persons with money were the ones who took risks and created wealth. The alternative to that system of private enterprise was socialism and the government should be careful that taxation did not destroy it.

Colin Cameron (CCF—Nanaimo) said he doubts whether the budget's tax cuts will mean much increase in personal incentive. There was no assurance that money would be invested when tax reductions left it in the hands of people who didn't need more money.

PENALIZE THREATENERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower signed a bill Wednesday to impose penalties for threats against the life of the vice-president and president-elect, as well as against the president of the United States. A $1,000 fine and imprisonment up to five years is provided.

FLAMES PROVIDE PROOF

JERUSALEM (AP) — A sudden spurt of gas and flames Wednesday night from a test oil drilling at Gan Yavneh, 20 miles south of Tel Aviv, was the most promising indication so far that oil may be found in Israel. The flames damaged the rig but subsided after an hour.

COMPETITION IS TOUGH!

Competition is tough in the oil business, too. While we believe Imperial is the best oil company in Canada, it's far from the only one. We're beset on all sides by healthy competitors.

From the Maritimes to British Columbia more than 240 companies are competing in the search for crude oil.

In 45 refineries from Halifax to Vancouver, 24 companies refine this crude oil into hundreds of useful oil products.

In all of Canada, scores of marketing companies compete for the motorist's and home owner's dollar.

In all its operations from coast to coast, Imperial Oil faces competition which is vigorous and resourceful, benefiting both the industry and the consumer.

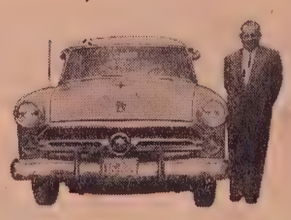
Tall Tales

There's a fellow up in the country who figures to put all the local well-diggers out of business. He's digging wells mechanically for half the usual price per foot.



Here's how he does it. He bought a second-hand trenching machine, and he digs a three-foot trench across his customer's property. Then he puts boards across the top of the trench to prevent it falling in as he moves it. Then with a large hoist he tilts the trench up on end and lowers it into the ground vertically.

That Man With Walking Cane May Be Looking For Uranium

By WILLIAM HARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — The next gentleman you see out walking with a cane may be looking for uranium. The cane could be a geiger counter.

That's the latest gimmick in the mushrooming business of supplying amateur uranium prospectors.

Uranium mining in the United States now is a $100,000,000-a-year business. The government guarantees the price of $7,000 a ton for uranium refined from ore containing 10 per cent uranium. In addition, the government offers a bonus of $35,000 for each strike of high-grade ore.

Deposits have been found in almost all of the United States. Picknickers who took along a geiger counter have come back potential millionaires.

Supplying these weekend prospectors has become a big business.

The cane, an aluminum affair, sells for $99.50 complete with a cigaret-package-sized speaker to let you hear the clicks that might mean millions.

Or if you prefer to hunt the ore from your own helicopter, there's a more complicated device neatly packed in a smart leather dispatch case—only $2,000—and with it you can plot the layout of your ore deposit.

"Why waste your time fishing when you could be looking for uranium," says the proprietor of a new mid-town store selling the ore-detecting equipment. "No one's going to pay you $35,000 for a speckled trout."

Two basic instruments are used to hunt uranium: the geiger counter and the scintillation counter.

The geiger counter essentially is a tube of gas that reacts to the gamma rays given off by uranium. Use of the transistor—the tiny metallic device rapidly replacing vacuum tubes in electronic equipment—has made possible a geiger counter so compact and light it fits in a cane.

The scintillation counter uses a sodium iodide crystal instead of a gas tube and is much more sentitive, complicated and expensive.

In Canada, amateur uranium hunting isn't nearly as popular as it is in the United States, despite the fact the Canadian shield—the collar of ancient rock circling Hudson bay as far down as the Great Lakes—is rated one of the best places to look for the ore.

Body	No body has proved more durable, more weatherproof or more noise-proof than Chevrolet's famous Body by Fisher. Its good looks last longer — bolstering your pride in your car, and maintaining the trade-in price through the years.
Roominess	Take your own measuring tape and measure. You'll find that Chevrolet has the roomiest interior of the low-priced three — yet is the most compact on the outside.
Safety	Chevrolet gives the most positive protection in its field. You're guarded thoroughly with a sturdy roof bow, double wall construction and a brand new arch-style cowl, plus Chevrolet's all-round sturdier construction.
Steering	Chevrolet has the smallest turning circle in the low-priced three — and with a new steering system, Chevrolet's standard steering is unsurpassed for easy, sure control.
Comfort	Chevrolet gives the smoothest, quietest ride in its field — without jouncing, shaking or tossing. And you get this comfort with no sacrifice in the control of the car.

Moral Level in Election Is Criticized as Campaign Draws Closer to Vote Date

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald likens a government without a forceful opposition to a man without a conscience.

And he said Thursday night the way the Progressive Conservative administration has "tried to cover up scandals" has made the need for such an opposition paramount.

The 41-year-old party leader, speaking at Englehart where he ended his northern Ontario campaign for the June 9 provincial election, said the Liberals have demonstrated that they cannot do the job.

He appealed to Liberal supporters in the riding of Timiskaming, where there is no Liberal candidate, to vote for the CCF to get the things they "believe in, want and need."

"AN OPPORTUNITY"

"Here there are no Liberal candidates," he said. "June 9 will offer an opportunity for all good Liberals and Conservatives disturbed by the conduct of this government to join with CCF. . . ."

Mr. MacDonald also accused Progressive Conservative candidates of what he called political blackmail.

"In riding after riding the main argument used by Conservative spokesmen is that if you want anything you've got to vote for the government."

The other two major party leaders campaigned in eastern Ontario.

Premier Frost spoke at Ottawa, where he said unparalleled progress during the last 12 years has resulted from the government keeping its feet on the ground and proceeding with even development on all fronts.

HITS AT CANDIDATE

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver told a rally at Renfrew that if James Dempsey is elected he will be an independent and "unable to do honest toil for the people in his riding." Mr. Dempsey lost the official support of Mr. Frost following disclosure that he failed to report a $6,800 contribution for the last election campaign.

Mr. MacDonald said Timiskaming isn't the only riding subjected to "political blackmail." He quoted the Progressive Conservative candidate for Sudbury as saying May 17:

"It's always true that a government favors the municipality from which it draws its support. Why should we give everything when you don't think enough of us to vote for us?"

He said the Progressive Conservative approach apparently is "just a simple case of using the whole public treasury as a giant pork barrel from which handouts are given only to the faithful."

"STRIKES AT FOUNDATIONS"

"And if you stop to consider it for a moment, you'll recognize it's not only extremely dangerous—it strikes at the very foundations of our democracy."

Mr. MacDonald added that the government tried to cover up instead of clean up highways contract irregularities revealed last year.

Premier Frost forecast a further increase in the Ontario standard of living.

"Our job today is to see that the government provides environment for development. No doubt there are things you would like to see receive more emphasis and there are things I would like to see receive more emphasis. However, we must have balanced progress."

MUNICIPAL GRANTS

He said great municipal reforms have been accomplished in the continuation and extension of unconditional grants to municipalities. The $102,000,000 allotment to education this year was as much as the entire provincial budget 12 years ago.

Mr. Oliver, whose Liberals held six of the 90 seats at dissolution of the last legislature, said Mr. Dempsey would be "even more of a lost sheep than he has been in the past."

Mr. Dempsey, a member in the last House, is being supported by the Renfrew South Progressive Conservative Association.

Mr Oliver said Mr. Dempsey had advertised in two Renfrew district weekly newspapers that he is official candidate for the Progressive Conservative party.

AS INDEPENDENT

"Unless my memory fails me Premier Frost recently said he didn't want Mr. Dempsey," Mr. Oliver commented. "He is running as an independent and there has been no intimation of any change of heart on Mr. Frost's part."

The ads were "a deliberate misrepresentation of the facts," Mr. Oliver said. "I suggest Mr. Dempsey is trying to catch coat tails skipping away from him, but he can't hang on."

The Liberal leader did not refer to some remarks contained in a text of his speech issued to the press before the meeting.

In the text, Mr. Oliver labelled the Dempsey advertising in the Arnprior and Renfrew weekly newspapers "Tory chicanery" and "fraudulent misrepresentation on the part of the local Tory organization."

Mr. Frost speaks again at Ottawa this afternoon and then goes to Deep River. Mr. MacDonald is on a CBC television program tonight while Mr. Oliver goes to Peterborough and Belleville.

Politics Snarl Statehood For Alaska, Hawaii

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—Congress, playing a carefully-stacked game on politics, once again has given the brush-off to claims to statehood by Alaska and Hawaii.

Despite loud talk by both the Republicans and the Democrats in favor of statehood, the House of Representatives has turned down a bill to admit the territories to the union with full state rights and an effective voice in Congress.

At present, though both have petitioned for statehood, the territories are represented in Congress only by one non-voting delegate each with no active say in national affairs.

Fancy political footwork is the answer to this paradox of a nation dedicated to liberty and equal rights denying once more the goal of a promised full partnership to two of its oldest possessions.

OLD PROMISE

The promise of statehood has been a long-standing one. Both territories have had self-government, through territorial legislatures, since the early 1900s. Both the Republicans and Democrats have promised statehood in their party platforms. President Eisenhower favors it for Hawaii but has opposed admitting Alaska at this time, largely on defence grounds.

One key to the complex picture lies in the political sentiment of the territories themselves. Hawaii is traditionally Republican and for that reason its case fails to win Democratic support when it comes to a vote in Congress. Alaska, on the other hand, veers to the Democratic fold and thus gets the cold shoulder from the Republicans.

Another factor is the Deep South. Southern congressmen are lukewarm toward statehood for either territory because it would add four more senators—two for each of the new states—to the Senate and further dilute southern voting strength in the upper chamber. Furthermore, the new senators would be from areas likely to oppose racial segregation.

In the wide-ranging arguments, the South has been concerned over statistics indicating that Hawaii's whites have less voting power than Hawaii's native people and those of Japanese, Chinese and Phillippine descent. Southern suspicion also has been voiced over Alaska's Eskimos.

One argument used in Congress is that neither territory has sufficient population to warrant statehood. Yet, Hawaii's population numbers roughly 500,000 and Alaska's 171,000, plus an estimated 50,000 service personnel. In the early days of the republic, territories were admitted to the union with 100,000 residents and, in some instances, as few as $60,000.

Senator Richard Neuberger (Dem., Ore.) stepped into the argument with an illustration from Canada. Noting that the members of Parliament from the Yukon and the Northwest Territories have a vote in the House of Commons, he suggested it would be relatively easy for Alaska to achieve statehood under Canadian standards.

To meet President Eisenhower's objections to Alaskan statehood, the Alaska section of the bill included a provision for the withdrawal of as much as 40 per cent of the prospective state for defence purposes. This was designed to satisfy national defence arguments.

In recent years, acting on separate bills, both the Senate and the House have voted to admit Alaska and Hawaii but none of these bills received the required consent of both houses.

Chen Yi Zooms to Prominence After Being in Reds' Disfavor

By FRED HAMPSON

HONG KONG (AP) — A new name—Chen Yi—is zooming to prominence in Asian communism.

Chen long has been important in China's Red armies. But he was a political second-stringer and for a while seemed to be in disfavor.

Today it's different. Chen, a man who plainly detests all foreigners — including Russians — may not rate billing among the stars of the Communist Chinese hierarchy. But at the least he seems a sort of first understudy to Chou En-lai, suave and brilliant Chinese premier-foreign minister.

Chen's high-level service to Chinese communism goes back to the days before the Long March of the 1930s. Though he is only in his early 50s, that makes him an old revolutionary.

He reached the military heights as head of the third field army, whose showiest job was the capture of Shanghai from Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists in 1949. Thereafter things did not go well for Chen.

The Reds zoned the country into several regions, called military and administrative districts, all headed by victorious generals.

The districts were immense and the regional power of the generals in charge was great. The whisper of "new war lords" was heard.

The Third Field Army had conquered East China district, but Chen was elbowed aside by his political commissar, Jao Shu-shih, a behind-the-scenes strong-puller, theoretician, party disciplinarian and purist in the communism of Karl Marx and Mao Tze-tung. Chen had to be satisfied with the job of mayor of Shanghai.

I was in Shanghai when this took place. Gossip was that Chen's military talents exceeded his party regularity. The war was over and he was headed for oblivion.

Gossip had it that Chen loved good, fat bourgeois living. He threw parties which brought disapproval of the spartan Communists.

For a few years Chen administered Shanghai under Jao. He remained, at least in name, commander of the Third Field Army, even when most of it was in Korea.

When the military-administrative districts were broken up, Chen's boss, Jao, went to Peiping and climbed rapidly in the party. He became a key man on the central committee. Then he got caught in the Kao Kang purge, the details of which are still foggy. He is in jail now, or dead, while the fat little general he outsmarted in 1949 is big again.

Chen was elevated to the National Congress. He next became a vice-premier. The earliest hint he was becoming something special was when he was chosen to go with Chou En-lai to Bandung as second delegate.

When India's V. K. Krishna Menon had dinner recently with Mao Tze-tung to talk over Formosa and Allied subjects, Chen Yi was among the favored guests. It was announced that he had been invited by Menon to visit India and would do so.

Observers who try to follow the fortunes of Red China from here won't guess yet why the general who spent four years in relative eclipse is suddenly a Peiping favorite.

Some profess to see increasing strength of the army. Some say Chen is benefitting from the downfall of his old enemy. Jao. Still others say: "There's a Chou En-lai clique in Peiping now and Chen Yi is in it."

Kremlin Leaders And Tito Unite In Peace Plea

BELGRADE (AP)—The Kremlin's leaders wound up their eight-day visit to President Tito today. The Yugoslav marshal apparently managed to hold fast to his independence but echoed Soviet sentiments on German unity and Red Chinese claims to Formosa.

GENERAL TERMS

Tito and his visitors closed their parley Thursday night with a declaration in general terms of principles urging that the way be paved for peaceful solution of world problems.

Khrushchev, who led the six-man delegation here and did most of the talking, did not sign the document. He sat on the sidelines while Bulganin and Tito affixed their names.

The document said Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union support "the satisfaction of the legitimate rights of the (Communist) People's Republic of China with regard to Taiwan (Formosa). . . ." It did not say, however, that Peiping should fight for the island now held by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists.

The declaration also expressed Yugoslav-Soviet support for Red China's claims to a seat in the United Nations.

In Washington, the state department declined to comment on the statement until it had more time to study the document. But officials said privately that there seemed to be nothing new or startling in the declaration.

Moscow radio hailed the declaration as a "document of tremendous international significance" and said it opens up wide prospects for world peace. The Soviet broadcast added that the declaration would be received with "unhidden disappointment and fury" in some Western circles.

The two Communist powers expressed joint support for a settlement for the German question "on a democratic basis, in conformity both with the wishes and desires of the German people and with the interests of general security."

One of the main points of the declaration was seen as a victory for failing to follow the Moscow line. The joint statement called for:

"Respect for the sovereignty, independence, integrity and equality among states in their mutual relations and in their relations with other states. Recognition and development of peaceful coexistence among nations regardless of ideological differences or differences of social order. . . . Compliance with the principle of mutual respect for, and noninterference in, internal affairs for whatever reason, whether of an economic, political or ideological nature. . . ."

The Soviet-Yugoslav statement marked the first time that Russia's Communist leaders had agreed in public that a variation of communism could coexist with their own. It was because he varied from Stalin's line that Moscow purged Tito from the Red fold in 1948.

TLC Sits on Fence on Trade With Iron Curtain Nations; Wants Retirement Voluntary

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR (CP)—Leftwingers at the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada convention tried unsuccessfully Thursday night to get the TLC to favor a policy of trade with Iron Curtain countries.

The convention turned down the attempts to adopt a declaration favoring trade with any country provided its materials are produced under free labor conditions.

Chairman A. F. MacArthur of the TLC resolutions committee, which sponsored the declaration, said it is aimed against trade with such countries as Russia, Venezuela, Argentina and Spain.

Orville Braaten, leftwinger from the Pulp and Sulphite Workers Union in Vancouver, contended that "this resolution puts fences around our markets."

'If we put up barriers on where we are going to trade, we are going to have more unemployment," he said. He noted that the United Kingdom has been trading with any country with which it can make a satisfactory agreement.

He contended the declaration should be changed to read that Canada would trade with any country "with which we can get satisfactory agreements that will protect our jobs."

Charles Stewart, Vancouver street railwayman, took about the same tack. Canada should trade with any country on a mutually advantageous basis, he said.

The convention also got into a tussle over whether workers should be retired at 65.

After a long scrap, the delegates adopted a resolution saying the TLC favors voluntary retirement at 65 where adequate retirement pensions are provided.

The word "voluntary" was inserted by the convention into a resolution from a committee which originally came out for straight retirement at that age.

Some delegates claimed the resolution in its final form was meaningless, since any worker now can retire voluntarily at 65.

In its original form, the resolution was denounced by Phil Cutler of Montreal, a lawyer holding a card in the Plumbers Union who used to be an AFL and TLC organizer.

"I object to dictating to an individual that he can't work just because he reaches 65," Cutler said. "Let's not have a race between the old and the young for jobs. Let's try to produce more jobs for all."

The labor body said in another resolution that all forestry workers should receive unemployment insurance benefits on an equal basis.

Recovers Sight By Striking Fist on Palm

NORWICH, England (Reuters)—Blind Peter Barr got into an argument with his wife last week, struck his fist on his palm—and suddenly the woman he had never seen materialized before his eyes.

"In about 15 minutes I could see," the 34-year-old man said Thursday. "The first thing I did was kiss my wife, then I broke up my white stick and threw it in the fire."

Barr's sight was affected during the Second World War while serving in North Africa with the RAF. He became completely blind in 1952.

Unanimous Approval Given By U.S. to War on Lamprey

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Senate Wednesday gave quick and unanimous approval to plans by Canada and the United States to wage war on the sea lamprey, fish-killing parasite which is destroying the Great Lakes sports and commercial fisheries.

With brief debate, the 96-member Senate voted 79 to 8 for the enabling treaty, easily meeting the majority of two-thirds required for ratification of international treaties.

The treaty, to remain in force 10 years, also provides for setting up in the Great Lakes region a joint Canada-U.S. commission to co-ordinate and promote fisheries research being conducted by government agencies in the two countries. The commission will handle the lamprey control program.

It now is past its last U.S. legislative hurdle and will become effective when instruments of ratification are exchanged in Ottawa. The convention was ratified by the Canadian Commons May 23 and now is awaiting action—expected this week—by the Canadian Senate.

The treaty will launch a joint program to control the lamprey, a prehistoric blood-sucking parasite which already has destroyed the fisheries for trout and whitefish in Lakes Huron and Michigan and now threatens similar destruction in Lake Superior. Its depredations are costing Canada and the U.S. more than $5,000,000 a year in the loss of valuable lake trout alone.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) and Senator Charles E. Potter (Rep., Mich.) both expressed approval of the convention, with Potter suggesting it was "long overdue."

Humphrey, who headed a Senate committee which studied the treaty assured Senator John Bricker (Rep., Ohio) that the convention would not interfere with state fishing regulations.

A similar treaty in 1946 failed to win Senate ratification because it embodied regulation of commercial fisheries.

Costs of the commission are expected to run to $2,690,000 for the first three years and $630,000 a year thereafter. Based on their share of the Great Lakes fisheries catch, the U.S. will pay two-thirds of the cost and Canada one-third.

Experts estimate it will take six to eight years to control the lamprey. The program will include the placing of electric wires across streams feeding the Great Lakes to prevent the lamprey from swimming upstream to spawn. Canadian scientists also are working on a new ray device which they hope may kill the eels by sound waves.

The lamprey has all but wiped out the trout fisheries of Lakes Huron and Michigan. In Lake Huron alone, the U. S. catch dropped from 1,743,000 pounds in 1953 to less than 50 pounds in 1952.

The loss was equally crippling for Canadian fishermen.

Could Be Short Of Wheat in '56 Says Official

OTTAWA (CP) — John Wesson, chairman of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, has given warning that unless Canada produces a good crop this year, the country will be short of milling wheat in 1956.

He said there is no point in talking about giving wheat away to reduce surpluses when actually there is no wheat to give away, unless it is of the non-millable variety, the kind not fit for breadmaking such as No. 5, No. 6 and feed wheat.

In Saskatchewan, Canada's biggest grain-growing province, there are large wet areas where it will be a "miracle" if millable wheat is produced this year, he said.

Mr. Wesson told the Commons agricultural committee he hopes Canada produces a "decent" crop or it may find itself in the awkward position of being unable to supply its traditional customers with sufficient milling wheat.

He said talk among overseas and Canadian grain dealers of huge surpluses in Canada resulted from erroneous estimates of carryover put out by the bureau of statistics. The bureau had estimated the wheat carryover as of July 31, 1954, at a high of 598,000,000 bushels.

He challenged these figures. At the most the carryover could not have been more than 528,000,000. The bureau, he maintained, had reached its estimate by placing too high a figure on wheat remaining on farms.

He forecast that by next July, the carryover would drop to about 400,000,000 or 430,000,000 bushels. Almost one-half of this would be non-millable wheat.

Canada's total wheat exports in the 1953-54 crop year fell to 298,000,000 bushels from 385,500,000 in 1952-53. This year the Canadian wheat board, which handles sales, has forecast that its exports will rise.

Mr Wesson said the board has been hopeful that shipments this year would reach 300,000,000 bushels. He estimated, however, that on the basis of current trade, exports may total only about 260,000,000.

Silver Selling At Highest Price In 35 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Silver is selling today at the highest price in 35 years.

Industry is paying as much as the U.S. government for the metal for the first time in many years. The civilian price advanced here this week to 90½ cents an ounce. By law the U.S. treasury pays 90.41 cents for silver newly mined in the United States.

Industrial demand for silver here is reported running 15 to 20 per cent higher than a year ago. Mexico, the chief supplier of silver for industry and the arts, has been virtually withdrawn from the U.S. market for some time. Mexico's silver has been going to West Germany and to Saudi Arabia, which wants it for coinage.

Handy and Harman, refiners and fabricators, reports that this year the use of silver in industry exceeds its use in silverware, jewelry or the arts. And the industries consuming silver are booming now.

Its use in industry comes from its high conductivity of electricity and from the great strength of silver alloys used as solder to join other metal parts.

Canadian Indians Seek Right to Dip Into Their War Chest to Fight Tax

SARNIA (CP)—Canada's Indians are asking the federal government to turn the key to their war chest so they can finance a court battle against paying income tax.

Micmacs from the Maritimes, Capilanos from the Pacific coast and tribesmen from the forests, plains and farmlands in between voted Wednesday to ask the government to allow band councils to dip into band funds to finance the fight.

The action was taken at the annual convention of the North American Indian Brotherhood, which speaks for many of Canada's 151,000 Indians.

Indians aren't taxed on reservation income but argue the exemption should be extended to off-the-reservation earnings.

"The Dominion government has no power to pass a law to make Indians pay income tax," brotherhood president Andy Paull of Vancouver told the meeting.

"This power was given to the provincial governments by the British North America Act and was loaned to the federal government during wartime. The only power to collect the tax must come from the provincial governments, who don't demand it of Indians."

He said it is "taxation without representation" because treaty Indians cannot vote in federal elections nor in provincial elections outside of British Columbia, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

The resolution on the issue that goes back to 1936 said: ". . . We ask the government of Canada to allow Indian band councils to vote from their band funds an amount on a pro rata basis in a court action to decide whether or not the government of Canada is correct in forcing Indians to pay income tax on moneys earned outside of Indian reservations."

The government holds the purse strings on band funds, so permission is necessary.

MacDonald had charge of the devotional exercises. Plans were made for a representation to attend the W.A. Convention held at Madoc last Thursday. Those who attended were Mrs. W. Cunningham, Mrs. R. Vandusen, Mrs. L. McCartney and Mrs. G. Vandusen.

Mrs. F. Jackson has returned home after visiting in U.S.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Hucul, Oshawa, and friends spent the holiday week-end at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Tustin and Stephen came from Toronto for the holiday week-end. Mrs. Tustin remained with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Vandusen.

Sorry to report Allan and Donnie Vandusen on the sick list.

Mrs. N. Tice visited her sister, Mrs. E. MacDonald last week-end in Belleville.

Mrs. A. Wannamaker attended the graduation exercises of nurses of Grace Hospital, Ottawa, last week. Two Sunday services preceded the graduation exercises of Monday night which were held in Parkdale United Church. 22 nurses received their diplomas and pins. The Rev. Mr. Burnett, Presbyterian minister, addressed the class of graduates. Premier St. Laurent sent hearty congratulations to the members of the 1955 class. Mayor Charlotte Whitton sent flowers and best wishes. Miss Merle Wannamaker will spend a month on vacation. In July she will return to Ottawa and resume nursing activities.

W.I.

The Hillier W. I. meeting for May was held at the home of Mrs. Eggleton with an attendance of 30 members and visitors. Mrs. H. Weese, newly elected president, presided with Mrs. S. Foster as secretary. Mrs. Weese welcomed the group and thanked Mrs. Eggleton for entertaining.

Not much business had to be discussed but further plans for the bus trip to Stratford were made for August 11. For a trip to Marmora the members are also chartering a bus for June 14, or about that date at least.

Miss Kincaid was guest speaker, relating the story of the "Merchant of Venice." This made the scenes fresh upon minds of her listeners and no doubt will create more interest to see the play at the Shakesperian festival at Stratford. A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Kincaid for her interesting talk.

Delegates for the annual were selected and plans made to attend the convention at Demorestville.

Mrs. Eggleton and her committee served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

During intermission the girls sold homemade candy, freshie and popcorn.

Birch and mahogany plywoods are also handled.

For your roofing needs Mott's offers asphalt shingles, roll roofing, rock surface roofing, scutan, tar paper, grey felt paper, wax paper asphalt roof coatings and asphalt plastic cement.

Siding materials include, besides any variety of lumber sidings, such products as rolbrik, rolstone, insul-bric and insulstone.

Insulation available includes two and three inch wool batts as well as loose wool.

CORNER CLOTHES CLOSET, simply built of fir plywood, can replace a cluttered area in a kitchen. Simple construction details make this plywood built-in an addition any handyman can build himself.

Roadside Stand of Fir Plywood Can Become Farm Money Maker

Farm produce sold from a roadside stand is often a moneymaking sideline. Shown in detail above is a stand that combines many good features in one simple structure.

Best feature is that ease of construction makes this fir plywood stand one that anybody can build himself and have a professional-looking building to boot.

The over-hanging roof and walk-in arrangement encourages stops even on a rainy day. All products are handily displayed. The shelf-doors fold in to lock the stand at night or when unattended.

The stand pictured here is placed too close to the highway—a much better location would have it back from the road with drive-in space provided.

Structural details are illustrated and easy to follow. The whole stand can be built using 3-8 inch fir plywood and in most instances full-size 4x8 foot panels can be used without further cutting or shaping. The waterproof glue bond of all fir plywood produced in Canada makes this a tight structure that will stand up to extremes of weather winter and summer.

It can be placed on mud sills as shown or be fixed permanently to skids so that it could be readily moved. However it is set up, any farm manager interested in a stand for roadside selling will find it an economical structure.

Pre-expansion of large panels of hardboard is essential to ensure that the material remains smooth and flat. Pre-expand by wetting the screen side with clear water. Pile the wet sheets back to back in horizontal position, leave for 24 hours, then wipe dry.

If the panels must be applied without pre-expanding, leave the space of a 15 or 16 gauge finishing nail, (slightly less than 1-16 inch) between the panels to allow for expansion.

CONCRETE SEPTIC TANKS
STEEL REINFORCED

These tanks are made from a special mixture of cement very similar to the formula that is used in the manufacture of our concrete burial vaults and are fully reinforced with a steel wire mesh. The baffles are cast into the tank and no special or any fittings are needed to connect the tank to the sewer lines. Being a horizontal type of construction the above tank has a much higher rate of digestion than tanks poured into the ground.

All tanks are guaranteed waterproof as this is done in the batching of the cement, it is therefore not necessary to plaster or asphalt as in the case with poured tanks.

FARM BUILDING TIPS AND NEWS

Plumbing Industry Suggests Ways to Cut Down Repair Costs

Practical advice to the homeowner on (1) keeping his plumbing system in good operating order and (2) making minor repairs himself, is given by the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau. Major repairs, replacements and new plumbing installations should, of course, be left to the specialized skill of the master plumber.

Plumbers get more calls to open clogged drains than for any other service, according to the Bureau. Many such calls could be prevented by greater care in the use of drains. The most-used drain is the one in kitchen sink, and that is the drain which is most often clogged.

Sink clogging can be prevented by carefully watching what is emptied into the sink drain and by the regular use of a good drain cleaner. Sink stoppages are usually caused by liquid fats, carried in dishwater and other kitchen wastes, hitting the cooler pipe and solidifying. Coffee grounds and bits of food add to this accumulating layer of grease until the pipe becomes impassable. Pour excess grease into a tin can and throw it out with the garbage.

In clearing the sink drain, first remove the perforated drain plate in the sink basin. Sometimes the stoppage is directly below this and can be loosened with a long screwdriver or piece of wire.

Pour boiling water (to which a little household ammonia has been added) into the drain to help soften whatever is clogging the pipe. Then take a plunger (a large rubber suction cup with wooden handle) and cup it tightly over the drain. Plunge it vigorously several times.

Drain piping can also be cleaned by removing the clean-out plug at the bottom of the U-trap below the fixture and pulling out the clogging material with a piece of wire.

In cleaning a water closet trap, start with the rubber plunger. If this does not work, try an auger with adjustable, crank - type handle. Known to plumbers as a "snake", the spring-steel coil is easily worked past the trap and down the pipe. It will quickly drill through most clogs. If the plunger or auger does not clear the toilet bowl, call your plumber.

When the clogging material has been removed from the trap, pour a pail or two of very hot water into the drain to wash out any loose material.

The washer and the seat are the two parts of the faucet which get the greatest amount of wear. All faucets are built so that the washer may be easily replaced. On the other hand, it is usually just as expensive to renew a seat as it is to buy a new faucet unless the faucet is made with a renewable seat. See your plumber about a worn faucet seat.

You need not rush to buy a new shower head if the one you have suddenly gives off an uneven spray. It's probably clogged with mineral deposits which build up in the shower head and distort the shower stream. Simply remove the face of the shower head, clean the back surface and free holes with a coarse needle.

If you find a break in your plumbing, shut off the water supply at the main valve and call your plumber at once.

When you phone your plumber give as much specific information as to what's wrong as you possibly can. When he arrives, tell him everything that has been done to the defective part of plumbing. It will speed his work and lower your plumbing bill.

Pick Right Grade of Lumber And Reduce Cost of Your Job

Your lumber dollar can go twice as far if you select just the right grade and kind of wood for the job you have in mind; i.e., the lowest grade suitable for the project.

Most general construction jobs and home workshop projects use softwood lumber in which the best grades are called "Select" and the lower grades "Common."

The top Select grades are clear or almost clear, while lowest common grades have the highest proportion of knots or other markings.

If you want the very highest quality of lumber for interior or exterior finish, you would buy A or B Select. However, C and D Select grades also serve these purposes and can be utilized wherever there is no special need for the work to have perfect uniformity of lumber. All the Select grades take both paint and natural finishes well.

The Common grades, designated No. 1, No. 2, etc., are used for ordinary construction and utility purposes; also ,where their knots and other natural characteristics of wood are valued for their decorative effect, as in paneling and other finish work. The better Common grades serve as finish paint grades.

Generally speaking, if the place where you are going to use the lumber will be concealed, or if utility is the main consideration, use the lower Common grades. If you want a good looking finish paint job ,use the Select grades or the upper grades of Common.

New Designs In Wallpaper Win Favor

The wallpaper bought last year, according to the Wallpaper Council, would stretch around the world at the equator over 25 times.

The reasons for wallpaper's increasing popularity are not hard to come by: Machine-print manufacturers have made available a whole new line of smart new wall papers that offer the finest quality at prices to fit the most modest purse.

To meet the greatest possible range of individual taste, the new papers present designs to suit both traditional and contemporary backgrounds; a full scope of new colors from palest pastels to the strong, clear, vibrant hues; and, for good measure, top-notch techniques not only in design but in the function and application of the product.

Trends in color are definitely in the direction of the clean, light colors and tones, the blues and turquoise, the pinks and reds, and the clearest greens. In the monotones, there's a new trend to the cleanest of grays and away from the beiges and browns of seasons past.

There are notable additions in the scrubbable, plastic impregnated and plastic coated presentations as well as the pre-trimmed and pre-pasted varieties that aid in easy hanging.

The latter make "hanging wallpaper yourself" entirely feasible for the home-owner who wants to do a smart looking redecorating job on a very modest budget. This project is neither difficult, messy or unduly time-consuming.

To be successful in interior applications of hardboard, it is necessary to use board of the proper thickness.

The manufacturers of Abitibi hardboard recommend: Studding at 16-inch centres or less—use 3-16 inch thickness. Studding at greater than 16-inch centres—use 1-4 inch thickness. Over a solid backing—use 1-8 inch thickness.

Home Owners Now Easily Finish Floors

Floor finishing, heretofore largely in the province of the professional, is fast becoming one of the most popular do-it-yourself projects.

Unless the floors are warped or buckled or the old finish is extremely dark and thick, the homeowner can refinish his own floors successfully with the new floor finishes, such as Fabulon, made by Pierce & Stevens, Buffalo, N.Y.

The first step is the proper preparation of the wood surface. All previous finishes must be completely removed and the surface must be bare, clean, smooth, dustfree and dry.

Power sanding is by far the most widely used method of preparing wood floors. Many dealers are prepared to rent a sander in good operating condition, along with an emple supply of sandpaper and instructions for use.

Old floors require three sandings with sandpapers of progressive degrees of fineness. After sanding, it is important to remove all dust from floor with a vacuum cleaner, dry cloth, or dry mop.

When the floor surface has been prepared, 90 per cent of the operation has been completed. The modern surface coating flows over the pre-sanded surface and requires no wood filler.

Within one hour after applying, the first coat is dry. The floor should then be hand sanded before the second and final coat is applied.

If a brilliant high gloss is desired, a third coat can be applied, after allowing the second to dry at least four hours, preferably overnight.

When panelling a room with hardboard, attractive effects can be achieved by using different joints or cover strips over the seams between the board slabs.

An excellent joint is made by sanding the sharp edge of the panel to produce a very fine bevel. Or moldings, which lumber dealers will supply, can be used as cover or insert strips. If using Abitibi hardboard, the board itself can be cut into strips for this purpose.

Cover strips should be nailed with 1 1-4 inch casing or finishing nails staggered at 10-inch centres.

Paint Removing Job Made Easier By New Products

For many week-end decorating projects, tthe old paint should be removed first.

Today's paint removers are fast - working, non-inflammable and easy to use.

Just lay on a heavy even coat of the remover, brushing in one direction only. Do not brush back and forth like paint.

When the paint is broken from the surface, remove with regular paint scraper or putty knife (for flat surfaces) or steel wool or rags (for rounded or carved surfaces).

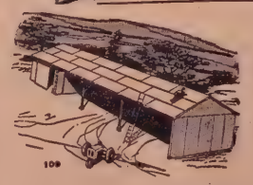
Any small spots that remain can be touched again with steel wool dipped in remover.

After old finish is removed, wipe surface clean and dry. It is then ready for application of new finish.

Hardboard, the economical building material now so popular with builders and home owners, can be bent or shaped to make rounded corners. For large-radius bends, fasten the board at one end and nail it top and bottom as the work proceeds around the prepared framework. Small-radius bends are possible by applying heat and moisture to the board.

Color Clues Offer Guide to Happier Home Decoration

In planning the interior decoration of your home, it is well to keep in mind that different colors do different things to your rooms . . . and to you.



Blues, greens and blue-greens are cool and restful. They are generally considered receding colors that "push" walls back, making rooms appear to be larger.

Warm colors like red, red-orange, yellow-orange and yellow are cheerful and warm. They are considered advancing colors that can make your walls seem closer and rooms appear smaller.

Leagues Leaders Explode In Wide-Open Hitting, Run-Scoring Splurges

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BIG BOYS TONIGHT

Roy McClarity, Canadian wrestler from Winnipeg, has gone a long way in the wrestling sport while still a young man. The former hockey player has drawn record crowds in main events in Madison Square Garden, New York, and The Amphitheatre, Chicago. When he meets larruping Lou Plummer in the feature mat match at the Memorial Arena tonight, McClarity will be in against probably one of the roughest opponents he's met anywhere. Plummer, the Texas tornado, loves to grind his rivals into the seams of the canvas, but with an opponent of McClarity's calibre, it could turn out to be a wrestling lesson for Plummer.

Doug Hepburn, Canadian Hercules, will wrestle rugged Pat Fraley in the semi-minal.. Dick Raines, another tirading Texan, will oppose Sammy (Mr. Canada) Berg in the first bout.

SHOULD BE O.K.

"The kids," ruminated Coach Al Kolleher of the Belleville Haggis juniors, "will do. With some more experience and team play under their belts they will give the best of 'em a run for the money."

"Joe" was talking after the juniors had met their first defeat at the hands of the Picton Lightfoots, who have Dick Fitzpatrick at the coaching helm.

Coach Kolleher has faith in his beardless charges and under his tutelage the youngsters should round into a good, capable squad. He is working hard with them and anyone who knows "Joe" and his diamond obsession, realizes that he is putting his heart and soul into the job.

And just to ease the butterflies in the abdominal region of the Picton Times' sports scrivener, the juniors have no players who were members of last year's senior Bataa with the exception of Gerry Goyer. Apparently he was not aware of the fact that the league clubs are entitled to three senior players, but he should be aware of the fact that Picton has three of the better Bataa, Fitz, MacDonald and Bobby Bunton. You spell it with an "O", bub.

BREATHES THERE A MAN . . . ?

One man could be right—but could 130 million be wrong?

A strange being, believed to be human, writes a story in this month's edition of "Coronet," in which he blasts the time-honored game of baseball as "she is played" in the USA and Canada.

This weird character says, to him baseball "is a game which seems to be composed largely of a number of beefy men in pantaloons standing around a field scratching themselves, arguing with each other, sitting on benches, hefting bats, or going through a ridiculous ritual known as the wind-up preliminary to the task of throwing a small ball some 20 yards."

While this is going on, the character writes, nine other men on the field, an assortment of heavily armored umpires and a dozen or so members of the team at bat, sit or stand around admiring the view and drawing sometimes as much as $20,000 a year for their pains. All of this is an absurd performance for the 60-odd huskies might better be putting their brawn to building or plowing the soil.

He ridicules the batter, the runners, the officials and the crowd. The double play, he says drives the addicts to a near state of frenzy. "The valiant infielder manages to capture the ball and hurls it with unerring aim at the first baseman who contrives somehow to trap it in the large leather pillow he carries on his hand for the purpose. If both runners are 'out' the spectators scream in hysterical frenzy, embrace each other and sometimes faint."

The writer sharpens his goose-quill, probably looks around to see if any men in white are in the vicinity, and attacks his paper again. "The absurdity of baseball," he scribbles, "comes when millions of adults raise this simple activity to the point where for more than half a year, baseball and the fortunes of the various teams are the most important things in the world. Nations may rise and fall but nothing matters as much as what is happening to the Dodgers, the Yankees, the Giants and individual members."

Then our writing hero hurls his insult supreme. Probably standing with both feet on the foolscap and a two-fisted grip on the graphite, he sneers: "This intense devotion grows worse, rising in a frantic crescendo to the gibbering climax known as the world series when true followers of the game reach a state of sheer ecstacy."

Having worked himself to this frenzy, the scribbler dashing the foam from his slavering jowls condemns baseball as a poor sport which has "no sense of mass struggle . . . lacks the physical brace of a tennis match . . . the sense of physical combat seen in a boxing match . . . no continuity as seen in a boat race or foot race."

"We forget diplomats and others who are trying to save the world from atomic flame after they die," he mumbles through his goose-quill, "but the departed ballplayer has his achievements recounted time and again. They are enshrined in the record books for posterity. Finally we end up by going through the solemn ritual of elevating the man to that preposterous pantheon, the Hall of Fame."

"This," he gurgled, probably before his attendants applied the strait jacket, "must surely be a classical example for all time of the height of something or other."

When he gets out he probably will take up his accustomed position at his favorite knothole or haunt the sports desks for ducats.

HOPE FOR KITCHENER

HALIFAX (CP)—The Nova Scotia Canadian Football League announced Thursday it hopes to schedule two exhibition football games in Halifax during the Labor Day weekend.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, 1954 Ontario Rugby Football Union champions, might meet HMCS Shearwater and a United States Navy squad.

TRABERT IN FINAL

PARIS (AP)—Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, defending champion, gained the final round of the French international tennis tournament Thursday when Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., sprained his right ankle and was forced to quit the court.

Trabert will play Sven Davidson of Sweden for the title.

'Bums' Score 10 in One Frame As Pirates, Yankees, Indians Fashion Double-Figure Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball didn't necessarily borrow an adage from the turf but is true there are pitchers for teams just as there are horses for courses. 1

There is Sal Maglie, who apparently need only throw his glove down on the pitching mound to beat Brooklyn Dodgers. And there's Don Newcombe, whose favorite cousins are the Cubs, Ellis Kinder and the White Sox and Bob Lemon and the Athletics, to mention just a few.

Now Johnny Antonelli, New York Giants' talented lefthander, has joined the group, with Cincinnati Redlegs as his favorites.

Belted out in his last three starts, the Giants' ace southpaw got back on the beam Thursday as he went all the way to turn back Birdie Tebbetts' crew 6-3.

It marked the eighth straight time Antonelli had beaten the Redlegs since joining the Giants last year.

BROOKS SWAMP BRAVES

But the Giants failed to gain on Brooklyn Dodgers. The National League leaders went on a 10-run scoring splurge in the eighth inning and defeated Milwaukee Braves 13-2. The defending champions, however, did pick up a game on Chicago Cubs, who dropped an 8-4 decision to the resurgent Philadelphia Phillies.

Pittsburgh Pirates cut loose with a 17-hit barrage to down St. Louis Cardinals 12-3.

New York Yankees held on to their three-game lead in the American League by thumping Kansas City Athletics 12-6 in a night game.

Herb Score, Cleveland's rookie southpaw, fanned 10 in the first four innings and then cooled off as Indians turned back Baltimore Orioles 9-3. Young Al Kaline regained the American League batting lead with two singles and a triple in Detroit's 4-3 victory over Washington Senators. And Chicago White Sox edged Boston Red Sox 4-2 for Virgil Trucks' fifth pitching triumph.

Antonelli received home run help from Don Mueller. Ted Kluszewski hammered his 15th homer off Antonelli but Willie Mays matched it with his 14th.

POUND PITCHING

The Dodgers bombarded three Milwaukee pitchers with nine hits in their 10-run inning. The trio—Dave Jolly, Roberto Vargas and bonus pitcher John Edelman—also helped the league leaders with three walks. Earlier Duke Snider connected with his 16th homer off Bob Buhl. Billy Loes gave up six hits including homers to pinch-hitter Eddie Matthews and Johnny Logan.

Andy Seminick's first - inning grand-slam homer was the big blow in Phillies triumph over Cubs. Curt Simmons wasn't around at the end but received credit for his second win of the season. Ernie Banks accounted for two Chicago runs with his 13th homer.

Home runs by Frank Thomas and Dale Long featured the Pirates' attack as Max Surkont went the distance for his fourth win against five defeats.

EASY FOR YANKS

Aided by 13 bases on balls and home runs by Gil McDougald, Elston Howard and Hank Bauer, the Yankees easily posted their 19th success in their last 22 games. Bob Grim limited the Athletics to two runs and five hits through the first seven innings but in the eighth was tagged for four runs on five hits, including a three-run homer by Jim Finigan.

Score recorded his sixth victory against three losses. The Indians picked up six unearned runs off Saul Rogovin in the second, four of them on Dave Pope's homer.

Trucks needed relief when Red Sox Consuegra, who was on the mound in the seventh when Red Sox loaded the bases only to have a double play snuff out the threat. Mel Parnell, making his first start of the season, was the loser.

Kaline pushed his batting average to .382 in the Tigers' win over Senators.

Walker Deplores Grey Cup Shift

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Douglas (Peahead) Walker of Montreal Alouettes doesn't think much of the shift of the Grey Cup game to Vancouver.

Walker, back in Montreal after a winter in the South, said Thursday he thinks Toronto should have remained the long-standing home of the big game, at least, say, until Montreal can provide a big stadium. His objection to Vancouver:

"It's so far. Why, anybody going from anywhere will have a hell of a trip."

Leafs Blank Sugar Kings To Regain Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Toronto Maple Leafs were back in first place in the International League today thanks to three four-hit games.

One of the four - hitters was tossed by their own Connie Johnson as the Leafs blanked the Cuban Sugar Kings in Havana 4-0 Thursday night. And the other two were thrown at the Montreal Royals by a pair of Richmond righthanders, Mike Kume and Jake Thies, in 3-0 and 4-0 victories.

Rochester dropped a 2-1 decision to the Richmond Virginians and remained in a virtual tie with the Sugar Kings for third place. In the battle for seventh place, Buffalo edged Syracuse 7-6.

Johnson struck out nine Cubans enroute to his seventh victory against one defeat. Three successive singles, a fumble and a wild throw from the outfield produced two runs, enough to win, in the second.

WITH EIGHT HITS

The Jets backed up Kume with an eight-hit attack, including two doubles by Bill Stewart, another by Mike Roarke and a bases-empty homer by Russ Sullivan. Thies, with a three-quarter underarm delivery, had the Royals under control all the way. Lou Limmer accounted for two Columbus runs with a homer.

Rookie catcher Tom Yewcic, making his first appearance in a Buffalo uniform, homered with two mates aboard in the ninth to give the Bisons their one-run triumph. Lynn Lovenguth was the victim of the rookie's blow and received his first setback since rejoining the Chiefs from Philadelphia.

Bill Connelly, one-time Rochester hurler, and Bill Voiselle, ex-New York Giants, combined to hold the Red Wings in check. The Virginians themselves were blanked on three hits until the eighth by lefty Mel Heim. Then they tallied twice on Dee Phillips' double, Ed Kasko's bunt, a sacrifice fly, a walk and Russ Kerns' single. Kerns' blow was off Tony Jacobs.

Dodgers Home Runs Phony, Hitters Overrated, Says "Lip"

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—As far as Leo Durocher is concerned, the Brooklyn Dodgers' fearsome array of sluggers is vastly overrated. Even their home runs are phony.

Through Thursday's game the Dodgers owned 68 homers in 45 games, a much faster pace than that set by the 1947 New York Giants when they accumulated a record 21 four-baggers.

But did that make much of an impression on the voluble Giants manager? Not so you could notice it.

A reporter asked Leo if he had occasion to see Wednesday night's Milwaukee-Brooklyn game at Ebbets Field when the Dodgers blasted six homers—three by Duke Snider.

"Yeh, I watched it on television," Durocher snapped. "I turned the foolish thing off and on a couple of times and finally shut it off for good after Snider hit his third . . . .

"I was just plain disgusted by those cheap fly ball homers. With the exception of Snider's second one, all were fly balls. Homers, horse feathers. Everything is a home run in Ebbets Field. All you gotta do is get the ball up in the air and it will go over some fence. The fences are right behind the infielders."

The Dodgers have played 21 games at home and 24 on the road, but they've hit 38 balls out of Ebbets Field and only 30 in seven other parks.

"If Willie Mays could play 77 games in Ebbets Field he'd smash all exsting slugging records," Leo said.

"But, what the heck. I don't blame the club owners for moving in the fences. If I owned a ball club, I'd build a park just like Ebbets Field with the foul lines running 325 feet to left and right centre. Everybody would hit a ton of homers, my club would get lots of publicity and the fans would flock to the park to see the greatest array of home run hitters in the history of baseball."

Giants Flounder Around .500 Line Desperate Measures Needed--Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YOR K(AP) — Watching New York Giants flounder around the .500 line and showing no signs of ever cutting into Brooklyn's whopping lead, one finds it difficult to realize they are the same club which electrified the sports world by slugging the Cleveland Indians four straight in the last world series.

A number of very knowing baseball figures warned two months ago that a championship team cannot stand still, and that the Giants could not possibly hope to get all the breaks again that they got last season.

They could not have been more right. Only now, when it is all too obvious that desperate measures are needed, is the Giants' front office infusing the club with fresh blood—probably too little and too late. The breaks, instead of going for the champions, have gone against them consistently since the race began.

DUSTY FLOUNDERS

Dusty Rhodes, the pinch-hitting wonder of 1954, has collected seven hits in 41 attempts. And Dusty is only a symbol of the ill fortune besetting the club. None of his teammates is doing much better, especially with the winning runs on base.

It seems scarcely credible that only one man on the club, Don Mueller, boasts a .300 batting average. Willie Mays is second, around .285, and plainly is struggling as opposing pitchers work on him low and tight. Not only that, but the most written-up young man in baseball history has been having his lapses in the field and on the bases.

Monte Irvin, who was an outstanding star a few years back, appears to have lost his batting eye for good. Neither Hank Thompson nor Whitey Lockman is hitting anywhere near last year's form. Wes Westrum and Dave Williams never could hit much. The only infielder who has given the opposition any trouble at all is shortstop Al Dark, and he's about 20 points below normal.

Only some unexpectedly fine pitching by veterans Sal Maglie and Jim Hearn has kept the champs from tumbling well down into the second division. Johnny Antonelli has shown signs of strain and there appears little chance that the young southpaw will come close to his 21 victories of last year. Ruben Gomez, a 17-game winner last season, has been almost a complete bust.

"Bobo" Olson Plans Battle With Moore

NEW YORK (AP)—Middleweight champion Bobo Olson Thursday promised to set the pace against light heavyweight champion Archie Moore when they meet June 22 at the Polo Grounds.

"No one in his right mind would try to box with Moore," said Olson as he arrived by plane from San Francisco to start the New York phase of his training. "If you lay back and try to box him, he'll catch you sooner or later with a right hand."

Olson also said he thought he could stop Moore if he got the opportunity. "If you can catch him he'll go," said Bobo. "He's been stopped before."

Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager, said he definitely would not permit his fighter to meet Moore if the light heavy king couldn't make the 175-pound class limit.

Scot Ousts Two Americans In Amateur

ST. ANNES, Scotland (CP)—Alan Slater, Yorkshire engineer, reached the quarter-finals of the British amateur golf championship Thursday by eliminating two highly-rated Americans.

In the fourth round Slater beat U.S. Walker Cup player Dale Morey of Indianapolis 2 and 1, then knocked out Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia 1 up in the fifth round.

Five United Kingdom golfers and three Americans reached the quarter-final round.

Joe Carr of Ireland, the 1953 champion, set a record for the Amateur when he entered the quarter-finals for his sixth straight year. Never before has a golfer been among the final eight survivors that many years.

Orfuns Thump Pt. Anne Behind Green's 2-Hitter

By GARRY ALEXANDER

With Bobby Green showing promise of his best year on the softball diamond to date, the Belleville Orfuns slaughtered the "pitcherless" Point Anne Cementmen 20-3 last night to take over undisputed possession of first place in the Belleville and District Softball League.

Green followed up a one - hit performance over the Frankford Merchants last week by setting Point Anne down on two hits, both in the fifth inning, and aided his own cause with three hits and a walk. He fanned 18 batters, getting the first twelve put-outs via the third strike, and walked nine.

The Cementmen, minus their veteran hurler Pat Maracle, opened with John Green on the hill. He took the loss in 6 innings plus, giving up 11 runs off eight hits, fanning one and walking eight and committing six wild pitches. Phil Loft came on in the seventh when the Orfuns scored 11 runs, giving up eight tallies on five hits and walking three while hitting one batter. Rusty Logue pitched hitless ball for the last two frames with the city squad getting one run on a four-base error to Bert Whalen. Logue struck out one and walked one.

After scoring one run in the first with singles by Barclay and Hull plus an error, walk and wild pitch, the Orfuns tallied five in the second. A walk to Young, Abelard's error, another free pass and Hull's infield out sank the first one but John Batchelor walloped a three-run homer to deep left field for the big blow. They added another in the third on singles by Jones and Bobby Green.

Two walks, a wild pitch and infield singles by Bromley and Green made it 8-0 in the top of the fifth.

The Pointers tallied all their runs in the fifth when Elliott walked and Jake Wade lined what looked like a sure homer to right field. The lead runner scored but Wade turned his ankle rounding third base and was held to a triple. He retired from the game. Gerry Goyer connected with the next pitch to the same spot for a two-run homer, all the hits and runs for the Cementmen as Green had little trouble in finishing the game.

Batchelor was robbed of his second homer of the night in the sixth when he was called out for missing second base, receiving credit for a single. Fifteen men batted in the top of the seventh with five walks, two errors, a hit batter, three wild pitches and hits by Wardhaugh, Carr, Barclay, Young and Green doing the damage. Hull tallied in the eighth when Whalen dropped his long fly ball.

Green led all batters with three singles while Batchelor claimed a homer and single. Don Barclay had two singles with Wardhaugh, Hull, Carr, Jones, Vic Bromley and Glen Young also hitting safely. Jack Elliott had a perfect night at the plate for the Pointers with five walks in as many trips.

The teams:

Orfuns: Barclay, J. Wardhaugh, Russell, Hull, Batchelor, Carr, Belnap, Jones, Soules, Bromley, Young, B. Green.

Point Anne: Elliott, Gilmour, Wade, G. Goyer, J. Green, Abelard, Bradshaw, Whalen, Bennett, Loft, Horwood, Logue.

Umpires: Shud Ethier (P), and Mac Carson (B).

Lectures Reds On Hoop Game

MOSCOW (AP)—Frank Walsh, a San Francisco basketball promoter has arrived in Moscow wearing two-tone bow tie with an American flag on one wing and a Soviet flag on the other, to give a series of lectures to Russian basketball coaches.

Walsh is also trying to persuade the Russians to name a Moscow street in honor of Dr. James Naismith, the man who invented basketball. He hopes to arrange for exchange visits by United States and Russian basketball teams.

Somewhat flustered when he was greeted at the airport by sports leaders who thrust a bouquet of roses into his hands, Walsh quickly recovered and began giving lectures.

Walsh hopes to have the Russians invite American coaches to Moscow for a clinic.

Soccer Star Out of Action

TORONTO (CP) — Jimmy Glazzard, Huddersfield soccer team's heavy scoring centre forward, will be out of action for at least six weeks, team manager Andy Beatty said Thursday.

Glazzard suffered an injury in a recent game against British Columbia All-Stars. He will probably be replaced by inside right Jimmy Watson. Sunderland and Huddersfield, playing exhibition matches on this continent, meet here Saturday. A 3-3 deadlock was Tuesday's score at Winnipeg.

Kid Gavilan KO's Celumine

SAN CLARA, Cuba (AP) — Kid Gavilan, former welterweight champion, knocked out Luigi Celumine of Italy, in the third round before 4,000 fans Thursday night. Kid Gavilan weighed 152½. Celumine 157. Celumine was floored in the second round for a count of eight.

Latta Bows To Cannifton By 9-7 Score

A large crowd in Cannifton on Wednesday night was held on the edge of the seats as the home team come from behind to score a 9-7 victory over their arch rivals, Latta, of the South Hastings Baseball League. The Latta club slugged their way to an early four-run lead before the veteran hurler Gord Oliver gained a control which he held throughout the remainder of the game.

It was not until the bottom of the third that the Cannifton batters really hit their stride with a consistent rally climaxed by a tremendous double by "Salty" Moore. At this point Parks was replaced by Glass on the mound for Latta. Cannifton added one more in the ninth while Latta added one in the third and two in the fifth.

Petrie, Wynne, Cole, and Moore each had a pair of hits while Sheffield and Harder had one apiece for the winners. Frank Ray, was best for Latta with a trio of singles. Sullivan and Stewart each had a single and Gary Gow a double.

LINE-UPS

Cannifton — Harder, Marner, Sheffield, Petrie, Wynne, Cole, Moore, Walker, and Oliver.

Latta—Glass, Gow, Stewart, Sullivan, Ray, Parks, Rollins, Hazzard, Parks, Hart and Meeks.

Latta will be out to avenge the loss when the two clubs meet again in Latta tonight.

Galt Edges Oshawa 5-4 Elgins Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers, cellar dwellers in the senior Intercounty Baseball League, slipped one over the leading Oshawa Merchants Thursday night, defeating them 5-4. The loss tumbled Merchants into second place behind the idle London Majors.

Other results left St. Thomas Elgins and Kitchener Panthers in third and fourth positions, respectively.

In Niagara District senior baseball, Fort Erie Forts defeated Niagara Cataracts 7-5 and Crowland Bisons scored a 6-3 victory over Welland Goodyears.

St. Thomas, defending Intercounty champions, won the opener of a doubleheader with Kitchener 7-5 but dropped the second 4-3.

At Galt, Jeep Jessup threw a wild pitch with three men on and allowed Ralph Brawner to score the winning run for Terriers in the ninth.

Alouettes' Ivory-Hunting Walker Has 20 Yankees Ready For Delivery

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Douglas (Peahead) Walker of Montreal Alouettes, back from a winter-spring tour of the football highways and byways with a pocketful of signed documents, said Thursday he is sure he will come up with at least two or three really outstanding players for Montreal's 1955 Big Four club.

The man from North Carolina has been travelling almost since the day last November when Edmonton Eskimos snatched the Grey Cup right out of the hands of the victory-bound Alouettes.

At a press conference Walker disclosed he already has 20 Americans ready for delivery to the training camp, which opens July 15. Half a dozen of these are top-notch imports with last year's team.

NEW TALENT

There is a wealth of new talent and Walker singled out particularly Al Mackowiecki, a giant six-foot-three, 225-pound tackle from Florida State University.

"He's all over the field, the best new line player we've signed," said Walker.

Names of some of the new imports have already been announced by the Alouettes' front office.

Among those from last year's team who will be on hand are quarterback Sam Etcheverry, expected to arrive next week; John (Red) O'Quinn, tall red-haired end who was signed by Walker last week; guard Ray Cicia, centre Tom Hugo, end-halfback Hal Patterson and halfback Chuck Hunsinger, who goofed in the Grey Cup game but got a telegram from 21,000 Montreal fans telling him to cheer up.

Walker said he will have 50 to 60 players in camp, about the same as he had last year. Canadian talent will be given every opportunity.

Bruins Quiet On Sawchuk Deal

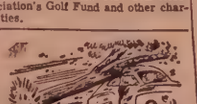
BOSTON (CP)—There was no comment from Boston sources Thursday night on a report from Toronto that the Bruins are about to acquire goalie Terry Sawchuk of the National Hockey League champion Detroit Red Wings.

"No comment" was all Bruin coach Milt Schmidt had to say when asked about the report, carried Thursday in the Toronto Star, which added that the Red Wings will bring up Glenn Hall from their Edmonton farm in the Western Hockey League to replace Sawchuk.

Ordinary "Joes" Match Shots With Champs Sat.

NEW YORK (AP—The nation's ordinary golfers get a chance to match shots with the champs Saturday in the fourth annual observance of National Golf Day.

Their target will be Ed Furgol, the present U. S. Open champion, and Patty Berg, winner of all major women's honors who will be subbing for the present women's Open titleholder, Babe Didrikson Zaharias. Mrs. Zaharias is ill.



The two will play the Olympic Club Lake course at San Francisco, site of this year's national Open.

Their scores then will be matched with those golfers who divvy up a dollar each throughout the country. The men play Furgol and the women play Miss Berg. Anyone posting a better score, on a handicap basis, receives a medal fittingly inscribed.

Golf Day is sponsored jointly by Life magazine and the Professional Golfers Association, with all proceeds going to charity. More than $300,000 has been distributed during the first three years.

Sponsors expect a record turnout of 200,000 competitors this year.

The Red Cross receives 40 per cent of the proceeds. The rest of it is distributed among the PGA Benevolent Fund, the U.S. Golf Association's Golf Fund and other charities.

You may live to be a ripe old stooge for your bridge partner. But it is doubtful if you will ever know exactly what he shows with a simple overcall. His latitude is almost as wide as his discretion.

He is supposed to stick to certain minimums and maximums. The likelihood is that he will stretch in both directions from either when signs of the time indicate its advisability.

If he desires to hear a bid from you he has recourse to use of the takeout double. So, his simple overcall does not order you to respond, invite you to respond, or encourage you to respond.

What he virtually says is that his tricks are good only if the hand is played in his trump suit and not yours. So, of all things, he does not wish for a takeout to a new suit by you.

In answer to an opening bid, a responding new suit takeout is encouraging for more bidding by the pair. Just the opposite to a new suit is response to a simple overcall.

Without announced danger (like a penalty double), rescue of a simple overcall is inviting trouble. Therefore, partner of a simple overcaller is not expected to change suits because he dislikes it.

So, what excuse can you give for a takeout to a new suit reply to a simple overcall? Only one obvious reason. You can make more if played at your suit instead of his.

South opens one heart, your partner overcalls a spade, and north passes. Bid two diamonds with this east hand:

EAST
♦ K Q J 9 6 3 2
♣ Q 8 6

It is not a rescue. It says to partner: Let me play it instead of you. We can make more if you do.

Golden Pirie Will Compete In Canada

TORONTO (CP)—Gordon Pirie, the Briton who ranks as one of the world's great distance runners, will visit Canada this summer and compete in a number of races in Toronto and district.

His program includes two one-mile races with Fred Dwyer, the U.S. runner who contested some of the top indoor mile events last winter.

Gordon, who will be here Aug. 27-30, will be accompanied by his brother, Peter, who will concentrate on three- and six-mile events.

Arrangements for the Pirie visit were announced Thursday by K.R. Thomson, executive vice-president of the Thomson Company, who is a keen track enthusiast and a close personal friend of Gordon.

RUN AT CNE

The first of the two featured mile events between Gordon and Dwyer is scheduled for Toronto's East York Stadium Saturday, Aug. 20. On Monday, Aug. 29, they will run at the Canadian National Exhibition.

For the mile races, track authorities plan best possible Canadian competitors and they hope Rich Ferguson, the country's best miler, will be available.

It is expected that Gordon will run in a two-mile race at Hamilton Aug. 23, although arrangements have not yet been completed.

Gordon will spend some of his time in Canada at the athletic training centre at Lake Couchiching, near Orillia, where he will train with Canadian athletes and demonstrate some of his own highly-developed training techniques. There is plans to run a half-mile race.

Mr. Thomson emphasized that his interest is purely personal. "I am interested in only one thing—giving Canadians an opportunity of seeing one of the great runners of the world in action."

REPLACE STYDAHAR

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cardinals Thursday named Ray Richards, an assistant, to replace Joe Stydahar as head coach. Stydahar had one more season to go in a three-year contract.

The expected dismissal of Stydahar, whose Cardinals won only three of 24 National Football League games the last two seasons, was announced by managing director Walter Wolfner.

Davy Crockett Show Ended But Melody Still Lingers On

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — The show is ended but the melody lingers on—the ballad of Davy Crockett, that is.

Six months have elapsed since the tune was introduced in the Davy Crockett series on ABC-TV's Disneyland show, yet it remains high in popularity ratings.

Meanwhile, the Davy Crockett fad among the kids shows little signs of subsiding, with Crockett coonskin caps, pistol holsters and other merchandise grossing millions of dollars.

The full-length motion picture put together by Walt Disney from the three Crockett television films is doing what the trade paper Variety describes as smash business at a New York theatre where it made its premiere a little over a week ago.

Fess Parker, who portrayed Davy in the TV films, has been catapulted from comparative obscurity to stardom.

STILL GOING STRONG

But the song has done perhaps more than anything else to make the country Crockett-conscious. For weeks now, it has been commonplace to hear someone, and often a grown-up, humming the tune on the street, on buses, on trains. Three different Davy Crockett records have been on best-seller lists for weeks and remain among disk jockey favorites. The tune has been on "Your Hit Parade" 13 weeks, including this coming Saturday, and in first place 6 weeks.

The Crockett craze, like most fads, ordinarily could be expected to fade in six months or so. However Disney has a new series entitled "The Legend of Davy Crockett" in the works for his ABC show next season, possibly as many as four complete programs. Unlike the original three, which stuck reasonably close to historical fact, the new Crockett shows will have more latitude in portraying Davy in feats attributed to him by legend but not necessarily supported by historical data.

The annual all-star baseball game, in Milwaukee July 12, has been booked again for both radio and television. Mutual will do the radio broadcast for the 12th consecutive year and NBC the telecast for the 6th . . . singer Marion Marlowe, recently fired from the Arthur Godfrey show, will sing a duet with Julius La Rosa, another ex-Godfreyite, on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" this Sunday.

Tigers to Talk Trade-or-Buy

DETROIT (AP)—General manager Muddy Ruel of Detroit Tigers went to Kansas City Thursday with the avowed intention of "talking trade-cr-buy" with New York Yankees and Kansas City Athletics.

Just who Ruel might be interested in wasn't disclosed. Injuries, however, recently riddled the Detroit infield and rookie replacements failed to come through adequately. The Tigers lost four in a row before beating Washington 9-0 Wednesday.

With the shipping of J. W. Porter, 22-year-old first baseman-outfielder to Little Rock of the class AA Southern Association Thursday, the Tigers got two under the league limit of 25.

In 18 games with Detroit this year, Porter hit .225.

'I Sing Only My Own Songs' Says King of Sophisticates

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—You won't catch Noel Coward strumming a guitar and warbling "Davy Crockett" when he appears in Las Vegas next week.

"I will sing only my own songs," says the king of the sophisticates.

Has he any fears that his material will be over the heads of patrons in the rootin', tootin' western town?

"Not in the least. It has been my past experience that it is a mistake to make any compromises with audiences. I have often been warned that I am too English for American audiences. I have found that fear is groundless.

"People take it for granted that I am English. What I do seems to get across to them. Americans have even liked some of the Cockney things I do, and you'd hardly expect that."

HUGE SALARY RUMORED

Coward was here for a brief whirl before taking off on his four-week engagement at the Desert Inn. His salary is reported at $40,000 a week, but that seems much inflated, even for Las Vegas.

The British star was honored here Sunday with a cocktail party which attracted a cross-section of Hollywood society, from Aldo Ray to Monty Woolley. It was a gala occasion, with hundreds of roses and gardenias floating in a swimming pool.

Then Coward buckled down to rehearsals at the home of Clifton Webb, where he is staying.

Between rehearsals he paused to talk about his invasion of the modern El Dorado.

"I was in Las Vegas last December to see what it was like," he remarked. "I was enchanted. There is absolutely no place like it in the world. It doesn't resemble Monte Carlo; it's a combination of a gold rush and a honky tonk. It is quite unique."

Matchmaker Held For Perjury In Fight Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Matchmaker Pete Moran Thursday was held in $3,500 bail for court on charges he lied Wednesday as a witness in the Pennsylvania athletic commission's probe of the Harold Johnson-Julio Mederos bout.

The commission charged that Johnson was drugged before he entered the ring against Mederos last May 11 and that as a result he collapsed at the end of the second round. Mederos was awarded the knockout win.

The current commission probe of the Johnson-Mederos fight in particular and the fight game in general began after Pennsylvania's Gov. George M. Leader ordered all professional fights banned in the state for 90 days.

Moran, who serves as a matchmaker for Philadelphia fight promoter Herman Taylor, was served with a warrant during a recess in Thursday's probe session. He was accused specifically with falsely telling the commission members from the witness stand Wednesday that he had not contacted any member of Peter Perri's family since the start of the fight investigation.

The name of Perri was brought into the commission's investigation several days ago with the introduction in evidence of a contract bearing the alleged signatures of Johnson and two co-managers, Tommy Loughrey and Perri.

Loughrey is Johnson's manager of record. Perri, in an affidavit signed in his hospital bed, described his purported signature as a forgery. Perri is recuperating from an illness, the nature of which was not disclosed.

Dutchies May Play Down East

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia Canadian Football League is trying to line up a two-game exhibition series with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, 1954 Ontario Rugby Football Union champions.

An official said the five-team circuit hopes to schedule the contests for Halifax during the Labor Day weekend. Shearwater Flyers would meet the Dutchmen Sept. 3 and a visiting United States Navy team would be invited to meet the ORFU titleholders Sept. 5.

AT THE McCARTHY

'Peter' Attracts Record Crowds

"A Man Called Peter," starring Richard Todd and Jean Peters, has established new attendance records at the McCarthy Theatre, it was reported today by W. J. Fawcett, manager. The audiences' reception to this unusual CinemaScope production which captures on the screen all of the inspiration and charm of Catherine Marshall's best-seller has been remarkable, according to Mr. Fawcett.

The story, told in terms of God's intimate participation in the affairs of man, leaves its impact on all who see it and Twentieth Century-Fox has mounted it with every possible technique and talent.

BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"BEWARE, MY LOVELY"

Ida Lupino, a war widow of World War I, lives in a large Victorian house which is empty except for her roomer, Taylor Holmes and her pet dog. When Holmes leaves for a holiday visit, Miss Lupino decides to clean house and hires Robert Ryan, an itinerant handy man, to help her. Ryan takes his work seriously but reveals himself as a lonely person who gets into sudden fits of anger. He tells her that he was rejected by the army because he was mentally unstable and he reveals that he often reads of a murder and is not sure if he committed it. Miss Lupino finally realizes that she is a prisoner in her own home and even her attempt to get a note to a grocery boy is foiled by Ryan. He tries to kill her and she faints, but when she comes to, she finds Ryan ready to go with a telephone repairman who arrives to fix the phone, which had been torn from the wall.

Sam Snead's Golf School

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, June 4, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Moderate vibrations today so it behooves all Arians to maintain a calm disposition, be amenable to advice or instructions from proper authorities, trustworthy friends. Persevere, cooperate.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Emotionalism and anxiety taboo. The vision is clearer and judgment sounder when you preserve a rational, calm, collected manner. Better finish incompleted things than start new tasks — if necessary. Romance favored.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Some down riotous tendencies that would tempt you into wrong channels, scatter your efforts to the winds. You would achieve little; in fact lose time, energy. Do your best; you will gain.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Pick your way carefully, especially in important matters where accuracy and patience are essential. This is no day to "fly off the handle." Good work can be accomplished.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — No extraordinary gains? You can, nevertheless, create chances for some in certain endeavors — particularly those suited to your talents and circumstances. Diligent effort will not go unnoticed. Be patient.

August 23 to September 21 — (Virgo) — Advance in business, professional and other affairs by dint of intelligent, hard work is possible now. Strive after the worthwhile; avoid the useless activities that take time and energy, and mean little.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Serenely attack all duties, chores and urgent matters. Settle for the best you can do, and don't be discouraged if things do not turn out as you wish on your first try. Enjoy some free time with family.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — If you know you have been maintaining a strenuous pace, slow down, revitalize; it helps the viewpoint, too. Without neglecting important items, get some relaxation.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — It is easy to tell others how to improve their methods, but when it comes to your own action, do you always recognize your errors? Review, revise where needed.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — It is healthier to stop every so often in order to check, re-energize, and go over details and angles "once again" carefully, than to drive ahead, but wind up with needless mistakes and strain.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — You, too, should stop and check whether you are keeping too vigorous a schedule, are working at too swift a tempo. Mind and body require refreshing relaxation, now and then.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Never mind what "he said" or "she said" that you did not like; go about your work and pleasures happily and take others' remarks with that old "grain of salt."

You born today are mentally and physically active. You are versatile, but this can be a drawback if you engage in too many things at one time, not leaving room for sufficient improvement in one or two. Be careful about scattering your talents and energies. You will find it easy to get cooperation and carry through plans by graciously listening to others' suggestions and by recognizing their wishes, too. You have imagination, dexterity; can become fluent in speech; are often impulsive, act with bursts of enthusiasm. Practice a steady tempo; pray daily.

(ADVT.)

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead,—active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "tired-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order,—helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 54

REHEARSING FOR INTERNATIONAL AIR SHOW

A part of largest concentration of Canadian jet power ever assembled in this country, F/O Fred Dahlgren of Winnipeg poses beside Ghost squadron emblem on his plane before taking off on practice flight at RCAF base at Mount Hope, Ont., in preparation for International Air Show to be held over Toronto on June 4. The 77 planes—CF-100's, F-86 Sabre jets and T-33 Silver Stars—flew to Mount Hope, near Hamilton, Ont., where they will be based until show is over from fields throughout Eastern Canada. They will join U.S. and British aircraft in surpassing previous national air displays in numbers of planes, at least. (Central Press Canadian).

Air Plans For Hall of Fame

MONTREAL (CP) — Plans for the Canadian National Exhibition's sports Hall of Fame were discussed Thursday at a meeting of sportswriters here.

Elmer Ferguson and Charley Mayer, columnists with The Herald and Le Petit Journal, were named as delegates to a Toronto meeting June 10, when final plans will be made for the Hall of Fame, inaugural of which is scheduled for the Toronto exhibition in 1955.

CNE vice-president Harry Price said each of eight provinces has been invited to send one representative, with Ontario and Quebec sending two.

Price said the CNE does not wish to interfere with the hockey Hall of Fame program and for the time being its sports hall would be open to the public only during the two weeks of the annual exposition. No more than 30 or 40 athletes were likely to be selected for the first sports Hall of Fame draft.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was downtown with ma, and she stopped to look in the window of the Corner of Paris lady's hat store saying, Oh, what a charming little creation, I'm sure that would do something for me.

What would it do? I said, and she said, It would be becoming on me. If it doesn't cost more than 20 dollers I dont beleeve I can resist it. I wonder if it can be that comparatively reasonable, she said.

Why dont it have the price marked on it, ma? I said, and ma said, Oh, Mrs. Corday is too mutch of an artist to dispaly a hat with a price tag on it. She considers herself above mere money considerations.

Then, why dont she give her hats away? I said, and ma said, Well, she really does take the attitude that she's giving them away, no matter how mutch they cost.

Gosh, is she crazy? I said, and ma said, She's an artist.

And we went in, and the lady in the store said, Why, Mrs. Potts, it's a pleasure to see you again.

Thank you, Mrs. Corday, can you tell me the price of that little blue and white hat in your window? ma said, and Mrs. Corday said, Yes indeed, 32 eighty.

Ho, how dissappointing, ma said, I hoped it was a mutch more expensive model than that. Well, I was just passing and I thought I'd inquire, she said.

And we went out again, and I said, G, ma, I thought you said even 20 dollers would be too mutch.

So I did, and and so I do, ma said, and I said, Then why did you tell her that?

Oh, never mind, it's above your head, ma said.

Which it was.

Foreign Investment Needed To Rehabilitate South Korea

By PHILIP KIM

SEOUL, South Korea (Reuters) President Syngman Rhee's government is seeking large-scale foreign investment in South Korea to rehabilitate the republic's war-wrecked industries.

The government has drafted a foreign investment bill which will open Korea to foreign capital for the first time since 1945.

South Korea also has passed laws to denationalize the republic's large industries. Until January of this year, the major resources, including minerals, hydro-electric power, transport and coastal shipping, were under government ownership or control. Foreign capital was excluded by law.

As a first step to attract foreign investors, Rhee's administration is negotiating with the United States for the conclusion of a treaty of friendship, trade and navigation. This treaty will set the pattern for similar agreements with other nations interested in investing money in South Korea.

The United States government urged the Seoul government to create an "investment climate" which would attract capital from the United States and other countries. The government's draft foreign investment legislation, which now awaits the final approval of the cabinet, includes the following provisions:

1. The foreign investor, corporation or private individual shall be allowed to take up to 30 per cent of annual profits out of the country.

2. Foreign capital invested in an enterprise or business shall not exceed 49 per cent of the total capital.

3. The number of foreigners on the board of directors of an enterprise shall not exceed 49 per cent of the total members of the board.

4. Invested capital may be withdrawn after 24 months from the date of investment, but only up to 20 per cent of the total amount invested may be drawn out in any one year.

6. In the case of an emergency, such as war, the South Korean government shall compensate the foreign investors for any losses.

High Cost of Wiving Annoys Young West Coast Africans

By KENNETH LINES

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (Reuters)—"Can I afford to buy a wife?" is the question young Africans along the west coast ask themselves these days.

In local councils, in the press and even at ministerial levels there is considerable discussion over the high price of brides. It is a problem which has many social implications.

Whereas, in the past, $30 to $45 was a reasonable figure to pay the bride's parents, $300 is often the price now asked in the illicit diamond mining areas of Sierra Leone, the cocoa-growing regions of the Gold Coast or the prosperous inland cities of Nigeria.

PREDATE MISSIONARIES

Marriage customs and the bride price vary between the British West African countries and between tribes in those countries. But they all have similar basic features and they date back to long before Christian missionaries arrived.

The question of marriage and the choice of a bride is often settled between parents. In that case, neither the future bride or bridegroom have any say in the matter.

Sometimes betrothals are made at the birth of the girl and there are cases of such girls becoming brides, at the age of 13 or 14, to men who grew up with their grandfathers.

Among the Mende tribe of Sierra Leone, when a child is betrothed, the man will give a goat, rice, palm oil and money to the family at what is known as the initiation ceremony.

Today, it is more usual for a young man to look out for a bride himself, although the respective families will still play a large part in the ceremonies. The young man does not approach the girl himself but asks the women members of her family to win her for him.

APPROACHES FATHER

If she has no major objection, the young man approaches her father, always accompanied by gifts which include bottles of gin—a must if he wants to be sure of success.

The question of the price of the bride will be discussed with the family. If the price is outside the young man's means, he may arrange to pay it by instalments. In the Mende tribe, for instance, it is quite usual for the man to work on his prospective father-in - law's farm for a number of years, in addition to paying a small cash price for his bride.

The Yorubas of Nigeria have a formal bethrothal ceremony at which the young man presents kola nuts, money and pots of native beer. The kola, a bitter-tasting nut which is chewed, is given in most parts of West Africa as a sign of friendship.

The marriage ceremony usually takes place after harvest time. Most people are free then to leave their farms and travel long distances to the wedding and, from the bridegroom's point of view, there is money available to provide refreshment for the guests.

The wedding is an occasion for singing and dancing. For days after the marriage, the guests live on the hospitality of the bridegroom.

There is no law against polygamy in West Africa. A man who has more than one wife is either rich or is a chief.

RCAF Officers Come Under Fire For Statements

Campney Says Govt. Plans To Silence Military Men

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, recently retired adjutant-general of the Canadian Army, says some senior RCAF officers are beginning "to suffer from delusions of grandeur."

In a letter Friday to the Ottawa Journal, Gen. Macklin writes:

"The government of the United States has had some trouble with officers still in uniform sounding off on matters of high policy that are the responsibility of government. It is to be hoped that our government will quell any such tendencies in Canada. They are dangerous."

TWICE IN COMMONS

Twice this week, Defence Minister Campney has said in the Commons that public statements attributed to two high RCAF officers do not reflect government policy.

In reply to opposition questions Friday, he said it is improper for top military men to make public statements dealing with government policy. He indicated that he will crack down on such practice.

On Wednesday, Air Marshal Roy Slemon, chief of air staff, was quoted at Montreal as saying that Canada and the U.S. are heading toward a unified air defence system and appointment of an overall commander.

A day later, Air Vice-Marshal John L. Plant, chief of RCAF technical services, said the army should be scrapped to make more manpower available for a stronger air force.

CARRY OUT POLICIES

Referring to these two statements, Gen. Macklin writes:

"During more than 30 years in the Canadian Army, in ranks varying from private to major-general, I was consistently taught, and passed on the teaching, that it is the business of serving officers to carry out the policies of our constitutionally elected representatives.

"If senior responsible officers disagree with these policies, they can always resign . . . .

"After that they are free to hire halls and give tongue to their ideas like any other citizens.

"I have been a strong supporter of the RCAF for a good many years, but it is beginning to look as if the power of engines, and the weapons placed in their hands by science, has caused some of them to begin to suffer from delusions of grandeur."

IN A FLURRY

The defence department was obviously in a flurry Friday after word reached it of Air Vice-Marshal Plant's statement before a group of aviation writers at Toronto.

Officials wanted to know what he was quoted as saying and Mr. Campney's replies on the matter later in the Commons to John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) and Douglas Harkness (PC — Calgary North) were relayed quickly to senior officers at headquarters.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a recent "spate" of statements by military men "indicate that something in the nature of a military junta is trying to take the place of parliament."

Mr. Campney replied: "I think the honorable member's apprehensions are perhaps greater than the fact warrant."

NOT PROPER

Pressed by Mr. Diefenbaker about whether it is proper for high military officers to make such statements as attributed to Air Vice-Marshal Plant, Mr. Campney said:

"Well, it is not proper, of course, for high officers in the services to make statements with respect to government policy."

He answered "no" when Mr. Harkness asked whether the air vice-marshal's statement is part of an RCAF policy to obtain a bigger share of defence expenditures and a campaign "which the government is encouraging or allowing to go on."

"If the answer is no, why is it, then, that the government allows this sort of thing to go on?" Mr. Harkness asked.

"The government has not allowed this matter to proceed along the lines the honorable members suggests, at all," Mr. Campney replied.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Little change in weather is expected across Ontario today. Most of southern Ontario will be sunny today, but cloud and showers moving eastward reached Lake Erie early this morning. Cloudy skies with showers are forecast to continue across northern Ontario today and Sunday. Somewhat cooler air will push into the northern regions Sunday morning. Thunderstorms are expected along the leading edge of the cooler air.

Violence Threat Raises Tension In Railway Strike

LONDON (AP) — A threat of violence today crept into Britain's crippling rail strike, as with thousands already jobless, settlement efforts bogged down and a seamen's wildcat strike tied up several Transatlantic liners.

A few more trains operated in response to peace appeals by government and tade union leaders.

Bu. at Stockport, members of the non-striking National Union of Railwaymen complained that striking union men had come to their homes and threatened them if they continued to man the trains.

Said one official: "The conduct of some of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen amounts to intimidation of the first order."

NO HOPE SEEN

Strike leaders went home to rest after a strenuous week and a union spokesman said "there has been no invitation to any meeting with anybody at this stage."

The rail strike appeared to be as far off from settlement as at any time since it began a week ago tonight.

Efforts to reach a settlement in the strike involving 80 per cent of Britain's locomotive crews bogged down despite a barrage of peace appeals by the government and trade union leaders.

With thousands of factory workers already out of work as a result of the strike, the Federation of British Industries warned today that the crisis point in unemployment will come in a few days unless trains get rolling.

AUTO UNION TRIES TO COMBINE GAINS FROM FORD, GM

Ford Workers' Strike May Begin on Monday

DETROIT (AP) — The CIO United Auto Workers pressed its contract battles on two fronts today, hoping to combine the best gains won from both Ford and General Motors Corp.

The Ford talks, with a strike deadline only some 36 hours away, were the most urgent, but the union's negotiations with General Motors were to be stepped up despite an extra 48 hours of grace.

The UAW, after once delaying a strike deadline, now says it will call 140,000 Ford workers in the United States on strike Monday morning unless a settlement is reached by then.

Ford and UAW were to resume conferences today. With the strike deadline fast approaching, there were indications that today's meeting might go well into the night.

General Motors and the union were to meet this afternoon and at two sessions Sunday, one of them the first night session at GM in two months of bargaining.

OFFER REPORTED

Ford is reported to have offered to supplement state unemployment compensation payments to laid-off workers, the principles behind the union's guaranteed annual wage demand.

The company is said to have offered to guarantee its employees 65 per cent of normal take-home pay for the first four weeks of an ideness and 60 per cent for an additional [illegible] weeks. Unemployment compensation paid by the various states would be deducted from the company's obligation.

Strait of Juan de Fuca Too Tough For College Co-Ed and Ex-Marine

VICTORIA (CP) — The uncon- and the last to give up. At the quered Strait of Juan de Fuca today forced the surrender of a young university co-ed and then shook off a beefy former Marine when he was within six miles of victory.

Logger Bert Thomas of Tacoma, Wash., was pulled out shortly after 3:20 a.m. PDT (6:20 a.m. EDT) ending his second attempt to swim the 18-3 cold and treacherous miles between Vancouver island and Washington state.

Thomas had plunged into the water below Beacon Hill Park more than 10 hours before.

Two hours before he gave up, 18-year-old Pat Russell of Vancouver, University of Briti h C. lumbia student was pulled exhausted from the trail.

Thomas, 29, was first to start end he was making no progress against strong tides and increasing winds.

Miss Russell sobbed when she was brought back here suffering from shock. She was resting in hospital when Thomas gave up.

Thomas, formerly a frogman with the Marines, lasted 10 hours and [illegible] minutes in the 48-degree water.

Miss Russell started out at 5:54 p.m. The girl was taken aboard the support schooner Black Dog after lasting seven hours and 14 minutes.

She had travelled about 9½ miles farther than channel swimmer Florence Chadwick had gone when [illegible] bested out by the icy waters after a five-hour battle with the trail last year.

Liberal Leader Visits City

Handling of Highways, Hydro By Frost Govt. Criticized In Address by Liberal Leader

Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, Friday night called losses in the highways department, "the greatest political scandal Ontario has ever known"; scored the Hydro frequency changeover as "exorbitant"; and accused Premier Frost of using the expulsion of James Dempsey in South Renfrew to deceive the electorate about the moral integrity of the Conservative party.

The Liberal leader made his statement, while speaking in support of candidates in the Quinte district at a rally in the Collegiate auditorium. A large and enthusiastic audience applauded each point in Mr. Oliver's fighting address.

Appearing on the platform with Mr. Oliver were: Irving (Mac) McGaughey, of Trenton, Liberal candidate in Hastings West; Dr. D. C. McVicker, of Deseronto, Liberal candidate in Hastings East; Percy Mellott, of Cherry Valley, candidate in Prince Edward-Lennox; Jack Price, candidate in Northumberland; Frank S. Follwell, M.P., for Hastings South and Senator W. A. Fraser, of Trenton. Each man spoke briefly during the meeting.

"Premier Frost is telling a clear misrepresentation of fact, over and over again, when he speaks about highways," said Mr. Oliver.

"Disclosures in the highways department are of such moment and magnitude that they constitute the greatest political scandal this province has ever known."

"For three years this department squandered the money you and I paid in gas and licence fees."

"We paid for roads we never got. We moved gravel that never existed. Men used fictitious names to enrich themselves. And this happened under the noses of what the Conservatives say is 'the best government Ontario has ever known.'"

Mr. Oliver stated that the courts moved against erring contractors and fined them.

"I doubt if the fines have been paid," he said, "I doubt they will ever be paid."

"This reveals conditions which should not exist under a mediocre government, let alone under 'the best government Ontario ever had'."

"Then this government tried to find some one to blame for its troubles and after months of investigation pointed the finger at a certain man and said that this was the man who stood behind the scenes and pulled the strings. Unfortunately for the people of Ontario this man had been dead for many months."

Reports India Turning Against Missionaries

TORONTO (CP) — The 81st general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was told Friday night that India is turning against the missionary movement as a result of a tremendous upsurge in Hinduism and nationalism.

"I don't think I'll finish out my next five-year term in India before I'm asked to leave," said Rev. Russell Self of Toronto, who has spent six years there.

"They are beginning to turn against the missionary movement and we must work with speed in the time left to us."

Mr. Self, minister of St. James Presbyterian church here before entering the mission field, said few missions are left in India. United States missionaries had been virtually driven out because of U.S. foreign policy.

Harris Predicts Year's Deficit Of $160,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government started off in 1955-56 fiscal year with surplus of $32,519,000 in April, despite declines in revenue from a year earlier stemming in part from tax reductions in the April 5 budget.

Finance Minister Harris, in his monthly treasury statement Friday reported a drop in expenditures even larger than the revenue decline.

Revenues of $229,012,000 for the month were $16,409,000 below those of April, 1954. But expenditures, at $196,493,000, were down by $19,270,000 from a year earlier. In April, 1954, there was surplus of $29,658,000.

The main drop in spending was for defence where total outlays of $60,502,000 were roughly $20,000,000 below the 1954 level.

Mr. Harris has estimated he will end the present fiscal year with a $160,000,000 deficit. Last year the government went in the red by $194,251,000.

FEDERAL BUTTER SUPPORTS ISSUE IN HOUSE DEBATE

Suggest Surpluses Given to Pensioners

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's controversial butter price-support program has been both challenged and defended in the Commons and a suggestion aired that surpluses be given to Canada's needy pensioners and veterans.

Criticism came from Ross Thatcher (Ind — Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) who said Friday that the support price of 58 cents a pound wholesale is too high for the good of consumer, taxpayer and producer.

The program, he added, has resulted in the accumulation of record surpluses, costing taxpayers millions of dollars. Yet it was leading thousands of Canadians to switch to margarine, placing the butter industry in a serious predicament.

Elmore Philpott (L — Vancouver South) said the program is basically sound. The fear was that it might lead to high consumer prices, cutting many needy persons from supplies which might rot in storage.

The butter problem entered into a wide-ranging House discussion on the plight of the farmer generally as members considered agriculture department estimates. They spoke for about five hours but didn't get past the first item of business—the minister's salary.

National Military Service Urged By Publisher After European Trip

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's recognized high position in world affairs and the necessity at home for even greater development of Canadianism demand that this country institute national military service, in the opinion of John Bassett, Jr.

The publisher of the Toronto Telegram returned to Montreal with his wife Friday night after an eight-week swing through four European countries. His interviews and conversations, providing a cross-section of European opinion, revealed that Canada's prestige was never higher.

"It is necessary that Canadians reassess their position in the world," said Mr. Bassett in an interview aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland.

"It is necessary also that they find some way to build up even more the Canadian way and national feeling.

"The time now is ripe for the government to institute national military service; there never was a better time."

There would be two great advantages. The move would be received abroad as "a great gesture of Canadian unity and of Canada's acceptance of her growing place in world affairs." At home, with attendant greater advantages, there would be created a "great spirit of Canadianism."

"Young Canadians may not think this step necessary now but they can be convinced of the necessity of it. The age for service would probably be between school and university — 18 would be ideal. In European countries educational courses can be finished before service starts. . . .

Coroner Reports 'Definite Signs' Of Violence Exist

Say One Woman Refused To Make Planned Journey

TIMAGAMI (CP) — "Definite signs of violence" were revealed in the investigation of a triple fire death here Friday, coroner Dr. I. Joyal of North Bay said today.

The bodies of Allen Doughty, 57, his 39-year-old wife Muriel and his mother-in-law Mrs. George Barker were found in bedrooms of the Doughty home by volunteers fighting a blaze there early Friday morning.

The coroner said it was "very likely they did not die from asphyxiation" as was first presumed.

Dr Joyal said he is awaiting a post mortem report before making any further statements.

VILLAGERS PUZZLED

Questions are rife in this village, 60 miles north of North Bay, today.

Early Friday morning clouds of oily smoke were seen pouring from Doughty's frame home. The three were generally believed to have been away in Toronto since the previous Tuesday.

But their scantily dressed bodies were found inside the home. Mr and Mrs. Doughty were found on the floor of their bedroom, stretched out side by side between the twin beds. Mrs. Barker was found in an adjoining room beneath her bed.

Neighbors reported that the Doughtys had arranged to borrow a car from garage operator Jack Cowley for the Toronto trip, but at the last minute, Mrs. Barker is said to have refused to get in the car and the keys were handed back to Cowley.

Mrs. Doughty is reported to have been shopping in Timagami Monday afternoon and she is said to have made some telephone calls Tuesday evening. But no one can be found who saw her or her mother Tuesday, police said.

POLICE GUARD HOUSE

Police maintained a constant guard over the house. A provincial police inspector visited the house late Friday night and then drove away.

Men who fought the blaze in the home said an old-fashioned gravity feed oil stove in the basement may have caused the fire. It appeared to have exploded but whether it blew up Friday morning and caused the deaths of the three people on Tuesday and the flames did not get a grip until Friday morning, is not known.

Wants More Squadrons

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, said Friday night the number of RCAF CF-100 squadrons is "totally inadequate to provide an effective interceptor force" against an air attack on Canada.

"Auxiliary squadrons, which should be the backbone of home defence, are still equipped with obsolete Second World War aircraft," charged the Progressive Conservative military critic, member of the Commons for Esquimalt-Saanich.

He was speaking on the CBC trans-Canada network in the free-time political broadcast series, "The Nation's Business."

Hunt Helicopter And Men Missing In Fire Area

CHAPLEAU (CP) — The search for a helicopter and two men lost in the Chapleau fire area about 35 miles northwest of here continued today.

The aircraft, owned by Canadian Helicopter Services of Toronto and chartered by Abitibi Power and Paper Co., was to have returned to Chapleau Friday. Missing are pilot Arthur Cole of Vancouver, and passenger Barney Smith of Sault Ste. Marie, a forester employed by Abitibi.

The helicopter is believed down somewhere in the 100-square-mile fire area. Planes of the forestry department and the RCAF Friday searched in vain for trace of it.

The helicopter, which arrived here Wednesday, was investigating damage to Abitibi property from the fire which broke out two weeks ago and still is burning in some places.

Forestry pilot Louis Poulin said the helicopter may have crashed in a patch of undamaged timber inside the fire area or in heavy stands outside its perimeter.

Life Finally Flickers Out For Baby Girl

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Life finally flickered out late Friday night for little "Miracle Ann" Dupree, a premature baby girl pronounced dead after birth but found on an embalming slab to have been alive.

Earlier, doctors had given the baby a better than 50-50 chance, even though a nurse said "premature infants such as this are always considered in critical condition."

The baby weighed only 30¾ ounces.

Friday, the mother announced she would name the child "Miracle Ann."

"It was God's will that my baby is alive," said Mrs. Mark Dupree, 28, then, "I can only describe this as a miracle."

HEART BEATING

Miracle Ann arrived three months early Thursday night. Dr. Robert Kelley said there was no heartbeat or breath. An hour later he pronounced it dead.

The baby was taken to a funeral home.

Some two hours later, undertaker J. Robert Corry walked into the room where she lay, and saw the heart beating. He ordered an ambulance driver to speed the infant to hospital.

First of Summer Theatre Shows Opens Monday

Monday the curtain rises on Belleville's second season of summer theatre when the Quinte Players present "Three's a Family."

A farcical comedy, the play is the forerunner of two other pieces typical of summer stock, "Angel Street," which will be seen next month, a thriller, and the comedy, "The Fourposter," which closes the season in September.

Monday night's presentation is a fast-paced piece of theatre which strives toward the laugh-a-line criterion.

It involves a household, which, save for the fact that the wife earns the money, the husband does the housekeeping, while his sister-in-law does nothing save board for free, might be dubbed typically American.

In the leading comedy role of Irma, the talkative sister-in-law, will be Betty Barrie, while Nicky Thomas takes the part of the practical wife, Frances Whitaker. Vera Levine and Syl Quinn play the young married couple, whose rowings lead to complications.

Claire Kelso and Fran Lane add to the mirth as the young couple awaiting their first blessed event. As the easy-going father will be Harry Mulhall.

Vacant Summer Home West Of City Burns

Fire of undetermined origin completely gutted a large vacant frame summer home on the shore of the Bay of Quinte a mile west of the city shortly after midnight Friday. Only the walls of the eight-roomed two-storey house were left standing.

Belleville fire department received the alarm shortly after midnight after the blaze had been noticed by a passerby but already the flames were rolling out through the roof and there was no chance to save the structure. Three cottages nearby were endangered but did not catch fire as firemen kept them drenched with water pumped from the bay.

The home was owned by Thomas Hobson of Toronto.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the origin of the blaze was a mystery as no one had been living in the home although it was furnished. The fire chief said it appeared the blaze had started in the downstairs in the southwest corner of the house.

It was reported that someone had been seen around the house Friday afternoon but whether they had been in the house was not known.

Harry Byers Takes Position In Pembroke

Funeral director and embalmer with the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home since 1946, Harry Byers, is severing his connections with that firm to take a similar position with the firm of Malcolm and Davitt of Pembroke. He leaves for his new position on Saturday.

Harry was born in Toronto and received his public and high school education in that city and Oakville after which he enlisted in the Air Force in 1942, proceeding overseas in 1943 and remaining there until the close of hostilities in 1945. After discharge he joined the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton but came to Belleville soon after where he has remained.

Since coming to the city he has taken a keen interest in civic and social affairs being particularly interested in the work of the Veterans. He is an executive member of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association. Fraternally, he is a member of Temple Lodge, A.F. & A.M. and Moira Chapter, R.A.M. No. 7.

He married Barbara Crawford, a graduate of Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing and the couple have two fine boys, Crawford and Craig. While in this city, Harry and his wife have made many friends both inside and outside the firm and all will wish them a happy sojourn in their new environment.

Friday evening the staff of the Funeral Home presented Mr. Byers with a travelling bag and clock. Taken by surprise Harry thanked his associates for the beautiful gift.

New Lake Level Plan Is Studied By U.S. Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States state department says a new plan for regulating the levels of Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river has been referred to the army engineers and the power commission for study and advice.

The department said Friday in response to an inquiry by the Clayton, N.Y., Chamber of Commerce that the International Joint Commission had proposed the plan. It calls for regulation that will keep the lake level at 247 feet above sea level a lesser part of the time and at about 244 feet more of the time.

A spokesman said that any lower level would have an uneconomical effect on the St. Lawrence river power project now under construction. If the level reaches 247½ feet he added, damage begins to lakeshore property.

Foxboro-Madoc Highway Political Football Is Claim

Dr. D. C. McVicker, of Deseronto, Liberal candidate in Hastings East, Friday night, charged that the Foxboro-Madoc highway was a "political football", scored his Progressive Conservative opponent for inertia, and lauded the Liberal party's proposed program for municipal relief, hospitals, old age pensions and health.

Dr. McVicker, first of a series of speakers to follow provincial leader Farquhar Oliver at a Liberal rally in the Belleville Collegiate auditorium Friday night, promised action for the voters of Hastings East if elected.

Dr. D. C. McVicker, in asking to be elected in Hastings East, said that "Roscoe Robson has been in the House for 16 years and has done nothing for Hastings East.

"He has spoken twice in the House; once to censure George Doucett, who said something nasty about him, and the other time to ask a page boy for a glass of water.

"If I say 'good morning, boys,' in the House I will have done more in one breath than Roscoe Robson has done in the House in 16 years," said Dr. McVicker.

SPEAKS ON PROGRAM

Dr. McVicker spoke about the Liberal party's health program 'in which I had a hand in developing,' and said it was a sound plan for those who really needed help.

He also spoke of the old age pension and in supporting the party's platform to provide a provincial supplement, asked his audience "if you could live on $40 a month."

He challenged Robson last June to do something about the Foxboro-Madoc road. A month later Robson, Sandercock and George Doucett inspected it. Then it was announced the Ontario government was going to take it over as a development road if the county bought the right of way, fenced it, and maintained it. Some road. To date not one stone has been turned on this road."

"Mr. Robson offered county council to trade the Marmora road for the Madoc highway. But the Marmora highway was in Elmer Sandercock's riding and he wasn't having any of it. This road has been a political football and nothing will be done about it while Roscoe is in office."

Dr. McVicker then described sanitary conditions in Deseronto "where the town's only sewer empties raw sewage into the bay 200 yards from the water intake pipe," and said that when he complained to the health minister "he didn't even have the courtesy to reply."

He cited the lack of trained teachers in the province and scored the government's failure to take precautions to avoid a drastic teacher shortage in the years just ahead.

Speaking on highways he said, "the Bergmann Construction Co. was fined $65,000 and given one week to pay. They haven't paid it yet. They said they would take it from future contracts. The next time you get a traffic ticket tell Dana Porter (Attorney General) to wait for his fine and take it from your first old age pension cheque.

OTHER CANDIDATES HEARD

"Don't be misled by the antics of our very active Conservative candidate down in East Hastings," said Dr. McVicker. "You only see Robson at election time and if you don't believe it just ask his supporters. Blank pages sum up what the Conservatives have done in East Hastings."

Percy Mellott, of Cherry Valley, said "it is time for a change".

Irving "Mac" McGaughey, Liberal candidate in Hastings West, said "we live in the neglected riding of West Hastings."

"Why have the Conservatives neglected this riding? Because the Tories spend money where they expect a fight. They have bluffed us here for years by stringing a few loads of mud and stone and saying there is your next road.'

"But they love the bottlenecks on No. 2. It took me 40 minutes tonight to go from the RCAF Station to the bridge in Trenton. This road is as busy as any in Ontario. The poor bridge at Trenton shakes even before the transports get to it."

"By electing me you will have a contentious person at Queen's Park, who will do something for West Hastings."

Mr. McGaughey also outlined details of the Liberal hospital, pension, and municipal assistance programs, and called for the support of all voters in Hastings West anxious to see the riding develop.

Jack Price, candidate in Northumberland, spoke briefly saying "I am saving my big guns for tomorrow's meeting in Cobourg."

He described himself as "a 20-to-1 underdog three months ago and an even money bet tonight," to defeat Health Minister W. A. Goodfellow.

SENATOR FRASER HEARD

Senator W. A. Fraser, of Trenton, in a fiery speech, scored Premier Frost's statements concerning the highways investigation.

"If there were nothing wrong with Mr. Frost's overruns why did he fire Doucett? Why are there people in jail? Why did they fine contractors?"

"Don't be mislead by dear Leslie's sweet smile. You are not voting for Leslie's smile."

In speaking of Mr. Frost's association with the Dempsey case, Senator Fraser said, "Frost tattled on the Minister of National Revenue, with intent be deliberately broke a confidence. He said Dempsey had political leprosy because he took $7,000, but he took $25,000,000."

"Dempsey and Leslie had their arms around each other yesterday. You can't follow a Tory in the ramifications of his virtue."

Senator Fraser spoke at some length concerning the proposed bridge between Prince Edward and Hastings at Glenora and referred to advertising supporting "some fellow by the name of Wilson, Thompson, Robson, whatever his name is."

"I have had a lot to do with the supposed bridge between Lennox and Prince Edward," said Senator Fraser. "For five years the Tories in Hastings and Lennox and Prince Edward have been blaming delays on the federal government. When the province says it will put a bridge across the Bay of Quinte it is a provincial responsibility."

MAKES PREDICTION

"When the government of Ontario submits plans for a bridge across navigable water, the federal government will tell them what kind of bridge they can build and how it will be maintained.

"If the Frost government is not defeated they will not build the bridge. I will wager $1,000 right now that that bridge will not be built. If they intend to build a bridge why did they put two ferries there?

"A bridge there is economically not justified and they will not build it."

Senator Fraser called on all Liberals to vote "to divorce the government from the hands of the greatest patronage system in the history of Ontario."

"Give us a chance to replace cabinet ministers like George Dunbar with virile young men who will administer the affairs of the province with vigor."

"As long as you elect Tories in these ridings there will be clogs of traffic at Bridge and Pinnacle streets, there will be no four-lane highway and no bridge at Trenton."

"Do yourselves and the people of Ontario a favor and vote Liberal," said the Senator.

MEMBER SOLICITS SUPPORT

Frank S. Follwell, M.P. for Hastings South, asked all those who voted for him in the past two Federal elections to "support the Liberal candidates in East and West Hastings."

Mr. Follwell, speaking "to those who live in the country, as I do now," blamed high Hydro rates on "Hydro's straight dictatorship."

Mr. Follwell pointed out that as a member of Belleville's public utilities commission when frequency standardization was first proposed, he was opposed to having people in the 60-cycle area pay for it.

"It was a travesty on the people of Ontario that this changeover was ever perpetrated. Let those who wanted to change over pay for it themselves. Why should we in Belleville buy a new clock for a millionaire in Forest Hill village just because his lights flicker?"

"I saw George Challies (a Hydro commissioner) about it and he told me it (the changeover) was nothing but protective legislation. I don't want that kind of protection.

"I hope that you will vote Liberal and send men to Queen's Park who will look after our interests," he concluded.

Rotary Club Enjoys Talk On England, Spain

CAMPBELLFORD — Dr. David Burgess was the guest speaker at the regular luncheon meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club. He gave an interesting talk on his recent trip to England and Spain.

He told the group that he had not been to England since he came to Canada in 1948, and found things there had undergone quite a change. In 1948 there was scarcity and fear, and to-day, while there are no shortages, there is still a sense of frustration. Many people would still like to leave the Old Country and emigration quotas are always filled. The incentive to work is returning to a degree, however, and the results of the bombing have largely disappeared except in the heart of London, where the erection of buildings must be slower as they must correspond with their surroundings.

STATE MEDICINE

Regarding state medicine, he was of the opinion that it made for a less progressive physician. One doctor is allowed 3,500 people under his care. He gets 18 shillings a year for each person. Thus he has no incentive, and moreover is anxious to push off the more troublesome patients to other doctors and retain those who are never ill, or easily satisfied.

Rotarian Dave Burgess told of a visit to a London Rotary Club where 19 countries were represented at the weekly luncheons.

He described his holiday in Spain. The people of this country are happy-go-lucky, living from day to day with plenty of time for siestas and not too much for work.

Labor is paid about 70 cents a day and things are expensive. A beautiful home in the Mediterranean would cost about $4,500 in Canadian money. He described the bull fights at Barcelona, observing that the sport has its attractiveness. At his hotel the cost of everything including good meals, wine and comfortable quarters was about $3. per day.

The speaker was introduced by Dave Ness and thanked by president Bill McComb.

IN MEMORIAM

BRADSHAW. — In loving memory of our dear mother, daughter and sister, Marguerite Julia Bradshaw (Akey), who passed away suddenly on June 4th, 1953

No more to see her smiling face
Or hear her say hello;
It came a shock we didn't expect,
A hard and bitter blow
Happy and smiling, always content,
Loved and respected wherever she went;
Always thoughtful, willing and kind,
These are the memories she left behind

(Copyright 8WS-55)

For centuries Physicians have known, that what we now consider a ripe old age, is many years short of how long we really should live. Modern research is discovering the cures for some of the diseases that cause "Old Age". Many years have been added to your life expectancy.

A good start is to consult your Physician at the first sign of any illness, before complications take precious days from your life. There are many new Geriatric medicines your Physician can prescribe, that will help you to conquer "Old Age".

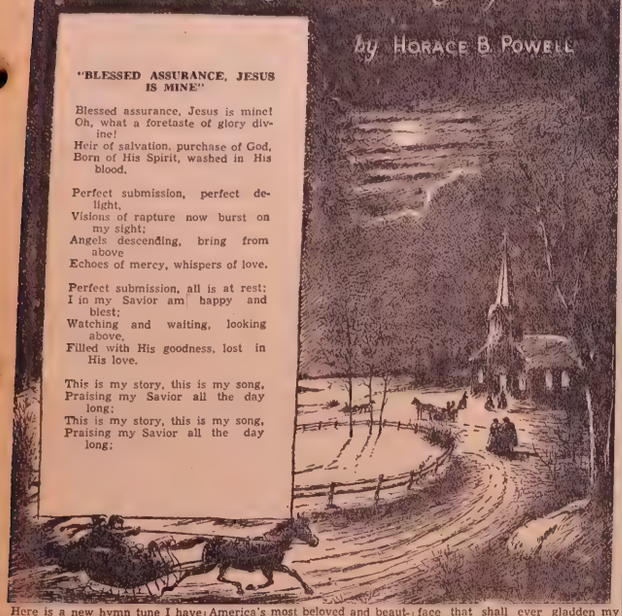
Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL



"BLESSED ASSURANCE, JESUS IS MINE"

Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine!
Oh, what a foretaste of glory divine!
Heir of salvation, purchase of God,
Born of His Spirit, washed in His blood.

Perfect submission, perfect delight,
Visions of rapture now burst on my sight;
Angels descending, bring from above
Echoes of mercy, whispers of love.

Perfect submission, all is at rest;
I in my Savior am happy and blest;
Watching and waiting, looking above,
Filled with His goodness, lost in His love.

This is my story, this is my song,
Praising my Savior all the day long;
This is my story, this is my song,
Praising my Savior all the day long;

Here is a new hymn tune I have written; what does it say to you?"

Mrs. Joseph Knapp, the composer of gospel music, asked the question one day as she and Fanny Crosby were chatting in the latter's home. While the blind hymn writer listened, Mrs. Knapp played her new tune several times on the piano. Suddenly, Fanny Crosby's face was alight with inspiration.

"Why, that music says 'Blessed Assurance, Jesus is mine!'" she answered. And that is how one of America's most beloved and beautiful hymns came to be written.

Fanny Crosby, who never could remember having seen the light of day, has always been admired for the remarkable way in which she turned her handicap into a blessing. She never permitted anyone to express sympathy for her blindness. One day a clergyman, talking with her, mentioned her affliction. The blind poetess surprised him by declaring that she was sometimes glad to be sightless.

"You see," she explained, "when I get to Heaven, the first face that shall ever gladden my sight will be that of my Saviour".

In her own account of the origin of "Blessed Assurance", Fanny Crosby said, commenting on Mrs. Knapp's hymn tune: "It seemed to me one of the sweetest tunes I had heard in a long time. She asked me to write a hymn for it and I felt, while bringing the words and tones together, that the air and the hymn were intended for each other. In the hundreds of times that I have heard it sung, this feeling has been more and more confirmed".

Examinations And Parents

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Exam time is very hard on parents, especially mother!" Mrs. Black said vehemently.

"House cleaning in the Spring is bad enough—but when several children in the family are preparing for their final tests too, life is hardly worth living."

Most fathers and mothers would agree that exam time can be pretty grim. If even one member of the family is worrying, studying late and getting too little sleep, the fatigue and irritation which are almost unavoidable can certainly ruffle the home atmosphere. What are some practical suggestions which can make these days easier for the student and everyone else under the same roof?

Both parents and boys and girls should accept the fact that there are poor, medium and brilliant members of every class. Naturally, their standing in their examinations will depend in part on their mental equipment with which they are endowed. But it will also be determined by the amount of work they have done faithfully throughout the term.

MANY DIVERSIONS

There are all kinds of diversions such as T.V., the radio, movies, comic books etc, which lure many youngsters away from their studies. But parents help their children if homework and extra preparation for exams are accepted as a regular part of the evening routine, free from these other attractions.

They can also assist by providing a well-lighted table or desk and a comfortable chair in a quiet corner away from distractions. They can see that the pupil has the necessary tools for work-pencils, rubber, ink, ruler, etc. Thus they, set the stage" for exam time.

A child's studies are his own responsibility, and parents only harm him when they get under his load. But mother or dad can "hear spelling" or memory work, or ask the questions given at the end of a chapter. They can encourage a child to plan his time and work first and hardest at the subjects he finds most difficult.

The teacher will usually be only too willing to suggest definite ways in which parents can encourage the scholar who is having a hard time at school in certain subjects. At the same time, mothers and fathers do well not to be too anxious about marks. Worry is very contagious. One reason a child often enters an examination room in a state of nervous "jitters" is he feels unable to measure up to the home expectations of high standing.

Mother should send her child off to an exam in as confident a state as possible. Perhaps he has had some special little treat for breakfast. But if his appetite has vanished, he hasn't been forced to eat up his food.

It doesn't hurt to remind a youngster to read over the examination paper quickly. Make a rough plan as to how much time should be spent on each question. Do them in any order you wish. But it might be best to tackle the easiest ones first.

Don't worry about how the other pupils are getting along, or anything else. Concentrate on the exam and keep slugging away. Last but not least, before answering a question, read it over slowly and carefully to find out exactly what is being asked!

If a pupil has kept up with his work, reviewed each subject, and doesn't get flustered when he writes his examination paper, he can hope to make a reasonably good showing. Indeed, he may even get a pleasant surprise when his results come out! And so may his parents!

while others, in only a few weeks, become exceptionally confiding. But what a joy to meet old friends!

A Lift For Living

On Making Wishes Work

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We have a common saying that "the wish is father to the thought". We mean thereby that the wish to have a thing begets the belief that it is so. We might also coin a proverb that the wish is big brother to the will. Our wills follow our wishes around as little boys trail their big brothers.

If wishes are thus so powerful that they father our thoughts and lead our wills, does not the strategy of the good life suggest giving more attention to our wishes?

Consider a schoolroom. There before the teacher is a class of pupils, each of whom is a hundle of desires. Some of those wishes are wholesome, some mischievous, perhaps even bad. If the teacher sets out primarily with the purpose of restraining the pupils' wayward desires, she is likely to find herself in a nest of porcupines whose pricks of irritation will make her life miserable.

The good teacher is one who dissolves the problems of discipline by arousing new interest. (This might be the answer to our current delinquency problem.) To be sure, this is easier said than done. Nevertheless, the effective principle in teaching, as in life generally, is to overcome evil with good.

OPEN YOUR EYES

Evil is the absence of good as darkness is the absence of light. And just as darkness cannot be driven out of a room with a fan or a sword, but only by turning on the light, so evil is banished by turning on goodness. Christ came as the Light of the World that men's eyes might be opened. To open the mind with good wishes is better than to grit the teeth against bad ones.

In order to set our wishes to work, the Master gave this formula: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you."

We are to bring our wishes before God in prayer. And the first step is to ask. Our Heavenly Father, of course, knows what we have need of before we ask Him. But He cannot supply some of our needs until we ask Him, any more than our earthly parents can give certain things until their children show their requests that they are ready to receive them.

Not only does our asking of God show that we are ready to receive, but it serves to clarify our wishes. We may go around with a vague feeling that we are under par, that we want something we do not have, and yet we have not made clear to ourselves what we need. Putting our wishes into words helps to bring them into clearer focus.

WE THINK PRAYERS

James Montgomery very truly says: "Prayers are not merely what we say at night before we go to bed, but also what we think in the morning on our way to work. A great woman, Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, died a few days ago. In Washington she directed the National Council for Negro Women, a league of 800,000 which she founded in 1935. It is said she would address her office staff each morning in prayer: "With this new day, O God, let some new strength be mine."

Prayer can be just as real in silence as in word. Nevertheless, there is value in saying our prayers. Paul brought this out when he said: "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness; but with the mouth confession is made unto salvation."

THE DUMB GROW DEAF

While it is true that "what you are speaks so loudly that I cannot hear what you say," we must not forget that what we say is also important. Thomas Carlyle loved his wife, but he failed to tell her so—until it was too late. After her death Carlyle discovered how he had stifled his brilliant wife's joyous spirit by his glum silence. At her grave his tears gushed through his gaunt fingers as he cried, "If I had only known." Love that is dumb may tend to grow deaf.

Yet words are not enough to make wishes work. Remember the Master's prescription — "Ask," "Seek," "Knock." In bringing our wishes to God, it sometimes happens that the divine door does not open until we do something with our hands. While you are waiting for God to answer your prayer, try to be an answer to someone else's prayer. Take hold of some duty or task near at hand that you can do. Then see what God will do for you.

Bulletins From Birdland

IDENTIFYING INDIVIDUALS

Identifying individuals on their return in the spring is not just fun, but sometimes quite thrilling. Although it is generally practically impossible to be absolutely certain we are seeing the same bird again, there are several tests which can be made, and if two or three fit the case you should be very happy.

Here is an old friend, the bluebird, whom you grew to know last summer because he had a curious lump on one leg; and this must be your own grackle, with a few white feathers on one wing. Naturally, these unusual markings make recognition sure.

But when house wrens use the same cavity for six years and after that it is left vacant, we have a pretty good idea that at least one of them must have been a repeat. The same may be said for chipping sparrows that built on the identical balsam branch each summer; the nighthawks that regularly brought up twins on the roof of the school; herring gulls that placed their eggs on the big rock on the island every spring, and mergansers with a fondness for a rocky corner in some tiny bay.

Long-eared owls that nested on the ground year after year must have been the same pair, as this is a most unusual site for this species.

RECOGNITION SIMPLE

It is a simple matter to recognize a song sparrow or a Baltimore oriole by its song, and by giving great attention to the singing of white - throats, purple finches, meadowlarks, and many other kinds of birds we can get to know one individual from another.

With a little patience, we can learn the idiosyncrasies of an individual. A certain kingbird makes a habit of sitting on your clothesline, while another prefers the power wire. Your pet vesper sparrow is likely to adopt your gate post as a singing perch.

You must have noticed that Mrs. Robin always takes the same route coming to and leaving her nest, and this rule applies to other species. Watch a red-eyed vireo going up to its home, and see if he does not always land in the same place on the same branch, enter at the same point every time, and then sit facing the same way.

One redstart may always put more birch bark into its nest than do its close relatives; a certain chestnut-sided warbler may make a particularly neat little cup. Some birds remain forever scary,

BRAINWASHINGS

"Brainwashing" is rapidly becoming a popular pastime

Whoever coined the word, (or should we say phrase), to describe the process by means of which Communist interrogators manage to wring false confessions from their helpless prisoners appeared to have done the English-speaking world a service. It was a neat way of describing a complicated process.

Of late, though, people have been getting "brainwashed" in the most unexpected ways and in the most unusual places.

Latest example comes to our attention via the New York Times, which reports from Tuscaloosa, Alabama, a protest by an indignant parent against the "brainwashing" of his daughter. She was forced to listen to some lectures on racial integration. Since these lectures were delivered by a professor at the University of Alabama, and since the daughter was a student there, it may occur to some readers that there is a slight difference between the meaning of the word "brainwashed," as used by this indignant parent, and the process to which the word was originally applied.

We note with regret that the trustees of the university have defended the professor on the grounds of misquotation, saying that the utterances to which objection was made were not his own opinions, but merely quotations from a textbook. Nobody seems to have questioned the use of the word "brainwashed" to describe the mere expression of controversial opinions.

"Brainwashed" was a good word. It seems, though, as if it will have to be abandoned by those people who like to be understood when they speak or write. More and more frequently today, it means nothing more than persuading a person to accept as correct the viewpoint to which the user of the word objects, or even, as in the case of the parent who was so solicitous about the opinions of his college-age daughter, exposing a person to arguments with which the user of the word "brainwashed" disagrees.

As used today, every good Conservative is sure that electors are being "brainwashed" when they listen to F. R. Oliver or Donald C. MacDonald; every good Liberal views with alarm the "brainwashing" activities of this same Mr. MacDonald and Premier Leslie Frost; and the CCF-ers can voice horror at the "brainwashing" efforts of Mr. Frost and Mr. Oliver.

If you agree with this editorial, you have obviously been most effectively "brainwashed" by it from the viewpoint of that Alabama parent.

THERE'S AN AWFUL LOT OF COFFEE IN BRAZIL

Hold onto your nickels! They may be of some use yet.

The prospect of having an honest, hard-working nickel, instead of parking meter fodder, is enhanced by an announcement from Brazil that there is a coffee surplus.

Slaves of the "coffee break," while skeptical that five-cent coffee will ever be a reality again, can take heart. The coffee surplus is so big this year that major coffee countries are having a hard time agreeing on international prices controls.

In colloquial English the above double talk means that there is so much coffee in so many places that owners can't agree to keep the price up and take a chance on getting caught holding the coffee bag.

The surplus in Brazil alone is reported to be 3,100,000 bags. Even the custom of burning the surplus so that the remainder can command a high price will have to be reconsidered in view of the size of the blaze necessary to destroy 3,100,000 bags of coffee. Colombia, Costa Rica and other coffee exporting countries report similar surpluses.

To be consistent the coffee countries will have to lower the price of green coffee, which will in turn lower the price of roasted coffee, which will, in turn, make possible a reduction in the price of coffee over the counter. But don't count on it.

Last year, frost, high winds, and shifty footwork on the international market were given as reasons for a coffee shortage and the ensuing price hike to something like $1.40 per pound. Restaurants offering coffee at five for seven cents a cup gave up the struggle and boosted the price. With coffee prices back to a dollar a pound or less, and with the prospect of lower prices, it will be interesting to see how soon five-cent coffee will be served again.

SHOW REAL ENTERPRISE

Congratulations are in order for the thirty families which comprise Woodland Acres Co-Operative Ltd.

This is not the first co-operative housing venture—but it is the first of its kind in the Belleville district.

Belleville, thanks to its expanding economy, has been more fortunate than many Ontario centres in attracting speculative home builders, contractors who undertake to construct several homes and then sell them.

Some families, however, have faced financial barriers to their desire to solve their housing needs by purchasing from contractors.

A similar problem has faced would-be home owners in all centres. In many places there has been a cry that "the government should do something." Down in the Ottawa district, though, an Ottawa priest reasoned that the co-operative principle, already successfully applied in many other fields, could help to solve the housing problems. The plan was tried—and worked. Other centres followed this example. Now Belleville residents are trying it.

Perhaps the Veterans Land Act administration should share part of the plaudits. The VLA has conducted home-building classes for veterans in many centres. It may well be that these classes have helped to arouse interest in the possibility of co-operative enterprise reducing the costs of new homes.

In any event, no matter who deserves the credit, the thirty families which organized Woodland Acres Co-Operative Ltd. have provided an encouraging example of self-help. More power to their elbows.

Miss Jean Gunn, O.B.E., superintendent of Nurses at the Toronto General Hospital and formerly of this city, who has received many honors in the past, has merited another high honor, having been chosen as the Canadian recipient of the Florence Nightingale International Medal in recognition of her distinguished work in Red Cross Nursing. The presentation will be made on Wednesday afternoon, at Government House by Colonel the Honorable Herbert A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. Miss Gunn was recently made a life member of the Alumnae of Toronto General Hospital and she also received one of the King's Jubilee Medals.

Mr. Edgar Foster of the legal department of the Grand Trunk Railway, Montreal, and formerly of this city, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. C. K. Stephens and Mr. J. Haig of Campbellford, were in town today.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell left for Ottawa today.

Mrs. Ed. Ashley and young son of Cleveland, Ohio, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. McCrudden, Catherine Street.

Mr. Ernest C. Lawrence of this city, who graduated recently from the College of Pharmacy, Toronto, has accepted a position with a drug firm in Toronto.

The new drill hall it seems is to be located on the southeast corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets. The properties upon which the government has accepted an option to purchase are owned by Dr. Youker, on the corner, and the skating rink immediately south of the Youker property, facing on Pinnacle Street, and owned by Mr. Richard Arnott. The location is excellent. It is a relief to have the matter settled, as some time ago it was thought the drill hall would be built upon the hospital lot at the northeast corner of Church Street and Victoria Avenue.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A lady in a neighboring city wrote The Packsack as follows:

"Knowing your interest in birds, I wonder could you help me identify a bird that has recently come into my garden and the adjacent trees. I have been unable to see it so far. But it has a queer song. It yodels."

Now, never having heard a bird yodel, I immediately wrote one of my fellow members of the Canadian Audubon Society who lives in that city and asked him to call on the lady and try to identify the bird that yodels.

He has just written back.

"I called on your friend, who is a lady of some consequence with a fine home. The bird that yodels is a Baltimore oriole. The sweet warble and whistle of the bird appears to this lady as a most disagreeable noise. When I told her the oriole's song was much prized by tens of thousands of people lucky enough to have them in their gardens, she insisted that all it did was yodel, yodel, yodel, and that it woke her up early in the morning, yodelling right in her window. Surely, she said to me, we have a right to expect, in cities, that wild birds won't come in from the country where they belong, adding to the disturbance we already have to put up with. She wanted to know if there were not some way she could get rid of the oriole from her premises. Perhaps there was some city department that would look after it for her, as it was a nuisance and got on her nerves."

I have in turn written a letter in reply to the lady's first communication.

"The only suggestion I can offer is that you persuade your neighbors to cut down the trees in your city block, perhaps for two or three blocks around, and remove bushes and other offensive harboring places from your several gardens. If you are unable to achieve this, there are apartments of some sort to be had down in the warehouse and factory districts of your city where you would be spared the sounds of wild birds."

CAREER

School and college and degree;
Army for a year or two,
Then at last at home to be
At the work he finds to do.

Somewhere, on his upward way,
He may meet a maiden fair.
Then will come his wedding day
And the home which they must share.

He will wonder, now and then
What it is that he will need
If among the ranks of men
He is destined to succeed.

These he cannot win without:
Courage for the strictest test;
Faith in every time of doubt;
Steadfastness for what is best.

Is no Average Human Being

(Christian Science Monitor)

Take a world in which municipal authorities are perfuming subways.

Take a world in which an Indian boy of 10 roars so like a tiger in the night that villagers, "afraid to go home in the dark" and with no YMCA to sit in, stage a tiger hunt.

Take a world in which prairie dogs are not—we repeat, not—getting any fatter as a result of eating uranium, and indeed are not—the experts stress not—even being watched by atomic experts for signs of increasing avoirdupois;

Take a world where neighbors of a shoe shop man will have to buy alarm clocks now that he is no longer going to give out his window-rattling seven ayem holler of "Time to get up," which practice no one knows (not even he) how he started but which has come to be a fixture in a Tennessee town.

Take a world in which, just as the Chamber of Commerce was hearing that 30-minute flights across the Atlantic were a sure thing, Mr. Jackson in Ohio took delivery of a shiny new buggy, the second really new one he had since 1892.

When you look at it this way it seems too simple to say that "people have more fun than anybody," or even that some people "are more equal than others."

What would-be dictators and the most liberal liberals are up against is that the law of averages is obviously unenforceable over a wide area of human behavior.

No matter how common people may be, a complete understanding of them depends on finding the uncommon denominator.

Hoover's Plan Saves Billions

(New York Times)

Herbert Hoover announced that he would complete in the next few days recommendations for governmental reorganization that could save Federal taxpayers $6,000,000,000.

He also said his proposals could produce an aggregate return of $7,000,000,000 to the treasury, through liquidation of government agencies and functions that compete with private business.

The 80-year-old former President spoke at a dinner session of the thirty-ninth annual meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Helpful Statistics

(Port Arthur News Chronicle)

Statistics, like buzz saws, should be approached with caution. But recently across the desk came a batch of them.

No doubt these particular statistics will receive no welcome from the great and growing company of do-it-yourself addicts or from firms which sell the tools and materials they require.

Nevertheless, gathered by Mr. Arthur Burroughs of the American Mutual Insurance Company they show that an average 115,000 people are injured every year doing home carpentry; more than 98,000 are hurt fixing furniture; 95,000 cut themselves replacing broken window panes, 33,000 are hurt while pruning trees and 76,000 become casualties while painting their houses.

Carpentry tools are involved in 72,000 accident cases and power tools in 180,000. And it's not only bad luck to walk under ladders—300,000 people are hurt on climbing up them.

Well, this is the time of the year when spring's gentle brush paints the world anew and the ladies want the house freshened up to match. Out at the summer places there are windows to be repaired and roof gutters to be mended and good use can be made of these statistics.

Care, Feeding Of Husbands

(Sudbury Star)

The care and feeding of husbands, appearing as a news story in the columns of The Sudbury Star, is a bit of prose that seems to put husbands in the category of canaries, the family dog, or even tropical fish. Is a husband a hobby? Or a pet?

Readers will remember that it was a psychologist who recommended husbands be given one lost week-end each month. Not a week-end lost by drinking, but a week-end that has nothing to do with doing nothing.

Husbands, it seems, whose work is largely with the brain, build up pressure. They seek to discharge tension. But often the wife might say: "Now you're home, would you mind looking after the kids?"

Terrible, says the psychologist. And that's why husbands need the lost week-end.

More on this care and feeding of husbands—

Give them a good, varied diet; do not let your family living get into a stereotype; arrange times for doing nothing."

Maybe wives will deluge us with protests there are too many lost husbands and lost week-ends. Particularly the "widows" of fishermen and golfers.

Name Jedediah Big Handicap

(Windsor Star)

With veneration of the frontiersman in full swing, a professor has advanced the assertion that one Jedediah S. Smith was a better man than Davy Crockett. It could be true, but if that is so this miscarriage of fame stands as a terrible warning to parents. Never handicap a son with the name Jedediah.

Just the same, our own Essex health produced a frontiersman who was mightier than Davy and Jedediah put together. He was Simon Girty, and a more maligned man never lived. He may never become a hero across the border, where brainwashed generations have been taught that he was a "white renegade," and that Girty rhymed naturally with "dirty."

It can be conceded that Simon Girty was no primrose, no lily of the valley. But on the trail and wherever else frontiersmen proved their ability to look after themselves, he was perhaps the slickest of them all. What his memory needs today is a song, a buckskin shirt, and a modish cap with pendant coontail.

A LONELY DOG

We often met him on the street,
Near by his old-time home,
A friendly dog, so trim and neat,
That seldom far did roam.

But now he is a lonely dog,
His friend has passed away,
And strangers occupy the home
Where life was glad and gay.

Though now he has a new-found home,
A new friend staunch and true,
We see him coming back again
His former home to view.

But oh! how lonely he must feel
To find but strangers, where
In olden time he found a friend
His life and love to share.

But still he wanders back again
As the days come and go,
Perhaps the spirit lingers there
Of one he used to know.

Though he no longer hears her voice
His lonely heart to cheer,
Her spirit makes his heart rejoice
And brings her presence near.

Pens Too Good

(New York Herald Tribune)

Two months ago the Hartford post office put in 500 ball-point pens instead of the old scratchers. They were anchored with swipe-proof chains.

Patrons were so pleased with the new pens that they not only swiped them, but the chains, too. The old scratchers are back now.

JOY IN BELIEVING

"Man's chief end is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever."

The thing that has made this statement from the Catechism famous is not the emphasis it puts on glorifying God but the emphasis it puts on enjoying Him. To the Mohammedan, a statement of this sort would appear utterly blasphemous. Enjoy God? Allah is to be obeyed, not loved, and certainly not enjoyed. But to the Christian, God is to be loved and enjoyed.

Christianity is the happiness religion. Its chief aim is to make it appear that Christians are a dour, long-faced lot of people. Of course they are not; they are a happy, peaceful, smiling, contented lot of people.

Someone has said that the lowest Christian happiness is higher than the highest worldly happiness. And this is true. The angels who announced Christ's birth said that they brought good tidings of great joy Christian faith makes people happy.

So if you've heard the rumor that God is dead, don't believe it. He is the Living, the Loving, the All-Pervasive Diety in whom we live and move and have our being; and whom we are privileged and commanded to enjoy.

Don't Rush Into Tonsillectomy

Granted that indications for removal of lymphoid tissue (tonsils and adenoids) from the throat are subject to individual judgment, I submit, says a laryngologist (throat specialist) of high standing, in what he calls a defense of tonsillectomy, that in the opinion of the country's leading laryngologists the results of tonsillectomy, competently performed, lead to an extremely high percentage of good results. I add that the mortality (death rate) is one of the lowest of any surgical procedure; and that, because of a rare complication (cardiac arrest—heart stops beating) which is no more justified than would be that of herniorrophy (radical operation for hernia, rupture, breach) if followed by pulmonary embolism (blocking of pulmonary artery supplying the lung, or one of its branches, by a bit of clot or other foreign material).

The specialist's concern about "cardiac arrest" is probably due to irritation at my comment on this way of saying the heart has ceased to beat—one of the tragic things that may happen in the course of or shortly after any major operation, I do not believe and did not mean to imply that it is more likely to happen during or immediately after tonsillectomy. I do say it happens often enough during or following tonsillectomy to make tonsillectomy unjustifiable.

It seems to me that the every-ready operators who still practise and defend tonsillectomy fail to recognize a significant fact, namely, that children's tonsils become enlarged in the winter and spring and spontaneously shrink again in the summer and autumn.

From the six points the laryngologist makes in his defense of tonsillectomy, it would appear that this throat specialist, like most operators who attempt to "get every bit of tonsil tissue," has forgotten, if he ever learned, the pathology of the tonsils. He takes for granted, without any scientific evidence to warrant the assumption, that enlargement (hypertrophy) of the tonsils indicates infection. This, I contend, is stupid. The very fact that enlarged hypertrophic tonsils shrink to what the doctor calls normal size if or when the child is permitted to absorb the ultraviolet he should absorb through his skin, his naked or nearly naked skin, in the summer, is evidence that enlarged tonsils are not infected.

If the ever-ready operators are not prepared to reject the findings of the pathologist, particularly those of the pathologist who did autopsies on a thousand tonsils removed by good representative doctors in a midwest city—which I'll cite in detail, if the laryngologist or any other reputable doctor insinuates I'm not sufficiently informed to judge—it seems to me they must plead guilty of perpetrating an atrocity on children with enlarged tonsils.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT TIME OF YOURS

We are not concerned with the conservation of time as we should be. I can't forget an inscription that a teacher in High school penned in my autograph book. She wrote: "This day will never dawn again!" We take hours, days and months as though they were just happings. What they really are is the substance of ourselves—if we have been in them and been profitably used by them.

Wasted time is as though it never had been. None of us use more than a small percentage of our abilities. We allow much of our time to just float by! How habitual it is for people to be late to work and late to appointments, as though time had no value whatsoever. Edison so begrudged any loss of time that he trained himself to take quick naps throughout the day.

If the mind has been filled with important and interesting knowledge, we can never lose time, for we have it with us even in memory and in the good deeds that follow us. I have pleasant and happy thoughts as I drive to my office each day, and on trains, for I have stored what time has brought to me throughout the years.

People who accomplish much are usually men and women of few words Their thoughts are forever multiplying among themselves. They are forever banking time that has been made alive. I once visited an old friend while he was ill and he recited from memory long passages from Shakespeare. He had them stored in that brain of his, and made them come to life.

Keats, the poet, died when hardly more than a boy, and his life output of poetry is contained in but a handful of books—but they are sufficient to make him immortal! People with much to do wish that there could be many times the amount of time that they have. Cecil Rhodes exclaimed, just before he died: "So much to do, so little done." Yet he created an Empire in "darkest Africa"!

The more we see, read, and set aside in the library of our mind, the less will we complain in later days and the happier we will be with our wealth of ideas and thoughts. You see, no one can break in and steal our thoughts. They have to steal us. Even then they can't gain.

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These briefs are being written by the Moira Conservation Authority to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

Did You Know That:—Early agricultural methods, whether due to economic pressure on the farmer, or to ignorance of better techniques, or to both, resulted in wasteful exploitation of the soil. This has caused grave economic loss through the serious impairment, for agricultural purposes, of vast areas of once fertile land. This has happened, over wide areas, from coast to coast.

Some of the farming practices that adversely affect agricultural land are: (a) Plowing up and down the slope in rolling and hilly country, instead of around the hill—on the contour. This induces the rain to run down in rivulets, washing away the topsoil by erosive action. (b) Continuous planting of the same crop and neglect to use fertilizer. This often reduces soil fertility to the point that many farms had to be abandoned. (c) Burning of crop residues, instead of plowing these back into the land, is a tragic waste of valuable organic matter. (d) Cultivating steeply-sloping fields, which are particularly subject to erosion, instead of keeping these under trees or under grass. Grass, next to forest cover, is the best medium for storing and conserving water and retarding soil loss by erosion.

Interrupted Dinner

4/6/55

By Leonard L. Knott
Illustrated by David Ranson

It was a warm June night in 1812. Behind the barricades in Fort George at Niagara-on-the-Lake in Upper Canada, the officers of the British Garrison were entertaining at a dinner. Their guests were American officers from Fort Niagara, on the opposite shore of the Niagara River.

The officers of the two countries were brilliantly attired in their full-dress uniforms. They chatted informally on the green lawn before the main building, joked and laughed, then went in to dinner. Toasts were drunk and the food was brought in. It promised to be a very gay evening, an occasion that would do much to relieve the monotony of life in the two military outposts.

Unnoticed by either hosts or guests, a messenger entered and slipped past the diners to the head of the table. He handed a message to the British colonel. The officer took the paper, laid it aside for a moment till he could finish a conversation with the American officer next to him, then picked up the envelope, slit it open and read the message.

He paused for a moment then cleared his throat in embarrassment and stood up to address the gathering. Officers of both armies, surprised but expecting to hear some pleasant message of greeting, paused in their dining and talking and turned their eyes towards the colonel.

"Gentlemen", he said, "This is serious news. President Madison of the United States has declared war on Canada."

British and American officers were startled by the announcement. At first, they could hardly believe their ears. Then, with elaborate courtesy to each other, they finished their dinner. The American officers stood up to leave but before doing so shook hands with their British hosts. Having met as friends, they now separated to become enemies. The War of 1812 had begun.

In the months that followed bitter battles were fought in the Niagara Peninsula until finally the war ended without victory to either side. Canada had been invaded but had repulsed the invaders. York, the tiny capital of Upper Canada, had been burned and Washington, the capital of the United States, was burned by the British in retaliation.

After the War of 1812, Canadians and Americans learned to live as good neighbors and never went to war again. But the two historic forts remain, each one restored to its former state as a military outpost. And now each year, thousands fo Canadians visit Fort Niagara, watch its soldiers and ancient uniforms on parade and view its old and ancient cannon. And thousands of Americans visit Fort George and look into the dining hall where the officers' dinner party was interrupted by a declaration of war.

Car Sluggish? Check Carburetor

By EUGENE MILMOE

If the accelerator pump lever on your carburetor has two or three hole positions for controlling the length of the pump stroke, be sure it's linked in the right one for hot weather driving.

Use the shorter stroke, the hole nearer the throttle shaft, if there are just two positions. Where there are three lever holes, the middle one is used for average summer driving and the first hole or shortest stroke adjustment for very hot weather and high altitudes.

Check up on the heat control valve too, and see that it moves freely when you rotate the little lever or counterweight on the exhaust manifold. Sluggish operation, or sticking, especially in the closed position, can cause lots of trouble during the hot engine season.

From M.B.: When my son is driving, he will often coast going downhill. He claims this saves gas—is he right?

(A) Coasting downhill will help gas economy, but you lose the advantages of engine braking and maximum car control. From a safety viewpoint, it's a bad practice.

POWER WINDOWS

T.M. writes: The electrically operated windows on my car do not raise properly. Please advise what repairs I must have done to correct this.

(A) The windows on the car model and year indicated in your letter are actually operated by a combination electrical and hydraulic lift system. A low battery is often the reason for faulty operation, so check this first. Other troublemakers include: low fluid level, poor hydraulic pressure, defective wiring, switches, motor or linkage; and misaligned glass or channels.

G.J. asks: My front wheels were aligned and the steering checked, yet I'm getting a shimmy and more wear on one side of the front tires. Would the angle of the front king pins affect the alignment in any way and cause this trouble?

(A) Yes. For correct front wheel alignment, proper king pin inclination is certainly necessary. If neglected or incorrectly set, uneven tire wear and shimmy can result.

CAR STALLING

From V.A.: My car has been missing and stalling quite a bit and I've noticed gas stains around the bottom of the carburetor. Many times, the only way I can re-start is to remove the air cleaner and hold the choke valve open. I've checked the fuel pump, cleaned and reset points, installed new plugs and cleaned out the carburetor, but there is no improvement.

(A) How about the automatic choke? If the valve does not open fully, an over-rich mixture will flood the intake manifold with fuel and cause the troubles you have described.

J.B. writes: I own a 1953 car equipped with hydraulic valve tappets which, on cocasion, are very noisy. The trouble seems to be in just one lifter. Incidentally, can you tell me what a shop manuel for my car would cost?

(A) If this one tappet is still noisy when the engine is warmed up, dirt or inadequate oil pressure is probably to blame. If not, check for a faulty plunger. You can obtain a shop manual from the manufacturer for approximately $2 to $3.

Indians Asked To Exercise Their Franchise

BRANTFORD (CP) — Six Nations Indians on the reservation five miles south of here will have a provincial vote next Thursday, for the first time, and today an appeal was made for them to exercise their new right.

A few days ago the hereditary council of chiefs called on the Indians to boycott the white man's election.

A reply came today from William Powless, retired secretary of the Six Nations council.

ADVISES VOTE

Saying that he wishes to counteract "the childish advice given to my people of the Six Nations by the now defunct hereditary chief," Mr. Powless said:

"My earnest advice to every Indian elector is to pay no attention to these disgruntled agitators, but to vote, for the candidate of your choice.

"These bitter and shortsighted men are not practising what they preach. Most of them are taking advantage of the benefits sponsored by the government they appear so deeply to despise."

Weddings

NEEPER—JACKSON

Tall standards of white chrysanthemums, white lilacs and lily-of-the-valley formed a lovely setting in Park Avenue church, Aldershot, Ontario, for a pretty spring wedding, on Saturday, May 21st, at 2.00 p.m., when Lethe Claire Jackson, of Aldershot, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clemence William Jackson, formerly of Belleville, became the bride of Commodore Leonard Neeper, of Williamsport, Penn., son of Mr. Oscar R. Neeper. The Rev. William Sifft, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mrs. W. B. Greenwood of Belleville, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Billy Mirbank of Toronto, who sang "Together With Jesus", and "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and pink tulle over satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and shoulder yoke of nylon tulle. The floor-length skirt fell in graceful folds. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of seeded pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli centred by blush pink roses.

Miss Donna Greenwood of Belleville; Miss Ruth Davis, of Montreal, and Miss Carol Jackson of Belleville, niece of the bride, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Jackson, were her attendants, gowned in shrimp taffeta under tulle. They wore tiny coronets of matching shade, and white gloves and carried crescent shaped bouquets of white gardenias.

Mr. Truman Lang of Donner's Grove, Illinois, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Mr. Myron Sawyer of Wheaton, Illinois, and Mr. Wilbur Weld of Williamsport, Penn.

The reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's mother, wearing blue crepe and lace, with white gardenia corsage, received the guests.

For the wedding trip to the Maritimes, the bride chose a navy blue tweed coat-dress, with white accessories, and pink rose corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Neeper will make their home in Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

Guests were present from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Port Colborne, St. Catharines, and Williamsport, Penn.

Mr. Herbert Brown, chairman, presided as toastmaster and extended greetings and a warm welcome to those present.

Those at the head table included: The Very Reverend L. B. Garvin, who brought greetings from St. Michael's parish; the Rev. J. J. Buckley from St. Joseph's; the Rev. Cletus Fitzpatrick from Holy Rosary; the Rev. P. Murphy; the Rev. J. McGee; the Rev. Sister Mary Lenore, principal; Mrs. B. Burley, Diocesan president; Mrs. Brown, past president; Dr. F. Ross and Mrs. Ross, Mr. Harry O'Neil and Mrs. O'Neil, members of the executive, and Sisters of the teaching staff of the Academy.

TOASTS PROPOSED

The toast to the pastors was proposed by David Kelly and the response given by Mrs. E. B. Lally; to the teachers, by Miss Ann Lew, to which the Reverend Sister Mary Lenore responded.

Mr. John Trudeau expressed the appreciation of the graduates to the parents.

Musical entertainment, which included vocal selections by Mr. Robert Burke, and the high school quintet, composed of John Berrigan, David Bruyea, Larry McDonnell, Martin Halloran and Tim Cook, with Michael Rashotte as accompanist, was much enjoyed.

Later in the evening Miss Colleen Gallagher was chosen, by elimination, as "Queen of the May," and was crowned by Miss Marney Black.

Music for the dance which came to a happy ending at midnight, was supplied by Jack McPartlin's Orchestra of Trenton.

5th Belleville Brownies Hold Church Banquet

On Wednesday last, the Brownies of the 5th Belleville Pack entertained their mothers at their annual mother and daughter banquet held in St. Andrew's church Sunday school hall. The tables, arranged in a square, were beautifully decorated with baskets of yellow tulips, lilac and yellow iris, and the head table was adorned with bows in the Brownie colors of brown and gold. Each child's place was marked by a china statuette of a small girl, made by the Pack's Brown Owl, Mrs. E. A. Adams, to be taken home as a souvenir of this special occasion.

Head table guests included Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, Belleville's beloved "Grey Owl" who was the guest speaker, Brown Owl Adams; Tawny Owl Leadley; Captain Horwood, 5th Belleville Guide Company, "Packie" Elda Adams and five Guides, Marcia Lidster, Carol Kellar, Gail Tremaine, Nancy VanTassel and Helen Addy, who "flew up" to Guides from this pack last year.

After a delicious dinner served by Mrs. Williamson's group of St. Andrew's church, the Brownies formed their fairy ring and sang several of their songs for their guests. Then each Brownie in turn, rose and introduced herself and her mother to the rest of the guests.

Brown Owl Adams presented service stars and badges to the following Brownies: 3 year Service Stars to Patti Bradford; Betty Else; Donna Morris and Wendy Baldwin. Proficiency Badges: Patti Bradford, Minstrel, Writer, Swimmer, and Needleworker, Thrift, and House Orderly. Betty Else, Minstrel, Collector, Writer, Swimmer, Needleworker, Thrift, and House Orderly. Donna Morris, Collector, Writer, House Orderly, Needleworker, Thrift, Artist and Toymaker. Wendy Baldwin, Collector, Writer, Thrift, Needleworker, Artist. Heather Durno, Skater, Collector, Swimmer. Karen Bateman, Collector. Gayle McDougall, Writer. Rose Mary Tanner, Minstrel.

BADGES GIVEN

The following girls received their Golden Hand Badge and 2 year Service Star — Heather Durno, Linda Lockhart, Joan Banky, Karen Bateman, Gayle McDougall, Ginny Anderson, Penny Simmons, Clara Lynn Keller, Marilyn Huntley, Eleanor Boyd, Rose Mary Tanner. Tawny Owl Leadley presented Golden Bar Badges and 1 year Service Stars to the following: Barbara Mattis, Sharon Locke, Mary Beth Follwell, Gaye Scott, Mary Dawkins, Elizabeth Randall, Frances Potter, Dorothy Jacob, Judith Ann Jones, Kathy Cook, Diane Alexander and Margaret Van Alstine.

In her speech, which she said was "for the Brownies, but the grownups may listen in if you wish," Mrs. Branscombe told the story of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador. Originally the natives of Labrador and Newfoundland were extremely poor, and worked mostly as fishermen. There were no schools, doctors or hospitals. Young Dr. Grenfell was sent out from England to investigate conditions and was appalled at the situation he found. On his return to England he told friends of their plight and the following summer was able to return with two more doctors and establish two hospitals. In the summer he visited every cove by boat and in the winter travelled by sleigh and dog team. He dedicated his life to the country and before his death, had established many hospital and orphanages for homeless Eskimo children.

At the conclusion of her talk, Wendy Baldwin and Donna Morris presented Mrs. Branscombe with a large hamper of toys to be included in her annual bale for the Grenfell Mission. Points had been given to the Brownies throughout the year for attendance and personal appearance on inspection and the Sprite Six won the prize for the largest number of points. Winners: Patti Bradford, Sixer Marilyn Huntley, Mary Beth Follwell, Judith Ann Jones and Elizabeth Randall.

The Guides who had flown up were presented with their Brownie certificates and Brownie badges suitably mounted and framed.

Donna Morris proposed a toast to the mothers to which Mrs. Else replied, thanking Brown Owl Adams especially for the successful year and also Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Keller and Mrs. Alexander for helping plan the banquet.

As a fitting conclusion, the Brownies formed their fairy ring and closed the evening with "Sun is Sinking in the West" and Brownie "Taps".

Going Places

Havana Cabbies Witty Guides

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

(This is the second of two articles on Havana.)

In all big cities cab drivers fancy themselves philosophers. In Havana they are, in addition, self-appointed wits, sight-seeing guides and characters.

At the drop of a flag they will volunteer to take you to see anything from an indecent performance to the American embassy, with enroute jokes and commentaries on everything in sight. The one-time New York restaurant manager provided for us by the Cuban Tourist Commission on our long week-end in the Cuban capital came up with such epigrams as these:

"There is a statue of Cuba's second president. . . He was the only one who was honest . . . we know that because he died broke . . .

"Notice all the modern residences have bars on the windows . . . this is purely a tradition . . .we used to have a lot of burglars but now they have all gone into politics . . .

"This hotel has no running water in the rooms . . . but all the beds have springs . . .

"To drive a car in Havana you need three things: gas, guts, and a horn . . . in the United States when you come to an intersection you slow up; we blow the horn and step on the gas . . ."

TRAFFIC TERROR

His comments on politics were tongue-in-cheek (Cubans won't discuss politics seriously though they take it seriously) but he wasn't kidding about the traffic problems. You can always tell the tourists in cabs by their perpetual cringes.

Like most cities with Latin blood flowing through their arterial highways, Havana's traffic is anarchic. Though the city is one of the best policed in the world, it doesn't waste the taxpayers' money on traffic cops or lights. There are perhaps two dozen of the latter in the entire city, all new and most of them ignored.

Every intersection is a new crisis. Each driver jams down on the gas and expects the other to get out of the way. Neither does, but neither gets hit. Don't ask us how; we were under the dash.

Havana is the inevitable Latin-American city of contrasts. Soaring historical monuments and block after block of rising apartment houses and endless government buildings shadow the gloomy downtown tenements and shack-studded farms on the outskirts. Proud boulevards like the Malecon skirt alley-streets where pushcarts are more common than cars.

CUBAN MUSIC

But Havana also has the inevitable gaiety and love of living without which it wouldn't be a Latin city either. The Afro-Cuban music, (which we first suspected might be more popular here than it is there) permeates the air and the people love it dearly. Yankee music is strictly for between sets at the tourist night clubs.

The Cuban's versions of the mambo and rhumba are far more gentle, lilting, and danceable than the commercialized grunting horrors fed to us in this country. It is understandable that Cubans can take it day and night from the radio, television, street corner bands, and night club orchestras that play literally without a break from nine to three or four in the morning.

Habaneros live late. The stores close for siesta from noon to two, lunch is rarely completed by three, and dinner never starts before nine or ten. Parties and dances rarely get into full swing before midnight and never break up before thee.

Here are a few tips about visiting Havana:

SHOPPING BUYS

American money is accepted as legal tender, and the dollar is equal to one peso. Best shopping buys are rum (you can bring in five bottles) at $1.25 a fifth for famous brands; cigars, not cheap but good; linen goods, particularly blouses and shirts; excellent inexpensive local perfumes; and unusual native jewelry.

Everyone speaks English in the service trades, but you have to be careful of those who pretend to understand you when they really don't.

It costs $2.50 a head (to the tourist commission) to get in to Cuba but that's good for a couple of years.

You probably won't like the cigar tobacco in Cuban cigarets, and American brands cost up to 50 cents a pack, so bring your own with you.

Wearing shorts is illegal in downtown Havana.

If you visit Morro Castle—as everyone does—don't bother buying a package tour. You get the same thing going over on your own and save two dollars.

Japanese Girls Enjoying Life Of Stewardess

TORONTO (CP)—Two Japanese stewardesses with the newly-formed Japan Air Lines also act as goodwill ambassadors for their native land.

Kikuko Sasaki and Fumiko Shiba, in Toronto for the Canadian International Trade Fair, said the life of an airstewardess on the Hong Kong-to-San Francisco flight is exciting and interesting.

Of more than 4,000 young women who applied for the different positions on the air line, only 70 were appointed. Miss Shiba said that the stewardesses have to be able to serve all meals in American, Japanese or Chinese styles. At cocktail time they wear Oriental-styled kimonos.

Most of the time on the plane the girls wear blue uniforms, similar to the North American type.

SERVING FOOD

At classes in Tokyo the stewardesses learn to serve food North American style. They also visit hospitals to learn first aid by working with the nurses.

The regular tour of duty covers 13,000 miles and takes 10 days. The tour comprises a flight from San Francisco to Honolulu and a two-day stopover there, a hop to Tokyo where there is another two-day break, and then a flight to Hong Kong. An average of 135 hours are flown every three months.

The versatile girls are also trained to describe scenes of Japan which are shown in three-dimensional films to passengers.

They enjoy their work and hope that the Hong Kong-San Francisco flight will be extended to Canada.

Is Your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will from time to time. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar values your Estate has probably changed in value.

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Births, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now —and if not, make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

It costs no more to have group judgment and financial responsibility.

BULKY KNIT COAT-DRESS

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Wool knits are either as fine as fine can be or else they are impressively bulky, as is this coat dress that can be worn as a dress in cold weather or as a coat over a dress when that is desirable. Matching grosgrain ribbon edges around the collarless neckline, down the front and for the belt. The cuffs are puff-rolled. The rib of the wool knit goes in opposite directions at hem. The frock is entirely lined in thin, soft silk.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE SHE ISN'T READY FOR MARRIAGE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 22 and was engaged to a girl 18. We expected to be married before long, but a few weeks ago she suddenly broke up with me.

The reason she gave for breaking up with me is this: I have a good job and am a steady worker, but my working hours are from three in the afternoon to eleven at night so, except on my days off, I can't take her out in the evening. This makes her mad.

Don't you think if she really loved me she would put up with my hours? Or do you think I should give up my job and get a new one? — Bill F.

Dear Bill:

What I really think is that your girl friend is probably not ready to get married for awhile and, perhaps, not ready even to be engaged. Naturally, at 18, she is very much interested in going out and having good times and, if your working hours make it impossible for you to take her, it isn't really surprising, perhaps, that she has come to feel she'd rather not be tied down.

You may have the right idea in thinking it might be best to give up a job with such inconvenient working hours, and if you can find another job just as good as the one you have, and believe this will solve the problem between you and your girl friend, then you might seriously consider such a step. On the other hand, you may be right again in feeling that if the girl cared enough about you she would be willing to adjust herself to your job requirements.

Why don't you come right out and ask her to tell you honestly if it is your working hours that have caused her to break up with you, or if she just doesn't feel she wants to continue the engagement anyhow? Once you have things really clear between you, you will know better just what to do.

DON'T TAKE THE INITIATIVE, MARY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 17, and there is a boy I have known for about six years that I like very much.

I would like to know if he cares for me, and I would like to know how I can show him that I care for him. How do I go about this? — Mary E.

Dear Mary:

I never feel that it's likely to come off very successfully if a girl makes a deliberate try for a boy. Boys aren't so dumb, you know, that they don't see through this sort of maneuver, and when they do, it's much more likely that they will lose interest rather than gain it.

So if I were you, I wouldn't try to figure out a way to "go about" finding out if this boy likes you, or showing him that you want attention from him.

Instead, it would be much smarter, and much more effective, if you went about your regular activities, being friendly and companionable with all your friends so that everyone who knows you will enjoy being with you and having you around.

In other words, be the sort of girl who's popular with all, and then you will just naturally attract the attention of those you'd like to know better.

GOOD MANNERS

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a problem about the wording of a formal newspaper announcement of my engagement. I would like to have this announcement worded in the simplest possible way, mentioning both my mother and father. They are divorced, live in different cities, and their attitude to each other is not too "friendly." So, I think it would be best to have the announcement made in a rather impersonal way. My mother uses her maiden surname: for an example, Mrs. Clark Smith. With these facts what form of announcement would you suggest? — Reader

I suggest the following announcement form, which I believe will meet all the circumstances you mention: "Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Mrs. Clark Smith, of Detroit, Mich., and of Mr. Alexander Smith, of San Francisco, Calif., to Mr. Arthur Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Davidson, of this city." (To this you would probably want to add other information, such as the schools you and your fiance have attended, and so forth.)

INVITATION TO MAN AND WIFE, BOTH DOCTORS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our family doctor's wife is a doctor. They have not been married very long, and she has continued to use her maiden name professionally. His name, let's say, is "Dr. John Lane" and her professional name is "Dr. Mary Lee." However, at our church I am sure I have heard her addressed as "Mrs. Lane." Now our problem is: How should we address to both of them the envelope of the invitation to the wedding of our daughter? — E.C.L.

When man and wife are both doctors, the envelope of a wedding invitation or other social correspondence is addressed jointly to the couple: Dr. and Mrs. John Lane.

It is when the correspondence is professional that you may write "Dr. John Lane" on the first line, and on the line under this, "Dr. Mary Lee.")

REPLY TO "THANK YOU FOR CALLING"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've noticed that two or three of my friends always say, "Thank you for calling" when I've called them on the telephone. I think this is very charming, but I'm never quite sure what is the proper thing for me to say in reply. Would you suggest, please? — Amie A.

I agree with you that this phrase of "Thank you" is very graceful. You might reply, "Thank you for the chat we've had together . . It was a joy," or "Thank you for telling me your news. Good-by, Sally."

"CHAIRMAN" OR "CHAIRLADY"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is the woman who is head of a committee in an organization correctly referred to as 'chairman" or "chairlady"? — B.

Today it is generally "chairman."

Wife Preservers

While most women wear wash-with-out-ironing apparel next to the skin, they should be sure to have a spool of mending thread handy of the same fiber. Sometimes these garments split at the seams, and ordinary thread is not strong enough for holding together the long-wearing material.

Wellington on the Lake

YESTERDAY AND TODAY

It seems like only yesterday that winter winds blew chill,
And the frost laid icy fingers on lowland and on hill—
But lo! today the world is green and gay with sights untold,
And from a sky of azure the sun is dropping gold.

It seems like only yesterday the lake was clothed in mail,
The little brooks were voiceless
and loud the winter gale;
But now the lake is limpid, now
sings the silver stream,
While showers of liquid music
pour from the hills of dream.

It seems like only yesterday the frost held earth in thrall—
King Winter swayed his sceptre o'er cottage and o'er hall—
But now the maple's green again, and down the leafy lane
In glory gleams of sunshine re-sounds the robin's strain.

It seems that only yesterday the hand of sorrow lay
With heavy weight upon the heart, where now but joy holds sway;
So in eternal springland beyond
life's sunset glow
The storm and strife of yesterday will pass like winter's snow.
—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON—"What so rare as a day in June? Then if ever come perfect days."

On this morning of June 1st, this locality is very beautiful with the sun dropping gold upon the verdant earth, with tulips in flower, and poppies bursting into bloom, and the birds busy on vibrant wing. Residents are busy in lawns and gardens, a neighbor across the way is planting a weeping willow this morning, and another neighbor is anticipating the enjoyment of feasting on strawberries which she is protecting from the robins. And farmers are passing with trucks loaded with tomato plants for June planting. A busy and beautiful world!

Mrs. Merritt McFaul, Bowerman's, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McFaul.

Mrs. Leona Whyte was in Wellington on Monday on her way to Trenton after spending a few days in her summer home at Bath.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bowers with Mrs. Alberta Smith enjoyed a motor drive through eastern Prince Edward on Sunday.

Mr. Lorne Brickman of Victoria, was in town on Monday and visited his summer home here.

Mr. W. Ainsworth is building an addition to the Funeral Home. This fine home is a great convenience to this lakeside village.

Miss Mary Lumb and Gladys returned home on Sunday after a week's holiday with friends in London, Ontario.

Mrs. Lottie Fox, Belleville, with her guests, Mrs. Neva Lont, Toronto, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton on Sunday and with them motored to Picton and called on the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Shier and later on Mrs. H. B. Anderson and Miss Marjorie Blakely, Wellington.

MRS. WM. MONAGHAN

Mrs. Addie Monaghan, a highly esteemed resident of Wellington, passed away at the Thompson Rest Home, Bloomfield Road, on Saturday, May 28. Wife of the late William Monaghan, she is survived by three daughters, Miss Jennie Monaghan of Windsor; Mrs. Wishart, (Bertha) of Toronto, and Mrs. Kline (Grace) of Michigan. The funeral service was conducted on May 31 in the Ainsworth Funeral Home with the Rev. A. Poulter in charge. Interment was made in Wellington cemetery. Miss Jennie Monaghan and Mr. and Mrs. Wishart were present at the obsequies. The floral offerings were beautiful.

MRS. R. A. McRAE

The residents of Melville and vicinity were saddened and shocked to hear of the passing of Mrs. R. A. McRae in Newboro, Ont. Rev. and Mrs. McRae and daughter, Joyce, were favorably known at Melville, Mr. McRae having been the pastor of Hallowell charge for some years. The funeral service was held in Newboro United church on Monday. Sincere sympathy is extended to Rev. Mr. McRae and Joyce.

Those attending the funeral from Melville included Mr. Clifford Carley, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Cruickshank, Miss Margaret Gordon and Mrs. Arnold Cruickshank.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carley, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Carley and Mr. Albert Carley motored to Newboro to call on the bereaved.

Women's Activities

UNITED CHURCH WMS

The Women's Missionary Society of Shannonville United church held its meeting at the home of Mrs. Lorne Lazier on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of 20 members and visitors. The president, Mrs. Charles Wood, presided and led in the invocation.

Mrs. Lazier, the group leader, extended a cordial welcome to all, and read the call to worship. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Sara Stickney, after which Mrs. Will Ross led in the intercessory prayer.

The Christians of Angola, India, are celebrating the 75th anniversary of the first missionary endeavor in their country. Mrs. Lazier gave a reading which showed the progress of missionary work in India through the 75 years. The work in hospital was fully explained. While great improvements have been made in every department, more workers are needed.

Mrs. Frank Doxtator, delegate to the Presbyterial held in Picton, recently, gave a full and interesting report of the sessions, for which she received a hearty vote of thanks.

Mrs. Damon Hinchey and her sister, Miss Marion Blatherwick, favored with a lovely duet, which was much appreciated. Mrs. L. Scott was the accompanist.

Mrs. Lazier thanked her group, and closed this portion of the meeting.

The president also thanked the group for their fine program, and then took charge of the business. Roll was called and minutes read as well as a leaflet regarding the School for Leadership at Whitby.

Mrs. Doxtator will have charge of the September meeting, due to the group leader not being able to take control. Mrs. Will Ross will have charge of the October meeting.

After the close of the meeting by Mrs. Wood, a sale of homecooking and other articles added $11.50 to the treasury.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Lazier and her assistants, and a social time enjoyed.

The hostess was thanked for her hospitality.

There will be no meetings in July or August.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

IS WOMAN A SPECTACLE?

Consulting Mr. Webster we find that a "spectacle" is a note-worthy sight. The term may well be applied to a beautiful, smartly-dressed woman. So let us visualize her.

She carries herself proudly, her body erect and graceful. Her make-up is subdued, applied with restrained fingers and with a keen eye for flattering effects. She strives for the harmonious ensemble, with a tasteful color relationship between frock, hat, gloves, shoes and handbag.

Knowing that her appearance is as attractive as she can make it, she has poise and a sense of ease.

If she is edging along in years, she assures herself that she is holding her own against old Father Time and she has no regrets for time and money spent in the cause of beauty.

Never does she miss that before-bedtime complexion treatment, the gentle anoiting with cream, the patting and slapping to stimulate the circulation. Excess cream on the hands is never wasted, but is massaged into the fingers and aroun the nails.

Permanents, trims, shampoos and wave sets may be expensive, but they are worth the money for, without a neat, up - to - the - minute hairdo a woman cannot appear at her best.

She keeps close tab on her weight and doesn't give fat cells a head start.

The more intelligent a woman is and the more observing she is of other women and changing fashions, the better chance she has of appearing lovely herself.

Although she uses cosmetics faithfully, she knows that beauty depends largely on good health, so she endeavors to eat wisely. And she always finds time for daily outdoor exercise for the sake of health, good looks and a cheerful outlook on life.

Seed Whole Farm in Wheat In One Day

SEXSMITH, Alta. (CP) — The problem of seeding Mrs. John Delaney's farm this year was solved by the friendly co-operation of neighbors.

When John Delaney died a few months ago, he left his widow and two sons to man the farm. The sons, aged 15 and 11, are both attending school.

For a while it looked as though 120 acres of excellent wheat land in the Morning View district east of here would be left dormant. But 16 men in the community thought differently.

They arrived at the farm with 15 tractors and in one day had the whole farm seeded with wheat.

The wives helped in the operation too. They kept members of the seeding bee provided with meals through the day.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Here is one of your new correspondents, although I have read your column for quite some time, I have never gotten around to writing.

Now, however, my husband and I have fallen in love with chili con carne (in the can style), I would like to make some of my own that would resemble the canned type. Thank you for your many helpful recipes. Signed Mrs. E. M.

ANSWER:

CHILI CON CARNE:

Notes: (1) Notice how inexpensive this is. (2) It will serve from 4 to 6. (3) This is improved if made the day before and reheated at serving time. One pound very coarsely ground beef (or hamburger), 1-2 cup thopped onion, 2 tablespoons shortening or good bacon drippings, 1 clove garlic finely chopped, 1 or 2 tablespoons chili powder, 1 to 3 teaspoons paprika, 1 20-ounce tin tomatoes, 1 to 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 3 cups cooked red kidney beans or a 28-ounce tin. Gently saute the meat with the onion in the fat until browned but not crusty. Add the garlic, chili powder, paprika, tomatoes and salt. Cover and gently cook—if you are in a great hurry 30 minutes will do—but 1 hour is better. This is at its best when served with toasted rye bread.

QUESTION:

Baked another Angel Food cake today. Result—dismal failure again. The cakes seem to rise up real high in the oven but then they drop right out of the pan when I invert them to cool and they keep on falling until they are about 1-3 of their original height. I've had this same thing happen with chiffon cakes as well. At one time I could bake either a chiffon or angel food with no difficulty, as a matter of fact, my chiffon cakes never failed. I always could depend on them when I needed a cake for a bake sale or special company. Any suggestions you may have concerning this would be greatly appreciated.

I am an avid follower of your column. As a matter of fact I have to see that section of the paper first. I have made both light and dark fruit cakes according to your recipes. They turned out beautifully. I still have some of each stored away and they are really lovely and moist. I also follow your recipe for tender pastry and baking powder biscuits supreme without fail.

I forgot to mention that I use an electric range and a 9-inch tube pan for my baking.

Please keep on with your wonderful column. I only wish you would put out a cook book as I never seem to find time to file all the recipes I clip from your column. Signed Mrs. W. H.

ANSWER:

Thank you mam but there is still no time for that long-promised cook-book. Someday. .

Methinks there must be some fat on your angel food tube pan. Scrub your tube pan, beater and mixing bowl in hot soapy water thoroughly just before you use it the next time. Grease is fatal to all sponge type cakes. Recipe for Angel Cake and Chiffon cake follow:

ANGEL CAKE

Beat 1 cupful of egg whites until frothy then add 2 tablespoons of water 1 teaspoon cream of tartar 1-8 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Continue beating until the whites are stiff but not dry. Sprinkle over the beaten white 1 1-4 cups sifted granulated sugar and fold in carefully with a spatula. Sift three times and measure after sifting 1 cup flour. Sprinkle this over the egg whites and fold in. Bake in an ungreased angel-cake pan in a very slow oven starting at 225 deg. to 250 deg. for one hour, gradually increasing the heat to 350 deg. Invert the pan on a cake rake and let remain until the cake comes from the pan.

PLAIN CHIFFON CAKE

One and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup cooking oil, 1-3 cup water, 3 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar, 3 egg whites. Mix and sift first four ingredients. Make a well and add oil, water, egg yolks, and vanilla. Beat with a spoon until smooth. Add cream of tartar to egg whites; beat until egg whites form very stiff peaks. Fold egg whites into first mixture until well blended. Gently fold, do not stir. Turn batter into ungreased 9-inch tube pan or 8 or 9-inch square pan. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about one hour or until cake springs back when lightly touched with finger. Turn pan upside down immediately; suspend so that the cake does not touch anything until cold. Loosen sides of cake with spatula to remove from pan.

Early Closing of N.Z. Bars Blamed For Drunkenness

By J.C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Visitors to New Zealand always make two complaints about the country's liquor practices: (1) There is too much drunkenness and (2) The liquor laws are too strict.

It sounds like a direct contradiction, yet many New Zealanders agree they are right.

The system in New Zealand is that bars stay open all day, most of the time almost empty. But they must all close at 6 p.m. and the last hour sees far more business than in the rest of the day.

Most shops, offices and factories close about 5 p.m. Then there is a mad rush to the bars to make the most of the remaining hour.

During this hour some parents drink in deadly earnest as if in a competition to get as much down as much as possible by six o'clock. Conditions in the bars must be seen to be believed.

The scene closely resembles a football match. Indeed many people maintain that New Zealand's ability at rugby football arises from the practice patrons get in fighting their way through the seething throng round the bar counters after five o'clock.

Rapid drinking on an empty stomach produces the inevitable result when patrons are ejected to the streets at six, there is far more drunkenness than would result than taking the same amount of liquor under leisurely conditions.

Many bars are open in the evening despite the law. All you need to know is which door to go at at the back and the right kind of knock—and you will be admitted to a bar doing a thriving trade.

In some parts of the country the police more or less openly countenance this. In others, a character known as a "looker out" is employed to keep watch and give the word of a raid in time for patrons to leave by another door.

In spite of admitted shortcomings of the system, it remains. A referendum was held on a national basis in 1949 on a proposal for 10 p.m. closing. It resulted in a heavy defeat for later hours.

Since then, however, the Australian state of New South Wales has adopted 10 p.m. closing at a referendum. Experience there has led to renewed demands for later closing in New Zealand.

General Quality Of Russian Journalists Low

By RICHARD R. KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP) —Soviet newspapers are so much alike it is difficult to tell one from the other and the general quality of Russian journalists is low. This is the tenor of recent articles appearing in influential Communist party periodicals.

The articles demand that the papers be made less boring and less stereotyped.

Two of the most condemnatory articles about the Soviet press appeared recently in Party Life and in Kommunist. These are, respectively, semi-monthly and monthly journals of the central committee of the Communist party. Another critical article was published in Literary Gazette, official newspaper of the Soviet Writers Union, which condemned newspapers for hiring hacks and swindlers.

BIG BUT BAD

The two party journals said the Soviet press is big—7,100 newspapers with daily circulation of 47,000,000; 1,500 magazines and other periodicals. But the articles agree the papers are boring, so much alike that it is often difficult to tell one from another and, furthermore, the general quality of Soviet journalists is so low it is no wonder the papers are bad.

Kommunist charged the Soviet press does not accurately reflect real life. It accused editors of being lazy and failing to print letters from readers—even Izvestia is taken to task for this. And some papers give "incorrect instructions" and "preach violations of agricultural techniques." Other papers and magazines were criticized for "non-Marxist portrayal of the problems of Soviet economics."

Party Life's article complained about "dry and stereotyped writing." It demanded that more Russian journalists specialize and not try to be 'know-it-alls." There should be "more selection of people who have a real calling for the profession."

"A journalist is above all a political and public figure who should have a highly developed feeling for the new thing and at the same time be a master of words who can express himself," the magazine said. Actually, it continued, there are too few of these in Soviet press ranks and too many dolts and loafers.

Corn Planting Near Completion

TORONTO (CP)—Corn planting is near completion in most Ontario counties, the Ontario department of agriculture said today in its weekly farm report.

The report said farmers expect the corn crop to be better than last year. Potato crops have gone in early in many western Ontario areas. Rain fell there last week lessening the slight drought condition.

Spring grains and fall wheat are making excellent growth in southern and central Ontario sections.

In general, crop and grazing land conditions have improved throughout the province, the report added.

Canada Prepares To Meet Threat Of A-Bomb Raids

TORONTO (CP)—Defence Minister Campney said Friday night Canada is actively preparing to meet a threat of atomic bombing from Russia.

Addressing a dinner of the Aviation Writers Association he said "we are aware that the Russians have an improved capability of delivery nuclear weapons against North America."

'With the United States, we are building an integrated system of warning and air defence in which each country plays its respective role," he said.

CF-100 FOR DEFENCE

To that end all RCAF defence squadrons will be equipped with CF-100 all-weather jet fighters by the end of the year.

Mr. Campney said the defence of North America, and the special measures which Canada and the U.S. have taken to meet the threat of invasion, are as important to North Atlantic treaty nations in Europe as they are to Canada and the U.S.

"The security of North America must be maintained if we are to preserve a base of operations and an industrial potential for the defence of Europe and if we are to sustain and protect the retaliatory power of the United States as a deterrent to war," he said.

Mr. Campney, a First World War pilot in Britain's Royal Flying Corps, said space stations and interplanetary travel "may not be so far distant as we now think," considering the miracles of aviation in the last 50 years.

TROPHY AWARDED

He presented Wing Cmdr. Jerauld G. Wright of the RCAF with the McKee Trans-Canada Trophy, emblematic of outstanding achievement during 1954 in the field of Canadian aviation.

Wing Cmdr. Wright developed an electronic automatic navigation system, known as the R-Theta computer, that indicates how many miles and what direction a plane is from base or target, and what direction to steer to arrive there.

Child Injured When Bicycle Hit by Car

TRENTON (Special) — Terry Rawlyck seven-year-old son of F/O D. P. W. and Mrs. Rawlyck was treated for facial cuts and scratches near the nose and mouth yesterday after he was thrown from his bicycle, hit by a car on Byron Street, near the corner of McCann Street. The driver of the car did not stop and local police wonder if he was aware his car struck the bicycle.

Young Rawlyck reports he was travelling south on Byron Street and at the corner of McCann St. an old black-coloured car came up from behind and passed. Then the car cut into McCann Street, the back end catching the front wheel of the bicycle throwing the rider head first into the gravel on the shoulder of the road.

TRANSPORTS COLLIDE

In a two-car transport accident west of the town on Highway No. 2 last night, L. Worrall was injured and taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. The truck driver was not hurt and the second car involved when the truck veered off, was empty and parked along the side of the highway.

NATIONAL

"The military training is a useful by-product. A year's service, good basic training and discipline; the mixing up of Canadians — all would be of tremendous benefit to this country."

Mr Bassett said he thinks Prime Minister St. Laurent is the ideal man to ask that national military service be accepted. The Toronto publisher said the prime minister is respected to a degree not enjoyed since Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"I am convinced that Mr. St. Laurent, without political controversy, could take this step with practically no opposition except from a few CCF members; none across Canada."

Mr. Bassett said he had spent a good part of his life as a newspaper man in Quebec province and "those who say Quebec is not prepared to take a full part in the growth and development of this country are wrong."

HANDLING

Mr. Oliver then went on to state that after 12 years in office the Conservative government "hired a group of consultants to tell the highways department to have an over-all, co-ordinating policy for highways. And they paid them a quarter of a million dollars."

"Frost's words are on record that the department never had an over-all policy. The biggest department in the government was allowed to just grow like Topsy. It is bad when a department of one government with the same minister for 12 years has to be told to have an over-all policy."

NO OVER-ALL POLICY CLAIM

"You in this part of the country know there has been no over-all policy for highways. They seem to have missed this part of the country. Under 'the best government Ontario ever had' one would expect to have better roads in the past 12 years."

"This is not the best government Ontario ever had, but the worst."

In speaking of the Hydro frequency change-over from 25 to 60 cycle power, Mr. Oliver said, "I have been asking Frost to give me some answers on the cost of conversion but you might as well try to nail jelly to the wall as try to pin the Prime Minister down to a specific answer on a specific question."

"He says he talked to Dr. Hearn (Dr. R. L. Hearn, Hydro chairman) and that Dr. Hearn said all was well and there was no need for alarm. If Frost is that easily satisfied, I am not. I am concerned with what has gone on and what must go on."

"We had a Prime Minister called Drew once, I think his first name was George, who told us in 1948 that conversion was essential. Before the Tory government drew the curtain I asked what it would cost. We thought we were entitled to an answer and for once the Prime Minister answered in an affable way."

"He said he had figures, not from his own men, but from experts called Stone and Webster, for $191,000,000."

"Two years later Stone and Webster were back in town. Some persuaded them to take a second look. To their utter amazement they found it would now cost 2½ times $191,000,000."

"Today the job is half done and I venture that before it is done it will cost half a billion dollars."

Mr. Oliver then said that one of the reasons for the high cost was the method used, a cost-plus contract guaranteeing a five per cent profit to the Canadian Comstock Company.

PAY THROUGH NOSE CLAIM

"We have been paying through the nose for years and are still paying and will still pay unless the government is thrown out, as I suspect it will be next Thursday."

Mr. Oliver then stated that one item of the conversion program was the conversion of refrigerators and that the government agreed to pay $67 per unit for the change.

"The manufacturer allows a dealer $10 to change a refrigerator over," said Mr. Oliver, who explained that an electrician told him the job could be done for $12.

Mr. Oliver then warned his audience not to let the Tories spread the falsehood that the previous Liberal government was opposed to hydro for the farmers.

"We couldn't give it even though we wanted to very much," said Mr. Oliver explaining that the war effort from 1939 to 1943 left no room for the expansion of hydro into rural areas.

"When the Hepburn government was in power the people of Ontario got reductions in hydro rates. This idea of lower rates may seem foreign to some of you. It may seem a long time ago. But it was real, nevertheless. Under this government all we get are increases because of the high costs wound around hydro."

"You can't expect lower rates, either," said Mr. Oliver. "Tory government and high taxes go hand-in-hand in this province and everywhere else there is Tory government. It is true in municipal taxes, hydro and everything else."

As an example of high administration costs for hydro, Mr. Oliver cited the employment of 114 men in hydro's publicity department.

SAID DEAR PUBLICITY

"One hundred and fourteen men were hired to publicize hydro and to sell its product to the people of Ontario at a cost of $1,000,000 a year. How stupid can we get? We couldn't buy anything else even if we wanted to."

"The job of hydro is not to have a large corps at high prices to sell us hydro energy. Its job is to get the cost down."

In citing Conservative party advertising of increased grants for roads and schools, Mr. Oliver said "the way they talk about it you would think the money came from their own pockets; that they were robbing themselves to help the people. Where do you suppose they got the money?"

"Even though the grants for schools, municipalities and roads are increased the Frost government is paying less in proportion to revenues than any government in the history of Ontario. Grants from the province are falling farther and farther behind each year in relation to the costs of schools, roads and municipalities."

"The Liberal government has set out clearly 25 ways to help the people; 25 things the Tories forgot to do, didn't do, had the money to do but didn't have the will to do."

"I give you my pledge to give the people of Ontario the things we have promised without increasing taxes. We know we can do it."

"The relationship between the province and the municipalities is worsening. The municipalities need a new deal. It is the obligation of the government to rise to their responsibilities of meeting the financial burdens of the municipalities."

Mr. Oliver then called for a supplement to the old age pension.

"When the federal government pays all the costs of old age pensions there is a way for the province to supplement it," he said. He pointed out that five other provinces have such supplements.

STANDS ON DIGNITY

"Our old people cry out for help and 'the best government Ontario ever had' says it is "administratively difficult."

"The people cry for bread and the government offers stones. This is an autocratic, selfish administration. It is the same situation with respect to the unemployed."

"The province stands on its dignity. The people can't eat dignity but the Frost government thought they would let them try. They left the problem to the municipality or to the federal government. This government in Ontario is never happier than when it can lay some of its responsibilities at the door of the federal government, especially a Liberal government."

"This government is 12 years old. It is fat and lazy and indolent with respect to the needs of the people. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain by supporting your Liberal candidates."

Mr. Oliver expressed confidence in the calibre of Liberal candidates, "75 percent of whom have municipal experience as mayors, reeves and wardens," to form a cabinet, and said there was "not the slightest doubt" he could form a better cabinet than the last one "in which the boys, who have been hanging on for 12 years are hoping to stay a few more and be better off when they go."

"Mr. Frost is a nice man," said Mr. Oliver. "Somehow I am beginning to dislike nice men. The time has come for a tougher man."

Mr. Oliver then accused Mr. Frost of using members of his own government as political pawns to create, in the minds of the electorate, the idea of an incorruptible, morally staunch government.

He stated that in 1951, Mr. Frost accused the candidate in Kenora of "an unethical thing."

"The leader said 'go' and he went. He served a nice purpose politically. He hoped that by throwing out the accused man he had gained the support of right-thinking people."

DOES SAME THING

"Lo and behold, this year, he had done the same thing," said Mr. Oliver in referring to Mr. Frost's repudiation of James Dempsey, who is seeking re-election in Renfrew South after admitting that he did not report $6,800 in campaign funds given him by a Barry's Bay lumberman.

"Mr. Frost was under no obligation to reveal what he had been told (by Dr. J. J. McCann, Minister of National Revenue) except that by so doing it served his own political purposes."

"Mr. Frost hoped this high, politically moral flame will help him with the electorate. I came from South Renfrew today and Dempsey is advertising as the Progressive Conservative candidate with Mr. Frost's picture on the same page."

Mr. Oliver then said that Mr. Frost had "one foot on each side of the fence."

"On one side he says, 'Jim, you're out.' On the other side he says, 'I don't like you but I may need you'. Mr. Frost is very like a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Mr. Oliver concluded his remarks by calling for support of the Liberal candidates on the platform and for a return to a Liberal government in Ontario which "wants to be the servant of the people, not their masters."

Mr. Oliver was introduced by Alderman Mrs. Effie McCabe and was thanked by Kenneth G. M. Ross, chairman of the meeting.

Public Hearing To Discuss Alcoa Contract

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Governor Averell Harriman moved Friday to bring out into the open a simmering controversy over leasing of St. Lawrence hydro-electric power to the Aluminum Company of America.

In the wake of a clash between U.S. Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem., Lib. N.Y.) and Robert Moses, chairman of the State Power Authority, Harriman called a public hearing here June 14 for open discussion of the authority's contract with Alcoa.

The governor by law his until July 27—60 days after the authority approved the contract—to sign or reject it.

Lehman, in a letter to Moses last month, protested that the 48-year duration of the contract was too long, and that the amount of power to be sold was too great. The contract provides for sale of about one-fourth of the power to be generated by the St. Lawrence project.

OPPOSES CLAUSE

The senator was reported opposed also to a clause in the pact that would cut by half the company's obligations if it found that, in the event of labor trouble, it could not use all the power for which it contracted.

Moses defended the contract in a tart letter of reply to Lehman. The chairman implied strongly in the letter that Harriman sided with him on the issue.

Harriman, in his announcement, gave no indication of his attitude toward the contract. He declined to comment on the exchange of correspondence between Moses and Lehman, one of Harriman's ardent supporters in last fall's campaign for election as governor.

Well Equipped With A-Weapons

CUSTER,S.D. (AP)—Air Secretary Harold Talbott said Monday the United States has more planes "capable of taking off with atomic weapons" than all the rest of the world.

In an address prepared for delivery at a convention of the Stock Growers Association, Talbott seemed to be replying to some recent criticism that Russia may have outstripped American air power.

"Regardless of what the communists may do," Talbott said, "the United States Air Force doesn't scare worth a damn."

Talbott added:

"No other air force has available to it a greater amount of effective combat materials, particularly including atomic weapons of all types and varieties, than has the United States Air Force. Other nations are striving to match the United States Air Force in air power and equipment, but they have a very long way to go . . . .

"Today the United States Air Force can deliver against any target or area of the earth with assumed accuracy the greatest destructive force in existence. That is true today—it will be true next year—I see no time when it will not be true."

WEST FAVORS GENEVA

PARIS (AP)—Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay told the French cabinet Friday that the western powers currently are leaning toward Geneva and July 18 as the place and date for the proposed top-level Big Four conference, informed officials said. The cabinet heard a report from Pinay on preparations for the conference.

Billy Graham Doing Lot of Good Says Journal

NEW YORK (AP)—The Roman Catholic weekly America says Southern Baptist evangelist Billy Graham is "doing a lot of good" and 'we wish there were more like him."

"In company with a great many other religious people, we are sure, we rather like Billy Graham," says the publication, a leading Catholic journal put out by the Society of Jesus.

"We have the impression that he is one of that vanishing race of Protestant ministers with whom a Catholic scholar could actually sit down and talk theology. He is evidently intelligent, sincere and genuinely zealous. Undoubtedly he is doing a lot of good among devout Protestants here and abroad."

The weekly noted that Graham has been drawing huge crowds in his European crusade, and added that there was not, as some critics suggested, because they wanted "a show," but because "millions of Protestants are hungry for God."

"They recognize a voice which speaks with the unmistakable accent of one who believes in the great doctrines of the Christian faith—the Holy Trinity, the Incarnation and the Resurrection."

Inquest Fails To Throw Light On Knife Attack

CHICAGO (AP)—Details of the final hours of Rev. John Chiramal, a Roman Catholic priest, were cited Friday at an inquest, but they failed to throw any light on the knife attack which killed him.

Father Chiramal, 42, of Travancore-Kuchin, India, died in Mother Cabrini Hospital Thursday a few hours after he appeared at the west side shelter of the Little Sisters of the Poor with stab wounds in his left chest and upper arm.

His primary mission in the United States was fund raising for boys' town projects in India. He had been living in Philadelphia, and had been studying for a master's degree in sociology at Fordham University, New York City.

BIG LOSER JAILED

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Robert Wesley Brewer, 28, who gambled away his employer's $10,000 truckload of frozen shrimp, has been sentenced to 15 months in prison. Brewer claimed that the poker game in which he lost the shrimp to five Houston gamblers was rigged. Federal agents recovered $4,900 in cash from the gamblers, who had sold the shrimp.

Claude Jodoin Will Head New Union Congress

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A youthful French-Canadian labor leader will become the first head of the largest union body in Canada's history.

Burly Claude Jodoin of Montreal, a 250-pounder just turned 42, has been re-elected president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, a post which carries with it the certainty of the presidency of the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress to be set up next year.

The new congress will be created out of a merger of the TLC, which has 600,000 members, and the 400,000 workers in the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Congress chiefs have an agreement that the head of the older and larger TLC at the time the merger goes through — expected next spring—will have the top job in the big congress.

SEEK $1 MINIMUM

The TLC convention Friday set its sights on a pay minimum of $1 per hour for every Canadian worker.

It also reaffirmed its stand favoring a 30-hour week and called for equal pay for women doing the same work as men.

The congress previously had an 85-cent-an-hour minimum objective. It now is asking for federal legislation at the $1 level.

Three Executed

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—A 32-year-old former prostitute, narcotics user and vagrant, and two men were executed Friday in the prison gas chamber hens for the robbery murder of a Burbank, Calif., widow.

Barbara Graham died first after vain legal manoeuvres delayed the execution 1½ hours.

Mobsters Jack Santo, 54, and Emmet Perkins, 47, convicted of five other murders including the gruesome 1952 massacre of a grocer and three small children in northern California, died later side by side.

Barbara Ann's Partner Claims He Was Abducted

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Firstbrook, 23, Canadian skating star and a partner of Barbara Ann Scott, told police he was abducted, beaten and robbed of his car and $155 early today by three youths he stopped to help on a downtown street.

Firstbrook said the three got into his car and threatened him with a knife and a screwdriver. He said they forced him to visit the railroad station and four downtown hotels to cash money orders they found in the glove compartment of the car.

He said they stole his wallet after striking him in the face, and finally drove off in his near-new white convertible when he broke free in a hotel lobby.

Is it good government when riddled by scandal?

Is it good government, when the Government seeks to hide the scandal?

Is it good government, when Ministers have to resign in face of scandal?

Is it good government that transfers and humiliates high grade Civil Servants to shield itself?

Is it good government that fastens blame on dead men who cannot defend themselves?

Is it good government that permits iniquitous contracts to be arranged with its friends?

Is it good government when its supporters are guilty of mishandling reports on Campaign funds?

It is such a Government that seeks re-election on its record.

Is it any wonder that the Voters ask What is good Government?

Do you want this kind of "good government" for another 4 years?

Act now—and put the affairs of the Province back into responsible hands.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PISCATORIAL PARADISE!

They tell me that up in Manitoulin Island there is a fishing Eden that yields such piscatorial beauties that even the most indulgent angling Ananias does not have to call upon his imagination. It is Birch Island Lodge owned by genial Ted Buchelt.

"I doubt if there is as picturesque a locale anywhere barring the towering Rockies," a friend of ours writes.

The lodge stands at Dreamer's Rock, and the name is apparently a misnomer if it applies to the capturing of some of the slickest pickerel, bass and muskies you ever browned in a skillet. You don't have to dream of hauling in the big ones—just flip your line and watch the fight for the bait.

You can forget about guide costs. You don't need one. Just stand on the Rock or on a bridge nearby the Lodge and you'll have factual material for some of the best fishing yarns that ever whiled away a cold winter evening.

It is a sportsmen's paradise and the genial M'sieu Buchelt pays particular attention to the wants of the sporting fraternity. According to friend Michael J. Rodden, friend Ted stretches a point or two and allows sportswriters on the premises, if they are accompanied by their parents or guardians.

In serious vein, we are informed that a giant muskie that tipped the scales at 56 pounds was taken near Birch Island Lodge last season.

GOING WELL

They tell me Tony Pettitt, star receiver of the co-champion Belleville Batas last season, who is playing this year for a Kingston team under a lend-lease arrangement, is going great guns down Roddenville way.

Tony is smacking the ball at a merry .500 clip which is not bad, even for a Kingston league. Tony hit over .300 while cavorting with the Batas last season. Apparently all the Kingston fighting spirit is not confined to its hockey clubs. The other night a cousin of Pettitt's, a "Cockeil" named Chico Bailey, took umbrage at an official decision and promptly poked the mask-and-padder in the puss. The ump, Josh Nicholls, promptly reported the matter to the loop brass, and that body called an emergency meeting at which they will probably deal quite harshly with the punch-throwing bailster. It seems that besides being Tony's cousin, Chico was a relative of the ump's. One big happy family, it appears.

NOT ROSY

While there appears to be some sort of optimism in the district regarding the operation of the senior "B" hockey group next season despite the fact that practically all of the clubs finished in the crimson, the future of the "Big Six" senior 'A' group is not the brightest, according to reports from the western part of the province.

According to Chick (Stratford Beacon Herald) Appel if the Kitchener Dutchmen are selected for the Olympics and with the uncertainty of Niagara Falls and Chatham being back, prospects are not what one would call rosy.

Says Chick, "Len Scobie and Dr. 'Biff' Potter carried the financial load in Niagara Falls for the last two seasons but say they are not prepared to do it again. They have offered financial assistance to any group wishing to take over direction of the team, but so far none have come forth to accept the offer."

Only 500 Falls fans purchased season tickets at $25 each giving the club a nest-egg of $12,500. The current franchise holders figure they need $40,000 to operate a full season. Down in Chatham the situation is also one of lack of funds, Appel points out, so the assumption is that operation of last season's Maroons on a share-the-wealth plan was not too successful. Last year the players financed their own club, sharing whatever residue there may have been at the end of the season. The chief item of expense was an arena rental of $750 for each of the Maroons' home games.

Back to the district senior "B" group, OHA president Frank Buckland of Peterborough, informed this department via telephone that the group meeting will definitely be held on the June 11-12 week-end with the first session scheduled for Saturday night—the second Sunday morning. The confabs are being held at Viamede, well known summer resort on Stoney Lake, 20 miles north of Peterborough on Highway 28.

Prexy Buckland expects a full representation of the group to be on hand. Some time ago it was reported that Orillia would welcome a return to this group. However, nothing is definite and in all likelihood something concrete will come out of the week-end get-together.

Harshman Sparks Chicago Win As McDermott 3-Hits Tribe; Cubs Thump Skidding Giants

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

wide for his baseball wisdom even though it is difficult at times to fathom the meaning of his double talk, knew wherefore he spoke when he declared the honeymoon was over for his New York Yankees.

The grizzled Yankee skipper made the remark in a few thousand words after the American League leaders had left the friendly confines of Kansas City's Municipal Stadium and headed for Comiskey Park, home of the pesky Chicago White Sox.

The Yankees were riding high on a record of 19 victories in their last 22 games, including 14 out of 16 against the favorite sparring partners — the Washington Senators, Baltimore Orioles and the Kansas City Athletics. And their record since leaving home stood at 7-1.

WHITE SOX DID IT

But Friday night they arrived at Comiskey Park, where Stengel predicted the trouble would start. It did with the White Sox winning 3-2 behind the hitting and pitching of Jack Harshman. Since the Cleveland Indians were unable to take advantage of the Yanks' setback, losing 3-1 to Washington on Mickey McDermott's three-hitter, the top of the standings tightened.

Three games still separated the Yanks and the Indians but the Pale Hose found themselves only a half-game out of second place today. In other American League games the Detroit Tigers defeated the Orioles 7-2 as Ned Garver won his first game in more than three weeks and the Athletics edged the Boston Red Sox 4-3 on Wilmer Shantz two-run homer.

The National League leaders both came through with triumphs. The Brooklyn Dodgers continued to slug the ball to all corners of the lot, thumping the St. Louis Cardinals 12-5, while the second-place Chicago Cubs turned back the slipping New York Giants 4-1 on homers by Gene Banks, Eddie Miksis and Bob Speake. But the Dodgers still held a 7½ game lead.

TIMELY HIT FOR BUCS

Bill Bruton's 10th inning homer gave the Milwaukee Braves a 4-3 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies and the Pittsburgh Pirates nosed out the Cincinnati Redlegs 7-6 with rookie catcher Harding Peterson hitting a bases - loaded single with one out in the ninth.

The white Sox-Yankee game, witnessed by a crowd of 40,020, lived up to its advance notices. Harshman set down the New Yorkers on nine well spaced hits and drove in two runs and set up the other.

The league leaders had the lanky southpaw on the ropes several times but couldn't cash in except in the fourth when Bill Skowron hit his sixth homer and in the sixth when Mickey Mantle connected with his 12th. The victory was Harshman's first over the Yanks after losing four to them last year.

McDermott, who shut out the Indians 3-0 in his last clash with the American League champions, fanned six and walked five in recording his fourth win. Mickey Vernon and Roy Sievers hit homers to provide McDermott with all the runs he needed. Bob Lemon (7-5) was the loser.

JOY TO TIGERS

Carver's six-hitter against the Orioles brought joy to the Tigers. The 29-year-old righthander, whose last victory was May 11, also delivered a single and a double. Cal Abrams collected three of Baltimore's hits — a single, double and a home run — to drive in all of the Birds' runs. Harvey Kuenn was in the Detroit lineup for the first time since May 22 and drove in the Tigers' first run with a single.

The Cardinals used eight pitchers tying the National League record, in an attempt to stop the Dodgers. But it was no use from the time the league leaders belted starter Tom Poholsky for four runs in the first inning as Duke Snider connected with his 17th homer and Roy Campanella got No. 15. Snider also contributed a double and two singles and drove in five runs.

Stan (The Man) Musial gave the Cards some solace when he hit his 300th homer with two mates aboard in the fifth. The circuit blow placed Musial in a select group of 13 major leaguers who have hit 300 or more homers.

Bob Rush's string of scoreless frames against the Giants was broken after 26 1-3 innings when Don Mueller hit an inside the park homer in the first. But thereafter the veteran righthander was the world champs' master. He allowed only five hits and didn't walk a man.

McClarity, An Up-And-Comer Unpipes Lou, A Texas Plummer

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Lou Plummer, rasslin' man from the badlands of Texas, lived up to his trades namesake in Memorial Arena last night.

He forgot the tool to take the wrench from his arm after Roy McClarity, promising young westerner from Winnipeg, tied it up like a pretzel at a convention.

As a matter of fact it was a bit pathetic after the girst fall when La Plummer used everything but the reserve army before he made the handsome Ray say 'uncle'.

Referee Sammy Godder stripped the Plummer digits of some excess tape which he used to massage the McClarity optics at times, in the second fall of the feature. Then the Plummer really got riled. He tossed Mac out of the ring willy-nilly, but he failed to reckon with Ray's football prowess attained while attending dear old Rathskellar High.

The Plum hoisted Ray out of the ring a couple of times — and then it happened. He bounced back over the third strand and caught La Plum flush on the button with a beautiful drop-kick. Plum went down but not out. He got up and kissed the soles of McClarity's feet as they came flying through the air. Down he went again and McClarity pounced on him like a hungry wolf on an upholstered jack rabbit. He applied the commando Sleeper, and La Plum whirled and twisted and finally murmured "uncle". Or so it seemed. You couldn't blame him.

SAT IN AGONY

Nearly 1400 fans went wild as Lou sat there in apparent agony. Sammy whistled for Ray to come back and release the corkscrewed arm, but wily Ray was wise. He kept on going. La Plummer "suffered" in silence in the ring during the interim. He sat with bowed head and grimaces of pain.

But the Plummer won the first bout in no uncertain manner. He used everything in sight including the fingered tape which was his chief weapon, to subdue the blond from Winnipeg. He appealed to the crowd in dramatic gestures. In fact so good was he that he had the referee believing his appeals. Then he tossed the McClarity out of the ring and on his return picked him up, 'flang' him down a couple of times, and flopped on him for the fall.

STRONG MAN GOOD

Doug Hepburn, the strongest man in the world, or so he is billed, merely put on an exhibition of strength to win his 18th consecutive bout without defeat since his pro wrestling debut. Pat Fraley was the opposition and he might as well have been in Kokomo as far as winning the bout was concerned. He secured several holds on the former weightlifting champion of the world but that well-upholstered young man merely shrugged him off with a twitch of a pair of shoulders that look like the bow of a Percheron stallion.

Gad, what strength the boy has. Fraley, who doesn't suffer from malnutrition and weighs about 240 pounds was practically helpless when Dougie put on the pressure. Finally, the strong boy whirled Patey aloft, twirled him around a couple of times then hurled him to the canvas for the fall. It took only eight minutes.

In the preliminary, Dick Raines, a tag-team pal of Lou Plummer, used all the unorthodox tactics known to wrestling, to take a 20-minute fall from Sammy Berg.

SANTEE MISSES AGAIN

COMPTON, Calif. (AP) — Wes Santee won the featured mile race in the Compton track meet Friday night in 4:01.2 as once again the four - minute mile eluded him. Bobby Seaman of the University of California outran little Fred Dwyer, ex-Villanova runner, to take second. Seaman was timed in 4:01.4 and Dwyer in 4:01.8.

It was Santee's last opportunity to break the four-minute mile barrier before reporting to the United States Marine Corps later this month. Santee's best time is 4:00.5, established in the Texas relays in April.

Bruins Get Sawchuk, 3 Others In Deal With Detroit Wings

DETROIT (CP)—Terry Sawchuk, a member of the Detroit hockey organization since his 'teens and a brilliant performer in goal for the Red Wings the last five years, will do his netminding for Boston Bruins next season.

The Red Wings, with a remarkable record of seven straight National Hockey League titles, showed once again they aren't stand-patters as they traded the 25-year-old goalie and three forwards for five Boston players.

The trade, announced Friday, is expected to solve one of the Bruins biggest problems, their need for a solid goaltender, but it will be interesting to see whether Sawchuk, despite his speedy hands and an instinct for making the right move, can do as well without the help of such airtight defencemen as Red Kelly, Marcel Pronovost and Bob Goldham.

To get Sawchuk, the Bruins gave up forwards Ed Sandford, Real Chevrefils and Norm Corcoran, defenceman Warren Godfrey and rookie goalie Giles Boisvert.

The Red Wings sent along with the Winnipeg-born goalie forwards Marcel Bonin, Vic Stasiuk and Lorne Davis.

The Red Wings' decision to let Sawchuk go represented a vote of confidence in Glenn Hall, 23-year-old native of Humboldt, Sask., who had been his understudy.

"We had to make a tie decision between Terry Sawchuk and Glenn Hall," said general manager Jack Adams. "Hall is more advanced now than Sawchuk when he joined us and all the players insist Glenn has been NHL material for the past year."

In Boston, Bruins general manager Lynn Patrick said his team had needed a good goaltender "in the worst way."

"Last year we had 21 tie games and I believe if we had Sawchuk we might have won 10 or 11 of them," he said. Patrick said he plans to farm Johnny Henderson, who shared Boston's goaltending chores last season with Sugar Jim Henry, to Hershey of the American League.

The trade, even more daring than the celebrated deal which sent goalie Harry Lumley to Toronto Maple Leafs five seasons ago during his prime, follows the Red Wing formula.

Adams believes in trying to keep a step ahead of other clubs by freshening up his lineup even when he has a winning team.

Hall, Sawchuk's replacement has played the last three seasons with Edmonton Flyers and filled in ably when Sawchuk was given a rest for a few games last season.

It was the Red Wings' second big deal in a week. Last Saturday they sent Glen Skov, Tony Leswick, Johnny Wilson and Benny Woit to Chicago Black Hawks for Bucky Hollingworth, Dave Creighton, Jerry Toppazzini and Johnny McCormack.

Just how many of these players will wind up as Detroit regulars next season is anybody's guess. But the Stanley Cup champions, if they can be called weak anywhere, appeared to be in need of some forwards at times last season and they have a lot of talent to choose from in Sandford, Chevrefils, Toppazzini and Creighton.

To go with them, the Red Wings still have such stars as Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay, Earl Reibel and Alex Delvecchio. Thus with their defence largely intact, the Red Wings are sure to be a threat again provided Hall proves himself in goal.

'Bearcat' Adams Hurls Bobcats To First Win

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Scoring all their runs in the first four innings, the Belleville Bobcats chalked up their first win of the current Belleville and District Softball schedule by downing Point Anne 10-5 at the CNR Park last night.

Al "Bearcat" Adams gathered the victory in his first start of the season, setting the Cementmen down with 11 scattered hits while getting two on strikes and walking only three. He weakened in the eighth and ninth frames when the visitors scored three runs but hung on for the win.

Point Anne coach Phil Loft had only eight players present at game time and was forced to take the field himself while starting Rusty Logue on the mound. Logue was tagged for all the runs off ten hits in four innings. Pat Maracle took the hill in the fifth and shut out the Bobcats on five singles the rest of the distance, fanning a trio and issuing free passes to none.

The Hunter-Ethier crew went to work early, sending across four runs in the initial frame. Duesbury walked, took second on a wild pitch with Harry Wardhaugh hitting a single and taking second on the throw in. Dave Lockyer also slashed a base hit to plate Duesbury but Gerry Goyer threw out Wardhaugh at home on Wood's grounder. Bone walked, two more runs came home on wild pitches and Ross Empy singled Bone home for the 4-0 score.

The Ox-pointers got back in the game in the third, Elliott drawing a walk and stealing second. Gilmour grounded out but Phil Bennett doubled into left field for one run and Gerry Goyer drove another double off Empy's foot at first base for another tally. Doug Bone tripled to centre for the Bobcats in their half of the third, sending Carl Woods home who had singled previously for a 5-2 count.

Gord Donovan started the big fourth-inning rally with a bunt single and Adams' sacrifice was bobbled. Duesbury walked to load the sacks, Wardhaugh's lone fly scored one, Creeggan walked and another two runs tallied on a wild pitch. Dave Lockyer then punched a home run down the right field line for a 10-2 lead.

Maracle had little trouble the rest of the way with a neat double play engineered by Gerry Goyer in the eighth saving a probable run or more.

Point Anne got one back in the eighth, Bert Whalen hitting a single, Carl Woods throwing away a double play ball and Horwood dragging a bases-loaded bunt single. Pat Gilmour's long fly ball fell off the tip of Letman's glove for a triple and he scampered home when the throw-in got away in the ninth. Back to back singles by Bennett and Goyer put two more on base but Whalen hit a long fly to plate Bennett, Goyer tagged out going to third for a double play.

Dave Lockyer led the winners at bat with a homer and two singles while Bone cracked a triple and single. Wardhaugh claimed two singles as did Gord Donovan with Empy, Duesbury and Ted Hurst also hitting safely.

Gerry Goyer was the big gun for the visitors with a double and two singles while Bennett pounded a double and single. Horwood punched the ball for a brace of singles, triples went to Elliott and Gilmour while Whalen and Aberlard had one single each.

The teams:

Point Anne: Elliott, Gilmour, Bennett, Goyer, Whalen, Abelard, Logue, Horwood, Loft, Maracle.

Bobcats: Duesbury, H. Wardhaugh, Creeggan, Lockyer, Woods, Bone, Empy, Donovan, Adams, T. Hurst, Letman.

BIG MEET TODAY

MONTREAL (CP)—High School athletes from eastern Canada don track spikes today in what is expected to be the largest field ever to enter the Dominion and provincial high school track and field championships.

More than 500 students, representing some 50 schools will vie for honors in five age groups. The four younger groups will compete for provincial titles while the fifth classification, those under 20, will be seeking both provincial and Dominion laurels.

'Senator Jim' 4-1 Favorite For Plate After Thrilling Victory In Trial

TORONTO (CP) —Senator Jim moved from a 10-to-1 possibility in the winter book to a 4-to-1 favorite for the Queen's Plate classic with one great race.

The grey colt, once overshadowed by such thoroughbreds as Loyalist, Bright Flash and Ace Marine for the $20,000-added stake June 11, came up with a tremendous stretch run Friday to win his plate trial at Woodbine race track and send the odds tumbling.

Today he ranks as the favorite, although many experts still figure the race for the Queen's 5k guineas will be a wide-open affair.

The Stafford Farms sprize covered the mile and 70 yards in 1:43 3-5, just 1 3-5 seconds off the track record.

The plate trials, second and last to be held before the 1¼-mile race, Canada's richest turf event, were run in three divisions. The other two were won by Larkin Maloney's Ace Marine from Toronto and Silver Spat, a 70-to-1 longshot owned by Adam Adams of Winnipeg.

For the first time in the 96-year history of the plate, Ontario may lose its stranglehold on what is the oldest continuously-run stakes race in North America. The west has an outstanding contender in Silver Spat and Quebec will be strongly represented by Baffin Bay, a filly owned by Mrs. R. Y. Graul of Montreal.

The first plate trials, at six furlongs, were held May 25. There were four divisions—won by Baffin Bay, Dorene's Lad, Ace Marine and Bernford.

Thus Ace Marine is the only double winner. On the strength of that she has been made a 6-to-1 choice in the plate.

Senator Jim came from far back to beat Fairator, Fleet Brenda and fleet Countess.

Senator Jim paid $5.90, $3.10 and $2.60 for a $2 ticket.

Silver Spat beat Merry Life, owned by Mrs. E. P. Taylor of Toronto, by a neck in the first division and paid off at $159.80, $64.10 and $9.10. His time was 1:45, the slowest of the three trials. Merry Life paid $18.90 and $5.20.

FRANKFORD

Madoc Wins Over Merchants By 6-3 Score

FRANKFORD (Special) — Grabbing a first-inning four-run lead the Madoc entry in the Belleville District Softball League never looked backwards here last night and went on to defeat the Frankford Merchants by a 6-3 score.

Frankford cut the margin to three in their half of the inning but the mid-county villagers went on to score singles in the fourth and fifth to countersink the victory.

The homesters threatened in the third when they sent two runners scampering across the plate but they were held scoreless over the rest of the route.

Shaw for Madoc and Radnar for Frankford went the route with the former scattering eight hits, whiffing one and walking eight. Radnar was nicked for nine clouts while striking out seven and walking three.

Harry Brown paced the Madoc attack with two doubles and a single with Hagerman driving out a double and single. Schofield clouted a home run and Carswell rapped out a double.

Rankin pounded out a trio of singles for the homesters with Cosgrove and Ackerman good for two each. Gilmour, Cook, Dafoe and Wickson pounded out singles.

Peter Thomson Close to First Golf Jackpot

GREAT NECK, N.Y. (AP)—Australia's young Peter Thomson who has been crossing the Pacific for three years in quest of Yankee dollars, is close to his first big jackpot in American golf.

The little stylist from Melbourne went into the fourth round of the deepdale round robin tournament today with a nine-point lead and a chance to lengthen it over his closest pursuer, big Mike Souchak.

Thomson, with 22 plus points, and Souchak, with 13, are bracketed in the same foursome, playing also with former national Open champion Julius Boros and Johnny Palmer.

If the British Open champion can maintain his deadly putting touch, he has a good chance to put a virtual lock on the $3,000 first prize in this unique $15,000 event. He has the tournament's two hottest shooters — Cary Middlecoff and Ted Kroll-behind him.

MATCH SCORES

Thomson not only is leading in points but also is playing the best golf, not always the case in this mathematical merry-go-round in which each player matches scores with each of the others in the select 16-man field.

He has had consecutive rounds of 69-67-68 over the 6,583-yard, par 70, Deepdale course and has added steadily to his point total. Work around the greens has done it.

On both his rounds Friday he finished with spectacular birdie threes, chipping in from 40 feet off the green in the morning and sinking a 20-foot downhill putt in the afternoon on the final hole. He sank five putts of from 12 to 20 feet.

TO HOLD REUNION

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian fighter pilots who flew with 127 Fighter Wing which fought over Europe in the Second World War, will hold their first reunion in Toronto, June 11. The wing included 421, 416, 403 and 443 squadrons of the RCAF.

Toronto Leafs Widen Lead Over Montreal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were rebel yells in Richmond today, and the Rochester Red Wings won't be sorry when they can get out of town. The Virginians made it three in a row at Richmond Friday night by defeating the Wings 7-3, for their sixth straight victory — longest streak since the club rejoined the International League last year.

Richmond's triumph came as Dick Starr allowed only five hits, and rapped a 3-run homer in the third inning when the Virginians tallied five runs. Ken Wood homered for Richmond in the big third frame.

This gave Richmond 12 wins in the last 16 games, and Rochester has been taking its lumps. Last season Richmond won only four of 22 games with Rochester, and in their first series this year the Wings swept a 3-game set.

The Toronto Maple Leafs got 2-hit pitching by Ken Johnson and defeated the Havana Cuban Sugar Kings 2-1, to widen their first-place lead over Montreal to two games.

The score was tied 1-1 in the eighth when Mike Goliat doubled, moved to third on an infield out, and scored on a bunt by Billy Demars after Loren Babe was walked intentionally.

Syracuse defeated Montreal 9-1, for the Royals third loss in a row, as righthander Dick Farrell scattered nine hits. The Chiefs sent 10 men to the plate in the sixth inning and scored four times on Mel Clark's bases-empty homer, three bases on balls, a single and double.

At Buffalo Rookie Steve Demeter led off the ninth inning with his sixth homer to give the Bisons a 3-2 verdict over the Columbus Jets. Lefty Bob Schultz gained his fourth victory with a seven-hitter, the same number of blows given up by the Jets' Varl Duser. One of the hits off Schultz was a second inning homer by Al Lakeman, one-time Buffalo catcher.

BECAUSE HELMETS BOB?

LONDON (Reuters) — After receiving several complaints from Londoners, Scotland Yard has ordered its bobbies to stop chewing gum while on duty, it was disclosed Friday.

Boston Trade Caught Sawchuk With Pads Down

WINNIPEG (CP) — Terry Sawchuk, winner of the Vezina Trophy as the best goalie in the National Hockey League last season, said Friday the nine-player trade which sent him to Boston Bruins from the champion Detroit Red Wings caught him by surprise.

"I first heard the rumor over the radio Thursday," he said. "then Boston phoned me today to tell me they were my new owners."

The 25-year-old netminder, who took the coveted Vezina three times in the five seasons he played with Detroit, said any talk that the trade was made because he was in disfavor with the club's management was "baloney."

Sawchuk was taken out of the nets for two games late last season and replaced by Glenn Hall who was brought up from the Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League.

"I didn't say one word when I was benched," Sawchuk said.

He said he was "a bit sorry" to leave the Red Wing team. He has been in the Detroit farm system since he was a 14-year-old goalie on the Winnipeg Rangers.

But it's still an honor to be playing in the NHL—especially under a coach like Milt Schmidt. I've still got plenty of competition before I can make the Boston team. They have some good goalies."

Sawchuk was traded with teammates Marcel Bonin, Vic Stasiuk and Lorne Davis, all forwards. In return, Boston gave up forwards Real Chevrefils, Ed Sanford and Norm Corcoran, defenceman Warren Godfrey and rookie goalie Giles Boisvert.

ELECT OFFICERS

EDMONTON (CP) — H. M. Tucker, Vancouver, Friday was elected Dominion president of the Associated Canadian Travellers. Regional vice-presidents include P. Sloan, Kirkland Lake, Ont.

Stukus' BC Lions Will Roar In Training Camp At Kelowna

By PETER MURRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions will make western Canada football history this year when they set up a training camp far from home at Kelowna, B.C., a fruit-growing community in the British Columbia interior.

About 70 prospective players and coaches will travel to the Okanagan city, about 200 miles east of Vancouver, for a two-week session of concentrated football starting July 24.

Although it is regular procedure with U.S. professional teams, only one other Canadian team has set up a training camp outside its home city.

Toronto Argonauts will train for 10 days this season at Port Hope, Ont., about 60 miles east o fToronto. In the late 1930s they trained at Oakville, 20 miles west of Toronto.

EDMONTON EYES VERNON

Other Western Interprovincial Football Union teams, with the possible exception of Edmonton, will stay close to home for the preseason training.

Eskimos are considering an offer from Vernon, a rival Okanagan city which lost out to Kelowna in a bid for Lions' business, but are not expected to make the move this year.

The Lions organization, from prospective players to coach Annis Stukus and general manager Phil Webb, is enthused about the camp.

"It's a great progressive step," said Stukus. "We'll be able to get done in one day up there what took us a week in the evenings here last summer."

Webb agreed. "It's going to cost us a bit more but we feel it will be well worth it."

The players feel they'll have a better chance to catch the coach's eye at a training camp.

ACCOMMODATION FACTOR

Two factors led to the selection of the orchard city with 10,000 population for the camp. One was weather, the other accommodation.

The other three Okanagan cities considered had the same drawing power with a warm, dry climate but a hustling Kelowna civic group tipped the scales their way by offering first-class hotel accommodation at reasonable rates.

The group made arrangements with the best hotel in the city to put aside its top two floors for the Lions' entourage in the middle of the tourist season.

City merchants will be asked to pick up part of the tab—about $1,300. Lions have not disclosed how much the camp will cost but unofficial guesses put the figure at between $10,000 and $12,000 for the two weeks.

The players will eat their meals in a separate dining room of the hotel, which has agreed to meet certain diet requirements. Wives have not been invited by the team.

Webb reports the turf on the Kelowna Stadium is in good shape and dressing rooms and other facilities should prove adequate. The stadium has a fair-sized grandstand and Lions will help defray expenses by charging admission for an inter-squad game July 23.

Lions also hope to gain by spreading interest in the team to the hinterlands and boosting attendance at week-end games during the regular season. Ten-hour practice sessions daily are scheduled. Players will start scrimmaging on their first day in camp and Stukus has ordered all players to arrive in condition.

The squad will be cut to about 40 men at the end of the two weeks. Further chopping will be done at the nightly practices in Vancouver after the team returns.

Elsewhere in the WIFU, Winnipeg Blue Bombers have started training in nearby St. Boniface. The league opens Aug. 22. A spring session was started May 28 for graduating juniors, outstanding intermediates, eastern players signed and last year's first-year Canadians. The regular training camp will open July 15. Other WIFU clubs will start training in July.

Manager Bill Boivin of the Bombers said they are considering a proposal to move out of the city and the idea is "not entirely out."

Red Sox Wallop Elgins 12-4

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford Red Sox broke out of a slump here Friday night by walloping the third-place St. Thomas Elgins, 12-4 in an Intercounty Senior Baseball League game. It was the second win their last seven starts for the Red Sox, and moved them within half a game of fourth place.

Harry Fisher went all the way on the mound for Brantford for his second win of the season, both against St. Thomas.

Although he was tagged for 14 hits, Fisher kept them well scattered and had only one bad inning, giving up three runs in the third frame.

TWO HURLERS

The Red Sox pounced on two St. Thomas pitchers, John Ambrose and Marv Larsen, for 16 hits. Fisher and George Carruth led the parade with four hits each. Luther Clifford, who had three of the Brantford hits, knocked in two runs with a homer in the third inning when the Sox tied the score 3-3.

The Red Sox rallied for four runs in the fifth, when they drove Ambrose to the showers, and the issue was never in doubt after that.

Butch Lawing paced the Elgins at the plate with three hits. Jim Halkord hit a bases-empty homer in the sixth.

Petes Defeat Hamilton 10-5

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Peterborough Trailermen took over first place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior League Friday night by defeating the Hamilton Lincolns 10-5 in a game before 1,000 fans.

Bobby Allan sparked the Peterborough attack with three goals, Harry Wipper with two, and Carl Brioux, Grant Burns, Loui Nickle, Bob Curtis, and Jim Heffernan each with one.

High scorer for the Hamilton team was Larry Ruse with three goals. Jack Corney and Chub Brown scored one each for Hamilton.

Peter Lorre Reforms

After a four years' absence, that ever-popular cinamatic psychopath, Peter Lorre, returns to appear in an entirely new type of role in Walt Disney's, "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

Most elaborate of any Disney film to date, the Buena Vista release, based on Jules Verne's novel, is made in CinemaScope and in Technicolor. Kirk Douglas, James Mason and Paul Lukas star with Lorre, in the film showing tonight and Tuesday, matinee and evening.

He portrays Conseil, loyal friend of Ned Land, mild-mannered assistant to the great professor. All three are imprisoned on Captain Nemo's (James Mason) amazing submarine, Nautilus.

Discussing his past, Lorre said he got to the point where he never read a script. "I just ask if I could carry a gun or a knife. Instead of counting my lines, I would count the number of victims," he admitted sadly. "as far as I was concerned, crime did pay, but I longed to go straight."

Asked how he felt regarding his role as comedy relief in his current Disney production, he said, "I can't wait to hear an audience laugh at something I say, instead of hissing."

The man who always referred to acting, as "making faces," believes a performer can wear out his welcome by making one face too many. "I decided it was time to give the audience a rest," said Lorre explaining his absence frankly.

He formed his independent producing company in Europe, producing, directing and starring in the film, "The Lost One." The picture won every major award in Germany, where it was made.

Canadian Comic, Alan Young, Quiting Television For Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Vancouver's Alan Young is reversing the the usual trend—he's quitting television for the movies.

The Canadian comic has had a checkered career in TV. Five years ago he made his debut with "The Alan Young Show" over CBS and it was a smash hit. After a season or two the variety format began to pale. "You just can't sustain a vaudeville show every week," he explained.

He experimented with other formats and was pushed into the rut of playing the little fellow who is kicked around by life. That didn't wear well either.

HAS HAD OTHER OFFERS

Young, now finishing up a contract with NBC, says he is winding up his TV career for now. He has had other opportunities, notably an offer to star in James Thurber stories based on a Walter Mitty type of character.

"But I didn't think you can sustain that kind of idea week after week," he said. "I'm going to lay off TV.

"It seems to me the industry is entering a period of transition. I don't know exactly where it is going. It might be that pay-as-you-see TV is coming in. Possibly the spectaculars will take over. I don't know. But I think there are going to be some big changes.

"Right now it appears that no show can last more than five years. I don't want merely a five-year career. So I'm going to sit back and wait."

WRITING AND ACTING

Young figures to occupy his time with writing scripts and acting in films. He is hopeful about his movie career after making "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" in Europe with Jane Russell and Jeanne Crain.

"I think it's the only good picture I've had besides 'Margie,'" he said. "If I could do just two pictures a year, that would be enough to keep me going."

He remarked that before he left Europe he had the chance to appear with Vivien Leigh in a film version of "The Deep Blue Sea." But that would have meant a longer absence from his family here, so he didn't stay.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Peter" Stays On

"A Man Called Peter," 20th Century-Fox's inspirational CinemaScope production about the life of Peter Marshall, a Scottish immigrant who became pastor of the famed "Church of Presidents" in Washington, D.C., and chaplain of the U.S. Senate before his untimely death, will be held over Monday and Tuesday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Richard Todd is starred in the title role and Jean Peters costars as his wife Catherine. Praise for the production, rich in spiritual qualities and warm in its telling of a poignant love story, has been unstinted. Henry Koster directed. Samuel G. Engel produced and the supporting cast is headed by Marjorie Rambeau and Jill Esmond.

Feel "Jawn" Did Right Thing

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit sports writers said Friday they felt certain general manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings has done the right thing in his nine-player exchange with Boston Bruins.

Adams traded goalie Terry Sawchuk and three forwards for five Boston players.

Marshall Dann of The Free Press said: "Adams has done this sort of thing before and always seems to come up in good shape. Three clubs drooled for Sawchuk—Montreal, Boston and New York.

"Adams didn't want to strengthen Montreal. He ruled New York out because the Rangers didn't have much to offer in exchange. So that left Boston."

Lewis H. Walter of the Detroit Times predicted: "If (Goalie Glenn) Hall plays to expectations Detroit appears certain to be a big winner in the trades of the past week."

AT THE CAPITOL — Thousands of paratroopers are seen in action, in color by Technicolor, at the Capitol Theatre starting Monday, where Columbia Pictures' "Paratrooper" stars Alan Ladd and co-stars Leo Genn. Shown above is an artists' impression of the Warwick production. On the same program and having its first Belleville showing in Technicolor "A Bullet Is Waiting", starring Jean Simmons, Rory Calhoun, Stephen McNally and Brian Aherne.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Sunday, June 5, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Gay, wholesome influences, with personal matters, home and religious interests top favored. Raising money for worthy undertakings such as children's camps, hospitals, etc., can be very successful.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Don't try to take things by storm but do take part in activities helpful to your church, family and community. It is right to be civic-minded. Work connected with servicing the public is under fine rays.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Here should be smooth going now—particularly if you are your innate bright, genial self. Don't overdo or be too anxious. A good period for mental alertness, writing, study, and good fun.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—This can be a highly interesting, pleasant day if you will be careful of some tricky spots, things that could cause unhappy discussions, impatience. Fine vibrations for ingenuity, clever ideas, spiritual devotions.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Much depends on how you present yourself, how you control emotions and your willingness to shoulder responsibilities. Prayer will start you right; blessings will be yours.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Artists, writers and students can find today to their liking and gain. Mental quickness heightened. However, don't forget it is Sunday so rest, prayer, relaxing are also in order.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—To do this or to do that? Many situations and conditions may seem to be changing, or not progressing as you would like. Be careful in all decisions.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)— Very good Mercury and Jupiter rays favor wholesome interests.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—This could be an especially progressive and gainful day for furthering your interests, your family's good, all worthy undertakings. Don't neglect your religion.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—All wholesome activities and interests sponsored; enjoy them fully— services at church, worthwhile socials, family fun, a hobby.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—It is not enough to "wish" to succeed or do pleasing things; we must back good intentions with consistency, permeditated action. But don't be "all-work-and-no-play". That old happy medium best.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—So many interests to delight the heart and please the eye are among God's gifts. Do try to enjoy them. Tend to necessary chores quickly, pray, have fun.

You born today are ofttimes impulsive but are highly capable of gathering knowledge and also of imparting it to others. If true to the better you, you are not content with shallow veneer, petty doings. You seek true and fundamental things and progress. Don't over embellish or exaggerate. Versatility and quick thinking are your best assets. Don't dissipate your energies; pray for God's guidance daily; have faith always, and remember, diplomacy is a happiness-saver in the home, too.

Government Using Technique Of Big Lie in Campaign--Oliver

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver says the Progressive Conservative government is using the technique of the big lie in its campaign for re-election June 9.

Mr. Oliver, speaking to an afternoon rally at Peterborough Friday, accused Premier Frost of distorting the truth without let-up in hopes of deceiving enough voters.

"I don't know if Mr. Frost took his cue from Hitler's tactics or not," Mr. Oliver said, "but in this campaign he and his supporters are telling the big lie in the ultimate hope that the people, crushed down by his avalanche of repetition, will come to believe it."

Mr. Frost spoke at Deep River, where he said the piping of natural gas and oil from western Canada to Ontario is one of the "musts" of Canadian development.

HITS LIBERAL STATEMENTS

At Kingston Provincial Secretary W. M. Nickle said his Liberal opponent in Kingston riding has made statements "one would expect from a Red, a Communist or an advanced left-winger."

Referring to advertisements by Robert H. Hay which, he said, suggested need for overhauling the Ontario judicial system, Mr. Nickle said "ridiculing courts and judges is a standard ruse of the Communists."

In the most lively speech of his campaign, Mr. Nickle said the 25-point Liberal platform is nothing but an "armful of promises." Liberal Leader Oliver supported a health plan that was criticized and coldly received by his own party members.

"The forgotten men; that's what farmers and laborers are under the Liberal manifesto," Mr. Nickle said. "They have been pushed into the discard pile."

He also quoted Mr. Oliver as saying "royal commissions are a pain in the neck.

"I'd hate to tell you where I get pains when I read Mr. Oliver's speeches."

ATTACKS OPPONENT

Mr. Nickle attacked Mr. Hay for saying that the majority report of the legislature's select committee investigating highways irregularities was not available to him.

Mr. Oliver has them, he said.

"All he (Mr. Hay) needs is a five-cent stamp."

Mr. Oliver said "If you tell a big enough lie—and tell if often enough—the people will believe it.

"The premier tells you his government is the best government Ontario ever had. Hitler at his best couldn't have done better.

"The truth of the matter is, of course, that if the Forst government is not the worst government ever inflicted on the people of Ontario, it is close to it."

Turning to the subject of grants for municipal services, he urged his listeners "not to get down on their knees and thank the Frost government for increasing grants.

Mr. Oliver said increased grants under the present administration are only the reflection of general prosperity in the province.

"The Frost government was simply here when general prosperity came along. They benefited by it and naturally allowed some of the extra money to trickle back in increased grants," he said.

Grants were increased but are actually smaller in relation to the total cost than 20 years ago, he said.

"NON-POLITICAL"

Mr. Frost described his speech, on atomic - generated power, as "non-political."

He spoke in the community hall in Deep River, a federal government community near Chalk River, centre of atomic development in Canada.

The premier said the piping of western Canada gas to central Canada is inevitable.

Referring to plans to build a $15,000,000 pilot atomic power plant at Des Joachims, he said he has no doubt of its feasibility.

He said it has been possible to install cobalt bombs in several centres to fight cancer. Praising the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, the premier said it is doing a great work in a field that is almost new.

Mr. Oliver speaks in Cobourg, Port Hope and Whitby today while Ontario CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald has a Sunday morning rally at [illegible]. Mr. Frost will not campaign during the weekend.

Stars of the Festival Concert

(By Mrs. PERCY MACMULLEN)

STIRLING. — Tuesday evening was a gala night at St. Paul's United church, Stirling, when approximately 500 people from all the surrounding territory filled the auditorium of the church to enjoy the "Stars of the Festival Concert."

VOICES ABOVE AVERAGE

Rev. A. Packman, pastor of the church, presided and welcomed the large group of folk. Following a hymn and prayer the stars presented their selections.

Frankford Public school sang "Now the Day is Over", directed by Mrs. Harold Keefer. Mr. H. R. Tompkins presented The News-Argus trophy.

Anne Beach, a little tot, sang "Jesus Bids Us Shine", and Mr. M. Cranston, Batawa, presented the gold award.

Charles Little, Trenton, sang "My God I Thank Thee" and George Carlisle, Stirling, made the presentation.

Mary Cranston, Batawa, recited Psalm 24 "A Song of David" and Rev. A. E. MacKenzie of Albert College, presented the award.

The Williams S.S. No. 4 School choir sang "Thanksgiving", after which the Rev. W. E. G. Dovey, R.R. 5, Belleville, presented the trophy to Miss Betty McConnell, music supervisor. The teacher is Mrs. Harvey Couch.

ADDRESS

A brief address was given by the Rev. S. L. Osborne, principal of Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, who had adjudicated the music. He spoke of the great success of the festival following four years of preparation by the Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Baker and of the untiring efforts of the secretary, Mrs. Walter Elliott, who has given hours of her time to the project.

Dr. Osborne said many of the voices had been much above the average and there was a wide field of promise in this area. He suggested that a scholarship be set up to give deserving young voices a chance to further their study. He thought this would be a worthy cause for clubs in the district to sponsor.

Judy Carlisle, Frankford, sang "See the Shining Dewdrops" and Mrs. Auriel Creighton, Bancroft, presented the award.

At this time the festival committee, through the pastor, sponsored the sending of a warm message of greeting to the Rev. and Mrs. Earl Baker, Smooth Rock Falls, for their spade work in organizing the Festival of Sacred Praise five years ago.

John Raven, Belleville, sang his tenor solo "O Lord Most Holy" and Mr. A. E. Kendall made the presentation.

Francis Hatfield, Smithfield, sang "I Will Sing of Thy Great Mercies," Mendelssohn, and Miss Betty McConnell presented the gold award.

DONATIONS

Miss Marjorie Gothard, Trenton, donated two student memberships in Trenton Community Concert, one for Trenton and one for the outside area to be chosen by the adjudicator from four classes 16, 17, 23 and 24.

Miss Hatfield received the one for the area and Miss Juanita Wessel will receive the Trenton award. Owing to a recent bereavement the latter was not in the audience.

St. Paul's United Church Sunday school choir of Bancroft sang "All Glory, Laud and Honor" and their director, Mrs. Auriel Creighton was presented with a new award called the Marjorie Gothard Trophy by Mr. T. W. Spear, Trenton.

Brenda Yarrow, Frankford, gave St. Matthew chapter 25, verses 1-13, from memory and Mrs. Arthur Pyear made the presentation.

St. Paul's Stirling, Teen-age Ensemble rendered "All Through the Night" and Mrs. Edwin Warren presented the W.A. Shield to the director, Mrs. Bruce Glendenning.

Francis Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Rose, Belleville, sang "Beneath the Cross of Jesus" and Mrs. Harold Keefer made the presentation.

SECRETARY LAUDED

At this time Mrs. Keefer spoke glowing words of appreciation to Mrs. Walter Elliott for all the work involved in acting as secretary on this occasion and little Anne Beach presented Audrey with a bouquet of red roses and the recipient graciously replied.

King St. United church junior choir sang "O Lord of Heaven" and Robert Patterson presented the director, Mr. A. E. Kendall, with his own shield. Mr. Patterson donated this in 1951 at the first festival. He told where it had travelled in the past four years and hoped the young people would keep up their good work.

He also paid tribute to the spade work of Mrs. A. E. Baker in organizing a Junior choir at St. Paul's, Stirling. He also mentioned Mrs. Baker's recent win at the Kiwanis festival at Cochrane when Smooth Rock Falls Junior choir won the rose bowl and a cash award of $25. Among her entrants she had five first class honors as well as seconds and thirds.

Jane Lever, Smithfield, gave her soprano solo "My Redeemer and My Lord" and Mrs. W. Elliott presented the award.

Heather Scott, Trenton, sang "Sometimes a Light Surprises" and Egerton Boyce presented the gift.

Donna Carlisle contributed her contralto solo "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own" and Mrs. Emma Snider, Smithfield, presented the award.

Cor Op't Hof, Belleville, sang his baritone solo "Jesus the Very Thought of Thee" and Harold Hagerman made the presentation.

Dorothy Johnston of Carmel United church, repeated her piano hymn playing.

NEW TROPHY

This year the Festival Board purchased a new trophy in honor of the great contribution to sacred praise made by Mrs. A. E. Baker during her sojourn in Stirling. It will be known as "The Muriel S. Baker Trophy" and will be awarded each year to the highest individual mark in the festival music classes. The trophy is set on a black base with a silver globe as a central theme and a goddess holding a laurel wreath at the top.

At this juncture, Mrs. A. Packman explained the details of the trophy and presented Dorothy with the large trophy and a miniature for herself to keep as a memento of her achievement. Dorothy is the pianist at Carmel Sunday school.

Sandra Allen, Marysville, sang "In God's First Temple" and Mrs. C. V. Wilkins, Trenton, presented the award.

Sylvia Allen, Marysville, gave her memory selection, St. Luke Chapter 18, verses 9-14 and Mr. Volney Richardson presented the award.

Evangeline Reilly, Shannonville, sang "There is a Spirit Singing", and Mrs. Bruce Glendenning made the presentation.

Grace Heasman, St. Paul's, Stirling, sang "O Saviour Hear Me", and Mrs. Walter Warren presented the award.

Linda Ormshaw and Margaret Finkle, Trenton, sang "Beside Still Waters" and William Wilkins, Stirling, made the presentation.

Wellman's rural church choir on the Rawdon circuit, sang "Hushed Was the Evening Hymn" and the shield was presented to Mrs. Lorne Watson, director, by the Rev. G. J. Minielly, Trenton.

Bonnie Rowe, Frankford, sang "Summer Suns are Glowing" and Ernest Sarles made the presentation.

Leila McColl, Wooler, sang "Abide With Me", and the Rev. W. G. Fletcher made the presentation and told the audience how he had watched the soloist develop her voice while he was pastor on that circuit.

St. Paul's ladies' trio composed of Edna Brown, Marlene Moorcroft and Marlene Carlisle, sang "Brahm's Cradle Song" and Mrs. John L. Good presented gold awards to all three.

Linda Farley, Frankford, who is a little girl of eleven, competed in the open class for Bible Memory and at this time she gave 1st Kings, Chapter 3, verses 5-14. Mrs. Burton Morton presented the award and commented that Linda had been twice a gold medallist in her own class and this year in order to compete she had to enter the open class.

FINAL COMMENTS

Mrs. Walter Elliott spoke briefly and said it was a thrill to be a secretary as everyone was so co-operative. She glowingly paid tribute to the work of the three secretaries, Mrs. R. A. Patterson, Mrs. George Carlisle and Mrs. Burton Morton, to the press secretaary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen and to the Sunday school staff which catered for light lunches. She expressed regret that due to an accident Miss Phyllis Sine, Frankford, was unable to assist this year and all hope for her recovery at an early date.

NEW RULING

She gave the figures regarding the Festival Grand trophy which was donated by General Motors in 1951. This year the Festival Board made a new ruling. Any church or any circuit charge with fifteen entries in the Festival and one-half of that in the music class could have the trophy if they achieved the highest average mark.

Frankford pastoral charge composed of four United churches, Frankford, Batawa, Stockdale and Zion won a score of 80.9. St. Paul's, Carmel, was second 79.8; King Street, Trenton, 78.4.2; St. Andrew's, Trenton, 78.4 and Rawdon circuit, 78.

There was a new entry this year from St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Belleville. They had 14 entries and achieved 78.6.

Mr. Egerton Boyce also had a large number of children, who belong to other churches in the Shannonville-Belleville area competing in the Festival.

Cash donations not previously mentioned were received from Mr. Harold Hagerman and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Good.

Donations are welcomed and $5 provides a set of pins for a class.

PRESENTATION TO FRANKFORD CHARGE

At this point Mr. Walter Elliott presented the General Motors trophy to Mr. Angus Cranston, a steward of Batawa church, and a miniature for Frankford circuit to keep.

Mr. Cranston commended Frankford public school choir on their achievement in the Festival and voiced thanks to the Festival Board.

Miss Mildred Morton of Wellman's United church rendered her piano solo "Chanson Triste" and Mrs. Harold Elliott made the presentation.

Beth Minielly and Margaret Bartlett, Trenton, sang "I Waited for the Lord", and Dr. Packman gave the award.

St. Paul's quartet, Messrs. Harry Brown, Bryce Philp, Grant Richardson and Jack Bush, rendered "The Church in the Wildwood," unaccompanied, and Dr. Osborne presented the four gold medals.

Diesel Engine Fumes May Be Cause of Cancer

LONDON (Reuters) — Fumes from diesel engines, not cigaret smoke, may be the cause of increased lung cancer, a doctor told the annual meeting of the British Medical Association here.

Dr. J. O. M. Rees moved a resolution drawing attention of transport authorities to the "possible danger of fumes from diesel engines." The resolution was carried unanimously.

Dr. F. A. Belam said one research specialist had found that many sailors working in ships' engine rooms had developed lung cancer and had ascribed it to diesel fumes.

Strikers Reject Back-To-Work Appeal By Eden

Warns Strike Pushes Britain Towards Disaster

LONDON (AP)—Britain's striking railway workers today rejected Prime Minister Eden's broadcast back-to-work plea.

Their leaders accused the Conservative chief of getting a lot of his facts about the strike wrong. They said his appeal did nothing to change the situation in the dispute, now nine days old.

Eden warned in a broadcast Sunday night that the strike of 67,000 locomotive engineers, firemen and engine cleaners is pushing Britain toward an economic smash.

He appealed to the strikers to go back to work and then start negotiations again on their claim for a pay differential.

But Noel Pinches, president of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen told reporters today that Eden's appeal "will find no favor" with his union executives.

Meanwhile, leaders of the striking stevedores union called a conference in London today to consider their next step in the costly walkout by 20,000 men which has partly tied up seven seaports for two weeks.

The dock strike stems from a jurisdictional squabble for bargaining rights involving the stevedores and the giant Transport Workers Union. Close to 200 freighters are idle.

FOUR LINERS IDLE

And a third strike by stewards on four liners has prevented the sailing of 2,000 passengers for the United States and Canada. Tied up by this strike are the 35,674-ton Maurtania, the 27,506-ton British Monarch, the 19,379-ton Empress of Australia and the 14,440-ton Ascania.

In his broadcast Eden appealed to the striking railway workers to end their "disastrous" walkout.

"If we go on like this," he said, 'we shall smash up our hard earned prosperity."

Eden also warned that the walkout is endangering Britain's vital export trade.

SUMMARIZES SITUATION

Giving an up-to-date summary of the situation, Eden said:

1. More than 7,000 trains are running each day. This is about one-sixth the normal day's run.

2. "Essential traffic" has been kept moving by falling back on road, air and canal transport.

3. Essential supplies are being kept rolling. Food, milk and mail have been delivered and power supplies have been maintained.

The 67,000 striking members of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen are demanding a raise which they contend is necessary to preserve their customary differential over wages of less-skilled workers. This margin was narrowed by a new wage scale which went into effect last January.

REFUSE TO CONFER

The transport commission, which runs the state-owned lines, has refused to negotiate unless the union first gets together with the 400,000-member National Union of Railwaymen on a package deal.

So far the strikers have refused.

Officials complained Sunday that the strikers are getting rough in their attempts to stop members of the rival union from operating trains.

THE WEATHER

Sex Downfall Of Maryland's Female Crabs

CRISFIELD, Me. (AP)—The eastern shore of Maryland's centuries-old crab industry has put the even older idea of sex appeal to a new use among the crustaceans.

For decades watermen have been using fresh fish as bait to attract peeler — female — crabs into crab-pots. But the fish also attracted eels, toadfish and other undesirable passers-by.

Now, say watermen, jimmy —male—crabs used as live bait bring the peelers swarming to the traps. The peelers go to packing plahts but the cause of their downfall, the jimmy crabs, remain in the pots, still luring them in.

Clement Attlee May Be Thinking Of Retirement

DURHAM, England (AP)—Labor Party leader Clement Attlee set the politicians talking Saturday night with what could be a hint he is thinking of retirement.

He told a party rally: 'Leadership now will be passing on to younger generations. . . the young people are coming on."

Attlee is 72. His party was defeated in last week's elections and Attlee would be 77 by the time another election is due.

Since the election, the pro-Labor Daily Mirror has been demanding older Labor party leaders give way to younger men.

Veteran Socialist Hugh Dalton stepped down from the party's councils Friday and urged other elders to follow suit. But Dalton insisted Attlee should stay as leader, saying Attlee alone could reconcile feuding factions inside the party.

Labor members of Parliament meet on Tuesday night to elect their leader for the forthcoming session. If Attlee stands, his re-election is certain. If he does not, top candidates to succeed him might be Herbert Morrison, 67, Hugh Gaitskell, 49, or leftist Aneurin Bevan, 57.

FAULTY VACCINE MAY BE CAUSE OF POLIO DEATH

Very Small Amount Of Live Virus Found

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Some evidence pointed today to faulty vaccine as the possible cause of a polio outbreak in Idaho, which Sunday reported its sixth death of the year from the disease.

Dr. Louis P. Gebhardt, a University of Utah physician and bacteriologist who led the tests in Utah, Colorado and Wyoming during the field trials of the Salk vaccine last year, reported on tests "which as far as we can interpret" showed "probably a very, very small amount of live virus" present in samples of the vaccine made by Cutter Laboratories and used in Idaho.

In Washington, the United States surgeon-general, Dr. Leonard Scheele, said in a TV-radio interview (NBC's "Meet the Press") that with proper techniques live virus should not get into the vaccine, but he was unable to give any report on Dr. Gebhardt's findings until the full report was received by the National Institute of Health.

Dr. Gebhardt said his tests and results were as follows:

1. No live virus was found among samples of the vaccine when tested directly by placing it in a tissue culture.

2. That susceptible monkeys which were injected with vaccine samples from one of the two lots used in Idaho showed no signs of polio . Four monkeys were used.

3. But that one of four monkeys which were injected with samples from the other lot died of polio 14 days after injection. The other three have shown no signs, although all were injected May 7.

4. That two other monkeys which were injected with portions of the spinal cord from the killed one came down with paralysis.

5. That Type 1 virus was isolated from portions of the spinal cord of the killed monkey after placing them in tissue cultures.

Dr. Gebhardt said he also has tested other Cutter vaccine used in Utah and Idaho and found it safe.

In Berkeley, Calif., Cutter issued a statement saying all of its lots had passed government safety tests before shipment.

The statement from Cutter said also that if the findings of Dr. Gebhardt are confirmed, "it will be evidence of the need for the new more stringent safety tests established last week by the service."

Scheele said on the TV-radio program that vaccine manufacturers will need "some time to retool, so to speak," to meet the new, stricter testing standards.

He said he was unable to predict when this would be. He said further that the new testing procedures will make the vaccine "as safe as science" can make it.

Idaho's sixth death from polio was Mrs. Annabelle Nelson, 33-year-old mother of two, who died of bulbar polio Sunday. She had not been vaccinated but her two children had been.

Her case brought the Idaho total polio cases to 78 for the year—more than five times the number of cases at this time last year.

Juvenile Delinquent Changed Into Good Boy by Miraculous Calm-Drug

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—This is the story of Jackie, a juvenile delinquent changed into a good boy with aid of a miraculous calm-down drug.

It's a Jekyll-Hyde story, in reverse.

The medicine which helped change Jackie from bad to good was chlorpromazine. How it helps some children is shown in a scientific exhibit at the American Medical association's annual meeting here.

Jackie is 12. His father was a drunkard and mean; his mother "grossly irresponsible." The couple became divorced.

Jackie, then 9, already was destructive, sullen. He became surly, truculent, a fugitive from school. He lied, he stole. He resented his mother's common-law marriage with another man.

Jackie was entered at the Governor Bacon health centre in Delaware City, Del.

He was started on chlorpromazine, and immediately began to change.

His room didn't have to be locked, for the first time in three weeks. He slept well, woke up looking rested, without any drugged appearance.

"During the day he was quiet and co-operative," Doctors James A. Flaherty and Robert L. Gatski said. "Jackie now responded to psychotherapy, adjusted to forms in the group, and showed progress in his school work."

Jackie is one of 45 children treated with chlorpromazine, a tranquillizing or calm-down drug which is making many mental patients able or willing to take psychiatric treatment.

Thirty-nine of these problem youngsters have improved after a week or more on chlorpromazine, and 'continued to improve as they continued the drug. Their social behavior improved, and they became amenable to supervision."

Canada's Jet Power is Seen in Air Show

Performing in the world's largest international air show, before some 200,000 spectators lining Toronto's CNE waterfront, these two Sabre jets make an unusual picture as they soar into the clouds. Of the 125 planes participating in the three-hour Canadian International Air Show, 77 were jets, comprising the largest concentration of Canadian jet power ever assembled in the Dominion. British and American planes gave the show its international flavor. (Central Press Canadian).

Hatchet Man Will Be Sent To Asylum Without Trial

TORONTO (CP)—Walter Czubkowska, 58, unemployed carpenter charged with attempted murder in a hatchet attack Friday on his wife and 21-year-old daughter, will be moved to the Ontario Mental Hospital without a court appearance, police said today.

Doctors ordered Czubkowska moved to the mental hospital as soon as he is sufficiently recovered from bleach poisoning and hatchet wounds which police say were self administered and self inflicted. Officers said charges laid against him may be proceeded with later.

Meanwhile officials at the city hospital where the three are being treated today expressed grave concern over the condition of Czubkowska's 50-year-old wife. They said her condition deteriorated during the weekend and is regarded as critical.

Czubkowska's daughter, Christine, Anne, who was planning to be married in less than three weeks time, has shown some improvement and now is considered in "fair" condition, hospital officials said.

Police said the assault took place because Czubkowska was disheartened over the approaching wedding and over a real estate deal in which he thought he had lost all his money. They said he struck each of the two women twice with a hatchet after drinking bleach, then struck himself.

Service Station Owner Shot Man Blocking Police Call

NEWMARKET (CP)—One man is in hospital suffering from two bullet wounds and another is in Newmarket jail charged with impaired and careless driving and assault as the result of a fracas in a service station following a three-vehicle accident here Saturday night.

Police said Frank van Mook, 56, owner of the service station, fired six shots when two Toronto men tried to keep a woman from telephoning police after the traffic accident.

George Moran, 23, of Toronto is in hospital with bullet wounds in his foot and chest. George Dean, 20, also of Toronto was arrested. He is reported to have been driving a car owned by Moran.

Police said the trouble began when Moran tried to stop Mrs. Jean Ferguson, 21, of Toronto from calling police from the service station after his car collided with a car driven by Mrs. Ferguson's husband and a truck. No one was injured in the accident.

Police said van Mook told them he grabbed his gun after Moran hit him over the head with a flashlight. He said: "He started to wrestle with me trying to get the gun. I had to do something so I shot at his foot."

Mother of Five Wins Her Degree After 54 Years

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) Mrs. August Lynch has put five of her children through Michigan State College. Today, at the age of 75, she gets a degree of her own.

Mrs. Lynch, a widow, was the only member of her family without a college degree when she enrolled at MSC in 1953 as a journalism major.

"I certainly didn't intend to be outdone by my children," she said.

Mrs. Lynch started working on a degree in 1901 at Ferris Institute in Big Rapids, Mich. She received certificates for selling insurance and teaching and taught school for several years.

School Janitor Achieves Aim, Now Principal

HALTWISTLE, Eng. (CP)—The man who used to sweep the classrooms and empty the wastepaper baskets at Haltwistle county school achieved his life-long ambition today—he became principal of the school.

Wilson Bell, now 50, was caretaker before the war and after he came out of the services. But all the time he was studying at home and at evening classes.

Finally he was able to take a teacher's training college course and later returned to his old school as a teacher.

Now he is acting principal. Said the chairman of the governors: "Among the best we have ever had."

RAIL OFFICIAL FIGHTS OFF STEN GUNMAN

Col. Reynolds Hit By One Bullet

NORTH BAY (CP)—A 68-year-old railway official wrestled with a young bandit in his backyard Saturday after being slightly wounded by one of two Sten gun bullets fired during the struggle.

Col. C. E. Reynolds, chairman of the Ontario Northland Railway Commission, was backed up against the kitchen door with the gun against his chest when his assailant fled after becoming aware Mrs. Reynolds was telephoning police.

Police arrested Pte. Gerrard Pilon, 20, of Timmins Sunday and charged him with shooting with intent to maim. He was to appear in court today.

WERE IN GARDEN

Col. Reynolds told police he and his wife had spent the evening working in the garden and Mrs. Reynolds had just returned to the house when he was approached by the gunman.

He quoted the man as saying: "This is a stickup. I mean business."

He said he threw a small garbage continer at the man who then fired the gun, striking Col. Reynolds in the right arm.

He grappled with the man but was unable to wrest the gun from him. Finally the bandit broke free and backed Col. Reynolds toward the house. He demanded money but was told there was none in the house.

TO PHONE FOR HELP

Meanwhile, Mrs. Reynolds, who heard the shots, went into a bedroom to telephone for help.

"She's going to phone," the bandit shouted. "Stop her or I'll give it to you."

Police said Col. Reynolds replied: "Go to hell."

The man then fled around the side of the house, apparently to stop Mrs. Reynolds. Col. Reynolds shouted to his wife to floodlight the grounds. The intruder fled.

Police Sunday recovered a gun near the Reynolds' home.

Pilon carried a card showing he had gone on leave June 2 from Valcartier military camp in Quebec.

Quit Cigarets and You'll Likely Reduce Chances of Lung Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Men who quit smoking cigarets probably cut their risk of dying of lung cancer compared with men who keep on smoking, the American Cancer Society reports.

Its study found that the cancer death rate among a group of ex-smokers was only half that of smokers.

But society officials said that due to the small numbers of smokers and ex-smokers involved it cannot be "proven beyond reasonable doubt" that quitting reduces the risk of lung cancer.

This is a main finding in the latest report of a continuing study of nearly 190,000 men, aged 50 to 70, tieh smoking habits and what they die of.

Criticizing the statistics, Timothy Hartnett, chairman of the tobacco Hartnett, chairman of the tobacco industry research committee, said the ACS study "does not establish any cause-and-effect relationship."

Just a year ago the first report, indicating that cigarets play a role in lung cancer, was announced by Drs R. Cuyler Hammond and Daniel Horn, director and assistant director of the ACS' statistical research.

Today's report at the opening of the AMA's 1955 session covered 32 months and studies of deaths, whether from cancer or other causes, among more than 8,000 men.

Some of the highlights and conclusions:

Lung cancer is rare among men who have never smoked.

The death rate from lung cancer increases with the amount of cigarets smoked. The rate is appreciable even among men who smoke less than 10 cigarets daily.

ONE IN EIGHT

Regardless of whether men live in big-city or rural areas, the rate is high among smokers and low among non-smokers.

Strike Spreading When Agreement Is Announced

Contract May Set Pattern For Entire Auto Industry

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Company and the United Auto Auto Workers CIO reached agreement today on a guaranteed annual wage plan and other contract terms.

The settlement was expected to halt immediately widespread walkouts that made idle 68,000 of Ford's 140,000 workers across the United States in the last 12 hours.

The guaranteed wage plan is the biggest ever negotiated in American industry.

It may set the pattern for the entire automotive industry and perhaps other basic industries.

Armed with the Ford agreement, the UAW went back to the bargaining table with General Motors today to press for a contract settlement there. The GM contract expires Tuesday.

Walter Reuther, president of the UAW, emerged from a conference grinning and told reporters:

"Well, we've got an agreement, fellows. It's a good agreement."

Reuther called it "the largest economic package we've ever negotiated." He said the "package" was worth in excess of 20 cents per hour per employee.

The average auto worker now earns about $2.10 an hour.

PENSION BOOSTED

Reuther said the agreement provides a boost in Ford pensions to a maximum of $241 a month, including social security. It also provides better hospital-medical benefits, he added.

"The Ford package contains the principles upon which we are going to build a guaranteed annual wage."

Still at the bargaining table 10 hours after the UAW's somewhat flexible midnight strike deadline expired, company and union officials were said to have agreed tentatively on these provisions:

A guaranteed wage plan to provide a laid-off worker with 60 to 65 per cent of his normal take home pay for a maximum of 26 weeks. This figure would include state unemployment compensation benefits.

An increase in the "annual improvement factor" from five to six cents an hour for the duration of the contract. These are yearly raises to compensate workers for increased efficiency of men and machines.

Continuation of the cost-of-living wage system, which has governed auto industry wages for the last five years.

The marathon talks that began at 10 a. m. Sunday continued throughout the night and were still going in mid-morning.

These were punctuated by recesses lasting up to three hours, called by first one side, then the other to study proposals and counter-proposals.

While efforts to head off a general Ford strike continued, reports poured in on both the company and union of walkouts in Ford plants and parts depots.

Violence was reported from Chicago. Two strike leaders were arrested at the gate of Ford's jet aircraft engine plant on charges of attempting to overturn an automobile carrying salaried workers.

Double Murder And Suicide Police Believe

TIMAGAMI, Ont. (CP)—Death of three persons in a home here has been described by police as a double murder and suicide.

Inspector Harold Graham of the Ontario Provincial Police said Sunday "It looks like a case of a man going crazy because of his debts."

Allen W. Doughty, 47, his wife, Muriel, 39, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. George Barker, 75, were found dead in their home Friday after neighbors sighted smoke.

An inquest was ordered by coroner Dr. I. Joyal of North Bay, who said an autopsy disclosed both women died of suffocation but also suffered fractured skulls.

Police said Doughty had a knife wound in his neck.

Inspector Graham said circumstances indicated Doughty stabbed himself after the women had been bludgeoned.

The basement had been flooded when the tap on an oil tank was left open. A hole was chopped in the floor of the bedroom in which the bodies were found.

It was believed the hole was cut in order to light the oil. However, the oil didn't burn fiercely and firemen soon put out the flames.

Last Saturday officials of the Ontario lands department notified Doughty he must pay $4,000 collected in the sale of fishing licences last year. Also they seized $6,000 worth of 1955 licences issued to him earlier.

Doughty operated a store, a freezing plant and a wholesale oil business. Dr. Joyal said presence of "black soot" in the lungs of the three indicated they were breathing at the time after the fire started.

11-POUND, 15-OUNCE PICKEREL HOOKED IN FISHING DERBY

Thirteen members of the Lions Club took part in a fishing derby at Hay Bay over the week-end and Don Raymond came up with the best catch of the season that probably will stand up for the rest of the angling year. He caught a pickerel weighing eleven pounds, fifteen ounces and the weight was checked by the chairman of the derby, "Gibby" Gibson, which made it authentic. Another fine specimen was hooked by "Scotty" Reid, which tipped the scales at an even five pounds. The party did not reach their quota but a goodly number of pickerel were taken.

Where the fish was caught has not been disclosed, except to say it was hooked in Hay Bay. The members of the party gathered for lunch and a shore picnic was held. All in all it was a successful day and much enjoyed by the boys.

How long it has been in the garden is problematical.

BCI Cadets Make Excellent Showing In Dominion Marksmen Competition

The Belleville Collegiate Institute cadet marksmen made a highly creditable showing in the winter competition of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, according to results just released.

The BCI sharpshooters finished in 30th position among 454 teams of the sea, army and air cadets. They had a total of 3360 on 36 targets with an average score of 93.33.

Brockville CI was the only school in the immediate district to top the city cadets. This school had a total of 3384 and an average of 93.861. Kingston CI finished in 51st position with 3305 for 91.805; Cornwall was 44th with 3336 for 92.666; Smiths Falls CI had 3120 for 86.666 and Napanee had an average of 84.000.

Actually the BCI cadets finished in tenth position in the "B" division class. They rated 30th in the first division by virtue of their score and next year will be elevated to the senior classification.

There were eighty schools firing in the first division and 374 shooting in the "B" division. When it is realized that BCI finished tenth in a field of 374 "B" schools it should give some idea of the excellence of their achievement. Their mark of 93.333 bettered those of some fifty schools in the "A" division.

A total of 12 jury cases, four of them charges under the Criminal Code, are entered for trial at the General Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings of the Hastings county court, which commenced this morning before His Honor Judge G. F. Smith of Napanee at the county court house. Judge Smith is county judge for Lennox and Addington.

Heading the list of criminal cases to be heard is that of The Crown versus Roy Wood of Wallbridge. Wood is charged with the theft of more than $1,000 from the township of Sidney while serving as tax collector for that municipality.

The Wood case went before the Grand Jury this morning with a long list of Crown witnesses ready to be called. The Grand Jury can bring in a true bill if it decides sufficient evidence has been heard to place the accused on trial.

Other criminal cases to be heard include that of the Crown versus James Richard Dolan. Mr. Dolan is charged with fraud in connection with the sale of mining stock.

Also scheduled for trial are 18 non-jury cases.

75 Immigrants Make Application For Citizenship

The varied accents of close to a dozen different European tongues were heard at the Hastings county court house this morning as stairways and halls leading to the main court room were crowded with men and women making application for Canadian citizenship.

Court house officials stated that approximately 75 persons were making application for Canadian citizenship. Many of them were young couples with one, two or three small kiddies in tow. Others were accompanied by close friends or relatives who had been in Canada many years and had already become Canadian citizens.

Following the panelling of the grand and petit juries who were to hear the first of the criminal cases on the court docket, the persons seeking citizenship appeared before His Honor Judge G. F. Smith of Napanee, as their names were called by court officials.

Questions relative to Canada and to the Canadian form of government were asked by Judge Smith. Replies in some instances were hesitant, possibly because of language barriers, but in the main showed knowledge of Canadian government, both at the municipal and federal level.

If Not on List, New Procedure Permits Voting

A new election regulation provides that a voter whose name is not on the voters' list can vote if his name is on the municipal voters' list and both he, and a registered resident of the same polling sub-division, take an oath that he is qualified to vote.

M. C. Burgess, returning officer for Hastings West, brought the new regulation to the attention of voters Monday morning.

Following is the new regulation as it appears in the Election Act.

"In urban polling sub-divisions the deputy returning officer if requested by a person whose name has been omitted in error from the polling list, but whose name appears on the municipal voters' list for the polling sub-division in which he resides as being entitled to vote at provincial elections and who is vouched for by a voter whose name is on the polling list, and who is resident in the polling sub-division shall administer such person an oath in the following form:

"Do you swear that your name is (name of applicant) that you reside at (street number) that your name appears on the municipal voters' list for the polling sub-division in which you reside as being entitled to vote at provincial elections; that your name as you believe has been omitted in error from the polling list; that you are a British subject and qualified to vote at this election, so help you, God."

If a voter has been enumerated and has his enumeration slip, and for some reason his name does not appear on the voters' list, he can vote by presenting the slip to the deputy returning officer and taking the same oath.

Rural residents whose names are not on the voters' list can vote if they take an oath as to their eligibility which is vouched for by a registered resident of that polling sub-division.

Hasty Pees' Mascot Feeds Its Guardians

The army vehicle pulled to a stop outside a "curb-service" restaurant on Highway No. 2, west of Kingston on Sunday.

The attendant came briskly to the truck. "Yes, gentlemen, what is it?" he sang out briskly.

The solemn-faced sergeant at the wheel placed a finger on his lips. "Quiet," he said softly, "we have a dead Indian in the vehicle."

"You have what?" gasped the attendant.

"A dead Indian," repeated the sergeant.

The attendant paused for a moment, "Listen, you guys, who do you think you're kidding. Furthermore if you've a dead Indian back there, whatever you want is on the house."

The sad-faced sergeant never batted an eyelash.

"Corporal," he said, "remove the blankets from the corpse and convince this man."

The corporal obeyed instructions. The attendant took a look, the spluttered, "Why, you . . . "

Then he grinned. "Okay you guys win. What will it be?"

A few minutes later Sergeant Mitch Rashotte and Corporal F. Davis of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, were on their way home from the group inspection, glutted with free hot dogs and "coke."

In the rear of the trunk unaware of the commotion he had caused, lay "Chief Petawawa-Much," wooden Indian mascot of the regiment.

Police Blotter

House break-ins, both successful and attempted, prowlers, drunks and a car theft, kept city police busy over the week-end.

A 1948 model car was stolen from the Simmons Used Car Lot on North Front street, the thief forcing the office door to secure the keys. The car was recovered on Herchimer Ave.

Three homes were entered, one on North Front street where a second-storey worker made off with a piggy bank and its contents. Again at a Station street address, while the family was out for a drive the house was entered with a purse being taken from the kitchen table. A cheque amounting to just over $46 and $9.85 was taken. The empty purse was left in the woodshed. On MacDonald Gardens another home was entered and a wallet containing $13 was taken from the kitchen table.

Also an attempted break-in was reported at the Alvin Smith Grocery on College St., West.

A baby sitter reported prowlers around Church street house, while Ronald Hyde - Whipp, Yeoman street, reported that his car had humped into the grandstand at the Belleville fair grounds causing $50 damage to the car and $25 to the brickwork of the stand.

Two Belleville Rinks Tops In Trenton Tourney

Two Belleville rinks and a Kingston threesome took top honors at the trebles tournament staged by the Trenton Lawn Bowling Club for the George Brown trophy. Despite the winter kill that the greens suffered, they were in exceptionally good shape due to a lot of hard work by the committee. The draws on both sides were fairly even and except for an occasional bump were keen and fast and some excellent bowling was witnessed.

A rink of Bill Wright, Gordon Vince and Gordon Watkin as skip defeated another Belleville rink of Bruce Miller, Gordon Edwards and L.E. McLean as skip for top honors of the tourney, while a rink of J. Smith, Claude D. Tice and Austin Watkin as skip won the two-game high after being defeated in the first game by Ralph Hinton and his rink from Kingston. The one-game high score went to Leo Papi, W. Duncan and James Duncan as skip of Kingston.

Other Belleville rinks to compete was Robert Davis, Cliff Argue and Percy Graham. There were fourteen rinks entered, five from Kingston, four from Belleville, one from Brighton one from Campbellford and three from the host club. Roy Brown, acting in the absence of the president with Bill Findlay ran the draw, while Mr. Brown made the presentation at the end of play. Delightful weather made the day an enjoyable one.

The next tournament will be a mixed doubles at Brighton, while on Saturday men's doubles will be played at the local greens and a large entry from the district is expected.

McIntyre fell 1⅛ in a firm golds group and Preston East Dome gained 40 to $9.15 and Dome ½.

Western oils were mixed with Jupiter, Pembina and Consolidated West Petroleums recording strongest advances.

Library Board Approves New Policy, Plans

The Board of Directors of the Corby Public Library, at its June meeting last Friday, approved a new sick leave policy for library employees and directed that proper steps be taken to convert the basement into suitable storage rooms for books and magazines.

The librarian's report showed a total circulation of 10,466 books in May bringing the total for the first five months to 54,815.

At the main library books loaned to adults totalled 5,872 while juvenile circulation was 2,657. At the East Hill branch, 255 adult books were loaned and 964 juvenile, while at the King George branch 718 juvenile books were circulated.

New members enrolled at the library during May totalled 102 bringing new members in the first five months to 510 of which 324 are adults.

During May 18 records were borrowed from the music library, 40 movies were borrowed from the film library and 20 projector bookings taken. In the first five months of 1955, 113 projector bookings have been taken and 283 films have been loaned.

Twenty-five classes from the public and separate schools have visited the library for book classes since January and school talks have been given to children at Queen Elizabeth, St. Michael's and King George schools.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. Hughes, who has served as assistant librarian for 3 1/2 years.

Co-operative Plan to Build Houses in Thurlow Twp. Opens With Laying of Stone

They're building a new housing project in Thurlow township and though the men don't receive a pay envelope at the week's end for their work, they likely are the happiest labor force anywhere in Canada.

They are the 30 members of the Woodland Acres Co-operative Limited, who through their combined efforts hope to provide new houses for their families by the year's end.

Starting this week, the houses which depend for their completion on a foundation of community spirit and enthusiasm for the future, probably will be finished by Christmas.

At least that was the gist of the talk Saturday when the project was officially launched at a quiet ceremony attended by church dignitaries, municipal representatives and officials connected in some way or other with the project.

Over 80 people, including children stood around the little official party for the ceremony. Around them in brilliant sunshine lay seven acres of green fields, studded with mounds of earth marking 17 excavations, where work already had commenced on the initial stages of the construction. Six months from now a new divisions of houses would be standing, probably surrounded by snow while inside they sit down to Christmas dinner.

This unofficial slogan of "Home for Christmas Dinner" has set the deadline for completion of the 30 houses.

The speechmaking was brief but official party stood without any sign of discomfiture in the above-eighty temperature waiting for the climax of the ceremonies. That came when three of the most important figures in the scheme lifted and tapped into place on Lot 29, a cement building block, signifying the laying of the foundation stone to the project.

THREE LAID STONE

Laying the stone was the job of E. C. Connell, branch manager of CMHC, R. L. Sexsmith, Desoronto, general contractor on the site and A. S. Martin, manager of the co-operative.

Prior to that the assembly had witnessed B. W. Besley, Kingston Road United church, give the invocation site and heard the Rev. J. J. Buckley dedicate the site, which incidentally comes under the wing of his parish of St. Joseph's.

In pronouncing the dedication Fr. Buckley noted the coincidence that the site should be within his parish, since St. Joseph himself was a carpenter and the patron saint of all workmen.

He commended the project further by adding that in people's ownership of their own homes lay the greatest bulwark against communism and "all the other 'isms'."

Cecil Ketcheson, reeve of Thurlow, welcomed the new families to his township. He said Thurlow was pleased to have them and that the township would give every assistance.

Gordon Murchison, associate director, Loans Insurance Division, CMHC, recalled that the founding of the co-operative idea in housing was in the Maritimes while J. D. McArthur, manager of the Royal Bank, told the co-operative members his institution was pleased to be associated with their work.

Leo Belanger, closely associated with a similar co-operative project in Peterborough, which sparked the scheme here praised the movement. "The co-operative idea has people standing together to lick their own common problems," he said.

ALL BUILT TO STANDARD

To this end the 30 men in the Woodland co-operative are working. When their job is done they and their families will be housed in five two-storey houses, 15 one-and-one-half storey structures and 10 bungalows. All will be built according to CHMC standards.

The exact location of the projection is west of Farley Ave., and between the Bridge St. and projected Victoria Ave. extensions. The scheme will be built around a thoroughfare the only vehicular entrance to the project running north from Bridge St. while access will be made into Farley Avenue by a park walk. The houses themselves will be erected about four short cul-de-sacs, running off on both sides of the main thoroughfare, off Bridge.

Each member of the co-op will put in a minimum of about 15 hours work a week, but Ray Brule president of the organization, says the average work-week for the spare-time builders will run into between 20 and 25 hours.

With the men, despite the fact they have had to drop most of community activities for the work testiness and fatalism are nonexistent on the job. Saturday following the official ceremonies, many of them were eagerly back to work, clambering over the mounds of earth and pumping the foundation craters free of water. They tackle the job with enthusiasm. For one thing, while they are working under the general supervision of the Sexsmith company, they don't have a foreman, who can properly bawl them out, despite the fact many of them are working with unaccustomed machinery and tools.

Saturday two of them working a pump found it was nothing but air pumping. Despite examination of the line and the primer, nothing could be found wrong at first.

NOT PROPERLY CONNECTED

"Aw heck no wonder, we're not getting a thing," said someone pointing out the pumping-line's connection with the primer wasn't screwed properly.

"Get me a bucket of water from the basement," quipped another, rubbing the mud from the nozzle. "And no mud it it. I want nothing but the best."

"I'll see if I can bring y'up a pickerel," came the retort from the waterlogged crater.

White-collar workers, electruck drivers, looking and making like laborers and such in their spare time (and this year on their vacations) are what is making the co-operative work here.

The idea first started in Ontario three years ago in Ottawa at St. Patrick's College. A co-operative group soon formed there and shortly afterwards was followed by others at Lindsay and Peterborough. Toward the close of 1953 Clair Paxman heard about the co-op in Peterborough and following a get-together of interested citizens a group started here in January last year. Eventually the movement here branched out into four different groups which began studying building in general at each other's homes.

"We studied from eight small pamphlets issued by Institute of Social Action at St. Patrick's in Ottawa," Ray Brule said.

"To co-ordinate the efforts of the study groups there was a central administration set up and that set up committees to look into the various aspects of the building.

"Finally when most of that mental spadework was done we were incorporated into a limited company. We were down to 30 solid citizens by that time.

VOTE TO CHOOSE SITE

In choosing the site the members probably had what was their first difference of opinion. Some plumped for a site to the west of the city while others preferred an east location. Finally, one snowy day in January they surveyed the separate locations, held a meeting which returned a majority in favor of the present location.

"Although some wanted to go west it was a co-operative effort so now everybody's very happy about it," said president Brule. "That has been the way all through. It is one thing to know co-operation but it is another thing to live it. These fellows are doing just that."

Then the members laid out their down payments on the property while the bank advanced them a loan to meet initial expenses until CMHC verified their loan, Brule continued.

The verification came through last Wednesday and now, with all its birth pains behind it and everything down to the official opening the co-operative is ready to start producing.

"It means the fellows will have to work very hard," Brule said.

However they will not have to do all the work.

"We have a number of contractors in order to handle the more technical aspects of the building and to ensure that it is done in the approved manner."

"We have the 30 of them divided into seven crews, who will be detailed into the work they do every night."

His explanation was interrupted by two men hunting for a steel tape. When they found it they ambled back toward one of the mounds, marking a home and the most momentous Christmas dinner they may ever sit down to. One was a white collar worker, the other an express company driver.

MEANS MODERN HOMES

At the time both might have been taken for full-time construction workers

When they, and their 28 companions in optimism, are finished their job, it will mean modern homes for about 120 people.

Not one of them is uncertain the project will ever reach completion and this quiet stubbornness and enthusiasm is prevalent among other members of their families.

"My wife thought it was a lot of silly nonsense at first," said one co-operator, standing back for a breather from one of the pumps. "Now she is more interested in it than I am."

Two City Golfers Win Medals

Two Belleville golfers earned National Golf Day medals on Saturday when they topped the scores recorded by Ed. Furgol and Patty Berg.

Clark James was the only male golfer to qualify for an "I beat Furgol" medal. He shot a 68 net as against Furgol's 72.

Mrs. Anne Acton also qualified with a 75 net score, beating Patty Berg's 77.

Twenty-seven city and district golfers took part in the event, the proceeds of which go to junior golf promotion and special charities.

Eastern Ontario's Militia Inspected in Colorful Parade

(By GEO. H. CARVER)

Upwards of 1,200 members of Eastern Ontario's militia regiments concentrated on the Barriefield parade square, Kingston, Sunday, where they underwent the first mass inspection and ceremonial parade in the history of Canada's civilian army.

Nearly 5,000 people bordered the square as the khaki-clad warriors paraded and marched past under a blazing sun. Major-General H. D. Graham, CBE, DSO, ED, CD., general officer commanding Central Command, Oakville, was the inspecting officer and took the salute in the march-past.

The square, reminiscent of the days when the war drums throbbed, resounding to the tramp of marching feet, the blare of brass and trumpet bands, as the 'troops', representing various branches of the service marched proudly past the reviewing stand with rounds of applause greeting the various units.

The scarlet and blue uniforms and black plumed shakos of the crack band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals; the red-and-blue of the Cobourg Artillery Band, the red-bereted Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental band under Sergeant Geo. Christopher and other bands added color to one of the most colorful shows seen at Barriefield in some time.

COLORFUL SHOW

Topping the color scheme was the old Fort Henry Guard, which gave a demonstration of the army drill used over one hundred years ago. The close-packed columns of fours in their brilliant scarlet tunics, blue trousers, white accoutrements, glistening bayonets on ancient muskets and the fife and drum band in cream tunics with blue trousers topped with the plumed caps was a brilliant sight. "David," a white goat and mascot of the guard, proudly led the guardsmen during the demonstration.

Following the inspection and ceremonial the various bands gave marching and playing demonstrations, receiving well-deserved rounds of applause from the large crowd.

The parade went off without a hitch. During the morning the many units comprising thirteen Militia, commanded by Colonel L. N. Carr, of Port Hope, went thru' a stiff rehearsal, and receiving last minute instructions.

During the show proper, the units marched like veterans behind their various bands and earned the congratulations of the commanding general given them in a post-parade address. The heat took its toll in the morning with several being prostrated. A well-organized medical service took care of the "casualties."

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment under the command of Lieut.-Col. E. S. Fairman lived up to its reputation of being the best militia unit in Eastern Ontario. The regiment supplied some 340 of the near-1200 on parade and their march-past bespoke excellent training. They drew continuous rounds of applause as they swung by the reviewing stand.

Looking down with inanimate pride from a special post in a corner of the square was the regimental mascot, "Chief Petawawa-Mucus," huge wooden Indian Chief. Next to it proudly fluttering in the breeze was the famous battle-flag of the regiment guarded by Sergeant M. Rashotte, Sergt. Gordon Carter and Corporal F. Davis. The mascot attracted a lot of attention from the spectators. Apparently it materialized from a blue sky as no one from the colonel to the drummer boy knew how it got there.

Although not large numerically, the second Belleville unit, the 27th Technical Squadron RCEME, made a particularly fine showing under the command of Captain R. Murphy, receiving its share of spectator applause.

With Major General Howard Graham in the inspection and reviewing party, were Col. Carr, commanding 13 Militia; Brigadier M. S. Dunn, commanding Eastern Arena; Col. M. C. Jones, commandant RCEME, Kingston, and Major R. Cummings, GSO 2, Eastern Area.

Col. Carr commanded the groups during the general salute which took place shortly after Major General Graham's arrival at 2.30 p.m.

Most of the out-of-town units arrived at Barriefield Saturday being quartered in barracks over night. The Hasty Pees left the armouries here Sunday morning at 7.30 by Department of National Defence vehicles. Out-of-town units of the regiment travelled direct from their locales.

Tribute to 13 Militia for its achievement in the first mass inspection of Canadian militia in history was paid by Major General Graham at the close of the afternoon ceremonies and entertainment.

"The public interest in the parade as exemplied in the large crowd bespoke interest in the militia," he said. He paid tribute to Col. Carr and his staff, the various units, especially members of the Women's Army Corps.

To the units he said "It is very encouraging to see the increased strength in many of the units. You are all doing an important job in readying yourself for the defence of your county. It has been said that it is the duty of every man to prepare himself for such duty.

Major General Graham said he noted many veterans of World War II and a few of World War I on parade. He was particularly pleased to see many younger men ready to prepare themselves if war should come. "I sincerely hope it will not. If we make ourselves so strong an aggressor will think twice before he takes any action."

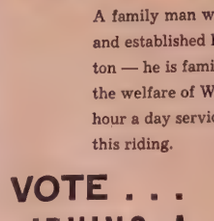
MANY UNITS

He added tribute to the fine demonstration given by the Fort Henry Guard.

The units participating were: 33 Med. Regt. RCA and Band under command Lt.-Col. R. S. Lucas, MC, from Cobourg (and Lindsay), 3 Ind. Med. Bty. RCA under command of Major L. V. Earle from Gananoque, 22 Ind. Med. Bty. RCA under command Capt. A. Smith from Napanee, 32 Locating Bty. (Brockville Rifles) RCA and Band under command Major W. S. Watson from Brockville, Princess of Wales Own Regt. and Band under command Lt.-Col. J. A. Cunningham from Kingston, Hastings and Prince Edward Regt. and Band under command Lt. Col. E. S. Fairman from Belleville (and Picton, Trenton, Port Hope, Madoc), 11 Medical Coy. under command Lt.-Col. G. McCracken from Kingston, 27 Tech. Sqn. RCEME under command of Capt. R. Murphy from Belleville, 28 Tech. Sqn. RCEME under command of Capt. T. E. Duffield from Peterborough, 105 Manning Depot under command of Lt.-Col. O. A. Earle from Kingston and 50 HAA Regt. RCA and Band under command Lt.-Col. H. R. Hammell, CD from Peterborough.

New French Jet Attains Speed Of 1,000 M.P.H.

PARIS (AP) — A new French jet interceptor was reported today to have reached a speed of between 750 and 1,000 miles in horizontal flight over the Melun-Villaroche airfield, 30 miles south of Paris.



A spokesman at the air ministry said the reports, published in all Paris papers today, were "basically true."

The prototype plane, called the Trident SO-9000, is powered by two jets, one at the tip of each wing, and with three rockets at the tail.

The performance Saturday was made with the use of only two of the three rockets, it was reported. Test pilot Charles Goujon was at the controls.

With its three rockets Trident is expected to reach a speed of about 1,125 miles an hour.

SO THIS IS SURPRISING?

Eddy Gilmore, the gifted Moscow correspondent of the Associated Press for many years, has been in Yugoslavia and thus has the opportunity to watch Nikita Krushchev, reported the new king of the Kremlin. What he saw amazed him and he has contrasted Krushchev with Josef Stalin, who ruled the USSR with an iron hand during the twelve years Gilmore spent in Moscow. Stalin had thick black hair while Krushchev is bald; Stalin seldom talked but Krushchev talks all the time; Stalin's face was angular, Krushchev's is round; Stalin ambled like a bear but Krushchev bounces along; Stalin was bad tempered but Krushchev romps; Stalin dressed with care but Krushchev is a sloppy dresser.

Times, as well as men, seem to have changed in the Kremlin, says Gilmore.

What is surprising about all this? If Gilmore thinks that similar political creeds are always accompanied by similar personal appearances, he should come to Canada. Does St. Laurent look like Mackenzie King? Could M. J. Coldwell be mistaken for J. S. Woodsworth's son? Does George Drew remind anyone of R. B. Bennett?

Or, for that matter, who looks more like Churchill, Eden or Aneurin Bevan?

It might be said Gilmore was just writing something interesting. It is not physical similarities but mental ones which make men political colleagues.

To be sure, to be sure. Like Mackenzie King's spiritualism and St. Laurent's Catholicism, for instance? Like George Bernard Shaw's agnosticism and Charles Millard's intense interest in Sunday School?

SENIORITY REVISION LIKELY

Union seniority clauses may go into reverse gear if organized labor obtains the guaranteed annual wage.

That, at least, is the only answer which readily suggests itself as the solution to a problem posed by the Kingston Whig-Standard.

The Kingston paper, as far as we are aware, is the first to take a close look at the working of any guaranteed annual wage and discover a king-sized fly in the ointment.

The guaranteed annual wage, it says, does not require guaranteed annual work for every employee, but merely requires that if an employee has been laid off for any reason other than his sickness he must be paid as if he were at work.

When slack times come, employees will be laid off and paid as if they are working.

But present union seniority clauses require that men who have worked at a plant the longest shall be the last to be laid off work.

Therefore the men who will get paid for not working will be juniors.

"We wonder," muses the Kingston editor, "how the union is going to convince a man who has worked twenty years at Ford that he should work all day in a noisy machine shop in order to earn his pay, whilst a man with two years' seniority only will be getting his pay for going fishing."

DAVY CROCKETT TO THE RESCUE

Perusing the advertising pages of this great family journal, where can be gathered a wealth of information about things which make the world go round, we note that the well dressed young man will shortly be arrayed in coonskin hats, frontier shirts and denim jeans. Davy Crockett has moved north of the frontier.

This revival of interest in the white man's side of the pioneering days on this continent comes in the nick of time. Of late there has been a disturbing tendency, south of the border, to recognize that the poor Indian sometimes only waved his tomahawk in defence of his teepee. Had this trend reached the stage of immortalizing any Indian, there might have been a brisk demand amongst the younger generation this summer for breech clothes and feathers—a development which would have been viewed with mutual alarm by the keepers of the community's morals and the watchers of the stores' cash registers.

Hurray for Davy Crockett. Once again he has come to the rescue.

(P.S.—Those war whoops you hear are from parents who have just been told they would make an excellent substitute for b'ars if they do not properly outfit twentieth century Davy Crocketts.)

STAGE FRIGHT

An Associated Press story from London describes "the biggest social blooper of the year."

At a celebrity-studded first night of the play "The Reluctant Debutante" a theatre official bawled out three young girls who clambered over the stage scenery to reach a back stage party. A few moments later they were back again—the same way.

The official shouted at them to "Get out and come in the right way." Later he learned that one of the girls was Princess Alexandra, the Queen's cousin, and ninth in line to the throne.

Youth and high spirits in an 18-year-old girl, even a princess, can be responsible for "coming in the wrong way" to a theatre party. It hardly seems necessary to call it "the biggest social blooper of the year."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

WEDDING CUSTOM

From church, their vows of marriage said,
Away to greet their friends they sped.
A placard on their car was tied
Proclaiming they were groom and bride.
"Just Married," meaning starting life
Forevermore as man and wife.
Time was upon our wedding day
"Just Married," we two rode away;
Were showered with rice and underwent
The tricks which pranksters smart invent.
And so when they passed out of view
What they'd experience I knew.
I also knew the smiles and tears
They'd have to share throughout the years.
But if together close they stay
They'll learn from skies of blue and gray
"Just Married" leads to troubled days.
"Long Married" is a happier phrase.

Trade Homes For Holidays

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

An idea that is said to be making headway in the British Isles is that of swapping homes for holidays. For example, a family in Scotland may exchange with a family in the south of England for two weeks or a month.

The plan began after the war when an English soldier who had fought in Holland maintained correspondence with a family with whom he had been billeted over there.

Each family wished to see and learn something about the other's country so they exchanged homes for one month.

Now there are many advertisements in the papers from families willing to exchange, but more deals are made through one family being introduced to another.

There are not only exchanges of homes in Scotland and England but with homes in various countries on the continent. Each family takes its own bedding and towels, but otherwise things are left intact.

This not only gives families a real change, but the cost is limited to transportation and food. Accommodation is always a big item in a holiday, and that cost is eliminated.

Festival Plans Tour

(Edmonton Journal)

The Stratford Festival of Ontario, which will commence its nine-week presentation of drama and music at the end of June, is planning to send a "road company" on tour next winter, according to two of its officials, Mrs. Robin Patterson and Miss Laurel Crosby, who visited Calgary recently in the course of a western tour to look over the ground to make preliminary arrangements.

This project will commend itself to many Canadians. The festival in Stratford has established itself as one of the most remarkable theatrical ventures to spring up in this country since the end of the war. This year its program will include not only performances of Shakespeare's plays and other dramas but a wealth of music presented by outstanding artists from Canada and from other countries. It is thus taking on some of the appearance of the more grandiose festivals staged in the United States and overseas, such as the Edinburgh.

The idea of a winter tour by some of the players is a happy inspiration. It is to be hoped that the country will respond to the idea and support it.

Druids Were Smart Men

(Montreal Gazette)

Prehistoric man wasn't the apelike dullard he's been painted. Discoveries in Britain continue to stress that he was much brainier than has generally been supposed.

Astronomers have believed for some time that the famous shrine of Stonehenge was constructed on June 21, 1840 B.C.—3,703 years ago—because on that day the first rays of sunlight would have streamed along the axis of the great stone enclosure. The design of the shrine, they believe, proves that man, at that date, knew enough astronomy to predict this sunrise effect.

The 14-foot columns at Stonehenge were lowered into their pits by burning the charcoal with which the pits were first filled, an ingenious engineering job. Samples of the charcoal remaining in the pits were sent to the Institute of Nuclear Studies, in California. By carefully checking the radiation of the samples, the Institute estimated they had been burned roughly 3,796 years ago, remarkably close to the astronomer's calculation.

Stonehenge is more than an engineering feat; it's the earliest known example of fore-shortening being used in architecture, a technique made famous in the golden age of Greece. If the Druid monument was built in 1840 B.C. however, it preceded the Greek use of foreshortening by some 1,000 years. Archaeologists believe it a logical deduction that the Greeks may have learned the trick from the ancient Britons. They have proof of British trade with Greece at this early period, more than 3,500 years ago.

These finds indicate that the Britons made better stone axes than were available on the continent. And just the other day, two British scientists visiting Stonehenge saw something new when a bright shaft of sunlight struck one of the pillars. On its surface, they found the carving of a Greek dagger of the type the Britons would have received in trade for the stone axes.

Making superior tools, engaging in trade, architecture, engineering, astronomy — these activities sound as if the inhabitants of Britain in those days were far from savages. Perhaps they were more civilized than modern man seems to be in many respects.

Dislikes Diner On 'Iffy' Basis

(Ottawa Citizen)

It would seem a shame that Mr. Crump would settle into his new seat running the CPR without his being made immediately aware that there are cranks in the land. And so, to him and to his running mate Donald Gordon we despatch the following message:

Those new fancy trains with transparent roofs and built-in beds and all are no doubt great stuff for the blurb boys and the gimmick-collectors. But don't forget the plain old railroads and railway equipment and railway operation.

A short while back we took the afternoon train from Toronto to Ottawa, a pool job we understand. On getting on board we asked whether the diner would be on from Brockville to Ottawa or did we have to start lining up about 5.30 to get a seat in the diner and a meal in our stomachs before we got to Brockville. The reply was that maybe the diner would be on after Brockville and maybe it wouldn't. And they wouldn't know until they got nearly to Brockville, perhaps 7.30. "It depends on how many people we have wanting to eat."

We submit this is a hell of a way to run a railroad, if we may use the old Scotsman's language. To say a dining car equipment may or may not be on a railway run is surely not what we've come to expect from modern transport. Things were better years ago.

A diner on an "iffy" basis is no diner at all. Not only does it pile passengers into a rushed meal on a six-hour trip when eating should be made one of the ways to pass the time but it provokes lineups when line-ups are not necessary. And if it is inconvenient for the passenger coming from Toronto think of the man who gets on nearer Brockville. He asks his station master whether he can get a meal on the train and the reply is "maybe."

Mr. Crump and Mr. Gordon should try this some time. To line up to eat at 5.45 or run the risk of not eating at all is handily the way to keep people from flying. And this on a train that isn't due in Ottawa until 10.05 in the evening and which, incidentally, more often than not arrives nearer 10.30. Mussolini made the trains run on time and we know what happened to Mussolini. But even so!

Japan Builds Long Tunnel

(Japan Reports)

The second longest vehicular tunnel in the world, next only to the Mersey Tunnel in the United Kingdom, the Kanmon Highway Tunnel, to connect Shimonoseki on Honshu Island with Moi on Kyushu, is nearing completion. It is expected to open for traffic in the spring of 1958. The underwater highway, capable of handling 2,000 motor vehicles an hour, will supplement the railway tunnel which has been in operation since 1944, and the ferry service plying between Honshu and Kyushu. With the joining of the rich industrial districts of Kyushu with Japan's main island the national economy will be strengthened.

The Kanmon Undersea Highway has a total length of 2.16 miles, of which more than three-quarters of a mile are underground, the rest undersea.

The engineers battle tremendous odds in its construction, having to bore through rock for the most part. Due to rock faults at the bottom of the straits seepage from the bottom had to be dealt with. Consequently cement grouting and chemical injection were used to harden the rock. An arch of steel was then erected inside the tunnel.

The interior is being partitioned to handle motor-cars, bicycle and pedestrian traffic as well as to inject fresh air and to get rid of automobile exhaust. Fluorescent lighting will be used throughout, and ventilation shafts with propellor fans will be installed at four places.

A concrete lining is now in progress, its thickness up to one meter for the undersea portion and from two to two feet four inches for the land portion.

The problem of traversing the Kanmon Straits has been in the limelight for more than 30 years, and at one time a bridge was contemplated. In 1937, however, the decision was made to construct a tunnel. Work was begun in 1939, but the war-years retarded it, and full scale operations were not resumed until 1951. In that year $8,750,000 was appropriated for the purpose on the basis of a five-year project.

Elephants, Drive Slowly!

(Hamilton Spectator)

In Kenya there is a road sign that warns motorists with the following: "Elephant in forest. Go slow at night."

We cannot help thinking that the second half of this warning is somewhat superfluous, for after all, where is the speeding motorist who would like to try conclusions on a dark night with a wild elephant? Or is it possible that the authorities fear that the world's biggest animal might come off second best in an encounter with a car and that the sign is prompted more out of sympathy for elephants than for human beings?

Despite their size, elephants are usually quite timid and this consideration for them by the authorities is prompted, no doubt, by the knowledge that the battle for existence in the jungle has not yet taught animals that if they want to go on living they must learn how to skip nimbly out of the way of speeding cars.

GO

A glance into a concordance of the word "go" in the New Testament. Everyone is familiar with some of the "go" passages: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations. "Whomsoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain." "Go and do thou likewise." "I go to prepare a place for you."

There is a lot said in the New Testament about going for Christianity is a religion of action. Jesus and his disciples were constantly moving about the country, preaching, teaching, healing, helping. The history of the Christian Church is full of almost incredible energy and activity.

There is a significance in this fact. Notice the people who complain about and criticize the church most—they almost never are the ones who are really active in any Christian work. The man who says that he doesn't get anything out of religion is likely to be the man whose religion consists in sitting sleepily in a pew once a week and expecting something to happen to him.

If you don't get much of religion, try putting more into it, especially "go". There are a thousand deeds in any community waiting for a good Christian to come along and do them. Christian faith began with One who was always doing. Go thou and do likewise!

Personal Health Talks

It's Your Own Fault If You Haven't Vite

Q—What is a tonic?

A—A medicine that increases or restores physical or mental tone, invigorates, refreshes or braces. (Webster.)

Q—What's tone?

A—Firmness of the healthy body, particularly firmness of the muscles which exists independently of voluntary effort.

Q—Please name a good tonic or two?

A—Not so fast. You remember this is a health column, not a clinic.

Away back when I was an honest family doctor—well, then, a family doctor, I dispensed barrels of tonic and what's more, a good many patients came back again and again for more of the same tonic.

My whooper duper tonic must have tasted—I can't describe the taste, because, I'm afraid, I never tasted the stuff myself, but I can tell you that if a tonic didn't taste very bad it wasn't any good Maybe you can get an idea of the taste when I say it was Elixir of Iron, Quinine, and Strychnine, N. F., and may the Lord have mercy on my soul.

The truth is that, to the best of my knowledge, no medicine or combination of medicines can be truthfully described as a tonic.

Nerve tonic? Don't be childish.

Heart tonic? Are you serious?

Essential food is tonic. Regular moderate general daily exercise is tonic. Clean fresh air is tonic. Necessary rest is tonic.

Essential food does not mean purified, refined, prepared, processed, homogenized, tenderized, fortified, defatted or otherwise doctored stuff ready to serve right out of the convenient can or the pretty package. It means food in its natural form, with all the nutritional factors required by the body in it—protein, fat, carbohydrate (starch and sugar), fibre, cellulose, bone marrow, minerals and vitamins.

Take the staff of life, for instance. What passes for bread nowadays is only a broken reed. Prior to the middle of the 19th century nearly if not quite all of the wheat went into the grist or flour universally used for bread making. The dainty bleached product called flour today cannot support life, much less satisfy hunger, even though it comes marked "enriched."

Wheat is the richest natural source of vitamin B complex and inadequate intake of vitamin B complex is largely accountable for the flabbiness or lack of tone in heart, artery, stomach, intestinal and other muscle tissues of children and adults who are not as vigorous and healthy as they should be.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ASSETS

When I get discouraged and feel I have been sidetracked, I have learned that self-pity is the worst remedy that can be taken at such a time. It's like being driven to a blind alley or being deserted by a friend long trusted. We can only find our way back to useful work and happiness by locating someone else who is far worse off than we are.

A business firm's assets are what count in giving it a healthy report. It's the same with us as human beings. We ought to stop and record our assets—not monetary merely, but those that lift us, set us apart, and give substance to our personality and character.

Health is an asset without which we are screened from much in life that is worth while and essential to our usefulness and happiness. Dr. William Osler, one of the greatest physicians of the world, once said this: "The clean tongue, the clear head and the bright eye are birthrights of each day."

There is something from a multitude of ancestors that floats in our bloodstream. We owe to more people than we will ever know. good blood is an asset. It doesn't have to be "blue!" A large percentage of great men and women came from a humble beginning. Worth, ability and character are assets that are not traded in on the stock exchange!

Everything you learn, every friend you make, every experience that has left you braver and happier, and every book, song or piece of music, that has enriched you, are assets that should make you proud. Assets in money and material things can be wiped out over night, but what you have set aside in your heart and stored in your mind is wealth that God meant should forever remain as top assets in the case of every human being.

In the world of business Good Will stands high. In many cases it is its most valuable asset. Each one of us is represented by the same mythical, though actual, asset, for it exists wherever there is something that lives and influences.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A neighbor of mine who got ulcers making quite a lot of money in the past ten abundant years, decided to retire from the city and buy a farm about thirty minutes from his office. Which he did, and to his astonishment as well as that of his colleagues and friends, he has become not only a very interested farmer but a pretty successful one. He is neglecting his business in favor of his Holsteins and his hay crops, and will likely die poor but happy.

The house on the farm he bought was run down, and half the fun he and his wife had, in the first couple of years, was in remodelling it and the immediate acre into a jewel box of a house a perfectly lovely garden.

At one of the front corners of the house a picturesque old apple tree, with that aged look the late Mr. Einstein or Gladstone had.

"The first year," said my friend, "we planned to cut that tree down. It had the scantiest of blossoms in May, and the apples were the measliest little scabby, misshapen things, smaller than crab apples. But we liked the shape of the old tree and spared it a year, while we thought it over. As you know, we sodded a lawn all around the front, and put plenty of fertilizer on it, giving the grass every care. To our astonishment, the old apple tree was the chief beneficiary of the fertilizer. The second spring, it was fairly laden with bloom, and its apples, while still no prize winners, were twice on three times the size, and pretty good to look at. The old tree has taken on a new lease of life. Look at it."

It is indeed a handsome old tree. Its foliage is lustrous and rich. In May, it was a picture in blossom. And because some fertilizer, intended for grass on a new lawn, was made available to it.

"We're going to spray it, and prune it in season, and give it all attention, though we don't expect any usable fruit off it. We just want it to feel as at home as it make us feel."

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Hail and farewell—Carman Massey (left), new postmaster of Belleville post office, welcomes J. C. Waddell, retiring postmaster, to a farewell banquet given by the office staff at St. Thomas' parish house Saturday night.

Postmaster J. C. Waddell Presented With Chair As Staff Bids Chief Farewell

J. C. Waddell bid farewell to official public life in Belleville Saturday night.

Retiring after nearly 47 years in post-office employment, nine of them as postmaster, the esteemed civil servant went from good weeding-out problem in mail service to weeding out his garden, for the present, and his favorite hobby of wood-carving.

Although he retired last week, his proper leave-taking was postponed until last Saturday, when the staff of the post office hailed his many years of service with a banquet at St. Thomas' Parish House.

Among those to take leave of him as postmaster was Carman Massey, who worked as his assistant since September and now assumes the badge of office relinquished by Mr. Waddell.

Assembled at the hall, besides many of his former staff, were friends and old-retired colleagues who knew Mr. Waddell through the years as he rose from the rank of postal clerk in once uncomplicated government office to branch chief of a fast-paced important national service.

Mr. Waddell joined the Belleville post-office staff permanently on April 26, 1909 with the rank of postal clerk and served the public from there continuously until May this year. Serving with him as clerks were J. V. C. Truesch, later to become postmaster and former assistant postmaster to himself, Morrie Stork, who retired only last September.

In those days a staff of about eight handled mail for a city population of around 10,000. Routine was not the complicated process it is now and life in the post-office as outside, was more relaxed.

SPARSELY-BUILT TOWN

In those days Belleville was a very sparsely - built - up town, once you got outside of the business district. Then, the young lads could stop on almost any block and set up a ball field without being afraid of breaking any windows.

"We have seen all the big changes (in the post-office department)," Mr. Waddell added, his statement embracing all those who now share with him retirement from the Belleville office.

"The first big step was the introduction of letter carrier service (about 1913). We started that out with seven carriers, now we have nineteen."

Rural mail delivery also was recalled by the outgoing chief.

"The first one ran from Belleville to Ameliasburg and the next one down to Frankford, out through Wallbridge. We have eight routes now, fanning out from Belleville in all directions giving complete delivery to about 14 miles all around."

First big step up for Mr. Waddell came in 1945 when he replaced Ernest Lang as assistant postmaster, under J. V. C. Truesch.

The following year he succeeded his once postal-clerk colleague to the rank of postmaster.

Now with nine full years behind him as director of the Belleville branch office he retires permanently to his home at 133 Bridge St. W., with his wife and daughter, Doris.

"As regards plans — I haven't any. I am going to spend the next two years in my garden. It will probably take me that to get the weeds out of it."

He also goes back to something he relinquished some time ago after he became postmaster — his woodcarving hobby. For his carvings Mr. Waddell dips into the folk background of many different regions of Canada and the U.S.

EPITOME OF ESTEEM

The speechmaking at Saturday night's banquet was the epitome of the esteem he has been held in by his colleagues during his years of service.

Said chairman of the banquet Eugene Lang, commenting on the 46 years of service: "In that length of time he has given his all to his job."

"He did it diligently, assiduously and, at times, it seemed, effortlessly."

Morrie Stork, who retired in September as assistant postmaster, mused lightly on what now faced his former chief in retirement: "I have heard a lot of people say they did not know what to do when they retire, but in my case I have not caught up yet."

Verbal accolades were strung around the outgoing postmaster by area superintendent, Ken McDonald; Cecil McClure; Arnold Revoy, representing the Federated Association of Letter - Carriers, area supervisor of Smiths Falls, Jack Wilson, Lt.-Col. E. A. Geen, retired collector of customs at Belleville and life-long friend of Mr. Waddell.

Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan, rector of Christ Church enthused on the spirit of the assembly saying: "It is a wonderful thing to have worked as he (Mr. Waddell) has worked for 46 years and for all of you to share in this glowing tribute, which you are paying to him and I am sure he is worthy of it."

"You are saying to him, 'Well done thou good and faithful servant.' "

Main speaker of the evening was G. E. Macklem, district - inspector from Ottawa, who noted that the nine years spent by Mr. Waddell as post master have been among the most arduous of administrative periods in the post office department.

HARD TO FOLLOW

Concluding, he greeted Mr. Waddell's retirement on behalf of other Ottawa officials, unable to be present.

Carman Massey, new postmaster, told the banquet "that in Mr. Waddell the department had a man whose loyalty to his work matched that of his loyalty to his home. So well did he do his work it will be hard to follow in his footsteps," he said.

He then presented Mr. Waddell with a scroll from the staff, while as the main presentation, a rocking chair, also was tendered the former postmaster.

"I anticipated something like this so I prepared a bit of a speech. I knew darn well I would forget every bit of it," quipped Mr. Waddell, standing to accept the evening's ovations.

However, his speech of appreciation was brief, thanking concisely the assembly for the honor shown him.

He sat down while the tribute to his years of efficient, friendly service was measured in the applause that broke out.

Afterwards said one staff member: "Yes, He's been a very fine man. I've worked with him for 10 years and never had two cross words with him."

Mr. Massey, his successor, also has a substantial record of service to his credit at the local office. Hailing from Sidney he joined the office staff in 1924 and became assistant postmaster in September last year. He is married and has two sons.

Child Is Only Slightly Burned In Runaway Car

TRENTON — (Special) — A seven-month-old baby boy sufferer only a small bruise under the right eye as a lone passenger in his father's car that raced down a steep incline at the end of Spring Street and crashed head-on into Mrs. E. MacDonald's house at 179 Victoria Avenue on Saturday.

Russell K. Scott of 4 Spring Street had taken baby Gregory, out for a drive and on returning home parked the car in front of the house. The baby had fallen asleep in his car seat and Mr. Scott went into the house to call hies wife to come and see the baby sleeping.

Mrs. Scott was working in the kitchen. She looked out the window and suddenly became paralyzed with fear when she noticed the car was not out in front. She raced to the door in time to see the car moving toward the steep hill and watched it go over the embankment.

When the excited parents reached the crash they found their baby on the floor under the dash whimpering. They rushed him to Trenton Memorial Hospital where he was checked thoroughly before being released. "He seems fine today and is out in his play-pen in the back yard," Mrs. Scott said in a telephone interview.

The runaway car smashed steps to the house and came to a jolting stop wedged against one of the brick posts holding up the verandah. The post and two pillars collapsed, when the car was pulled away from the debris. Estimated damage to the verandah was $300. Police figure it will cost $275 to repair the car.

98th Baccalaureate Service For Albert Held on Sunday

Albert College walked hand-in-hand with tradition as the procession of graduates, students, faculty members, Governors and the Clergy entered Bridge St. United Church on Sunday morning for the ninety-eighth Baccalaureate service.

The church was crowded with worshippers with a special section reserved for the visiting graduates of fifty years ago. To the strains of the processional hymn, "O Worship the King" the ministers and staff, wearing gowns and hoods filed in, followed by the graduating class in their blue and grey gowns, the girl students in long white dresses and gloves, and the male students to fill the entire centre pews of the church.

Before the altar three large bouquets of lemon lilies, pink, peonies, mauve iris and spirea were arranged. The choral offerings were in charge of organist S. Alec Gordon and during the offertory the choir sang the anthem "The Heavens Are Telling", by Hadyn, with the forte parts performed with force and resonance, and a soft blending in the single parts for soprano, tenor and bass.

The responsive psalm was read by Dr. Bert Howard, Past Principal of Albert College; Mr. E. B. Warriner, chairman of the Board of Governors read the scripture lesson, and Rev. H. M. Davis, pastor of the church offered prayer.

The service was conducted by Rev. Principal A. E. MacKenzie who thanked all the ministers of the city for their continual interest in the college. In introducing the guest speaker, Rev. Dr. Charles Donald of Southminster United Church, Ottawa, Mr. MacKenzie said it was a great delight to have the past president of Montreal Conference as a speaker and gave him a cordial welcome to the pulpit.

THE PILLAR OF TRUTH

Dr. Donald spoke on "The Pillar of Truth," basing his sermon on Paul's words to Timothy, "Which is the Church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth."

"Sometimes we feel that if we didn't work strenuously to hold up the church, God's purposes would not be carried out," said the minister. "This is not so. The church is expanding, the ministry is growing with more young people showing interest, and more people are arguing for the church than against. The only really dangerous time in a church is when people take things for granted, and stop asking questions. Once you start to ask questions and face them openly, you need have no fear."

The speaker discussed the philosophy of Karl Marx, and traced the reasons which led to his beliefs. He had strong arguments against Christianity. His travels across Europe convinced him that many evils were the responsibility of Christians, and he turned away from it. Children were forced into hard labor, women doing the work of animals, and in answer to his questions he was told "we need poor people to do the dirty jobs so that the better people may prosper," their only hope being that all would be set right after death.

A boy in college should ask questions and he must be convinced that the Christian faith is the answer. There is an answer but Marx did not receive it.

The ideas that were accepted at four years will not do at ten years, and the truth must be sought to reach maturity.

"Do not be afraid to ask questions," the speaker advised the students. "You will learn that the Christian faith will supply the answers. Our faith should go out into the world to make it a better place to live. You are needed in Christian service."

The Benediction and recessional hymn, "How Firm a Foundation," brought the service to a close.

Norwood Man Surrenders In Robbery Case

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Winston Hie, 26, of nearby Norwood, sought in connection with the robbery April 30 of a Cottesloe township farmer, surrendered to police at the county jail Saturday.

Police took out warrants for the arrest of Hie, Barnard Reynolds, also of Norwood, and David Jackson of Rockwood, after Edward Gallaher, 65, told them he was roped to a chair by three masked men, who then ransacked his farm home and stole more than $3,000 from a can.

Reynolds appeared in court last week and was remanded until Tuesday.

Police said Hie told them he spent his time in Toronto and Winnipeg and in the bush near Norwood where he killed coons and porcupine for food.

Police were tipped off Sunday that Hie was in the area and started a day-long search, called off when he surrendered at the jail.

Czech Pilot Only One to Get Round of Applause at Air Show

TORONTO (CP) — A Czechoslovakian pilot, flying the only aircraft at the Canadian international air show from an Iron Curtain country, won the single round of applause Saturday from the estimated 150,000 spectators.

Fourteen Russian delegates, first official representatives from their country to attend the annual demonstration, were seated in a stand reserved for special guests.

Test pilot Ladislav Svab, 42, of the Motokov Company, Czechoslovakia, demonstrated a two-seat, low-wing elementary trainer of a type used by the Czech air force.

Svab, who recently performed in Brazil and soon will demonstrate the company's products in Moscow, looped, rolled, stall-turned and pulled out of a steep dive 100 feet above the waters of Lake Ontario off east-end Toronto.

MADE IT ROCK

During one inverted flypast, about 300 feet above the water, he made the craft rock and swing up and down. It was at this point the spectators broke into the only applause of the show.

Wing Cmdr. R. W. McNair, the RCAF's most-decorated pilot and official commentator for the show, described Svab's aerobatics as the most impressive he had seen.

The Russian delegation occasionally made notes on their programs and went into brief huddles but otherwise showed little signs of interest in the show.

When Canadian and United States supersonic jet fighters appeared, the Russians asked newspaper men to withhold further questions until later.

In all, 101 aircraft — mostly from Canada and the U.S.—took part.

A highlight was a formation of 50 RCAF jets—18 Avro CF-100's, 16 F-86 Sabres and 16 T-33 Silver Stars.

Cougars Were Only Pair Of Playful Coons

TORONTO (CP)—The telephone rang in suburban North York police station Saturday. Before the desk sergeant could get out a word an excited voice said:

"There's two cougars in my backyard. They're about two feet high and are leaping back and forth over the fence. Send a couple of sharpshooters quick."

A constable sped to the address. He found the backyard 'cougars'' were just a pair of playful raccoons.

The offering was received by Mrs. Schlievert and Miss Johns and dedicated by Mrs. Fisher.

W.A. MEETING

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. R. Johnston, president of the W.A., who introduced the Rev. R. A. Rowley, as guest speaker.

Mr. Rowley took as his text "Ask and it shall be given you, Seek and ye shall find, Knock and it shall be opened unto you."

"Adults as well as children ask questions. More and more people are asking about religion. Sixty per cent of people in the United States are connected with churches. Is it fear of atomic age or result of two World Wars? It is a questioning age. Religion used to be taken as handed down by our forefathers. We should ask "What will the Lord have me to do?"

"Scientists have been seeking and asking questions about this world of ours. We have to seek God daily. 'Knock and it shall be opened unto you.' We must ask God for strength and accept as a privilege what we are asked to do."

The speaker was thanked by the president of the W.M.S., Mrs. May.

Girls Students of 50 Years Ago Gather at Albert For Reunion

For fifty years a "Round Robin" letter has held with invisible strands the friendship of the girl students who graduated from Albert College in the year 1904. On Saturday evening these strands were drawn together to unite the letter writers, who have kept in touch with each other through the years at a dinner in the ladies' parlor of Holloway St. United Church.

It was a unique event with four of the original members present, Mrs. Frantzen, Dunkirk, N.Y., Mrs. Merrian, Toronto; Mrs. Carscadden, Toronto; and Mrs. Harold Martin, Belleville. Several joined the group in the following years and at present there are eighteen names on the list. Each letter writer added her personal news of children and grandchildren, and in some cases great grandchildren, and it was sent on across Canada, to the States and overseas, taking about a year to complete the round. Five of the group have served in foreign mission fields.

The first president was the late Mrs. Charles Reddick, and the present president is Mrs. T. W. Dawson, Toronto, who is a daughter of a former principal of Albert College, Dr. W. P. Dyer.

Members of the W.M.S. of the church served a tasty meal on the tables arranged in a U-shape, decorated with green streamers, small bouquets of yellow roses, and yellow candles. Colorful baskets of peonies and iris were placed on side tables.

Pictures from the school magazine of that year called "The Times" were circulated and recalled happy memories.

SEVERAL LETTERS READ

Principal A. E. MacKenzie read several letters from former students who lived at too great distances to be present, some from the mission field. Many contained testimonials to the great benefit the school had had on their lives, and one stated that Albert College had given more men to the ministry than any other school. Mr. MacKenzie expressed the hope that the members from the old school would show continued interest and enthusiasm as they have in the past.

"We have a warm appreciation for the enthusiasm you have shown the school in the past," the Principal said, "and we want you to know that the traditions are being maintained. The youth of today are being instructed, counselled, guided and helped as in years gone by. I hope you will make this week-end a happy fruitful time. The alumni society of the new school which was started five years ago now has a membership of some seven hundred members who keep in touch with the school activities."

It was expected that the oldest living graduate, Dr. Buchanan, would be present for Convocation week-end.

SEND BEST WISHES

The president, Mrs. Dawson, read letters from Mrs. Field, Vancouver; Mabel Cook, Yorkshire, England, and Ethel Cherry, Toronto, hoping the gathering would enjoy happy reminiscences and sending their wishes for God's blessing.

In remembrance of those who had passed on, Mrs. Frantzen spoke of these few precious moments of remembering those whom they had loved with all their hearts, who were gone but still dear to them. She paid moving tribute to Miss Ella Gardiner, Dr. and Mrs. Dyer, Mr. Merrian, Mrs. Young Reddick and Miss Lazelle Brown. Quoting from the "Pilgrim's Progress," Mrs. Frantzen said "they are clothed in immortality. They used all their energies for good and they will never be forgotten. We can thank God that we personally knew them."

Mrs. Gridwood of Perth, Ontario, a graduate of 1901, mentioned several anecdotes connected with those days, when her grandfather held the mortgage on the old school.

Mrs. Higginbotham, a niece of Miss Gardiner's, sang two songs which she described as "frivolous," accompanied by Mrs. Lang, "Pauthie" (Susie), and "In My Little Bottom Drawer."

Miss Jessie Tuite, who was introduced in a witty speech by Mr. R. J. F. Staples, gave a humorous reading of Booth Tarkington's "Here Comes the Bridegroom," and for an encore recited an Irish poem.

Miss Edna Martin, a lyric soprano, was heard in three numbers, "A Heart That's Free," "E'en as a Lovely Flower" and "Road to the Isles." She was accompanied by Mrs. E. Hubbs.

Fellow Students Assist Blind Girl in Studies

WINNIPEG (CP)—A blind girl from Saskatchewan who used a tape recorder to help her prepare for examinations graduates today from the University of Western Ontario, London.

Doreen Winkler of Kilvington, Sask., told of her method in an interview here en route to London, for ceremonies in which she will receive a bachelor of arts degree.

She said fellow students read text books to her. This was taken on a tape recorder so that she could use the material over again for study.

"Without their help," she said, "university would have been impossible."

Bridge St. United WMS Hears Talk On Trinidad

The Bridge Street W.M.S. held its June dinner meeting at the summer home of Mrs. P. C. McGuire, the repast was spread beside Oak Lake, wher all enjoyed the lovely setting.

Mrs. Denyes presided at the outdoor meeting and Mrs. McGuire was given a hearty vote of thanks for her kind hospitality.

Mrs. T. Franklin's and Mrs. Hunter's group put on a short program.

For the devotional Mrs. F. Houston read parts of Psalms 19 and 72, followed by prayer.

Mrs. Massey, Mrs. Dulmage, and Mrs. Myers gave short reports.

It was decided to order the new study book for each group, also the book-shelf.

The president, speaking on "Trinidad," said the tour of Princess Margaret had turned the eyes of the Commonwealth to British West Indies. In 1868, John Morton became the first missionary to carry the Gospel to the East Indians of Trinidad.

The West Indies could be an ideal place to prove to the world that all races, of every color and creed could live, work and play together.

CHILDREN LOOKED AFTER

The Spaniards started the cocoa industry and in 1770 began to employ slaves from Africa, to work on plantations. In 1777, the French introduced the sugar cane industry.

As early as 1596, the English visited Trinidad and Sir Walter Raleigh found the famous 'Pitch Lake'.

Trinidad became a British colony in 1802. When the slaves were freed by law, Chinese were brought out, to replace them, but this did not prove satisfactory.

Plans were made for a West Indian Federation, which would include Trinidad, Jamaica, Barbados, Leeward and Windward Islands. Population is about two and one half millions.

One hundred years ago, East Indian people were brought to Trinidad to carry on agricultural work, bringing with them their Mohammed and Hindu religions and languages.

Continuing, Mrs. Denyes told of her friend, Miss Wagar, who is principal of St. Augustine Girls' school and is the author of "Treasure in Trinidad", stories of the people there, whose friendliness, courtesy and helpfulness constitute the "treasure".

A pleasing skit, demonstrating a day in the busy life of Constance Wagar was put on by Mrs. Franklin, Miss Sulman, Mrs. Howie, Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Tice, Mrs. Curry and Miss M. Young, who closed with the words "Old things are passed away, I am become a new creature."

The hymn "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" and the benediction closed the meeting, the last for the summer.

Melody Tea by Contact Club Of Christ Church Enjoyed

With the weather in perfect harmony the Melody Tea given by the Contact Club of Christ church in the parish hall proved an unique and original affair, and provided a pleasant place to enjoy a delightful tea and to shop from the many booths. The "Melody" was provided by Mrs. Charles Sloan, who played the piano all afternoon with the music piped to the tearoom below.

The musical theme was carried throughout the rooms with black cut-out musical notes on walls and posts. The decorators of the bazaar room were Mrs. J. Sweet and Mrs. K. Lake and of the tearoom Mrs. W. Wareham and Mrs. G. Sands.

Mrs. J. B. Creeggan, wife of the rector of the church, and Mrs. Charles Cooke, president of the Contact Club received at the door, and extended a warm welcome to the guests. Mrs. Jack Rosevear collected the tickets at the entrance.

In the tearoom the tea table was arranged with a most novel centrepiece consisting of a miniature revolving stage, in the centre a tiny piano with a blonde doll piano player dressed in frilly pink with black trim. The piano bore one small candle in a holder. Over all was an arch of little pink rosebuds, and grouped around the outer edge was a circle of black flower pots filled with pink sweetpeas and fern. The table was covered with a pink cloth adorned with black musical notes. Tall pink candles in circular spring wrought iron holders completed an unusual arrangement.

DECORATED WITH POMPOMS

The posts were covered with alternate pink and black strips of crepe paper and decorated with pompoms of pale blue, yellow, white and peach, interspersed again with black notes.

The foursome tables spaced about the room each bore a rosette of pink and black out of which arose a bass and treble clef signature. Pink paper doilies and serviettes completed the charming picture.

Pouring tea in this pleasant environment were, Mrs. G. Wright, Mrs. A. Page, Mrs. A. Cooper and Mrs. A. Wonnacott. The hostesses and co-conveners were Mrs. V. Flindall and Mrs. F. Murray.

Mrs. George Wonnacott, Mrs. Gavin Scott, Mrs. W. Mills and Mrs. H. Ford replenished the tea table, while the plates were replenished and assistance given in the kitchen by Mesdames Parsons, D. Boyce, R. Lennox, D. Wethers, V. Settle and R. Rutter. The guests were served at the tables by Mesdames J. Fletcher, F. Beeby, E. Saunders, C. Anderson, R. Roulet, E. Clarke, C. Shappee and K. Lake.

Mrs. J. Rose with the assistance of Girl Guide Joy Butler, looked after the little ones in the nursery so their mothers would be free to enjoy their tea.

Upstairs the bazaar room, convened by Mrs. W. J. McCormick, was a busy place as visitors bought the delicious home cooking which included tarts, cakes, pies and cookies of all varieties to suit every taste. Packages of candy were on sale and also the club's cook book called "Cooking Secrets". Mrs. George Taylor was convener of the bake table and assisting her were Mrs. Earl Mossman, Mrs. W. McCormick, Mrs. Jack Sweet and Mrs. W. Wood.

In charge of the children's booth were Mrs. Stan Wiggins and Mrs. Keith Baldwin with Mrs. R. Thorne, Mrs. R. Stewart, and Mrs. J. Bunnett assisting. Many attractive sun suits and dresses for the junior set were on display, with sweater and bootee sets, baby nightgowns with smocking and pretty dresses of seersucker nylon and cottons in pastel colors of mauve, green and yellow. Rickrack trim made effective finishes on little sun suits.

The novelty booth showed attractive felt bags with colorful flower trimming. Dolls with plastic dresses in summery colors concealed their real use which was to dispense paper cleansing tissues. This booth was in charge of Mrs. G. Sands with her helper Mrs. A. Hume.

At the apron table presided over by Mrs. Reg. Rogers and her assistant Mrs. Fred Ehler glamorous black aprons with lace trim and hearts of gold braid were on sale. Less glamorous but serviceable were aprons, pleated, plaid, flowered or plain in pretty styles. For the backyard crowd were Mr. and Mrs. barbecue aprons, some embroidered with barbecue scenes and some hand-painted.

BARGAIN TABLE

For 10c Sherril Beeby sold from her bargain table a variety of items including nail polish, earrings or fountain pens. Attic treasures were in charge of Mrs. C. F. Patterson, and here one could buy pictures, lamp shades, dishes, glasses, dress patterns and even a curling iron.

Two Girl Guides Lois Conley and Beverley Burch looked after a Wishing Wish complete with a handle and rope to let down the pail and draw up a treasure. The fish pond was in charge of Guides Susan Haggerty and Wendy Burch and the balloons which decorated the room were the responsibility of Guide Elaine Jenkins.

To the general convener Mrs. Les Lennox, and her committee, Mrs. F. Huson, publicity; Mrs. E. Saunders, treasurer; and Mrs. F. Beeby, ticket convener; to the conveners of the tearoom and bazaar room, and the various booths and to all members who helped go credit for a well-managed and novel event.

Bride-To-Be Feted With Many Gifts

On Friday evening, 29 girl friends of the staff of the T. Eaton Company, met at the home of Mrs. George Brown, Avondale Road, to honor the bride-to-be, Miss Fay Bradshaw with a miscellaneous shower.

The home was prettily decorated with white wedding bells, panales and purple and yellow iris for the occasion.

The evening was spent in a social get-together and the presentation of a 'mock wedding' sponsored by Misses Theresa Lorimer and Theresa Smith. Following this the many gifts were presented to Fay, who most graciously expressed her thanks and appreciation to the girls for their kindness in thus honoring her.

Refreshments, served by the hostess, brought a most pleasant evening to a close.

The hostess was thanked for her hospitality by the bride-to-be, who also invited all to visit her in her new home.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A FINE PAIR OF DOUBLE-CROSSERS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year, I have been going out quite steadily with a married man whose wife, he tells me, has gone out with other men from time to time.

This man has asked his wife for a divorce so that he and I could be married, but she refuses him on the ground that they should stay together because of their children.

We feel we can't go on this way and would like some advice on what to do. — Miss M.T.

Dear Miss M.T.:

Any young woman who starts going out with a married man is simply asking for trouble, as I shouldn't think I'd have to tell you. However, if you didn't know it before, you certainly know it now.

Obviously, if each member of this fine pair has been double-crossing the other, there is not much left of their marriage anyhow, and the wife's reason for refusing a divorce seems to me to make very little sense. For as things are now, it can hardly be a very healthy situation for the children.

If you really want my advice, I would say that you would be a very foolish girl to continue a relationship with this man on the present basis, as there seems little chance of his being able to marry you. If his wife won't give him a divorce, the only other alternative would be for him to divorce her. But since she undoubtedly knows what has been going on between the two of you, if he were to try bringing a divorce action against her, she could create a very nasty situation involving you if she wished to. Another thing is that, in my opinion, a husband who has been disloyal to one wife already, is a rather poor bet for a second wife.

If this man is ever free to marry you, and you really want him, you can take your chances on being happy with him. But until he is free, you'd better leave him strictly alone.

IT'S CUSTOMARY FOR THE BOY TO PAY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been writing to a boy in service whom I've never met, and I won't meet him until about the first of July.

He has already written and asked me to go with him to the Fourth of July Carnival that will be held here in town. I don't like to go to a Carnival with a boy, because I feel I am imposing on him and would rather pay my own way.

Can you help me get over this feeling? — Miss H.

Dear Miss H.:

If a boy invites a girl on a date, which this boy is doing, it is customary for the boy to pay her way wherever he takes her. That's the accepted way things are done, and there's no reason for you to feel awkward about it.

On the contrary, if the boy didn't pay the girl's way on a date, that would indeed be reason for her to feel awkward.

In your particular case, however, I advise you to have this young man come to your home and meet your parents before taking you anywhere. After all, you have never met him, and you have no way of being sure that he is a boy who would make a good friend for you until you have become at least a little acquainted with him. If he is the right kind of boy, he will be glad to have your family meet him before taking you out on a first date.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

WHAT UNDER THE SUN!

This is the season when Mother Nature uses all her showmanship to lure us to the Great Outdoors. She presents a wonderful bill of attractions and fulfills her promise of health to body and soul.

But overdoses of strong sunlight can add to your beauty problems. One summer of sunburn and excess tanning can add several calendar years to your complexion.

So play afe. Make no burnt offerings of you skin. By limiting the first sun bath to only a few moments and by taking the necessary cosmetic precautions, you can become a "golden girl"—without regrets.

Once you have acquired a light tan you can, within reason, disregard the time limits of exposure to strong sunlight. But if you want to keep the epidermal coat soft, smooth and supple, you will not even then bare it without some sort of protective coating.

If you swim, wear an extra heavy application of cream. Water acts like a mirror and the reflected rays of sunlight are more powerful than the direct rays themselves. An excellent sun screen is provided by an oily powder base, in case you prefer that to a suntan emollient.

Never use soap and water just before going out of doors or immediately after coming in.

The idea is to avoid sunburn that can be as painful as any other kind of burn. In mild cases the outer skin scales peel off and, during this period, no girl can possibly be considered pretty. In severe cases, blisters may develop. Soap and water should not be used at such times. Nor should massage be employed until the skin has been restored to its normal state.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

"CONGRATULATE" ENGAGED GIRL?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My cousin tells me that if I had read your column carefully I would be quite clear that I should not have used (as I did) the word "congratulations" to a mutual friend of ours who recently announced her engagement. My cousin says that I should know that one should never use "congratulations" or "congratulate" to an engaged girl or to a bride. That suggests that you are practically saying that you think she's lucky to have gotten a man. Are these words really as dicourteous as my cousin warns me they are? — Janet M.

Your cousin is right. It is considered extremely discourteous to use "congratulate" or "congratulations" to a an engaged girl or to a bride. The implication is as your cousin explained it. The proper and gracious way is to give the bride-to-be or the bride your "best wishes" or "best wishes for your happiness" or "My dearest love to you, Betty, and every good wish to you for your happiness, always." (If you just must use those words "congratulate" and "congratulations," you'll be pleased to know that you can properly use them to the engaged man or to the bridegroom.)

NOT MONEY FOR WEDDING PRESENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Five of us girls have been particularly close friends ever since we entered grammar school together. Now the first one of the group is to be married, and since this couple will not have a home of their own for some time to come, we friends thought it might be an excellent idea for us to give them a joint present of money as the wedding present. Or, perhaps for each of us to give a money-present. Don't you think this would be the most sensible and practical thing to do? — Four Friends

I'll grant that this does sound like a very practical plan, but in my observation I think it's a mistake to give money as a wedding present. As they aren't going to begin housekeeping for some time, the chances are that little by little the money will be spent for imminent expenses and there will be nothing "to remember you by." In this circumstance my suggestion is that you each find some article that will always be lovely and useful for their new home when they do establish it.

WIDOW'S FRIENDS GIVE WRONG ADVICE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Not long ago my husband died, and I have continued to use his name as he gave it to me when he gave me the marriage ring. I thought this correct. But lately several of my friends have told me that the custom has changed about this in the past few years and that it is not proper for me to continue to use my husband's name, Mrs. William Smith, that I should use Mrs. Mary Smith. Is this right or wrong? — Widow

The "advice" these friends gave you is absolutely wrong. In all your social contacts you should still use Mrs. William Smith just as you did when your husband was living.

EACH MAKES OWN CONTRIBUTION IN CHURCH

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle our discussion. A says that when a man and woman go to church together (whether it's his church or her church or a church to which neither belongs) the man makes the contribution for both. B says that the man makes his own offering, and the woman should make her own offering. Which is right? A and B

B is right. If we really figure this out we'll see that the offering the man makes is his own contribution, and the offering the woman makes is her contribution. The woman should want to make her own contribution.

Beguiling Bonnet

By ALICE ARDEN

It's very nice, this idea of great millinery designers doing hats to sell at a wee price and so entice young women to enjoy the flattery of a becoming hat. Here we have a good example of a "Dachette" designed by our own Lilly Dache. It is a blithe little bonnet fashioned of natural straw and posed like a halo. It is secured by a flat bow of white grosgrain ribbon that cleverly conceals a clip-bandeau.

Mrs. Kenneth Morrow Hostess To River Valley Women's Institute

STIRLING.— The June meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Morrow. There were 26 members and one visitor in attendance.

Mrs. Roy Bush opened with the Ode and the Lord's Prayer followed by community singing which included, "Open Up Your Heart."

Mrs. Thomas Hanna gave her financial statement and read several letters of thanks.

The president spoke of the Guelph holiday in July and that will be decided at a later date, also to Folk school. Ten dollars was voted to the "Appeal for the Blind".

The July meeting on the 7th will be "Children's Day" at the school house.

The president read a message in Federated News re Mrs. Barry of Australia, president ACWW and her coming visit to Canada.

Plans were made for the district annual next Tuesday and delegates appointed and a committee was appointed to look into a money-raising proposition to rpovide funds.

PROGRAM

Mrs. Don Donohoe then took charge of the program and read an interesting paper prepared by Mrs. Chester Sills on the motto, "God gave us memories so that we would have roses in December."

Mrs. Phil Conley contributed a piano solo, "Memories."

The president spoke briefly regarding the importance of devoting some program space to the National and International work of the W.I.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, based her theme on "The Wider Field of Institute Work." She first reminded the group that June is "Dairy Month" in Canada, and folks are asked to cultivate the habit of serving nature's plentiful dairy foods every day. She also read an article about "Natal, India", where the Women's Institutes have planted almost 5,000 trees.

The speaker reminded her audience that every Institute member has an individual contribution to make to the branch as a whole, and all are needed in the organization.

H. M. TORY AWARD

Just recently the H. M. Tory award has been awarded to the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada and to Radio College and the presentation will be made at the biennial convention being held next week in Winnipeg, Manitoba. The award will be a Canadian painting, part of the citation says: "The Women's Institutes have a history of outstanding work for more than 50 years. The Institutes gave a lead to other Canadian organizations by sharing with women in other lands through the UNESCO gift coupon plan. The F. W. Institutes of Canada have made a unique contribution in improving communities as well as their service abroad."

The speaker outlined the thirteen areas in Ontario, and said the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario is a provincial organization which aims to unite the province and they co-operate with the Department of Agriculture.

SEWING MACHINES

Last year the Ontario W.I. sent $4,000 to Korea to purchase sewing machines for Korean war widows and for erecting a small building where these machines could be housed. Just recently the Korean women sent to Ontario appreciation garments for a young lad typical of what Korean boys would wear on ceremonial occasions, also a little girl's costume of brilliant embroidered cerise with all the little accessories and a silken scroll of thanks.

The F.W.I.O.W. has some 45,000 members, and their 1955 project is to provide equipment for four villages in Ceylon through the Unesco plan.

Mrs. MacMullen outlined the Adelaide Hoodless and Dorothy Futcher scholarships, and told of various activities carried on by the provincial board such as a tent at the ploughing match and a booth at the Royal Winter Fair.

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada link up the ten provinces. They were organized in 1919 and last year there were 95,000 Institute members across Canada. They are affiliated with many other organizations and the F.W.I.C. is the only woman's organization in Canada with a director on the Canadian Council of 4-H Clubs.

REPRESENTS RURAL WOMEN

The Associated Country Women of the World is the only international organization representing rural women. It was organized in 1929 and it aims to promote international goodwill, friendship and understanding between the country women of the world. Their convention will be held in Ceylon in 1956. The first Institute was opened in Ceylon in 1931 and the idea has flourished.

Ceylon has a district committee which encourages each group to think and plan for themselves, and this committee has full oversight of the village groups.

Books, films and leaflets are available for Institute members to study Ceylon, in order to be able to visualize the country in which the triennial conference of A.C.W.W. will be held in December, 1956.

There are two A.C.W.W. film strips that would be most educational. The Toronto Loan Library has special study kits about A.C.W.W. as well as 25 English books.

The Tea Council of Canada says the inhabitants of Ceylon are enjoying a marked improvement in their standard of living since Canada imported almost 18 million pounds of tea last year.

The wife of an official in Pakistan spent hours raising funds for refugees in her village. She then provided homes for these people who had nowhere to live and no work to do. The little huts rent for $3 monthly. She has also planted trees and there is a mosque and a school. Now she is busy making tea cosies. In four days she has one tea cosy knitted and 80 of these build a hut—and a hut means shelter, and a new start for a homeless family.

READS ACCOUNT

Mrs. MacMullen read an account of a recent W. I. meeting in Sandringham, England, where royalty attended. The Queen Mother is national president of English Institutes.

This year, in England, there is a special clean-up campaign with a little song to be sung to the tune of "Pack up Your Troubles." This would also be most applicable to Canada as so many people dump their rubbish—kleenex, used cartons and cigaret boxes —just anywhere along the countryside. The words are: "Pack up your litter in your own handbag and take it home."

Don't litter up the lovely countryside or anywhere you roam.

Tell your friends you're helping now to keep the country clean — thus leave a good example always there, wherever you have been."

The convener voiced thanks to the speaker for her message.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Edgar Morrow, of Stirling, and the lunch committee, served refreshments.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman voiced thanks for hospitality, program and refreshments.

Pilots Turning Jet Stream Into Aerial Superhighway

By ROY ESSAYAN

HONOLULU (AP)—Military and civilian pilots have made a start toward turning the jet stream, mightiest tail wind of all, into an aerial superhighway across the Pacific.

The jet stream is a river of air, three miles deep and 400 miles across, rushing eastward high around the world. At the core, it reaches speeds of around 400 m. p. h.

No one yet has ridden the core of the jet stream, but military and civilian planes have utilized some of its currents as tail winds of 150 m. p. h.

A U. S. Air Force C-97, military version of the Stratocruiser, took advantage of such tail winds a year ago to fly nonstop from Tokyo to Honolulu in nine hours and nine minutes. That was seven hours under the regular one-stop flying time.

USED BY AIRLINE

Pan American World Airways started using the winter jet stream two years ago and averages 10 to 11 hours over this same nonstop route.

So far, the jet stream has been flown only in winter, when it operates at 2,000 to 30,000 feet, 30 to 40 degrees north of the equator. In summer, it moves beyond the reach of anything but experimental flights, to above 35,000 feet altitude and 50 degrees north latitude.

Japanese meteorologists knew about the big wind in the Second World War and tried to float firebomb balloons across the Pacific against the United States.

In 1944 B-29s flying bombing missions from the Marianas to Japan ran into tremendous headwinds and reported they often stood still with engines roaring full throttle.

In 1947 a University of Chicago weather team started piecing the threads together. Weather reports collected from around the world showed a mighty wind blowing east endlessly some 2,000 miles north of the equator. They named it the jet stream.

MOSTLY UNUSED

In winter the jet stream curves above Japan, passes north of Midway, well north of Hawaii and hits the Oregon coast. The Rockies push it up high across the northern United States and it continues on across the north Atlantic and Europe.

Past the vast Himalayan range icy blasts from Siberia whip it to new fury over Tibet and North China. It has been known to hit 450 m. p. h., the fastest wind recorded, at 40,000 feet above Japan. So far practical use has been confined largely to the stretch across the Pacific.

NO DANGER AT ALL

CHICAGO (AP)—A member of the United States Atomic Energy Commission said flatly Friday night that the atomic bomb tests "do not constitute any real hazard to immediate health." Dr. William F. Libby told the June reunion of University of Chicago alumni that radioactive dosages due to fall-out expose Americans to about 1-20th of the rate of the natural radioactivity they receive from their own bodies over the period of a year.

Herd-Management Program Started to Protect Starving Elk

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Starving elk in Alberta forest reserves have prompted the Alberta government's game branch to start a herd-management program. Its aim is to eliminate herd movement to settled areas and reduce the number of elk that die each winter.

As the first step in the project, all elk in the Crow's Nest and Clearwater forest reserves of southwestern Alberta have been counted. The area covered extends along the slope of the Rockies, from Waterton National Park to the Highwood range.

Experts say there are too many elk in the area and in recent years animals from southern sections have wandered into settled districts, making free lunches of haystacks and crops. Because of the over-population of elk, winter feed is limited, and the animals cannot obtain enough nourishment. Many elk have starved to death. Weakened females which do survive the winter often do not calve.

With a direct herd-management scheme, tried successfully in the United States, the reserve will have a far smaller elk population than at present. Eventually there will be better grazing conditions, resulting in fewer winter kills, and a large calf crop in the late spring.

The 1954 open season on elk was the first step in the direct management plan. About 700 elk were taken, reducing the over-population problem.

At the start, however, the elk population had to be counted. This was completed by the end of April. The count was relatively easy on flat prairie sections, where a plane could be used, but on the final northern section, which is a series of ridges, flight at a constant altitude is impossible, so this area was given an absolute count, by men on snowshoes.

Areas of greatest concentration will be studied closely by parties who will study causes of deaths, establish the ratio of males to females, and investigate browsing conditions and food resources.

Forestry men reported that even with good binoculars, they had trouble distinguishing between cows and large calves in the elk herd. The game branch hopes that by fall herds will be well-enough managed to stop the elk starvation, and keep herds from damaging crops.

Explorers Club of New York Needs no TV Entertainment

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—One night about four years ago thieves broke into the Explorers Club in Manhattan, picked their way past rare tusks, fossils, war drums, snake skins, spears and arrows, and swiped the club's least valued possession—its television set.

The Explorers Club is one place that has no need of canned entertainment, souped - up, synthetic adventure or vicarious living. These boys live what the rest of us read and dream about.

Members have carried the club flag 24,000 feet up the Himalayas, 5,000 feet under the ocean in a bathysphere, over both poles, across every desert, into every jungle, and on the soil of every nation of the world.

SEVEN EXPEDITIONS

At this writing, there are seven flag-bearing expeditions in the field. Prince Peter of Greece and Denmark is studying the distribution of races along the border of Tibet, Louis Agathon is in Alaska looking for a mate to a rare type of white male bear he caught previously, Paul Knuth is mapping the northern part of "Peary Land" in Greenland, and other are in the north Australian jungle, India, the upper Arctic and the Tibesti mountains of Africa.

Formed in 1904 to promote scientific exploration and to give explorers both a social and professional clearing house, the club now has nearly 1,000 members and associate members. Among them you can meet such rovers as Peter Freuchen, Arnold H. Haverlee and Chief of Clannfhearghuis.

Freuchen, the old Arctic traveler, is a big, husky man with an impressive beard, a peg leg and a blunt, gruff manner toward younger explorers who come back with films in which they can't identify every last animal.

Years ago up in Hudson's bay, fatigue overcame Freuchen and he fell asleep in a snow storm. Awakening, he found his left foot frozen and gangrene moving in. Freuchen removed his own toes with pliers and a hammer. Later, a doctor amputated the foot at the ankle.

ECCENTRIC MENUS

Haverlee, an expert on Lapland and a far from melancholy Dane, is the devilish expert who has made some of the club's dinner menus famous for their eccentricity. He's the man who devises such hors d'oeuvres as fried Katanga termites, fresh alligator eggs or "Kon Tiki specials" composed of assorted raw shark, tuna octopus and sea snake.

Chief of Clannfhearghuis, a mapmaker, who is said to be descended from 178 Scottish kings, including Macbeth, favors kilts and a thin, waxy moustache. The chief is an outspoken foe of hunters who hunt merely for sport. During one lecture, as the lecturer's film showed a big Alaskan brown bear being shot from a boat, the chief stood up angrily and shouted:

"That is simply slaughter, not sportsmanship."

Whereupon the lecturer responded, "I notice you have many heads and horns around the room."

The speaker of the evening had a point but it also is a fact that thanks to the evangelical work of the Highlander and others who share his sentiments, more and more big game hunters carry cameras instead of guns.

CONSERVATION

Ketchi's Korner

by the ROVING SECRETARY of the CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

Even though it took place a month ago, we are still gathering reports on the opening day of the trout season. But we hasten to inform you we haven't heard anything new in the way of alibis. Plenty of old ones, though—water too high, riley water, fish weren't biting, etc., etc. These, along with a few others, have survived the re-telling for years and years. But the pity is that there are no new ones!

It was a wonderful day in the southern part of Ontario. And after a hazy early-morning overcast had been whipped away by a fairly stiff breeze, the rest of the day was well-nigh perfect. This correspondent came home with a fine creel of fish, and thereafter spent through a pretty itchy sunburn. But it was well worth it. The combination of fresh, clean air, brilliant sunshine and the inner contentment which goes with it is a mixture good for the soul. Particularly when a few well-hooked speckled trout go with it.

Reports have it that some excellent catches were made, as well as some near-record fish. But all the fishermen to whom we talked emphasized that all fish taken were really worked for. That was certainly the case in our party.

With the disappearance of the long-anticipated "big day" into history, there are some cherished moments which can be stored up against the time when fireside slippers, and the cozy warmth of the winter house will again release them.

And what memories they are! Sparkling, dancing waters— reflecting the mood of the happy sky. Brilliant sunshine, only momentarily hidden by a passing fleecy cloud. And, memory of all memories—that smashing, tackle-busting strike as "salveninus fontentalis" does his best to throw the hook which an instant before appeared to be a juicy breakfast.

There is a decided feeling of regret in our mind, even as we write this. There are so many, many people right here in Ontario who have never tasted of the great joy which belongs to the fisherman. Great numbers don't seem to be able to find the time to experience the pleasure, the contentment—the completely relaxing benefits of a day astream. They're too busy, too intent on and absorbed in their daily duties to give time to such "foolishness", as they often call it.

How wrong such people are! We have yet to find an angler who, because of his devotion to sport fishing, was one whit poorer in pocket because he spent a day or a week-end enjoying the fun of his pet diversion. Rather, we're convinced that the mental cleansing effect of a day spent fishing rewards the angler in a manner unimagined by his desk-bound brother. At any rate, the anglers we count among our friends appear to thrive on the recreational values of fishing, and we've yet to find evidence of a detrimental effect on this business!

We don't imagine for a moment that these words will alter anyone's individual thinking on the subject—certainly not to any appreciable extent. But if even a few should find time to experiment along these lines, they might come to find a bit more pleasure in their daily tasks. These angling memories have a way of creeping in, you know. They lessen the burden we all must carry. You should try it sometime. .

1. Never use a brush on them! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down fitting ridges so they gat loose.

2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath".

3. Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only . . . Polident! Polident cleanser is recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates. Polident gets where a brush can't reach.

Best of all, Polident always leaves false teeth odor free. Get the world's largest selling denture cleanser, Polident, at your drug counter. D-133

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

WOTTA MAN!

Eleven years ago a youth wended his way down one of the main streets of Vancouver, B.C. He was an ordinary teenager, weighing in the vicinity of 140 pounds, rather handsome but with no great claim to second looks on the part of fellow pedestrians.

The other night the same youth, now 27 years of age, climbed through the ropes in Memorial Arena. He tipped the scale at 290. On his huge shoulders rests the world's weightlifting championship. He is said to be the strongest man in the world.

After seeing him do a few stunts, plus what he did to an opponent weighing 240 pounds in the ring, we are inclined to agree with that statement.

Doug Hepburn, who has astounded the sports world with his prodigious feats of strength and has brought to Canada one of her rare world championships, intends to make his marvellous physique a source of wealth.

"It is all I have," he told this newsboy in a dressing room interview. "I have no trade and I have to make a living somehow. There is no money nor future for me in weightlifting, so it is logical that I turn to professional wrestling."

He rubbed a bicep the size of an ordinary man's thigh. He flexed the muscle and we looked for a little man with a handpump. It rose like a football, and was twice as hard. From our Lilliputian standpoint, this wrestling Brobdignagian will always be on our side. We haven't the slightest intention of insulting him.

But this young giant who can hoist over 1200 pounds without batting a bicep or denting a deltoid, has discovered that pro wrestling is a "tough game." "A lot of people go to see it just for the laughs, but believe me, these boys have to train hard and keep in perfect condition in order to take the bumps," he said.

Again that bicep ballooned. "Look at this," Doug said, pointing to a slightly misshapen ear. "Here I've been in a game but a few short months and I have been presented with a near-cauliflower ear, a neat, but not nifty scar on the nose and have had 14 stitches inserted in a lip. Do you call that an easy life?"

But that is part of the game, Doug says. He is under the tutelage of Whipper Billy Watson with whom he trains regularly and the supervision of Marse Frank Tunney. "They are splendid fellows and are helping me a lot to get started along the wrestling road. The wrestlers I have met are also a fine bunch and I have made many friends among the yanks."

Hepburn has engaged in eighteen bouts since he turned pro—and has as yet to meet with defeat. With his tremendous strength and ability to learn and train he should go a long way down the trail to a championship.

He boasts eight world records in weightlifting. But he has another ambition—and that is to take on the best in the world, pro or otherwise, in the "strength" department.

He has issued a challenge to ten of the strongest men in Russia to feats of strength. This challenge which went in some time ago apparently has been ignored, so Doug has forwarded a "repeat." The challenges were forwarded through the offices of Frank Tunney, who has guaranteed all expenses should the Russkys accept the dare and prefer to hold the bouts in the shadow of the Kremlin.

Hepburn is not married. He lived in Vancouver until a short time ago when he came to Toronto and became associated with the Tunney interests.

MILE RACE A REALITY

The mile race, which was reported in this column a few days ago as being a possible attraction for the Belleville Fair this year, is now a reality.

The race is an open one. That is, anyone can enter from the district. Those in charge of the race operations said today that letters have been mailed to the secondary schools of the district, some 13 in all, and it is expected a large number of high school runners, along with others will take part.

A handsome trophy has been donated. At the moment the name of the donor cannot be divulged for the simple reason we do not know who he or it is. We do know that it is a valuable bauble, a challenge cup, something that anyone would be proud to win—and hold for a year.

The race will be run on the opening day of the Fair. August 15. But more about it later. At the moment it is important that potential entries get their names to "Red" Doran. And remember, the deadline is August 1st. That should give entries at least some time to train.

Divide Honors With Chicago, Indians Split Sunday Tilts; "Lip" Strategy Gets 3-1 Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

These are hard days for the New York Giants. Leo Durocher, the master strategist, has lost the golden touch. The daring leader who always called for the right pitcher and the pinch home run in 1954 has misplaced the combination.

Take Sunday, for instance. It seemed like old times when Dusty Rhodes smote a pinch single to win the opener from Chicago 3-2. Even if it wasn't a homer, like Dusty always produced last year, it was enough to please the 18,431 customers.

But the things that happened in the second game seldom happened in 1954. Jim Hearn was rolling along with a 1-0 lead, thanks to Bobby Hofman's homer. With two out in the ninth, Hearn slipped. A single by Ernie Banks and a walk to Dec Fondy meant trouble. When manager Stan Hack sent up Frank Baumholtz to bat for his catcher, Leo called on Marv Grissom, who always got him out of jams last year.

ONE WALLOP DID IT

But Baumholtz hit Grissom's first pitch into the right field seats and that was the ball game 3-1.

"I booted it," said Durocher. "It was all my fault. Hearn was strong and probably would have won the game but I just felt like he should come out. I take all the blame."

Because Brooklyn also split two with St. Louis, dropping the first in 10 innings 9-4 and bouncing back to win the second 10-6, the Giants didn't lose any ground. But they're already 12 games back.

A DAY OF SPLITS

It was a day of splits in both leagues for everybody except Milwaukee and the Phillies. They probably would have finished all even, too, except for the Pennsylvania curfew. Milwaukee won the first game 5-4 but the Phillies were on top 4-0 in the seventh inning of the second game, which they'll finish tonight.

Pittsburgh shaded Cincinnati 7-6 on Ramon Mejias' ninth-inning single, but the Redlegs grabbed the second game 5-1 with little Jackie Collum going all the way.

After the heavy firing was over in the American League, Casey Stengel's New York Yankees still were four games in front of Cleveland Billy Hunter's inside-the-park homer in the 10th enabled the Yanks to square matters with Chicago in the second game 3-2 after Jim Rivera's grand slam home run and Dick Donovan's five-hit pitching won the first for the White Sox 5-3.

Washington used Cleveland errors to thump Bobby Feller 6-4, but the Indians finally caught up with the Senators in the second game 6-3 after losing three straight to the second division club.

ORIOLES SHUT OUT

Rookie Duke Maas of Detroit shut out Baltimore with three singles 10-0 in the first game. The Orioles snapped a seven-game losing streak in the finale 6-5 as Cal Abrams rapped a two-run homer and a triple.

Kansas City won 5-4 and then lost to Boston 4-3. Hector Lopez' single in the 10th gave the A's the first game. Jackie Jensen threw out the tying run at the plate to save the decision for the Red Sox in the ninth inning of the second.

Rookie Ken Boyer tied the first game at Brooklyn with a homer in the ninth and hit another with two on in the 10th when the Cardinals sewed it up with five runs off Jim Hughes. Eleven Dodgers went to bat in the fourth inning of the second game to score six runs. Roy Campanella hit his 17th homer.

Eddie Mathews hit a pair of homers off Robin Roberts for Milwaukee in their opener at Philadelphia and Ernie Johnson pitched fine relief ball.

ALL HOMERS

Home runs accounted for all but one run in Chicago where the Yanks and White Sox divided before 37,161. Andy Carey, Mickey Mantle and Hunter homered for the Yanks in the second and Chico Carrasquel for the Sox. In the first game Rivera and Sherman Lollar of Chicago and Carey and Gil McDougald of the Yanks connected for homers.

Vic Wertz hit two and Bobby Avila one for Cleveland in their losing first game when a leaky defence proved costly for the Tribe. Al Smith's triple with the bases full featured the Indians' winning rally in the second game.

Maas' pitching gave Detroit its fifth straight victory but the string was snapped with Abrams' help in the second.

Nashua Looks Like "Shoo-In" For Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — The 87th running of the Belmont is only a few days away, but a search of the stables finds only two horses definitely scheduled to oppose Nashua in the race that is often called the No 1 test for three year olds.

The $100,000-added Belmont, to be run at Belmont Park Saturday, is at 1½ miles compared to the 1¼ miles of the Kentucky Derby and the 1 3-16 miles of the Preakness. The three stakes comprise the turf's triple crown.

Nashua has no chance of winning the coveted triple crown because of his defeat by Swaps in the Derby.

As it stands now the only horses definitely scheduled to oppose the Belair stud ace are Hilton Dabson's Nance's Lad, fourth in the Preakness and winner of last Saturday's Peter Pan, and Landy Lawrence's Jabneh, a well-bred equine who passed up the major early season stakes. With Swaps on the west coast, Summer Tan sidelined by bad legs and Saratoga wanting no more of Nashua, it shapes up as the weakest field in many years.

Sugar Kings Blank Toronto Twice, Royals Slash Lead to Six Points

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It might as well be spring—April, that is—as far as the Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Royals are concerned because there was a brand new race in the International League today.

The Maple Leafs, who suddenly seem to have lost their hitting prowess, are ahead by a margin of six points. The Royals, who just as abruptly started hitting again, are breathing down the backs of the Leafs.

The Havana Sugar Kings won a doubleheader from the Leafs Sunday, and to rub it in blanked them in both games by identical 6-0 scores. The Royals collected a total of 22 hits to wallop the Syracuse Chiefs 6-3 and 5-2.

The other two double bills came out all even. Rochester, now tied with Havana for third place, six games off the pace, whipped Richmond 8-2 in the opener, then went down to a 4-3 setback. Buffalo thrashed Columbus 6-1 in the first game, but then was plastered with a 14-2 defeat in the afterpiece.

Emilio Cueche held the Leafs to five hits in the opener and Corky Valentine permitted them just two in the second game. Cueche drove in a pair of runs and Valentine knocked in one. As it turned out, neither needed any more support.

Ken Lehman scored his eighth victory in 10 starts for the Royals in the curtain raiser. The Royals needed only one big inning—the second—to wrap it up. They scored four runs on four singles and a double. Pete Wojey was even stingier in the second game. After starter Roger Craig walked the first three men he faced, Wojey came on and yielded just two hits the rest of the way.

The Bisons must have worn themselves out in their first-game victory over Columbus. Ben Flowers, down from the Detroit Tigers, tossed a six-hitter in the opener. But things were different in the second game. Bill Stewart started things out with a three-run homer in the first for the Jets and they never did stop the bombarding.

Majors Pound Out Sixth Win Elgins Edge Sox

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pitchers in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League are not having too much success in finding a way to silence the bats of London Majors.

Majors have won six of their eight starts so far this year and rest in first place. They recorded their sixth victory Saturday with a 7-1 win over Kitchener Panthers.

This time it was Dick Welker who got the works from the Majors. He was forced from the mound after the third inning with London head 6-0. In the first frame, three London players blasted his pitches out of the park.

In another intercounty game Saturday, it took St. Thomas 11 innings to squeeze by Brantford Red Sox 4-3 at St. Thomas.

In the Niagara District Senior League Fort' Erie Hortons defeated Niagara Falls Cataracts 8-5. St. Catharines Saints moved into first place with a 12-3 win over Stamford Kerrios.

Rightfielder Gerry Wilson started the home-run barrage in London as he belted the first round-tripper in the opening frame. His smash was followed by homers by Russ Evon, leftfielder, and first baseman Emil Tellinger. Wilson and Tellinger each collected three hits in four trips to the plate.

Bob Simpson pitched all the way for London, giving up six scattered hits to Kitchener. Welker, who moved to right field in the fourth inning when Preston Elkins came in to pitch, was the loser.

Centrefielder Willie Casanova broke up a tight pitchers' battle as he rapped a bounding single which drove in the winning run for St. Thomas. Brantford second baseman, Ron Hodara made a desperate lunge for the ball but it went off his glove.

Al Dumouchelle, Elgin moundsman, and Brantford pitcher Don Robertson went the full 11 innings. Three errors by Brantford infielders cost the Red Sox two runs.

Aubrey Edwards, St. Thomas shortstop who scored the winning run, collected two hits in three times at bat after he came into the game following an injury to Herb Mason.

Mason left the game in the top of the fifth after being hit by a pitched ball in the third frame.

London visit Galt tonight for a game with the Terriers. Tuesday night Kitchener is at London.

High School of Montreal Retains Dominion Track And Field Title

By ROMEO MAGERA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The High School of Montreal retained the Dominion interscholastic track and field championship during the weekend—thanks to a muscular and bespectacled 17-year-old youth nicknamed Moose by his schoolmates.

Maurice (Moose) Limonchik, a dark, thick-set student, brought to a dramatic close Saturday the Dominion interscholastic meet by smashing the Canadian interscholastic record for the senior discus throw—the last event of the day.

He heaved the disc 129 feet, 10¼ inches in breaking the only Canadian record of the day-long meet, held jointly with the provincial championships which saw 16 provincial records shattered and another equalled. The old mark for the senior discus was 125 feet, 2½ inches.

HIGHEST IN POINTS

Limonchik's first placing, together with a fourth position in the same event by John Zemnickis, gave Montreal High a final 24 points. Toronto Dundas, which scored 23 points, had appeared almost certain to win the championship until Moose won the discus.

One Canadian record was equalled. Don House of Toronto matched the record of 10.1 for the 100-yard dash, in the quarter-final heat. The final was won by Montreal High's Sam Levenson in 10.3.

More than 500 boys from a record 53 schools competed at the athletic grounds in suburban Westmount under five age groups: class 5 or senior, under 20; class 4, under 17; class 3, under 16; class 2, under 15, and class 1 under 14.

ONTARIO ENTRANTS

It was the largest annual meet ever held by the Greater Montreal Interscholastic Athletic Association. Ontario and Quebec were well represented.

Montreal High also won the class 3 provincial championship with 48 points. Gananoque high school took the Class 4 championship with 43 points while Mount Royal High won the Class 2 title with 25 and Ottawa Fisher Park, Class 1 with 26 1-3 points.

Points were distributed on a 6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for the four provincial age groups and 5-3-2-1 for Class 5, or senior.

Wilson heaved the eight-pound shot 57 feet, 6¼ inches past the old record of 53 feet, three inches, and T. St. Denis Hurls Haggis Juniors To 9-1 Victory

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Driving two pitchers from the mound in the first two innings, the Belleville Haggis Juniors made their home opening a victorious one over the week-end with a 9-1 triumph over Wellington at Belleville's Exhibition Park.

After O. B. A. executive member, Jack Carson, threw out the first ball to signify the baseball season open in the city, the Kelleher crew shelled starter Sarles with four first-inning tallies and promptly sent his successor, Abbott to the showers with another pair in the second frame. Coach Johnny Mowatt hurled the remainder of the game, giving up single runs in the fourth, seventh and eighth innings.

Leo "Wiener" St. Denis hurled the route in fine style to gain the victory for the local club, setting the Wellington nine down on five hits, two of them scratch singles through the infield. He threw hitless ball after the fifth inning and was never in trouble from the third frame on, whiffing eight of the Mowatt crew while walking only four.

St. Denis fanned the first two batters of the game and his mates repaid him with their first-frame runs. Ted Batchelor led off for Belleville with a single to left and Stoliker walked, bringing up heavy-hitting Wayne Fox. He cracked a double down the left-field line, scoring both runners. Chick Kingston walked with one down and with Fox on third coach Kelleher called the double-steal. It worked perfectly for the 3-0 score. Gord St. Louis singled by shortstop to plate Kingston and Buskard's single spelled exit for Sarles, Abbott getting St. Denis on a fly to centre.

The visitors got their lone tally in the second, Johnson punching a single between first and second and stealing second. Easton fanned for the second out but McKenzie walked. Bryant's single to centre scored the lead runner but a out-off play nailed Bryant going to second for the third out.

Abbott walked the first two batters in the bottom of the second and Fox knocked in two more runs, after another double steal. Gerry Goyer drew a base on balls and Mowatt came on. Fox out at third with an attempted steal. Kingston beat out an infield hit but a fine catch by Johnson for one and his throw to second nailing Goyer off base ended the rally.

Mowatt singled for the losers to open the third, taking second on a passed ball, and when Gren Grubbin slashed a single to centre, a beautiful throw from Harvey Stoliker cut Mowatt off at home in a picture play. St. Denis got the next two and except for a pinch double by Bob Garrison in the fifth, held the Wellington boys off the hit sheet for the afternoon.

Tom McKay's single after three errors and a walk in the fourth produced another Belleville tally. Batchelor cracked a long double in the seventh, went to third on an infield out, and scored on Fox's infield out later in the inning. This was Fox's fifth run batted in. St. Denis accounted for the final run, pulling a triple after a walk to Cam Buskard in the eighth.

Wayne Fox and Ted Batchelor led the local's hit parade with a double and single each, while Chuck Kingston and Gord St. Louis each had a brace of singles. St. Denis had a triple with singles going to Buskard, Stoliker and McKay.

Garrison claimed the only extra base hit for the losers, a double. Johnson, Mowatt, Bryant and Grubbin were credited with a single each.

The Haggis Juniors next home game is on Saturday next with the tough Picton squad providing the opposition. The boast the services of Keith Macdonald, Dick Fitzpatrick and Bobby Bunton. Game starts at 6.30 at the fair grounds.

The line-ups:

Jackie Pearce, St. Kitts, Win Regatta Honors

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont. (CP)—St. Catharines Collegiate Institute won the aggregate points championship and Jackie Pearce of Hamilton Westdale collegiate captured the Canadian schoolboy singles title at the Canadian secondary schools rowing regatta here Saturday.

The St. Catharines collegiate won only one final race but picked up enough points from second place finishes to regain the schoolboy championship and Cosgrove Trophy it last won two years ago. It piled up 65 points, 2½ more than the high school of Buffalo, N.Y., and 15 more than the third-place Notre Dame high school from Welland, Ont.

St. Catharines' lone first-place finish came in the 145-pound eights when it defeated Humberland collegiate of Toronto by an open boat length.

WON U.S. TITLE

Pearce, son of the noted one-time Diamond Sculls winner and professional champion, Bobby Pearce, added the Canadian schoolboy championship to the American title he won last week in Philadelphia; Bill Walker of Grosse Point, Mich., high school, the only other entrant, was a length behind but he never seriously threatened Pearce who covered the one-mile, distance in 6:36 2-5.

Walker won the 145-pound singles, defeating the only other entrant, Sylvester Taube of Detroit St. Anthony high school by a length. Walker was timed in 7:16.

The feature race, the championship eights, was taken by Buffalo St. Josephs in 5:23 with St. Catharines a length behind and Welland Notre Dame third three lengths back.

One of the largest crowds in the 10-year history of the Canadian schoolboy regattas witnessed the races, rowed under ideal weather conditions.

CANADIANA BEATEN

TORONTO (CP)—That remarkable mare, Canadiana, finally was beaten at Woodbine Saturday when she bowed to King Maple in the running of the $5,000 Connaught Cup Stakes. Another gallant old mare, Teddy's Sister, was third. Canadiana was carrying 123 pounds to her younger rivals' 117. The Canadian-bred mare ships to New York next week for engagements in stakes which are expected to raise her lifetime earnings over the $200,000 mark.

Hundreds Beat Furgol, Berg Golf Scores

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hundreds of Canadian golfers beat Ed Furgol, United States open golf champion, during the weekend but a western pro was in a class of his own.

Henry Martell of Edmonton Highlands fired a scratch 64—eight under par—Saturday to beat Furgol's 72 in the National Golf Day tournament. Other players of varying ability, right down to the weekend duffer, also bettered Furgol's and Patty Berg's scores in the tournament.

Furgol shot a two-over-par 72 and Miss Berg produced a 77 over the Olympic golf course at San Francisco to set the mark for everybody to shoot at in the annual competition. Those who entered the tournament paid $1—for charity and junior golf development—for a crack at the scores.

Most of the Canadian winners had handicaps big enough to get them under the American stars' scores. They received medals inscribed "I Beat Ed Furgol" or "I Beat Patty Berg," as the case might be.

Martell racked up seven birdies and two pars on the back nine for a 30. He had two birdies and a one-over-par on the first nine. He played the back nine first because the course was too crowded when he set out. The 64 was a course record. Martell, Frank Willey, professional at the Edmonton Riverside Club, and Bobby Locke of South Africa all had covered the course with 65s.

One hundred other golfers in the Edmonton area also beat the target scores. At least 450 men competed in the Ottawa district. Thirty-seven beat Furgol and two tied. Two of the three women who went after Miss Berg bettered her 77 with the help of handicaps.

Seven golfers were successful in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. In the London, Ont., area, 100 collect medals, while more than 230 Montreal area golfers bettered Furgol's and Miss Berg's performances.

Sonshine Has "Youth" Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Sonshine, manager of Toronto Argonauts football club, Saturday revealed to minor football executives a plan designed to give greater support to youth in Canadian football.

Sonshine proposed to representatives of Toronto and Welland junior and intermediate Ontario Rugby Football Union teams that they organize an Argonaut 'farm' system.

He said the plan would go into effect this season and would involve Argos with Toronto Balmy Beach and Toronto Parkdale Lions junior teams and Welland intermediates.

Included in the plan is financial and coaching assistance from Argonauts and a series of three Argo-inter-squad games to be played in August at both Toronto and Welland.

Pirie Wins Senior Mile

LONDON (CP)—Britain's Gordon Pirie, scheduled to run in Toronto this summer, returned to the track Saturday after a layoff, and won the senior mile event at the Surrey athletic championships.

Pirie's time was four minutes, 8.6 seconds, two seconds faster than his winning time in the same race last year. He ran the third lap in an extremely fast 57.7 seconds.

Pirie has been knocking at the door of world athletic fame for two years, but injuries have intervened at critical moments. His race Saturday came after a break in training caused by an arm ailment.

Solunar Notes

Sunglasses Are Boon to Anglers

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT.
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

It was a beautiful morning down in the Florida Keys last March and Cecil Green, bonefish guide extraordinary, and I were off to an early start. In his 25-horse skiff we roared out of his boat lagoon, across the flats to the Whale Harbor bridge, under the bridge, with the tide running full around the pilings, and up the channel toward the open waters of Florida Bay.

The wind caused by the gentle breeze and the motion of the skiff bothered my eyes, so I rummaged around in my kit to find my polaroid eyeshields. I came up with the empty case. Then I remembered; I had left them on the table back at camp. I motioned to Cecil who cut down the motor to idling speed.

"What's the trouble?"

"Left my polaroids back at camp."

"Well, you can't go fishin' without those, that's for sure."

It was a good mile back to the dock but back we went. Not until the eyeshields were found and installed across my eyes did we get under way again. A Florida bonefish guide would rather go fishing without his pants than to leave his polaroid eyeshields at home.

PRODUCED HEADACHE

The first polaroids I had were the kind that had a polaroid strip sandwiched between two layers of glass. Every time I wore them they gave me a frightful headache so I finally gave them to a Wisconsin game warden who could wear them without discomfort.

The first time I went bonefishing the guide offered me a pair of polaroid eyeshields. I declined, fearing another headache. With my eyes unprotected against an all-day bombardment of direct sunlight and reflected glare, I managed to hook four bonefish and land two of them but I came in that evening with the mother and father of all headaches.

Now I feel the same about it as do the bonefish guides. I would far rather leave my pants at camp (perish the thought) than try to fish all day in this brilliant sunlight without my eyeshields.

But protection from sunlight and glare from the water surface is by no means the entire reason that fishermen need polaroids while fishing the shallow waters of Florida Bay, to the west of the Upper Keys. Almost any good pair of sun glasses will relieve eyestrain.

MUST SEE TO FISH

To fish sucessfully and with comfort, one must be able to see, not only through the air but through the water as well. Polaroids remove surface glare, enabling the wearer to see the fish. Thus, the angler can cast directly to his quarry instead of indulging in "blind casting" and trusting to luck.

Bonefish are every bit as shy and scary as brook trout. A bad cast, showing them the line or even too much leader, will send them flying for the safety of deep water.

Mostly nowadays I wear the greentone polaroids. My aging eyes are such that I can't spot cruising fish anyway, so I leave that to the guide and I happen to like green. Only a few of the guides, however, share my choice. The rest of them use browntone or ambertone.

A year ago last July, I cruised Bahamian waters on the cruiser Eustatone, owned and captained by Milton Pierce, top fishing guide out of Nassau Yacht Haven. Milton scorned sun glasses of any kind but I managed to persuade him to wear a pair of polaroids.

Prior to that day Milton had been coming in every evening with a bad case of "the squints." His eyes would be bloodshot and watery and he carried boric acid on the boat in order to bathe them each evening.

SOLD ON SUNGLASSES

One day with polaroids and Milton was sold. No more eyestrain, no more boric baths, no more headaches. It happened that I had loaned him an old pair of browntones. The next day I had him try greentones. He gave them back after an hour or so and put on the brown ones again. He is still using those old eyeshields.

A poll among the bonefish guides here shows that the general preference is browntone. Cecil Green, Bill and Bonnie Smith, Lee Vandersaar, Perry Davis, Milton Pierce—all of them like brown. As a matter of fact, the only guide I have found who sticks to green is Rollie Hollenbeck.

Some of the boys would like to have the graytones to carry with them for use on gray or hazy days. These, however, are no longer available, so they do the best they can with what they can find in the shops

Green, gray or brown, however, I wouldn't be without them. I've had trouble from eyestrain enough in past years before the polaroid eyeshields were available. Now, thank goodness, I can fish all day in the bright sun, see what I want to see above or below the surface of the water, and come home that evening with no discomfort from tired eyes.

Horse Beats Man In Sprint Race

VANCOUVER (CP)—A sprinting charger named Lavender Belle outran a charging sprinter named Harry Nelson here Saturday—but only by a few yards.

The contest was part of a special day of racing at Lansdowne Park, with the proceeds going to the children's health centre, and drew an estimated 10,000 people.

Nelson, one of Canada's top sprinters, broke poorly, and although he picked up after covering only a few of the 100 yards, he couldn't hold off the steady driving of Lavender Belle.

The four-year-old horse, ridden by Bunny Johnson, started from the 125-yard mark, with Nelson taking off from starting blocks 100 yards away from the wire.

Neither of the contestants were clocked in the race.

Texan Wins British Amateur Golf Crown

ST. ANNES, England (AP)—Joe Conrad, a diffident little Texan, won the 60th British amateur golf championship Saturday with a 3-and-2 victory over gritty Alan Slater, a Yorkshire tool business executive, to complete a sweep for the United States in Walker Cup and amateur play.

The key shot in the rugged match played in bitter weather, came on the 27th green. The American was sagging badly then, his game was coming apart. Slater had pulled back from an all-but-fatal five-down deficit and at that point was one down. He was playing superb under-par golf.

Both men were on the green with their tee shots. Slater calmly sighted a 20-foot putt and stroked it in for a birdie 2. He must have felt he had squared the match. Then Conrad took his stance placing a 12-footer with a downhill roll.

The Texan needed that putt to save his lead, to restore his own confidence and to throw a dash of cold water on Slater's rising hopes. Conrad popped it in and went on to win.

Snead Adopts New Technique

GREAT NECK, N.Y. (AP)—Sam Snead has adopted a new putting technique which may crush his longtime jinx in the national open golf championship.

Putting, once the source of all of Sam's golfing woes, plus brilliant iron play carried Snead to a runaway victory in the round robin golf tournament Sunday at Deepdale—his fourth title in the event.

He climaxed the five-round weekend with a course record-breaking 65 which gave him a total of 46 points—24 over his closest pursuer in the 16-man field, Johnny Palmer, who finished with plus 22.

ONLY FAILED ONCE

Only once did his putter fail him, on the final hole when he three-putted from 30 feet, missing a simple three-footer. His real mastery was over the five and six-footers—the kind he used to miss.

Snead plans to leave Tuesday for San Francisco to begin prepping for the Open June 16-18—the big one he's never won.

At Deepdale he finished the 90 holes at 339—11 under par.

Snead's first-place prize was $3,000 with $2,000 going to runnerup Palmer. Peter Thomson of Australia, the British Open champion, was third at plus 19, followed by Marty Furgol, plus 11; Doug Ford, plus 2, and Masters champion Cary Middlecoff and Ted Kroll, even.

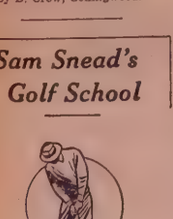
Tony DeMarco Meets Basilio Friday Night

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Tony DeMarco makes the first defence of his welterweight title Friday night as a 17-to-10 underdog against rugged Carmen Basilio.

The swarthy, 23-year-old titleholder from Boston is invading the home grounds of the 28-year-old challenger from Canastota, N.Y. The reason for holding the fight in this upstate New York city is financial and both gladiators will do handsomely.

Only a few days after the match was made, the 9,400 seats of the War Memorial Auditorium were sold out for a gate of $115,000. Radio and television coverage for the 15-rounder will add approximately $50,000 more to the receipts. Syracuse, Rochester, Binghamton and Utica will be blacked out of the telecast.

Hitting Saves South Africa



MANCHESTER, Eng. (Reuters) A display of tremendous hitting by 26-year-old Paul Winslow saved South Africa from total collapse against Lancashire Saturday and enabled the tourists to rally from 81 for seven to 154 all out. Lancashire replied with 64 for the loss of three wickets at close of play.

Winslow practically assured himself of a place in the South Africa side for the first test match against England on Thursday. He scored 53 of the eighth wicket stand of 56 with Fuller in 15 minutes.

6 If you swing your club back correctly but then swing it down incorrectly, outside-in instead of inside out, you're a "looper". Usually a looper's hands are ahead of the clubhead at impact. That's bad! The effect is to draw the Clubface across the ball, imparting a right-to-left spin which spells slice. Where a looper shoots straight to the left of the desired line of flight, it means his club-head is even with the hands at impact, which is correct, but his incorrect outside-in swing drives the ball left. If you are a looper, stress pulling your hands straight down toward your right pocket as you start the downswing. If you uncock the wrists at the top, you tend to throw the club out and around, producing the loop instead of retracing your backswing with the clubhead as it goes down.

The best of Tall Tales

A farmer we know made great news in the farming press last summer when it became known that his dairy herd was producing milk that was practically pure cream. All the agricultural experts were amazed until one of them found out how the farmer was cheating. He discovered that the cows were giving quite ordinary milk. But the farmer was putting it all into the drinking troughs and running it through the process again to get the fantastically rich milk.

AT THE BELLE — Kirk Douglas and James Mason as captive and captor, in Walt Disney's "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea", hate each other with all the fury of active men living in restraint. The CinemaScope-Technicolor film stars them with Peter Lorre and Paul Lukas. "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," is continuing today and Tuesday, at the Belle, after seven great weeks in Toronto.

AT THE CAPITOL — "A Bullet Is Waiting" stars Jean Simmons and Rory Calhoun, above. Stephen McNally and Brian Aherne at the Capitol Theatre in color by Technicolor. Film is set in the high Sierras starting tonight for its first city showing. On the same program in Technicolor "The Paratrooper", stars Alan Ladd and Leo Genn.

Percy Faith Starts Hour Show On Radio For Big Chain Store

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Conductor Percy Faith hopes to start a revival—a revival in radio programming.

Faith, who has a new one-hour musical show on CBS with a big five-and-dime chain as sponsor, says that if the program clicks he believes a lot of other big sponsors will troop back to radio.

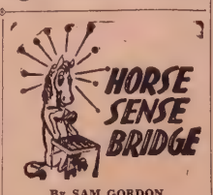
The Toronto-born composer and conductor isn't anti-television by any means. He simply takes the view that good music is a field in which TV has little if any advantage over radio.

"And this is real old fashioned radio in a big way," he says of his Sunday afternoon show broadcast live—something that's becoming a novelty in these days of recorded network radio.

ONE BIG THING

"Radio has to depend on music," he declares. "That's the one big thing it has to offer, aside from news and sports."

Faith says he feels music has not received very much attention in TV with a few exceptions, but even so the chances of enriching music with pictures are limited.



When Arturo Toscanini conducted Faith recalls, he coaxed superb music from the orchestra with movements of the baton that could be contained in a one-foot circle. It was the music he evoked rather than flashy gesticulations that made him great, Faith says, and his performances were not greatly enhanced by being televised.

PUBLIC DEMAND

Faith, like many other musicians credits radio with increasing public demand for good music. And evidence of the growing demand, he says is the mushrooming sale of high fidelity phonographs and radio phono combinations plus the increasing percentage of serious music in record sales.

Faith isn't too disturbed over surveys showing a decline in the percentage of home radios tuned in at any given time. He says CBS statisticians have informed him 26,000,000 cars with radios are on the highways at 1 p.m. EDT when his show goes on the air and if he reached a good percentage of them he has a large audience right there.

The dark haired, 47-year-old composer and conductor is a good choice for the chore of luring folks back to radio. He has his own legions of fans. Faith's Columbia records sell in the millions and his compositions have been among the top sellers, such as "Delicado" and "My Heart Cries for You."

If history can repeat itself, you should not object to my doing it. So, be reminded that this is a series on the responses to simple overcalls; a subject that runs the scale of indecisions.

My first two pieces in this series concentrated on two general rules. The theme of these two rules is that a simple overcall neither forces no invites nor encourages a response from partner.

The first of these two rules intends to impress a beginner with this potent hunk of advice; Unless there is sufficient purpose and provocation, partner of a simple overcaller should pass.

The second of these two rules ventures forward. It says that if partner makes a responding bid that takes out to a new suit it is contrary to a force. It expects the simple overcaller to pass.

All this may leave the impression that the partner of a simple overcaller should be seen and not heard. Or if heard, it sounds as if he should be left to stew in his own juice.

No so, little one, not so. These are the policies of responder if he is at all in doubt. Not if he has good sufficient reasons to believe that the bidding should continue by his pair.

What could such reasons be? Responder may have the kind of hand or help that smells like a game. Or the kind of hand or help that is practical for the taking of a worthwhile sacrifice in defence.

How does he express such encouragement?? With a jump response in anything. With a voluntary assist in the suit that was shown by the simple overcaller. Possibly by a no-trump response.

Sit with the east hand shown here:

South opens a spade. Your west partner simple overcalls with two hearts. North passes. Your east hand could raise to three hearts. There may be game if west has better than a minnie. Urge it.

"Valley of the Eagles"

John McCallum, a Swedish scientist, develops a method of transforming sound impulses into electric power—but his wife, Mary Laura Wood, and his assistant, Anthony Dawson, flee together with secret parts of the invention. McCallum and Jack Warner, a police inspector, follow them into desolate Lapland wastes, and join a party of Laplanders engaged in hearding raindeer over the frozen tundra. The herd is lost when Dawson causes a stampede. Then savage wolf packs close in on the pursuing party, but are driven off and slain by huge eagles brought to the rescue by mountain men. Under this emotional stress, McCallum and a beautiful Laplander, Nadia Gray, fall in love. Dawson and Miss Wood, arrested, try to escape but are killed in an avalanche, and McCallum and Nadia are free to wed.

BUILDING INCREASES

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian construction awards in the first five months of the year totalled $1,000,700,500, up $260,859,000 from the first five months last year and a record for the period, says Hugh C. MacLean Building Reports.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—By this time it is clear that if the New York Yankees go on to win another American League pennant—Casey Stengel's sixth in seven tries—it will be the direct result of the winter deal in which they suckered the Baltimore Orioles out of one of the game's greatest young pitchers, Bob Turley.

And what did the Orioles receive in return? Well, they got outfielder Gene Woodling, the "key" man in the big swap, who currently is hitting .206 and, from some accounts, has slowed down almost to a walk. Also, they landed shortstop Willie Miranda, hitting .225; catcher Hal Smith, .269, and first-baseman Gus Triandos, .282.

That's about all unless you wish to include pitcher Harry Byrd and his 4.42 earned-run mark. Frank Lane, of the Chicago White Sox wails that he begged Paul Richards, the Baltimore brain, not to surrender Turley to the Yanks for anything less than a couple of stars such as Hank Bauer and Andy Carey, but that Richards wouldn't listen.

Purely as a personal opinion, general manager George Weiss of the Yankees still is a grown man picking on a set of promising juveniles. The only mistake we can recall Weiss having made was in letting pitcher Bob Porterfield get away to Washington for nothing much in 1951.

MISS SUGGS IS VICTOR

READING, Pa. (AP) — Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., sank a 12-foot putt on the final hole for a birdie three and a one-stroke victory in the $5,000 women's eastern open golf tournament Sunday. She carded a two-under-par 69 over the 6,206-yard Berkshire Country Club course to capture the $1,000 first prize.

AT THE McCARTHY

Earthy People Seen in Story by Steinbeck.

It may well be said of the books of John Steinbeck that truth makes the best fiction. Real people, represented in the settings in which they live, doing the things they do every day of their lives; these are the elements from which Steinbeck is said to have created more than 25 novels of contemporary life.

"East of Eden," which has been described as Steinbeck's most passionate novel, was filmed by Elia Kazan in CinemaScope. The WarnerColor film is due Wednesday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre and stars Julie Harris, Jas. Dean and Raymond Massey, with Burl Ives and Richard Davalos.

The story of "East of Eden" is a story of people, earthy, unpretentious, passionate, emotional characters, each dependent upon another. The film concernes itself with the last part of the novel; the story of Adam Trask, his sons, Aron and Cal, their mother, Kate, and a girl, Abra. It is a story of a search for love. The desperate search for his father's love by the son, Cal; the fanciful search for his mother's love by Aron; and the futile quest by Adam for the love of all humanity.

Steinbeck wrote of his book, "The subject (of "East of Eden") is the only one man has ever used as his theme—the existence, the balance, the battle, and the victory in the permanent war between wisdom and ignorance, light and darkness—good and evil."

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 7 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)— All work and no play may seem your lot today. But with all business and no relaxation, you can become stale. Take time out for a refresher and you can double results on resuming work.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)— Do not act or work against your better judgment, nor stray far from the middle of the road. Stars advocate caution in financial matters, buying, business transactions.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)— Good performance is needed to put over good ideas. That little extra thought and effort certainly will pay in the end. Heart interests can weigh the balance in your favor.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)— Move steadily forward under generous rays. By analyzing each situation you can detect mistakes, possible obstacles. Closer relations with superiors, family, could prove helpful.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)— You will require all the alertness you can muster to hold your own today. Confidence will also be needed to combat hindrances. Engineering, remodeling, building, handling groups favored.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — The more you concentrate, the more you will achieve, and the better will be your results. Avoid needless detours; things will be less irritating.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Do you find yourself thinking of the answer before the other fellow's sentence is finished? That could be showing too much assurance. Be co-operative; help others in their aims.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Many people are on edge, touchy about little things; don't be in that category. Your intelligence can direct you. Don't waver in your principles, even though you may have to heed others in some matters.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Fine prospects now for business, manufacturing, dealing with people, property, money. Make contacts with confidence. Live and fight clean and others will respect you.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Good aspects for most endeavors of merit. A little extra work and thought could double your returns. Romance and marriage have a high spot in day's outlook.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — When all is said and done we only get what we earn or pay for. In your daily quest for achievement, try tackling something different to relieve tension.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Don't let your disposition get you into difficulty. There may be a tendency to take chances, to risk all on one try. Don't! Let others have their say; you withhold your opinion awhile.

YOU BORN TODAY are active and have plenty of ambition plus versatility. But ambition isn't all you need. Remember, you must develop the good in yourself and curb your faults. Keep your work, business, all affairs in order, and don't keep too many irons on the fire; you may lose much this way. You can make gains in many fields; choose well before embarking on your way of life. Gemini gives the world brilliant lawyers, musicians, artists, public speakers, promoters. The latter part of 1955 offers much. Birthdate of: George Bryan ("Beau") Brummell, English exquisite.

They named the child as Richard Casselman.

Speakers Claim Frost Govt. Has Not Lived Up to Promises

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver says it's time the Progressive Conservative government is thrown out of office "with a lusty clap on the back and a kick in some other part of the anatomy."

Heading into the final days of his campaign for the June 9 Ontario general election, the 51-year-old party chief said Saturday the administration of Premier Frost has not lived up to its promises.

"Mr. Frost, in 1951, told the electors he wanted a vote of confidence in order to complete some important undertakings," Mr. Oliver said at a rally in Whitby. "The electors gave it to him. Today we see the miserable record of that administration."

He again hammered at the highways irregularities case, disclosed last year when several construction companies were charged with defrauding the government, and the frequency — conversion job being done by the Canadian Comstock Co.

CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald was the only other main party leader to campaign during the weekend. Mr. Frost took a breather.

Mr. MacDonald attacked the Liberal party in a speech at Belleville, saying it did a "pathetic job" as the official Opposition in the last legislature.

"Rarely, if ever, has the legislature had such a weak Opposition. Now what hope is there that if the Liberals are returned in force the situation will change?"

Mr. Oliver, seeking to lead the Liberals to their first election victory since 1937, said the government has lost lustre and become commonplace because it has governed badly.

A Liberal government would put an end to the "honeymoon" between the Comstock company and the government, he said. The company would be asked to agree to a revision of the conversion contract "or else the company will go out the window and the contract with it."

Mr. Oliver charged that Comstock was made a monopolistic giant as a result of its cost-plus five-per-cent contract with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

On highways, he said he would continue to press for a full disclosure of the loss to the public treasury through fraud and other criminal acts in connection with the irregularities.

At Whitby, he spoke in support of W. T. Harris, candidate for the new riding of Ontario, and William Lawson, candidate for Oshawa. He also addressed a rally earlier in the day at Cobourg and visited the Tyendinaga Indian reserve at Deseronto.

"SIAMESE TWINS"

Mr. Oliver summed up four weeks and 3,500 miles of campaigning with the charge that the Ontario government and high taxes are "Siamese twins."

The 51-year-old Liberal leader looked tired as he completed his province-wide tour.

Mr. MacDonald said the government was lazy during the last legislature session and that the Liberals were lazier.

"The present leader of the Liberals is the man who led them through the last four years of opposition asleep. And all he has done is hurl charges at the government and invite CCF supporters to unite with his party.

"Does the Liberal party leader really expect CCF supporters to join forces with a party financed in exactly the same way as the Conservatives—by big business—a party which spawned its own batch of contractor millionaires when in power?"

HIGHWAY CHARGE

He said Liberal governments of the past laid the groundwork for "highway scandals — the Tories merely developed them."

He said Walter Thompson led the Liberal party on its "last wild binge in the 1951 election and the party never recovered from it."

"Farquhar Oliver is leading it today wearily to its grave, where the people of Ontario will give it a decent burial June 9," he said. "Historically it's a sad event, but a necessary one, for the provincial Liberals have long outlived their usefulness.

"There would be nothing more futile if the people of Ontario were to switch from the Tweedle-Dum of Mr. Frost's government to the Tweedle-Dee of the Liberals in the election."

Chief Councilor Of Six Nations Opposes Voting

BRANTFORD (CP)—E. P. Garlow, chief councilor of the elected Six Nations Indian council, Sunday added his voice to those of the hereditary chiefs of the Six Nations, urging Indians not to vote in Thursday's provincial election.

Chief Garlow told a meeting of the reservation near here that a vote would make the Indians full citizens, subject to income tax and other responsibilities of citizenship, which he said most Indians do not want.

He took issue with statements attributed to Premier Leslie Frost, who had said the Indians' vote would not jeopardize anything they hold dear.

NOT SUBJECTS

"We Indians are not subjects," Chief Garlow said. "We are allies of the crown. As allies we have been given many things—the old age pension, the family allowance. Then came the beer, and now they want to give us the vote. But it is only full citizens, subject to the crown, who are entitled to all these things.

"If we vote, we accept full citizenship. That makes us subjects, no longer allies. If we are no longer allies, our treaty rights no longer apply. We would be subject to income tax like anyone else.

"There are many of us who do not want citizenship. We prefer to remain as we are."

Union With CCF, Social Credit Rejected by PCs

QUEBEC (CP) — Progressive-Conservative representatives began preparations during the weekend for the next federal election in traditionally Liberal Quebec.

Some 500 delegates from 27 Quebec ridings east of Trois-Rivieres heard a recommendation that the Conservative party unite with the CCF and Social Credit to overthrow the Liberal government. The resolution, put forward by Raymond Maher, was withdrawn on the grounds that it did not conform with party policy.

Progressive Conservative leader George Drew, addressing a closing banquet Saturday, said "the next election may be the last chance to save our constitution.

"Step by step, in the last 10 years, the Canadian government has moved farther and farther toward complete centralization. If this trend continues, we will have unitary government in Canada."

9,000 People Hear Evangelist Graham in Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — Evangelist Billy Graham said Sunday night his first public meeting in France was "the most astounding night of my ministry." Of an estimated 9,000 people at the rally, 623 made "decisions for Christ."

"It was the most amazing response I have ever seen," he told reporters. "A new spirit seemed to form on the congregation after the initial difficulties of interpretation and bad acoustics."

After speaking personally to the 623 who stepped forward, Graham told reporters that he had never expected such a response.

"People told me even this morning that the French had no time for this kind of message."

Earlier, he told his large congregation in an indoor sports stadium in the shadow of the Eiffel Tower that "a spiritual awakening in Paris could have its effect throughout the world."

QUIT CIGARETS

Among men who smoke two packs or more daily, heart disease is the most common cause of death and lung cancer is second. In these men, lung cancer accounts for one in eight deaths.

In the general male population of this same age, lung cancer accounts for 1 in 30 deaths.

Pipe-smoking "appears to be associated with lung cancer"—but far less than cigarets.

Cigar-smoking still does not show any significant association with lung cancer, in this study.

SEEMS TO HELP

Among the ex-smokers — those who at the start of study about three years ago said they had quit smoking—the death rate from lung cancer was 14 times as high as among non-smokers.

But it was only half the rate as among men who had kept on smoking even less than a pack a day of cigarets.

For "very light" ex-smokers, the lung cancer death rate was about the same as the rate among men who had never smoked.

"The fact that ex-regular cigaret smokers had lower lung cancer death rates than those who were still smoking cigarets regularly at the time of questioning (three years ago plus) suggests that giving up the habit results in a reduction of the risk," said Hammond and Horn.

New Shooting In Gaza Region Causes Concern

CAIRO (AP) — New shooting between forces of Egypt and Israel along the troubled Gaza strip has brought fresh Egyptian demands for a demilitarized zone along the Israel-Egyptian frontier.

Egypt's war office said six Israeli armed cars and trucks opened fire early Sunday on two Egyptian outposts near the demarcation line. An Israeli army spokesman in Jerusalem accused the Egyptians of shooting first.

Neither side reported any casualties in the three-hour exchange, but an Egyptian army spokesman said a United Nations observer called to the scene had to take cover to escape Israeli bullets.

The war ministry said Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser has revived his proposal to Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, chief of the UN truce observation teams, that a demilitarized zone be set up along the Egyptian-Israeli demarcation line to reduce border conflicts in the Gaza area.

NO WAR THREAT

The statement apparently was intended to dispel any impression that an earlier warning by Nasser was a new war threat.

The Egyptian press had quoted Nasser Saturday as saying any Israeli attempt to take the Gaza strip would "mean war." The papers said Nasser made the statement after Burns told the premier he believed the Israelis intended to seize the strip, a 135-square-mile coastal wedge of Palestine between Israel's southern Negev desert and the Mediterranean. It was awarded to Egypt in the 1948 armistice.

Income Doubled In Seven Years Council Told

TORONTO (CP) —In the last seven years the total income of the Presbyterian Church has doubled in Canada, Dr. A. Neil Miller of Toronto told delegates to the 81st general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada here.

Dr. Miller, secretary of the stewardship and budget committee said Saturday that the church's total revenue last year was $7,600,000.

He said the financial outlook for this year was bright. "At the end of May remittances from congregations were up 24 per cent from last year," he said.

Dr. Miller said that within three years $12,000,000 should be a reasonable figure to expect from Presbyterians in Canada. But he warned delegates that the church's revenues today are based on casual contributions.

"If there was a swift change in the economy of our country," he said, "church contributions might fall off very quickly."

He recommended that the assembly establish more fund committees to set aside money to continue church commitments on a "rainy day."

U.S. Steelworkers Open Campaign For Wage Boost

PITTSBURGH (AP) — With United States Steel Corp. the initial target, the United Steelworkers (CIO) begin negotiating Tuesday with the American basic steel industry for a "substantial wage increase."

David McDonald, president of the 1,200,000-member union, and other high union officials will meet with a U. S. Steel committee headed by vice-president John A. Stephens.

McDonald said he plans to open negotiations with five other major producers immediately after talks get under way with big Steel. He will act as head of the negotiations with all six firms.

The union's wage-policy committee instructed McDonald and other officials to seek a "substantial wage increase." Neither McDonald nor any other union official has defined "substantial."

However, many observers believe the union will open the talks with a demand for as much as 25 cents an hour. That figure is expected to be cut down to between 10 and 12 cents by agreement time.

The big union will be free to call its 600,000 members in basic steel out on strike at midnight June 30 if a settlement is not reached. Wages are the only issue up for discussion.

Mails Fire Alarm

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — The fire brigade in Kolding, South Jutland, received a summons to put out a fire — by letter.

A man had observed that there was a fire in the town's garbage dump and, not having a telephone, wrote to the fire brigade.

By that time the fire had almost burned itself out.

Garden Notes

Plant Shrubs to Attract Birds

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Each spring and fall we are delighted with short visits from the birds passing north or south. If we wish to have native birds take up permanent residence in our gardens we must provide attractive food and shelter for them.

There are many shrubs which grow readily in the open or on the edge of a woodlot, but do not take kindly to city life. The following is a list of shrubs suitable for city gardens and approved by feathered folk.

Japanese barberry, well-known hedge and shrub plant, has bright scarlet berries. Tartarian dogwood bears bluish-white fruit on ten-feet tall, slender shrubs. Pagoda dogwood is more horizontal with red stems and blue-black fruit. Red Osier dogwood is a compact shrub four to eight feet high that has scarlet stems and white berries.

There are several other dogwoods, all good, with edible berries. Consult your local nurseryman for available species.

Perhaps you have a privet hedge which is kept sharply cut each season. Allow it to flower and it will produce small black berries which are relished by the birds.

VIGOROUS SHRUBS

Tartarian honeysuckle is a rounded, vigorous shrub which provides an abundance of bright, coral-red berries. Nanking cherry is a spreading shrub, extremely hardy, which grows six to eight feet high and has scarlet, summer fruit. The native chokecherry is a prolific producer of small, red fruits, but it is apt to become infested with web-worms.

European red elder and American elder both have attractive leaves and large clusters of berries. The European variety has red berries and the American, black berries.

Remember when we gathered snowberries from grandmother's plants and strung them for pearl beads? This is still a favoite shrub which has white berries the size of small marbles. They last on through fall and into winter. The coral berry is quite similar, but its berries are dark red.

The European Cranberry is quite tall, 12 to 15-feet high, very hardy, and has a good supply of scarlet berries. Mapleleaf Viburnum can be grown in shade, and is quite hardy. Its fruit is black.

A BONUS FOR BERRIES

Another very hardy shrub is arrowwood. It grows six to 10 feet and has glossy, blue berries. Wayfaring tree, another hardy one, grows to 15 feet and has red berries which darken to black as the season advances.

There are also sumacs; fragrant sumac, cutleaf sumac, and staghorn sumac. These make very attractive groups of small trees and provide berries for the birds all fall and into the winter.

Having planted shrubs you will want to set up a feeding station for the winter. Don't forget to provide a bird bath. With these attractions you can be amused and delighted all through the year by the birds, and they in turn will eat bushels of grubs, worms and beetles; a big bonus for a few berries.

Three Satellites Now Want to Be Tito's Friends

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP)—The Kremlin's touring leaders have come home with promises from four of the Soviet-bloc satellites to join the Russians in bettering relations with Yugoslavia.

Foreign Minister Molotov and other high officials were at Moscow airport Sunday to greet party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev, Premier Nikolai Bulganin and A. I. Mikoyan, first deputy premier, on their arrival from Belgrade.

Moscow radio Sunday broadcast a communique that Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Romania had approved the agreement on "active coexistence" signed by Bulganin last week in Belgrade with Yugoslavia's President Tito.

The communique said Russia's three allies "expressed the hope and conviction that friendly co-operation would be established between their countries and Yugoslavia in the interests of the further consolidation of peace and socialism."

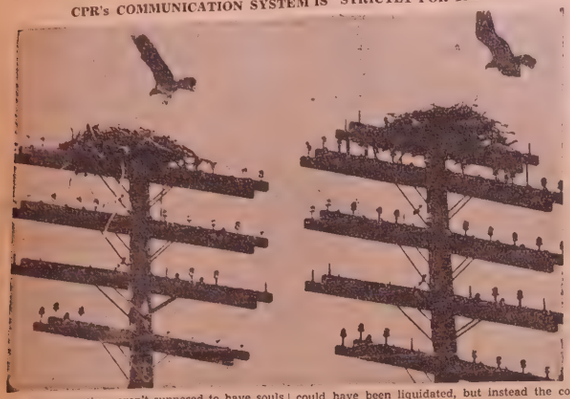
Smoke Hampers Search For Men And Helicopter

CHAPLEAU (CP) — Clouds of smoke from a forest fire today hampered the search for two men lost with their helicopter for the last three days.

RCAF and lands and forests pilots found it difficult during the weekend to sight anything in the thick smoke of the 100-square mile forest fire area, 40 miles northwest of Chapleau.

The missing aircraft carried pilot Arthur Coles of Vancouver and Barney Smith, a Sault Ste. Marie forester employed by the Abitibi Power and Paper Company.

WANTS TO RETURN



OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Otho G. Bell, an American Korean prisoner of war who chose to remain behind the Iron Curtain, wants to come home, his wife said Sunday. Jewell Bell said her husband wrote in a recent letter that he will return to her and their four-year-old daughter, whom he never has seen, as soon as he can obtain a passport.

CPR's COMMUNICATION SYSTEM IS "STRICTLY FOR THE BIRDS"

Big corporations aren't supposed to have souls—only machines that operate on compound interest—but that story, like the one pictured here is strictly for the birds. For three years an osprey (fish-eating hawk) has persisted in building her nest among the telegraph wires of the Canadian Pacific Railway's communications system near Banff. This was hazardous to the osprey's off-spring and a nuisance to the telegraph linemen, interfering at times with the normal flow of messages and once suspected of fouling up the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's network which uses the railway's facilities. The osprey could have been liquidated, but instead the company went to the trouble and expense of putting up a fifth crossbar on the telegraph pole to accommodate the bird and its nest and at the same time end the interference with the telegraph system. The osprey is seen at left coming in for a landing before the change was made in the pole. At right not an egg was disturbed as the CPR men made the change, and it may be presumed that the osprey and the CPR will live in peaceful co-existence ever after. (Central Press Canadian).

Five Drowned In Ontario Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two men who slipped from a dam and were drowned at a spot where six other persons have lost their lives in the last four years were among at least 15 persons who met violent death in eastern Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press survey shows 11 deaths in Ontario, two in Quebec and two in Newfoundland. None was reported in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia or Prince Edward Island.

There were eight drownings and six traffic deaths. One man was crushed under a truck.

Crescenzo Chiarullo, 27, and John Giovanni, 24, both of Toronto, were drowned in the Grand river near Hamilton when they slipped on green slime which covers part of the Caledonia dam. A companion, Tony Staghieri, 26, also fell in when he went to their assistance but was rescued by other fishermen.

DROWNS IN PIT

Teddy Malcolm Larmour, 14, was drowned when he attempted to retrieve a fishing pole from the Nation river at Chesterville, 37 miles northwest of Cornwall.

The Ottawa river claimed Ubaldo Buccarelli, 20, while he was swimming off a park on the capital's western outskirts.

Five-year-old Peter Adlam Tweedle of Brantford was drowned while playing in the water in a gravel pit. A young companion, who also fell into the water, was rescued.

Harold W. Plank, 49, a structural steel salesman at Sault Ste. Marie, was burned to death in the flaming wreckage of his overturned car. The vehicle burst into flames after crashing into a hydro pole.

An American businessman died when his car collided with another near Windsor. He was Frederick Mitchell, 38, of Detroit.

William Kirkenham, 31, of St. Thomas, died when a car in which he was riding rammed into another and both vehicles smashed into the show windows of two stores. Three other persons were injured, none seriously.

INJURIES UNEXPLAINED

Herman Lucier of Dover township died in hospital at Chatham from injuries suffered in a car accident.

William Grant, 23, of Newmarket suffered fatal injuries when his truck hit a soft shoulder and rolled over twice.

Henry David Ireland, 69, of Etobicoke was found dead at the controls of a road roller Saturday. He died of a broken back, chest injuries and a ruptured liver but police said they were unable to explain how he was injured.

SET BAPTIST DATE

HAMILTON (CP)—The 67th annual assembly of the baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec will be held at McMaster University here June 13-16, Norman Moore of Brantford, convention president, said the theme of the assembly will be Conquest for Christ.

Unveil Memorial To 1,800 Men Killed in Landing

BAYEUX, France (Reuters)—The Duke of Gloucester Sunday unveiled a memorial here in memory of more than 1,800 Commonwealth men killed in the Normandy landings and the Allied sweep across France from June to August, 1944. The men have no known graves.

Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, deputy supreme Allied commander in Europe, who commanded land forces in the Normandy landings, and Sir Gladwyn Jebb, British ambassador in Paris, came to Bayeux, which was decked with flags for the occasion. About 40 Canadians were present.

Gen. Jean Ganneval, represented President Rene Coty of France.

Anthony Head, British secretary of state for war and chairman of the Imperial War Graves Commission, and representatives of Canada, India, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand were present at the unveiling.

Built of white Portland stone, less than a mile from Bayeux, the Britons, 270 Canadians and one South African.

SET LAND FREE

It carries the Latin inscription: "We whom he conquered have set free the land of William the Conqueror."

In the neighboring port of Courcelles Sunday night, Veterans Affairs Minister Hugues Lapointe of Canada recalled the part Canadian troops played in the invasion.

Lapointe, who landed in Courcelles in 1944 as commander of the Regiment de la Chaudiere, told an open air meeting on the quayside.

"All our regiments who landed here—the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, the North Shore Regiment, the 10th Armored Canadian Regiment and the Regina Rifles Regiment—left behind their dead in the nearby cemetery of Beny-Sur-Mer.

"Due to the heroism of the regiments I have just mentioned, Canada has permanently engraved her name by the side of Britain and the United States, on the front of Free Europe."

The Duke of Gloucester said the memorial commemorates a crusade of brotherhood and sacrifice, one of history's decisive events.

100 HURT IN GALE

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — A 100-mile-an-hour gale which screamed through the Indian village of Burdwan near here today injured 100 persons and knocked down a number of mud huts in the poorer section of town. Thunderstorms following the gale dislocated traffic and did extensive damage to electric and telegraph wires.

YOUNG PATRIOT JAILED

LIMASSOL, Cyprus (Reuters)—A 20-year-old Cypriot Greek, Panikos Nicolaou, was sentenced Friday to seven years' imprisonment on charges of preparing to overthow the government of this British island colony by armed force.

Teacher Defends Study of Latin And Greek

TORONTO (CP)—A high school teacher with 25 years' experience said Saturday it is high time for Canada's classical scholars to defend the study of Latin and Greek against the view that it is stodgy and valueless.

Speaking before a group of Canada's best-known classics scholars and professors at the annual meeting of the Canadian Classical Association, Grace Irwin of Toronto's Humberside collegiate admonished the classicists for too much reticence and despair

Miss Irwin, who took her master of arts degree in Greek at the University of Toronto and who is author of two popular novels, told her listners they were the "sons of light" among scholars and should not forget it. She said even the classicists themselves were being fooled by the "popular fallacy that there's no use in Latin and Greek."

Knowledge of classics, she said, provided "a touchstone with which to try every form or idea in an age which blatantly asserts that veneer is difference, difference is progress and progress is improvement." As such, she claimed, it was of supreme practical value in the modern world.

Miss Irwin hit out at the "wrong-headedness which makes girls, who will in future buy chickens ready-drawn, if not delicatessen-dressed and cooked, spend shuddering hours cutting up frogs and guinea-pigs in zoology labs" and "the naive orthodoxy that convinces youngsters, who will trust for an adding machine for a simple sum, that algebra, trigonometry and statics are practical helps in everyday life."

She said it was the urgent task of every teacher of classics at schools and universities to attempt to show the pleasures and lasting benefits to be derived from their subjects.

Ruler of Libya Sees Wife Hour Before Marriage

CAIRO (Reuters) — King Idris, 67-year-old ruler of Libya, took a Bedouin chief's daughter as his second wife here Sunday one hour after seeing her for the first time.

The marriage, arranged weeks ago, consisted of the signing of a wedding contract by Idris, accompanied only by Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser and Libyan Premier Mustafa Ben Halim.

The bride, tall, dark Aliyah Lamlum, 37, was not present at the ceremony in the Libyan embassy here.

She saw her husband-to-be for the first time an hour before the ceremony, when Idris, dressed in flowing silk robes and a red fez, visited her with presents of a diamond ring and other jewelry.

Two Drowned At Caledonia

CALEDONIA, Ont. (CP)—A fisherman who slipped off the Caledonia dam and a companion who went to his assistance were drowned in the Grand river Sunday. A third man, who also fell into the river, was rescued.

Dead are Crescenzo Chiarullo, 27 and John Giovanni, 24, both of Toronto.

Tony Stanghieri, 26, said he and his friends had been at the dam near Caledonia, about 12 miles south of Hamilton, for only a few minutes when Giovanni slipped on slime which covers part of the dam and fell into the river. Chiarullo attempted to pull him out but slipped in himself. Stanghieri said he also fell in when he attempted to help his friends.

"I can swim a little, but I don't think the other two could swim," he told police. Joseph Kaplac, 30, and Aldrick Kahanek, 29, both of Hamilton, heard the three call and lowered a landing net to Stanghieri and pulled him ashore. The other two, meanwhile, had disappeared beneath the water.

General Motors Strike May Start Early Wednesday

Jubilant Auto Workers Ask Same Terms Ford Granted

By NORMAN WALKER

DETROIT (AP)—The giant General Motors Corp. faced a possible strike at midnight tonight in its American plants as the jubilant United Auto Workers (CIO) drove relentlessly ahead today on its guaranteed-wage campaign.

Walter Reuther, red-haired, 47-year-old UAW president, said he would take charge of the GM negotiations personally to try to get the auto industry's largest producer to match or better terms already won from the Ford Motor Co.

GM's five-year contract expires at midnight, and the UAW's General Motors Council was to convene this morning to decide whether to call a walkout tonight or set a future date to provide more time for bargaining.

John W. Livingston, UAW vice-president and head of the union's GM department, wanted a GM settlement better than that won Monday at Ford.

"I don't see any reason why we can't do better than they did at Ford," Livingston said. "General Motors certainly can afford it."

Reuther, in a parody of the Ford promotional slogan, "There's a Ford in Your Future," said "There's a Ford in GM's Future."

The question today was whether GM would go along with the controversial guaranteed wage, even in modified version negotiated at Ford, or stand firm and buck the plan opposed by so many American businessmen.

COULD MEAN SETBACK

For GM to fight would mean facing an almost certain strike and a major setback in its fiercely competitive fight with Ford for leadership in the auto sales market.

A strike among GM's 325,000 workers also would be a test of the UAW's solidarity. The union's biggest previous strike was the 1945-46 GM walkout involving 175,000 workers.

Meanwhile, debate has broken out over the terms of the Ford settlement, embodying for the first time in a negotiated labor contract between a major American industrial firm and union the principle of the guaranteed wage.

The question is whether the Ford plan established a dangerous precedent for business to finance malingering of employees when idle, or sets up a carefully limited system for worker security that cannot upset the free-enterprise system.

Ford's decision was to go along with the guaranteed wage. But instead of negotiating on Reuther's all-out plan, Ford proposed one of its own and sold it to the union.

In doing this, Ford accomplished two important objectives:

It succeeded in limiting company-financed supplemental jobless payments to a 26-week duration—half a year compared with Reuther's demand for a full annual wage guarantee.

It managed to hold the aggregate of company and state jobless payments to 60 to 65 per cent of normal pay, instead of the full-earnings guarantee Reuther wanted.

Despite the new agreement, more than 15,000 Ford production workers failed to report at four plants today. Three of them were picketed and closed.

Sporadic stoppages from Massachusetts to California developed Monday, affecting 114,000 of Ford's 140,000 production workers as the new contract was hammered out. Most returned to assembly lines today.

Premier Scelba Hails Victory In Sicily

PALMERO, Sicily (AP)—Premier Mario Scelba's pro-Western Christian Democrats today hailed their victory in the Sicilian regional election as one with far-reaching consequences for all of Italy.

Complete returns from Sunday's elections gave the government party seven new seats in the semi-autonomous island's regional assembly, and strong gains in popular support. Scelba called the outcome a "magnificent accomplishment."

Their 37 assembly seats make the Christian Democrats Sicily's biggest party by far, although it does not give them an outright majority of the 90-member chamber. They are expected to govern with the support of the Monarchists, who won nine seats.

Woman Killed As Car Smashes Through Block

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A woman was killed instantly and her husband critically injured early today when their panel truck smashed through a road-block warning sign and struck a six-foot concrete wall at the abutment of a washed out bridge on Gore road, about four miles south of Lambeth.

Provincial police identified the dead woman as Mrs. Mary Sweet, about 38, of Lambeth. Her husband, Harold Sweet, 45, was taken to Victoria Hospital where his condition was described as "grave." The couple have two young children.

The accident, police said, apparently occurred early this morning but was not discovered until shortly after 8 a. m. by Keith Sutton, a farmer who lives nearby.

Egypt Rejects Proposed Talks With Israel

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt has rejected a United Nations proposal that her highest officials negotiate directly with Israel's to stop continuing clashes along the disputed Palestine Gaza strip.

An Egyptian spokesman, Col. Salah Gohar, Monday night said his government prefers to continue negotiations through the UN mixed armistice commission established by the 1948 armistice.

Israel is boycotting the Israeli-Egyptian commission, on which a UN representative has the tie-breaking chairman's vote.

Gohar said Egypt has asked Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, the UN truce chief, for renewal of armistice commission talks with discussions of a four point Egyptian proposal. The points: only regular Egyptian and Israeli army troops would man the border areas; establishment of a demilitarized zone one kilometre wide on each side of the border; periodic meetings of the commanders from each side; establishment of joint Egyptian-Israeli border patrols.

PLANT DEMOTED BY GOVT. FOR NO-ARMY SPEECH

Defence Minister Says Talk 'Inappropriate'

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is taking steps to prevent any repetition of the type of speech which cost Air Vice-Marshal John L. Plant his job as chief of RCAF technical services.

Defence Minister Campney told the Commons Monday that instructions will be issued to the chiefs of staff of the three armed services governing future public statements by officers.

He told the House that statements contained in the 44-year-old air force officer's Toronto speech last Thursday were "highly inappropriate." Prime Minister St. Laurent said the type of speech delivered by Air Vice - Marshal Plant is both "inappropriate" and "indiscreet."

Mr. Campney said he has accepted a recommendation by Air Marshal Roy Slemon, chief of air staff, that Air Vice-Marshal Plant "relinquish" his present position. He will become chief of the air force's air materiel command, with headquarters in Ottawa, where he "no longer will be associated with the army and navy in tri-service policy."

REPORTED REMARKS

Air Vice-Marshal Plant was reported to have told United States and Canadian aviation writers that the Canadian Army should be scrapped to make more manpower available for a stronger air force. He also was reported to have said a world-wide atomic war appears inevitable and that the Western powers are ready to go to war with the Russians whenever they want to attack.

Mr. Campney said it would appear the air vice-marshal's speech really was cast in an entertaining and humorous vein. Air Vice-Marshal Plant admitted some of the statements attributed to him but said that in first reports they were removed from their context.

However, Mr. Campney said Air Vice-Marshal Plant is being transferred from his present job to remove any doubts regarding the continuation of tri-service co-operation on policy matters. Air Vice-Marshal Plant was adviser to the chief of the air staff and his duties included dealing with and serving on tri-service committees.

COULD UNDERSTAND

Opposition Leader Drew said he could understand a member of the tripartite service committee making a statement inconsistent with those of other members. This was anent reference to Air Vice-Marshal Plant's statement that the army should be scrapped. But the statement referring to the likelihood or unlikelihood of a war was more serious. It could be taken seriously outside of Canada.

'I think," Mr. St. Laurent said, "it is quite inappropriate for a high officer to make even in a speech not intended to be taken seriously statements that could, if removed from their context, give the impression that was given by the first reports of the speech that was made last week.

"I think it is indiscreet . . . to make statements of that kind when they can be reported and when they can cause the kind of anxiety that has been caused by the report of this speech."

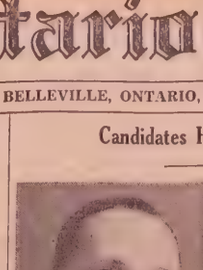
SALE DISAPPOINTING

CAIRO (AP)—Furnishings at the Kubben Palace, one of ex-king Farouk's gaudiest play spots, brought only $100,450 at last week's auction, sale officials revealed today. Pre-action estimates of the government's takings ranged as high as $250,000.

Move to Reverse Assiniboine Flood Isolates Community of Hutterites

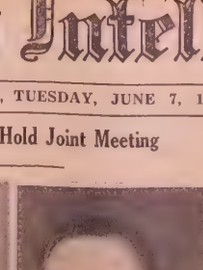
ELIE, Man. (CP)—Five hundred Hutterites and their neighbors have been isolated by an attempt to force floodwaters of the Assiniboine back into the river channel.

An official of the Barickman colony of the religious sect, one of five colonies affected, said his people are confident supplies of livestock feed will hold out until the emergency is over.



The dirt road over which supplies are carried runs for 25 miles west between the Assiniboine and the new trans-Canada highway now under construction from Headingley to this farm community 37 miles west of Winnipeg.

Two weeks ago the swollen Assiniboine gouged a 1,500-foot hole in a dike west of here and sent floodwaters rolling over thousands of acres of farmland, sweeping around the secondary road before being trapped by the trans-Canada highway. During the last week workers have gouged huge cuts in the Elie-Headingley road in an effort to divert flood waters back into the Assiniboine.



By severing the road the district colonies of Iberville, Maxwell, Rosedale, Lakeside and Barickman were isolated. Boats are being used by residents for transportation.

Agriculture Minister Ron Robertson said following an inspection of the area that the advance of the floods had been checked and all farmland would be drained off soon after the break in the dike is closed.

Candidates Hold Joint Meeting

ARTHUR C. COLE

WILLIAM MUNDREY

Speaker at CCF Election Meeting Predicts Party Some Day Will Form Government

A prediction that the CCF would some day form the government of Ontario and of Canada was made here Monday evening by Rev. A. M. "Sandy" Nicholson, CCF, MP, for McKenzie, Sask.

Mr. Nicholson was speaking in support of Arthur C. Cole and William C. Mundrey at a rally in the Legion hall. Mr. Cole is CCF candidate in Hastings East and Mr. Mundrey is seeking election in Hastings West.

Mr. Nicholson cited the accomplishments of the CCF government in Saskatchewan to support the party's proposals for a planned social economy in Ontario. He referred specifically to the Saskatchewan government's health and hospital policy, its air ambulance service and its aid-to-insurance program as policies, which bring direct benefits to the people at nominal cost.

Mr. Nicholson opened his address by stating that he thought people across Canada were taking a keener interest in the affairs of government. He expressed the hope that more young people and more women would take an active part in politics.

Mr. Nicholson spoke briefly about the need of Canadians to assist underdeveloped countries.

"You may ask, 'why go afield? There is enough poverty here.' But the world has grown so small that we cannot limit our interests to Belleville, to Ontario or to Canada.

"Two of every three people in the world do not get enough to eat. Never in their lifetime do they have a decent meal. This is not a new problem. It is new that because of the press, radio, and the airplane people now know that others are without these things."

Mr. Nicholson stated that in his lifetime life expectancy in Canada had been extended 20 years.

"We know now that people all over the world can have longer life with the medical and the nursing care that is available here."

"We must think of our responsibilities to these people," he said.

In speaking of party finances Mr. Nicholson charged that "the two old major parties have failed to go to the rank and file of members and ask for $1, $2, or $5 to pay for election expenses. Supporters think it is smart to get a glass of beer or a couple of dollars on election day. But those who ride to the polls in cars on election day should remember that the same party may take them for a ride all the days afterwards."

Mr. Nicholson then related conditions as he found them in northern Saskatchewan when he and his wife were posted there by the Board of Home Missions of the United Church. They found unemployed persons from Sask. cities homesteading 160 acres with a $50 allowance for a house, $10 per month for food and $100 grant for animals.

"The CCF suggested that people did not have to live in $50 houses, on $10 a month at distances up to 50 miles from the nearest doctor. Believe it or not, some people were not willing to take a chance on a new party could improve their lot."

"Saskatchewan is a depressed area," said Mr. Nicholson. "I do not says the CCF has solved all the problems there but they have had good returns and some of the things they have done have been impressive."

In spite of the health program he said, "we felt that while people were well they should provide for health services so that when they became sick they would not have to lie awake adding up the bill."

He stated that the government now meets the full cost of treatment for cancer, mental illness, TB and venereal disease.

"We do not provide complete medical care because many doctors were not enthusiastic about a complete plan and would have left Saskatchewan for other parts of the country."

Russia Receives Formal Bid For Top-Level Talks July 18

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia Monday received a formal invitation to a top-level Big Four meeting at Geneva, Switzerland, to start July 18. The United States, Britain and France suggested four days of talks.

In their note, made public here, the Western powers referred to "divergent views" on the proposed meeting place. They recalled that Russia had suggested Vienna while they had wanted the talks to be held at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Proposing Geneva as a compromise site, the U.S., Britain and France spoke of that city's "excellent facilities," and asked the Soviet Union for an early reply so arrangements can be made.

EISENHOWER'S WARNING

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—President Eisenhower called today for "a prudent guard against fatuous expectations that a world, sick with ignorance, mutual fears and hates, can be miraculously cured" at the proposed Big Four conference.

The projected conference will be "only a beginning in a renewed effort that may last a generation" before enduring peace finally is won, the president said in an address prepared for the United States Military Academy commencement exercises.

Speaking less than 24 hours after the U.S., Britain and France formally proposed to Russia that the Big Four meet at Geneva, Switzerland, for four days starting July 18, Eisenhower said of the struggle to iron out differences:

"It is a task that may result in a long series of conferences."

The president's effort to guard against the building of great expectations that an "at the summit" meeting will solve everything was in line with views he has expressed several times.

His remarks recalled, however, that Vice-President Richard Nixon said in a Chicago speech last week that the Big Four conference "could be the world's last chance to settle differences peacefully and avoid a catastrophic war."

The importance Nixon attached to the meeting was a sharp contrast to the crossed-fingers attitude of the president and State Secretary Dulles. Both had made it clear, as Eisenhower did again today that they expect no miracle solutions.

JAGUAR CASUALTY

CHERBOURG, France (Reuters) Michael John Lyons, 25-year-old son of the head of the British Jaguar automobile company, was killed near here Monday when a Jaguar he was driving to Le Mans for a race was in a head-on collision with an American army truck.

TWO CNR CREW MEMBERS KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

3 Passenger Cars Derailed at Moncton

MONCTON (CP)—An engineer and fireman were killed Monday when a Canadian National Railways locomotive hauling three passenger coaches and a baggage car plunged off the tracks 14 miles from here.

Engineer Albert D'Amour was engulfed by steam when the locomotive's boiler split as it tumbled down a 30-foot embankment, dragging the cars behind it. He died of burns as a relief train was carrying him to Moncton for treatment.

Firemen Ronald Astle was killed in the wreck. Both men were from Edmundston.

Five passengers were slightly injured. Brakeman Lynwood Fyfe of Edmundston had his leg broken and suffered shock. He was the only one taken to hospital.

NEWS DELAYED

The relief train also carried the passengers to Moncton. It was sent with doctors and nurses as soon as news of the wreck reached here. News was delayed because the cars knocked down telegraph wires and poles and fouled communications.

The train was the CNR's No. 52 which carried passengers three times a week across New Brunswick from Edmundston to Moncton.

'Flying Boxcar' To Supply RCAF During Strike

LANGAR, Notts., England (Reuters)—A Royal Canadian Air Force Flying Boxcar arrived here Monday to take on the job of air-lifting supplies to Canadian bases in Europe during Britain's rail tieup.

An RCAF spokesman said the plane will make daily flights to Europe carrying 12,000 pounds on each trip.

In addition, North Star transport planes, whose run normally terminates here, will load up here and fly on to the Continent, making three trips a week to the Continent. On each trip they will carry 10,000 pounds.

Five Bristol freighters already in use will start making three flights a week carrying 8,000 pounds of supplies each time.

Child Taken Home

TORONTO (CP) — An eight-year-old boy who speaks no English and felt lonely when his family recently moved to suburban North York, was taken home by police Monday night after travelling 100 miles in the wrong direction in efforts to visit old friends in Montreal.

Serge Tougeon rode back in a series of police cruisers after being found in Orillia, 30 miles north of here, where officers traced him following a report from a motorist who saw a small boy walking north on Highway 400. Officers in Barrie offered to take him to their homes before his parents were found.

Vaccinated Child Can Be Carrier Of Polio Virus for Time Says Salk

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk has answered some of the most critical questions in parents' minds about his polio vaccine.

In a press conference at the American Medical Association here, these questions were brought up:

Can a child who has been vaccinated pass polio on to his brothers, sisters or parents?

Yes, this is possible, he says, adding that this could explain some of the cases of polio occurring now in families of vaccinated children.

The vaccine cannot prevent polio virus from entering the child's body and infecting him. It's intended to prevent those viruses from hitting at his nerves and causing paralysis. The antibodies in the blood can intercept the viruses before they get to his central nervous system.

But he can pass the virus from his body, even though it doesn't harm the vaccinated child, on to other persons, in the normal but still unexplained way by which polio virus is transmitted from person to person. For a time, the vaccinated child can be a "carrier" of polio virus.

Does just one shot give some protection?

Yes, says Salk. It gives a large degree of protection, lasting up to six months or longer.

If a child has had one shot, is paralytic polio more likely or less likely to occur?

Less likely, he says.

Does the second shot have to be given soon?

No. It apparently can be delayed for up to 30 months, without having to start the vaccination process all over again.

Can the second shot be given during the summer, when polio may be prevalent?

Yes. It is perfectly safe to give the second shot then.

Should a child be given his first shot during the summer, when polio may be widespread?

The consensus is that it can be given then, Salk says. There can be a risk, but it is slight on a community-wide basis.

Strikers Accept Peace Formula, Await Eden's Word

Trades Union Body's Plan May End Railroad Walkout

LONDON (AP) — Striking locomotive engineers and firemen today accepted a peace formula aimed at settling the railway walkout which began 10 days ago.

The acceptance by the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen opened the way to possible direct negotiations with the British transport commission which runs the nationalized railway system.

Leaders of the powerful Trades Union Congress meantime were conferring with Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton in an effort to get government approval for the final peace talks even while the strike is still on.

Prime Minister Eden's government and the transport commission have insisted up until now that the 67,000 strikers must return to work before talks to break the deadlock over wage differentials could begin.

TWO-HOUR MEETING

The rail walkout, slowly throttling Britain's booming industrial machine, was discussed at a two-hour cabinet meeting today.

Jim Baty, general secretary of ASLEF, told newspaper men after a meeting of his union's executive:

"After due thought and consideration of the principles embodied in the recommendations of the general council, my executive committee have directed me to notify the TUC of their acceptance of the provisions of the formula."

The rival 400,000-strong National Union of Railwaymen, which opposes the strike, still has to make its views known on the five-point peace plan.

Stalemate continued meanwhile in two other walkouts. With the rail strike, they form Britain's most serious labor crisis since the general strike of 1926.

Marine stewards in Liverpool and Southampton threatened today to widen a wildcat strike which has affected six liners, stranding 2,500 passengers bound for Canada and the United States.

CANCEL VOYAGES

The Cunard Line has cancelled round-trip voyages of three of the vessels, ruining vacation schedules of thousands of dollar-spending tourists waiting eastbound passage in the U. S. and Canada.

On the third strike front, leaders of 20,000 stevedores, whose stoppage has already forced cargoes in seven ports for 17 days, said they see no prospect of an early return to work.

The rail peace plan turned over to officials of three unions this morning would require ground-giving by all parties to the dispute, including Prime Minister Eden.

The rail strike was called by the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, whose 67,000 members seek restoration of traditional wage differentials over less-skilled workers.

The transport commission, which runs the state-owned lines, refused to deal with the union separately. It said it should get together with the National Union of Railwaymen, representing 400,000 other railroad workers, on over-all wage demands.

Dug Up Cables Between Isles, Jap Must Pay

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese telecommunications ministry today won a $25,000 suit against a map who dug up its underwater cables five years ago and sold them.

The defendant claimed he "found" the communications cables between the main Japanese islands of Honshu and Hokkaido, and believed they belonged to the then-defunct Japanese army.

The court ordered him to give back the money and pay compensation to the ministry.

The transport commission, backed by Eden, declined to negotiate until the union called off its strike. The union refused.

The peace plan proposed that the question of wage differentials be deferred pending a joint discussion by officials of three rail unions.

Meanwhile the striking union would negotiate for an interim pay raise. Eden would be asked to agree that the rail commission should negotiate without first insisting on an end to the strike.

The railways have been operating a skeleton service, but industrial correspondents have predicted that up to 1,000,000 factory workers will be thrown out of work if the strike drags on through this week.

The seamen's strike, a heavy blow to Britain's multi-million-dollar tourist trade, was staged by 800 trans Atlantic ship stewards demanding a reduction in the 10-hour working day, better living quarters and bigger staffs aboard ships.

STRIKE CONDEMNED

The affected vessels include the Mauretania in Southampton and five ships in Liverpool — the Ascania, the Britannic, Empress of Australia, Newfoundland, and Saxonia.

Cunard has cancelled the voyages of the Mauretania, Ascania and Britannic.

The National Union of Seamen, to which the stewards belong, has condemned the walkout as "trivial and factitious." Many would-be emigrants to the U. S. and Canada have been left in dire straits, roaming the streets of Liverpool and Southampton in search of cheap lodging. They had spent most of their money on their fares.

BARRED ON LAND, SEA

Arrested Pair Given Three Years Each for Theft

Edgar Loree, 42, of Montreal, and Clarke McTavish, 45, of Toronto, were sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary by Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning for the theft of two diamond rings from Paul Mercier's jewellery store on May 31st.

The rings, each valued at $250, were in the possession of the men for a matter of minutes. Each man has previously served reformatory and penitentiary terms and each has a lengthy criminal record.

Loree and McTavish were arrested by city police constable Thomas Schreider on May 31st, within a few minutes of the time the men left Mercier's jewellery store after inspecting some diamond rings in the window. The rings were found in their possession.

Mrs. Jeanette Barrett, a clerk in the store, noticed the rings missing from the window immediately after the men left the store and called police. She identified them for Constable Schreider, who made the arrest.

'Open House' Display by Arts, Crafts Club of Recreation Commission Much Enjoyed

"Beauty is the autograph of God," said Robert P. Downes, one time editor of "Great Thoughts Magazine," and last evening at King George school the "Open House" display by the Arts and Crafts Club exemplified this statement. In its fine exhibit of handicraft which included ceramics, art work, screen silk printing, metal working and leathercraft; as well as the interesting and lovely films shown, especially those depicting the landscape art of the late Tom Thompson, beauty in all its manifold aspects was brought home to the observer however casual his interest in the finer arts might be.

The guests were welcomed by the president of the club, Mrs. D. Cain, whose graciousness made every one feel at home.

INTERESTING CERAMICS

The ceramics under the leadership of Mrs. K. LaPalm, who has attended ceramic classes in the United States, was most interesting, showing the process of manufacture from the clay, which is imported from the United States, in shades of buff, red and natural. This clay is wet with water, and kneaded by hand until of fine consistency, and then molded into the required shapes which include flowers, statues, figurines, plant holders, and fancy dishes, these are fired and glazed, resulting in attractive household ornaments.

In the bas-relief in copper and aluminum, some exceptionally fine work was on view. These depicting ships, bull dog, flowers, horses' heads, which were done by tooling, Mr. J. A. Layton showed some of his copper work, and Miss Marion McFarland had charge of the aluminum work.

FINE LEATHERWORK

The leathercraft showed the fine work done, resulting in coin purses, key purses, and ladies' handbags, finely laced, and attractive in design. This exhibit began with the tanned leather, and displayed pretty mottled leathers in blues and mauves, which were used for linings. Mrs. A. Eagle was the leader of this craft.

Other crafts shown were looms for weaving, and the warping head. The articles made, samples of which included place mats; rid fashioned rag rug and a pretty hand bag, were of considerable interest, tangible evidences what the creative urge may accomplish.

The leader in this handicraft was Mrs. W. Watson.

Mrs. J. Whelan was in charge of the artwork, including still life, landscapes impressionistic art; both in oils and charcoal and merited honorable mention.

Another interesting item was that of a wooden puppet, by Mary Moult, reminiscent of the Punch and Judy shows which still hold the attention of old as well as the younger members of society. All that was needed to cause this puppet to act in a most realistic manner were the cords to be attached to the head, the knees and the arms.

THREE FILMS

Following the viewing of the handicraft, the assembly wended its way to the film room where three films were shown depicting the native art of Haiti, and the encouragement the native artists received from an English artist, whose love of nature, and the portraying of which was his daily task in getting materials, and other helps for these artists is an incentive to create also by opening up art centres which not only provided companionship for those of like talents, but also gave them help by classes. The native art of Haiti is both primitive and deeply religious.

The next film was entitled "West Wind," depicting the life of Tom Thompson, a son of pioneer stock, whose early life was spent in the open country, fishing and wandering the woods, seeing nature in all her manifold beauties.

"SPRING ICE"

Leaving the country he entered commercial art in Toronto, and on Saturdays and Sundays joined art classes on outdoor expeditions along the Humber Valley and York Mills. Later he left on a 300-mile canoe trip to the northland along rivers leading to Hudson Bay, where he made his first northern sketches, beginning on birch bark. His first great picture was of "Spring Ice," showing the breaking up of the lakes and rivers.

Thompson's paintings gained great renown, and are outstanding because of their native Canadian atmosphere. He had the rare talent of grasping the central thought and relaying it on canvas, with strength and color. Through his work Canadian art received a new incentive, and a new life. Though his life was short, ending in a tragic death by drowning on Canoe Lake, Tom Thompson will ever hold the position of Canada's chief artist.

The third film was shown by Mr. Roy Cadwell, Toronto lawyer, sponsor of the Don Valley School of Art, who, in company with some of his students, was introduced by Lloyd "Red" Doran, recreational director. Mr. Cadwell spoke briefly of the work of the Don Valley Art Centre, and the work accomplished there, as well as the newly-established Madoc Art Centre in the highlands of Hastings with its fine artistic scenery, and showed several slides of the surrounding countryside, both in winter and in spring.

METROPOLITAN MUSEUM

Following these, came the showing of the art of the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts in New York City, and the wealth of detail and carefulness of work in every part of the pictures of the old masters, as in contrast to that of modern painting where parts are neglected.

He also brought out the fact of the lack of contrasting colors in springtime, being mostly of greens, which made outdoor painting rather difficult; while in winter, there were several colors, if one stopped to look for them. In demonstration several winter scenes were shown in which were browns, russet tones, purples, and gradations of blues, making a most pleasing combination.

Following the films, tea was served.

Appreciative thanks are tendered to the conveners, Mrs. J. Whelan, Mrs. K. LaPalm, Mrs. Eagle, Mrs. W. Watson, Mrs. D. Crane, and Mrs. R. Williamson, to Mr. Cadwell, also to Mr. Dick Fowell of Corby Library, who had charge of the projector, and to the local firms whose kindness in loaning display of metals and to all who shared in making this "Open House", such an interesting and successful event.

Council Changes Mind About Paying Share to Suburban Bd.

A suggestion that "found" money received from the Ontario government, had changed the thinking of council members with respect to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board was heard Monday night at the regular meeting of the city fathers.

In direct opposition to council thought earlier in the year, when in an effort to pare the budget no provision was made for payment of the city's share of suburban planning, council last night unanimously voted to pay the $1,950 requested by the planning board.

When the question was asked where the money was coming from, Alderman Tice noted the city had received $30,000 as a gift from the Ontario government. The alderman was reminded by the clerk-comptroller that the amount actually received was $14,000, not $30,000, as schools had come in for more than half of the total amount. "I thought the grant was not earmarked", said the alderman.

But a recommendation from the property committee that $5,900 be allocated from the $14,000 government gift to pay for new windows at the city hall failed to get immediate approval from council.

Alderman Doug Moxam as chairman of the property committee said that the windows in the city hall were in a very bad condition and were in need of replacement. He suggested that while repairs were being made to the city hall, that the windows be replaced with combination frame and aluminum sections. He noted that the city hall had been inspected and was found to be in good condition structurally.

URGED TO GO SLOW

Alderman Graham urged that council go slowly in spending the government "windfall". He suggested that unemployment snow removal or street patching may cost more money than was anticipated and urged that the money received from the government be used as a "cushion".

Mayor Both suggested that an architect be hired to plan a complete remodelling job for the city hall to be paid for by debenture. Remodelling bit by bit inevitably costs more than when a complete job is done at one time, he said.

Alderman Moxam said he was not in favor of a complete remodelling job. "What we need is a new city hall, but certain repairs have to be done until we can afford it," he said.

The discussion ended when Ald. Moxam agreed to withdraw his motion until the next meeting of council. In the meantime he suggested aldermen inspect the windows at city hall.

A recommendation calling for school, utility, hospital and suburban roads committee representation on the suburban planning board in an advisory capacity, was referred to the suburban planning board for recommendation.

There was a short discussion on the recommendation, it being pointed out by several aldermen that such representation on the suburban board would be very beneficial.

A recommendation calling on the city parks board for action in cleaning up the Bayview Park was withdrawn after council was informed that this park was run by the recreational commission.

FINE PLAYGROUND

Alderman Tice as member of the recreation commission declared that Shaw's park was one of the finest playgrounds in the city. There was plenty of equipment and it was well supervised.

City Clerk - Comptroller said several complaints had been received from residents in the area about weeds in the park.

"There are no weeds in our park. If there are any weeds they are on railway property," replied Ald. Tice.

The city traffic committee with the chairman of planning, and city engineer was named a committee to investigate the effect which the new four lane highway will have on city traffic and to plan necessary routes into the city.

In introducing the recommendation Alderman Forrester noted that last week's special meeting of council at which one artery leading from the new highway was discussed, did not go far enough. A complete plan of necessary routes would be of immense value in the future, she said. The special committee will report at the second meeting of council in October.

EXPENSES DISCUSSED

The expenses of a city delegation which attended the Trade Fair in Toronto saw a bit of discussion when they were submitted to council for approval.

Alderman Tice declared it was not fair for such expense items to come into council. He said the Industrial committee had its own budget and had a right to spend within that budget without question.

Under general business Alderman Graham referred to the old city gas plant, noting that the city was still paying debenture charges on the capital debt of this plant. At the same time however the city was paying $700 per year to the public utilities as rental for the old gas works property, which it uses as storage.

The alderman was informed that the city had sold the gas works property to the utilities and had assumed the debt charges.

Almost $4,000 Raised by Rotary Seals Campaign

Belleville Rotary Club's Easter Seals campaign, which ended last April, netted a total of $3,922.97.

This was announced to the club yesterday at the weekly luncheon in the Hotel Quinte by Freeman Burrows.

The announcement of the amount, which will go towards alleviating the sufferings of crippled children in Ontario, sparked a eulogy of Rotary and its work across the world, by the guest speaker Don Henshaw, vice president McClaren Advertising Co. Limited.

Especially did he praise its work for handicapped children, recalling many cases he himself had known of, where Rotary contributed to the welfare of these people.

"I have been in schools of almost every kind that have been created for handicapped children and I do not think I have been in one where I have not seen evidence of Rotarians, through their clubs, doing something for those children."

Rotarians he said, need not use plaques, or "lift gleaming marble to the skies" to mark and commemorate the things you have done". In their work for youth, handicapped persons and other phases of service they have built that monument, he told them.

Mr. Henshaw was introduced by Don MacKinnon and thanked by Art Francis. The meeting was presided over by Harold Mott.

Police Blotter

The current hot spell might have been responsible for shady characters seeking the shade and staying there yesterday.

City police this morning reported all quiet on the crime front yesterday and last night with only incidents of a minor nature coming to their attention.

Provincial police reported a similar night watch.

Planes Fail To Find 'Copter

CHAPLEAU (CP) — Six RCAF Dakotas, six private planes and more than 200 ground searchers covered more than 6,000 square miles of bush country north of here Monday in an effort to locate two men who disappeared in their helicopter last Friday.

The helicopter, carrying pilot Arthur Cole of Vancouver and Barney Smith of Sault Ste. Marie, a forester for the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Co., is believed to have gone down about 15 miles north of here. Smith was being taken 50 miles north to the fire area where two weeks ago more than 70,000 acres of Abitibi - leased timber and slash was burned out.

Two false alarms kept the searchers alert. One plane reported sighting an oil slick on a small lake but it turned out to be pond dust and another reported the wreckage of an aircraft which was found to be that of an old civilian craft.

A delay in a shipment of high-octane gasoline almost halted the search today. The gasoline for the RCAF planes was being brought in by rail from North Bay and had not arrived Monday night. However, a truck convoy was set up to run the gasoline from a supply station 70 miles south of here.

Diamond's life.

Approximately 100 Belleville ex-servicemen and Legion members attended the dinner and the entertainment.

Y's Men Hear Charles A. Weir On Recreation

On Thursday evening the Y's Men's Club of Belleville heard Charles A. Weir, field man for the Community Program Branch of the Ontario Department of Education. Mr. Weir spoke on the work of this government service which maintains 17 field men in the province, in addition to a number of advisers at the Toronto office. He explained that the purpose of the branch was to assist any community in organizing its adult education or municipal recreation.

At local request, one of these field men will visit a town at the beginning of any project, such as the establishment of a recreation program. The field men then help relate the local plans to the size of the town or to its special needs.

Mr. Weir pointed out that a population of over 7,000 is required before a paid full time recreation director should be engaged. He cited Haliburton as an example where too small a town engaged a full time director and discovered that it had made a mistake.

In discussing recreation programs, Mr. Weir, stated that competitive athletics should not be over-emphasized. Individual athletic endeavors with carry-over value, such as tennis, swimming, curling and golf, had a greater and more lasting return than highly competitive hockey, football or lassieball.

The speaker was introduced by Bud Trill and thanked by Ron Cass.

IN MEMORIAM

FITZGIBBON. — In loving memory of our father, Arthur Fitzgibbon, who passed away June 7th, 1954. Loving and kind in all his ways, Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and kind in heart and mind, What a beautiful memory he left behind.
—Ever remembered by sons Edward, Fergus, Goldie, Wilfred and Martin.

CLAPP. — In loving memory of our dear daughter and granddaughter, Virginia Grills and Frances, who passed away suddenly June 7th, 1954.
We little knew when we were called that night,
The sorrow that call had brought us,
For the call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with ones we loved so dear.
Sometimes it's hard to understand
Why some things have to be,
But in His wisdom, God has planned
Beyond the power to see.
God gave us strength to fight it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it cost to lose you,
Dear child will ever be known.
—Too dearly loved to be forgotten by her mother, father.

WATKINS. — In loving memory of my dear cousin, Gladis Cope, who passed away June 7th, 1952.
Sweet memories will linger forever,
Time cannot change them, it's true,
Years that may come cannot sever
My loving remembrance of you.
—Sadly missed by her cousin Edna.

WATKINS — In ever loving memory of our dear daughter, Gladis Cope, who passed away June 7th, 1952.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of affection
And a heartache still for you.
More and more each year we miss you
Though our thoughts are not revealed,
Little do they know the sorrow
That is within our hearts concealed.
—Lovingly remembered by Mother and Dad.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market climbed strongly in active early afternoon trading today as industrials and western oils reached index highs.

Ford A jumped 36 to a high of $127 following news that a settlement had been reached in negotiations between the Ford Motor Company and the United Automobile Workers Union.

Canadian Locomotive gained 1¼ to a new high of 28 among other leaders.

Refining oils, papers and steels showed the most consistent strength among industrial components. Pembina gained 1½ to a 1955 high of 17½.

Leading western oils up to the highest index level in the last two years were Pacific Petroleums, Bailey Selburn A, Canadian Atlantic, Triad and Great Sweet Grass.

Profit-taking hit many uranium issues which have climbed sharply in recent sessions but price changes were relatively small and confined to 50 cents at the outside.

'Go Slow' Advice On Lake Ontario Industrial Body

An appeal for city council to go slow in any participation in the Lake Ontario Regional Industrial Association which was termed government control of industry, was made to council on Monday evening by J. T. Ransom, local Ontario Land Surveyor.

Mr. Ransom, who has shown active interest in the planning of local municipalities, said he agreed with co-operation, but not to the point where such co-operation meant government control.

"It has come to the point where we are asking the government to take us over insofar as industrial contacts are concerned," he said as he referred to the regional industrial association.

Mr. Ransom declared that all pamphlets and literature regarding the association pointed to government control which, he said, would result in "remote control of our own business."

He said that the Ontario Chamber of Commerce was opposed to the idea and the public was adverse to it.

"It is time the public should know something of this association and the only way the public can get to know something of it is for discussion in council and distribution of pamphlets with the information."

There was no discussion on the matter in council but city fathers have not yet given their approval to participation in the regional development association.

Belleville's share of the costs of the association has been set at $1,400. This amount has not been approved paid by council.

Indians Decide Not to Vote In Election

CORNWALL (CP) — Indian residents of nearby Cornwall and Hog islands have decided not to vote in Thursday's Ontario election.

Decision to refrain from voting was made at a meeting N Cornwall island of the grand council of the Mohawk band of the Iroquois tribe in the Six Nations Confederacy.

A petition protesting the enfranchisement of Indians was signed by most residents of the St. Regis reservation. The petition said no residents of the reservation have sufficient knowledge of the political issues involved in the election to cast an intelligent vote. It also said residents feel their status as Indians would be jeopardized if they exercised their franchise.

The petition asked that names of Indians be removed from the voters' lists and that any ballots cast by Indians be declared void.

Refuse to Amend Method of Naming Committees

A proposed amendment to the city council procedure by-law which would give council the authority to name members to special committees was turned down Monday night.

The amendment by Alderman Jane Forester would have allowed the personnel of special committees to be named by a majority of council or by the mayor.

There was considerable discussion on the proposed amendment with Alderman Wm. Argue leading off by declaring this was merely legalizing "what council had been doing all along."

But Ald. Ben Safe and Doug. Moxam disagreed. They claimed the procedure by-law should remain as it was.

Alderman Gerald Hyde took a different view and said he would support the recommendation because, when it was left for the mayor to appoint members to special committees, he seemed to forget until he was prompted to do so. He said it was nothing new for a recommendation to come in to council from a committee which named members for a special committee.

Mayor Both said that as far as he was concerned the majority would rule. Replying to Ald. Hyde, he said that city council was no place for personalities or for politics, but for city business only.

Ald. Ralph Graham declared that what was being proposed was not contrary to the procedure by-law but only sought to amend the by-law. He suggested that it was only reasonable that a committee which had spent time considering a certain problem should have the right to suggest names for a special committee to deal further with the matter.

Alderman Art Keegan said he was in favor of the recommendation. He stated that some weeks ago the mayor had been directed by council to name a special committee to deal with a certain matter of importance in Foster Ward. He said the committee had not yet been named.

Mayor Both said the Alderman was wrong. He said the matter in question was that concerning a junk yard in Foster Ward and was a legal matter. Because of this he had named the city solicitor to the committee. To a question from Alderman Keegan, the mayor replied that he had been the other member of the special committee.

On a recorded vote council voted 9-8 against the recommendation which would allow council to name the personnel of special committees.

Automobile Club Holds Rally Here

On Sunday over 30 members of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club participated in the club's annual Belleville rally. The cars drove approximately 80 miles, starting at Napanee and covering many back roads to drive through Selby, Corbyville, Stirling and Wallbridge. They started out at one minute intervals, the navigator in each car supplied with route instructions and formulae for working out precise average speeds to be maintained. They were checked at three different hidden check-points along the way in order to assure that they were driving at the exact speeds required. These speeds ranged from 27.1 miles per hour to a maximum of 35.7, depending upon which area they were in.

The winning car was a Mark VII Jaguar from Kingston, driven and navigated by Audrey Rushbrook and Edie Fidler. This was the only all-woman team entered in the rally and their victory was something of a blow to the pride of the other entries. Second place was won by Mr. and Mrs. R. Bearance in an Austin-Healy while third place went to Mr. and Mrs. G. Folger in a French Dyna-Panhard sedan.

Although most of the cars were of European make, there were several Canadian entries as well. The nature of the rally does not favor one type of car over another, although the largest of the American cars is considered unsuitable. One very inexpensive German car which is becoming very popular in this country has been proving itself most adaptable for this type of sport.

The route ended at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Graham on the Trent Road, where the competitors had an opportunity to exchange alibis over sandwiches and coffee.

Porker Takes Hog-Jog Around Before Coralled in Coal Yard

TRENTON— (Special)—Among other things, most people have the happy knack of mislaying small articles but today here someone went the whole hog with the lost articles department.

This morning life was running smoothly in brilliant sunshine at the corners of Dundas and Front streets. Then a truck came through and on the way past a big pig hit the road with a 300-lb. thud.

Picking itself up the boar set off at a hog-jog down Front St., nosing at buildings and snooping in doorways. A startled reaction greeted its entry into Bailey's Hardware store, where it subjected the establishment to cursory inspection before trotting back onto Front St.

A glance around the locality then it made up Elgin St. and into Weaver's service station.

By this time the population had got a grip on itself and at the station the pig met its nemesis. Here two men collared it and corralled the hog in the coal yard of P. W. Powers and Son on the west bank of the Trent.

Here the creature made a regular pig of itself, rolling in the coal dust until it had changed its color-scheme from light yellow to deep, dark black. When the police turned up to take the situation in hand, the animal was sunning itself on the riverbank, up to its bacon in mud and water.

Police barricaded it off with a car and truck to prevent its escape and then stood by waiting for someone to claim it.

Four Surviving Quints Set Up Own Trust Funds

NORTH BAY (CP) — The four surviving Dionne quintuplets, who came into almost $1,000,000 on their 21st birthday May 28, have set up their own individual trust funds.

Richard Donelly, the quints' solicitor in North Bay, announced today that the girls have "signed four separate agreements entering into trust with the Guarantry Trust Company of Canada."

When Annette, Cecile and Yvonne came home from Montreal to join Marie for their 21st birthday, they were presented with draft forms of the trust agreements. The assistant general manager of the trust company attended the conference, as did Mr. Donnelly and the girls' father, Oliva Dionne.

Until the quints reached maturity, their money was held in trust for them by the Ontario Supreme Court. Each quint's share of the fund amounts to approximately $197,000, plus a share of Emilie's portion which is to be divided among the 14 surviving members of the family. Emilie was the quintuplet who died last August.

The quints' fortune was built up by investing money obtained from payments for movie rights, advertising contracts and endorsements and newspaper photo rights.

Plant Accepts Rebuke Without Any Complaint

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Vice-Marsha, John L. Plant today accepted "without complaint and without comment" a public rebuke by the government.

He said in a brief statement issued at his office:

"Any remarks made by me were not designed to stir up inter-service trouble nor raise political issues.

"I have stated to the minister of national defence that any action taken by him or the government will be accepted by me without complaint and without comment and in the best possible spirit."

The air vice-marshal was relieved of his job Monday as chief of RCAF technical services for saying publicly at Toronto last week that the army should be scrapped and that atomic war appears inevitable.

Civil Defence Police Force Being Formed

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Signing of a dozen men in the London area marks the first step in the formation of a civil defence auxiliary police force on a county basis, inspector George Clubbe, head of the London provincial police said.

When the new force is formed it will be used in any civil defence emergency or natural disaster and the men will have the same authority as regular force officers. The inspector said uniforms and equipment similar to that of regular provincial police officers will be issued for duty wear.

It is planned to form one company of the special force in each county. Each company is to include a superintendent, three inspectors, nine sergeants and 72 constables. The men will be under the supervision of the Ontario commissioner of police and the provincial civil defence co-ordinator.

Marilyn Bell Leaves For London on Friday

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's Marilyn Bell, 17, who last September became the first person to swim Lake Ontario leaves Canada Friday for London to tackle the English channel.

Marilyn will put in about six weeks intensive training under the supervision of coach Gus Ryder, 56, before making the channel attempt early July. The Toronto Telegram has guaranteed the collegian $15,000 whether or not she is successful.

17 Forest Fires Are Being Fought

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of lands and forests today reported that 17 forest fires are being fought in the province.

All except a fire at Leckie lake in the Port Arthur district were under control. The Leckie lake fire is about 1,200 acres in size and it is expected that control measures now being taken will bring it under control shortly, officials said.

The 17 fires are located as follows: Port Arthur district, five; Cochrane, three; Sudbury, Kapuskasing and Geraldton, two each; Tweed, Rice River and Chapleau, one each.

Radar Sightings Cause Alert

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chinese Nationalist air force planes roared out today from Formosan air bases in a widespread hour-and-a-half alert caused by unidentified radar sightings.

The Pescadores, strategic islands in Formosa strait, were included in the alert, as were Quemoy, Wuchiu and Matsu.

The alert followed the first action in the strait in three days. On Monday Nationalist fighter planes strafed more than 120 junks and destroyed more than 10 of them, air force headquarters announced.

Boa Constrictor Is Pupil's Pet

HAMILTON (CP) — A four-foot boa constrictor named Japser is the current pet of John Winter, 19.

But because he will grow to 13 feet, John is considering giving the reptile to a zoo.

Monday Betsy Nicholson, a high school classmate, overcame her fear when John insisted "it's not poisonous," and let the snake curl around her neck.

John has become an amateur authority on snakes and claims "snakes are underdogs and the least understood of all creatures."

Two summers ago he had a pet alligator but a dog ran off with the miniature suitcase one day.

He says his four-foot pet is not a glutton. It eats one guinea pig a week. All in one meal.

'Maggie' Home To Wind Up Long Cruise

HALIFAX (CP)—The 18,000-ton aircraft carrier Magnificent led five warships into port today to wind up far-flung cruises and exercises and bring shore leave for more than 2,100 Canadian sailors.

The flattop and the escorting destroyers Micmac and Haida moved past harbor headlands shortly after dawn. The carrier and the destroyers were inward bound from Portsmouth, England, where Magnificent took aboard 33 national defence college cadets from Kingston, Ont., who had undergone training at the British Services College.

Three frigates of the 1st Escort Squadron, Lauzon, Toronto and Prestonian, steamed into the naval dockyard in the wake of the carrier force. Lauzon and Prestonian have been carrying out anti-submarine drills off Bermuda for the last three weeks and Toronto is concluding a workhorse routine that included escort duty to the St. Lawrence for the destroyer Algonquin.

Eden Cheered As Parliament Begins Session

LONDON (Reuters) — A smiling Sir Anthony Eden was loudly cheered today when he took his seat for the first session of Parliament since his Conservative party was returned to power in national elections May 26.

Conservative members of Parliament, their majority swollen to 59 —42 more than before the election —shouted their acclaim for the tall-debonair prime minister who succeeded Sir Winston Churchill.

Minutes later, Labor party members rose in the House of Commons to cheer their leader, Clement Attlee, as he made his way to the opposition party benches.

But the victory shouts of the Conservatives detracted only temporarily from the dejection in the House over major rail and dock strikes that have initiated a creeping paralysis of Britain's industrial and economic life.

NO HIGH-JINKS

The usual high-jinks of the opening day were missing. This session of Parliament, convened five days early because of the rail strike, began in one of the soberest moods in its long history.

The members of Parliament will not be able to come to grips with the rapidly - deteriorating labor crisis until Thursday when Queen Elizabeth will formally open Parliament and outline the new legislative program of Eden's government.

Jury Returns True Bill

A true bill against Basil Ruttan, Bancroft, charged with the theft of a 303 rifle last November, was returned this morning by the Grand Jury at the General Sessions of the Peace and Jury Sittings for Hastings County.

The Grand Jury brought in their true bill at mid-morning during a brief recess in the trial of LeRoy Woods, former Sidney township tax collector, charged with the theft of township tax money.

Judge G. F. Smith, of Napanee, complimented Grand Jury on their work in returning true bills in the three cases in which they had heard. "You did a good job and I appreciate it," he said. "I have seen Grand Juries which took much longer to do their work."

Monday the Grand Jury brought in true bills in the LeRoy Woods case, and also in the case of Jas. Richard Dolan, charged with fraud in connection with the sale of mining stocks.

After returning a true bill in the Ruttan case this morning, Judge Smith discharged the Grand Jury, stating they could go home.

It is expected the Ruttan trial will be heard by the petit jury on Friday.

Horse-Bite Worth $2,980

MONTREAL (CP) — A Superior Court judge Monday decided a horse-bite is worth $2,980.

At least that is the amount Mr. Justice Maurice Lalonde awarded Miss Loraine Mombourquette who pleaded she has never been the same since a dairy horse bit her on the nose Dec. 31, 1952.

The 50-year-old woman brought suit against Guaranteed Pure Milk Ltd., for $14,000 after losing a section of her nose to the massive molars of a horse named Ti-Gars.

Wanted as Thief, Man Is Arrested After Accident

TORONTO (CP) — Police today said a man arrested Sunday in Ottawa has been identified as Eustace Johnston, 42, wanted in connection with a $30,000 postoffice break-in here.

Officers said they hold a warrant charging Johnston with shop-breaking in connection with the robbery. They say a police raid was staged on the west-central Bathurst street sub-postoffice two months ago while burglers were at work but a suspect escaped in a chase during which shots were fired.

Police here say Johnston was involved in a car accident in Ottawa and jumped into nearby water which he thought to be the Rideau canal but which turned out to be a pond.

Some Just Vote For Man First To Send Card

TORONTO (CP) — George Hees, national chairman of the Progressive Conservative Association, says some voters are "just stupid enough to vote for the candidate on the first card they receive without knowing much about him."

He said Monday night Progressive Conservative worker in Thursday's Ontario general election should make sure they complete every canvass and that every voter has one of their candidate's cards for comparison with those of opponents.

Mr. Hees spoke at a campaign workers' dinner in support of William Beech, Progressive Conservative candidate in York South. Mr. Beech, whose opponents include Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald, held the seat in the last legislature.

THE TRUTH CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE

The truth, it has been said, will make you free.

Perhaps that is debatable.

But the truth can keep you alive—if you learn it early enough.

The Ontario Department of Health is giving Belleville citizens a chance to learn the truth about their health.

A minute spent at the Arena here will tell you whether or not you have tuberculosis.

If you have not, you have spent a minute to be reassured.

If you have, that minute may well save your life.

No person can be certain that he or she is free from this disease. There are a hundred ways in which you could have come in contact with T.B. since you had your last X-ray.

Won't you spend a minute to be safe—and to safeguard those near and dear to you to whom you could easily give the dread disease if you have it?

The free X-ray clinic has been here a week. It will close its doors Friday. Make it a point to have your X-ray, without further delay.

A NEW LOOK AT THE RETIREMENT PROBLEM

The Windsor convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada last week refused to endorse a resolution which would have urged that where adequate retirement pensions are provided workers retire at 65. Instead the convention amended the resolution by inserting the word "voluntary." Opponents of the change argued that the reworded resolution meant nothing, since any worker can now retire voluntarily at 65—or any earlier age for that matter. The amended resolution, however, appears to say exactly what is needed—and nothing more. It sets a target date for retirement if desired—at 65. There is no sound reason why a worker who is thrifty should not have the expectation of being able to quit work when he is 65 and enjoy his leisure during the remaining years of his life. But there is also no sound reason why a man should be forced to end his life work at 65 if he does not desire to do so.

This resolution climaxes a vigorous campaign in other circles, in recent months, against compulsory retirement. Perhaps, however, the very vigor of the campaign, which now appears headed for success, has concealed a much more important problem which has arisen out of retirement desires and pension plans. That is the right of a man to work until he is eligible for a pension.

Today it is becoming increasingly difficult for men who are no longer young to obtain new jobs if they are out of work, or to change from one job to another. Many firms will not hire men over 40. Some put the age limit somewhat lower. In almost every case one of the factors in this policy, if not the only factor, is the company's pension plan. More and more firms have come to accept responsibility for the welfare of employees after their working years are done. When these workers retire, firms want them to have adequate pensions. This desire is based partly on humanitarian reasons, partly on a desire to maintain good public relations. Adequate pensions at a reasonable cost can be provided only if the cost is spread out over a number of years. Therefore companies do not want to hire new employees whose working life has already half expired.

The reason for this situation may be humanitarian, but in actual fact it is working an extreme hardship on many men, at a time when their family responsibilities are at a peak. Moreover, it is probably adversely affecting the efficiency of companies which follow this policy. There is no adequate substitute for experience. Time and again tests have shown that the older man can accomplish just as much as his younger colleague and is, in addition, more reliable.

As with so many problems, it is easy to discover what needs to be done but much more difficult to devise a formula to satisfy most requirements.

If the older worker could take his pension rights with him to a new employer, as he takes his experience and training, most of the obstacles which older men now face when job-hunting would be eliminated.

Unfortunately there are practical difficulties to what may appear theoretically an easy solution.

Many firms, when establishing pension plans, make large initial cash payments to provide "past service benefits" for long-time employees. In so doing they show a praiseworthy gratitude for years of faithful service. But, if after this generosity these employees decide to seek employment elsewhere, there is no good reason why they should take these past service benefits with them.

A stronger case can be made out for the issue of paid-up pension plans for the amount purchased by the joint contributions of employee and employer after the introduction of a pension plan. Such a system might help to overcome another obstacle to a solution to this problem, which is the fact that there is no uniformity in pension plans and it would be impossible to arrange a simple system of transferring pension rights from one plan to another.

At present contributions to pension plans are deductible from income, for income tax purposes. In order to qualify for this privilege, pension plans must meet certain standards. It would be possible for the government to alter these standards to require the issue of paid-up pension rights for the period during which a worker contributed to any plan.

Under such a system the employer would not be able to reclaim all or a portion of the payments he had made on the employee's behalf. The employee, on the other hand, would also lose his present right to receive back the payments he had made. Instead the payments would be retained by the company selling the pension plan and a paid-up pension policy, similar to a paid-up insurance policy, would be issued.

It has been stated time and again that fringe benefits received by workers are just as much a part of their total remuneration as is the amount received in pay envelopes. But in the case of pension contributions, in most cases, this is today only true if the employee stays with the firm ten years or longer.

If it be objected that few workers view pension contributions by their employer as part of their remuneration, then is it not time that they did so and is it not in the best interests of employers that their workers recognize the contribution their employers are making towards their financial security?

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TREASURE IN HEAVEN

Jesus once spoke a parable of a rich man who in the midst of his plenty declared that he would pull down his barns and build greater and would say to his soul, "Take thine ease, eat, drink, be merry." But that very night his soul was required of him, and those things which he had prepared were left to his relatives to squabble over.

God has appointed to every man his destiny. It is blasphemy indeed for us to talk as if the issues of life were in our hands. God made us. God guides our lives every moment of our existence. In the remoteness of eternity He decreed when we should be born and when we should die. The rich householder, whom everyone in his community probably admired, was a ludicrous and pathetic figure, as he planned for a future that never came.

We know not the day nor the hour when God will call us. Let us live always as those ready on instant notice to be brought before the judgment seat of God.

The rich householder had laid up riches for himself but was not rich toward God. There is a heavenly treasure—let us never forget that. It is wealth which lasts through eternity. We begin our accumulation here; we claim and enjoy our accumulation in the hereafter.

That may sound naive and old-fashioned, but it is clearly taught in the Word of God; and it is the only kind of teaching which satisfies man's deepest spiritual needs.

JUST FOLKS

GHOSTS AND BLIZZARDS

"I'm to be on television," said a friend of mine to me,
And upon the time appointed I had planned his act to see.
But, when the glib announcer on his talents dwelt upon,
He was hidden in a snowstorm that began when he came on.

In the days when I was little and by white was frightened most,
My father used to tell me in this world there's not a ghost.
It is just imagination. Ghosts have never once been seen.
Now, they gather day and night time on my television screen.

Though the weather is delightful, I am never certain when
I shall face a raging blizzard in my comfortable den.
Though I still believe my father that no ghosts on earth are met,
He had never seen them dancing on a television set.

In Shakespeare's Hand

(By Brooks Atkinson, writing from London in the New York Times)

Among the treasures of the British Museum, there is one that makes the imagination spin. It is the stained and faded manuscript of "The Booke of Sir Thomas More," three pages of which are probably in Shakespeare's hand.

No layman is qualified to pass judgment on their authenticity. But several specialists who have studied the handwriting, the spelling and the literary content believe the three pages to be Shakespeare's work. Most Shakespeare students accordingly are inclined to accept them as the only known examples of his handwriting except the six or seven familiar signatures. If so, they are not only unique but also priceless.

You do not need to ask the manager of the museum for permission to examine them. They are on public display in a general case in the manuscript room. Anyone can see them by folding back the cloth cover that masks the daylight. Obviously, the British Museum is not worried about thieves, vandals, adult delinquents or fools.

"The Booke of Sir Thomas More" is the manuscript of a play written by Anthony Munday about 1593-94. The censor denied it a licence because one scene appeared to countenance revolution against the throne. "Leave out the insurrection wholly and not otherwise at your perils," he ordered summarily. To judge by the rewriting, five other play scribblers (one of whom was Thomas Dekker) worked on the manuscript in an effort to make it acceptable.

One of them is believed to have been Shakespeare. Apart from technical evidence, the scene has the flowing rhythms of Shakespearean verse. It also expresses a devout belief in the divinity of kings that is characteristic of Shakespeare and ought to have taken a big load off the censor's mind. The British Museum scholars date it around 1593, but others think 1601 is more probable.

Although the handwriting is largely illegible to eyes unused to Elizabethan spelling and script, it is vigorous, lively and impulsive. Not the work of a neat and orderly poet, one would say. In comparison with the elegant script of Ben Jonson's "The Masque of Queenes," which is also on display, it is the work of a man who is not vain or fastidious. Nor is it like the handwriting of Sir Francis Bacon. The Bacon script, on display in the same case, is cool, clear and precise, like his essays.

The manuscript pages supposed to be Shakespeare's look like a first draft written at one sitting, with little punctuation and capitalization; and the names of the characters appear to have been written in the margins after the scene was composed.

If this is, indeed, Shakespeare, it is easy to understand why in later years the printers had so much trouble setting the type for his plays. This manuscript was not written for the ages in the hope that it might be put on display at the British Museum theatre and a half centuries later.

It was done, presumably under pressure, by a competent stage writer trying to solve a practical theatre problem. When the ink was wet, the manuscript was part of the clutter of a working theatre.

Speaking of Shakespeare, there is an odd plaque on a brick building in Bell Yard under the Jovian shadow of St. Paul's. "Upon this site," it says, "formerly stood 'The Bell,' Carter Lane, from whence Richard Quiney wrote the letter to William Shakespeare dated 25th October 1598." The letter is now famous: it is the only item of Shakspeare's correspondence still in existence.

What the plaque does not say, however, is that Richard Quiney, a man from Stratford, was trying to borrow £30 (worth maybe $1,000 today) from Shakespeare.

"Loving countryman, I am bold of you as a friend, craving help with thirty pounds," he wrote mellifluously. "Haste, the Lord be with you and with us all. Amen, etc." No one knows whether Richard Quiney succeeded in putting the bite on Shakespeare.

But there is something ironical about the fact that he achieved immortality, not by commenting on Shakespeare's genius, but by asking for dough. Now a great, grave city has respectfully commemorated him and the site of the inn where he was in arrears to the landlord.

During World War II the neighborhood of Bell Yard was furiously wrecked by bombing night after night. Even now it is hideously wounded. But the wrath of the war gods did not disturb the plaque that marks the place where an obscure countryman was broke at about the time our first colony was getting lost on Roanoke Island, Virginia.

Napoleon As Novelist

(Dagens Nyheter, Stockholm)

Napolean Bonaparte once tried his hand as a novelist. That was when he was 25 and in love with Mademoiselle Desiree Clary, daughter of an immensely rich Marseilles merchant.

This fact was revealed during the recent sale at an auction of the middle part of his unpublished book.

The manuscript, consisting of four bundles of sheets written in an almost illegible hand, completes the earlier discovered beginning and end of the novel which Napoleon's doctor at Saint Helena sold to a Polish nobleman.

The novel, "Clisson et Eugenie", depicts the love of a dashing young army officer who sounds very much like Lt. Bonaparte in the early part of his career—and an attractive, wealthy young woman. They marry and are very happy, but Clisson soon goes to new war adventures and sends letters to his wife via a messenger who falls in live with Eugenie. The messenger is loyal to Clisson, and Eugenie remains a faithful wife, but Clisson receives bad reports about the pair and dies a hero's death in battle.

In real life, of course, Desiree did not marry Lt. Bonaparte, but another young officer, Lt. Jean-Charles Bernadotte, who later became King Carl-Johan XIV of Sweden and Norway.

Whether this shift on the part of Desiree was due to Napoleon's faithlessness, as some writers claim, or was wrought by papa Clary, who took a dim view of Lt. Bonaparte's lack of fortune, is a matter of conjecture.

Certain it is that Bernadotte, whose father was a prosperous wine merchant in Bordeaux, appeared to the elder Clary to be a more suitable match for his daughter.

Law for 3-Year-Olds

(Lethbridge Herald)

City council found out just how absurd some of their by-laws have become when they discovered that under Section 11, By-law No. 359 it was illegal to ride a tricycle on the sidewalk.

Just picture some three-year-old toddler clipping down your neighborhood street at four miles an hour and the local motorcycle policeman pulling up beside him and telling him to pull over to the side of the walk.

Can You Spell These Words?

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

We've been looking at a report of a national spelling contest for young students which was held in Washington, because words always interest us, and we wondered how we would make out if we had been among the 62 competitors from 31 states. The winner was Sandra Sloss, 13 years of age, who hails from Granite City, Illinois.

We believed we were a pretty fair speller until we read what those kids did, and what makes thing harder to bear is that the first three were all girls. We did not even know what some of the words meant.

The contest was on the knock-out system. Each competitor was counted out after a limited number of failures. The third-place winner, Naomi Klein, 12, of Brooklyn, failed in round 15 with "quincunx," which she spelled "quincunks." We knew that would have something to do with five, but we had to look up the dictionary and found that it has several meanings, one of which is five-twelfths. The second girl, Jean Copeman, 12, of Prescott, Arizona, was beaten when asked to spell "abbasy," which she spelled "abbossy." That also had us baffled, until the dictionary told us that an "abbacy" is a place where an abbot lives. Sandra's final triumph was "crustaceology," which means the study of shellfish.

There were several Negro children among those selected to represent their districts. One of them was stopped by the word "syzygy," which would have stopped even an editorial writer cold. It is a scientific term which can have several meanings. Other words included "trapezoidal" and "chiastorite."

If the people who drew up the list really expected children of 12 to 14 to spell them, the United States standard of education must be a great deal higher than we imagined.

We imagine several big businessmen had their scouts at the contest looking for potential stenographers who can spell better than they do themselves.

Anything To Change The Change

Lest some leads in the Pinkham-Pierce tragi-comedy "The Crisis" prefer to remain unenlightened, I'll say right here that there are only two actual changes in the life of the middle-aged woman (Webster, not I, will define the term), and these are (1) cessation of menstruation, and (2) ovulation. The woman is aware of the first, but not of the second change—that is to say the menopause manifests itself by cessation of menstruation and only . . .

Oh-oh, wait a moment, there's no point in driving a hundred thousand women over to the trick specialists, nostrum mongers, "clinic" racketeers.

So we'll delete only ignorant ones imagine it accounts for whatever shortcomings or ailments they happen to have after forty, and put it this way:

Other than cessation of menstruation the only manifestation an intelligent woman may associate with the menopause is, I regret to say, the discomfort commonly called "hot flashes." I regret to say so because physicians do not even know whether the hot flashes are due to too much or too little internal secretion from the ovaries—ovarian hormone; or perhaps to a disturbance of the autonomic (automatic) regulation of the circulation from some cause unrelated to sex.

Some physicians' experience leads them to believe an ovarian (corpus luteum) hormone, available (on prescription) as Progesterone, Premarin, etc., is the best palliative for "hot flashes."

Many women have assured me that supplementing their ordinary diet with extra calcium and vitamin D and using more of the high calcium foods in the everyday diet brings considerable improvement in respect to hot flashes.

Fortunately for mankind, women are credulous creatures. Or should I say doctors are plausible? How else can we account for the association of high blood pressure, psycho-neurotic disturbances and other ailments too gloomerous to mention in a health column, with the termination, the natural termination of fertility?

Although the menopause marks the termination of fertility, the capacity to conceive and bear children, it has no effect on sex appeal or potency.

The credulity of women accounts for the many fishwife superstitions about the so-called "change," "female weakness," "displacement" and other morbid concepts cultivated and treated by doctors endowed with little conscience.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TIME'S MIRACLES

I was reading an enlightening book about the American Presidents by Don Smith recently. In it I came upon an interesting comment by President Buchanan, who for many years before being elected to his high office had sought it diligently. The unexpected came to pass, however, and after twenty years his ambition was rewarded.

Time does much in many ways—and it did something for Buchanan. This is what I quote as coming from him: "Years ago, I wanted to reward my friends and punish my enemies. But now, after all these years, the friends I hoped to reward have passed away and the enemies I intended to punish have long since become my friends."

Perhaps you read that wonderful little book by Robert Herrick called "The Master of the Inn." It was published many years ago by Scribners (1908) but has gone into many editions. It tells a most poignant story of two great doctors who sought the hand and heart of the same woman, but "the one had taken all and the sweet love turned to acid in his heart, and the other had lost and the bitter turned to sweet." Time does such things!

Time is a healer of all sorrows and disappointments. It changes our viewpoints and visions. It gives us new hope and courage. It keeps assuring us of another chance—perhaps a better one. Have no regrets. In golf, the most important hole to be played is the next one. That's the way it should always be in life—the next move the most important!

The sturdy things in nature take a long time in which to grow. People who dream, think and keep moving, are forever running into miracles. In fact such people create miracles! But patience is good medicine for those who are inclined to run too fast, often losing sight of the miracles in their very pathway.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Could it be that the advertising profession is growing a little jaded? Perhaps our newspaper ads are just as brisk and challenging as ever. But in radio and TV, there are signs that the boys are running out of ideas. Of course, in radio and TV advertising, they are associated with show business. And as everybody knows, in show business they are so short of ideas that whenever anybody does give birth to a new one, everybody in the business wildly clambers on board, with a slight modification of the same idea. This is most obvious in motion pictures. We get pictures in rashes. A good picture on psychiatry is immediately followed by ten pictures on psychiatry. Right now, we are suffering from a rash of biographical pictures. Let one producer go subterranean, and the whole industry dives into the sea.

Radio and TV ad men must have caught the infection. A few years back, somebody conceived the novel idea of jingles. Soon the whole industry was ringing with jingles, until they at last became so unintelligible, no listener listened any more. When I discussed this with an advertising relative of mine, he informed me hotly that, since his pet product had invented a jingle, sales had gone up ten percent. "How do you know the newspaper ads didn't do it?" I checked.

But the advertising profession is a clergy in its own right. It has its articles of faith, to question which is blasphemy.

Fairly recently, one advertiser announced that his product contained PU 2, or some such mysterious ingredient.

We heretics watching, breathless, sensed a stunned silence for a week or two.

Then, suddenly, from every side, came the response. Soaps, gargles, toothpastes, wrist watches, boots, canned soup—or am I exaggerating?—anyway, suddenly, the whole radio and TV world burst with the exciting news that products contained BL 43 and OG 16 and Ow 30, until the befogged listener and viewer began to get the hiccups.

We old timers can recall the day when an advertiser's pride lay in the fact that his ads looked like nobody else's.

Albert College Convocation Greeted by Smiles of Sun And Youth's Happy Laughter

Again the ivied walls of Albert College looked down on another Convocation day. The sun smiled warmly on the bright green grass, the flower beds gay with color, the flag fluttering bravely and a scene of happy youth and sagacious maturity wending their way into the chapel on Monday afternoon. The girls wore their long white dresses and carried nosegays of sweet-peas and tiny rosebuds; the boys were dressed in grey flannels and navy blazers; the staff members in gowns and hoods.

Although the balcony had been extended to make extra seating capacity, the chapel was filled. Loud speakers installed in the balcony helped the speaking arrangements. Ferns were placed in front of the rostrum, and a bouquet of red peonies on the trophy table.

A feature of this Convocation was the presence of several graduates of fifty or more years ago. One of the oldest graduates present was Mrs. Jessie Faulkner, of Stirling, who belonged to the class of 1883, and was ninety-one years old.

The procession entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's March of the Priests, played as an organ and piano duo by Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Boyce. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. George Minielly of Trenton, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

WELCOMES GUESTS

Principal Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, who presided for the occasion, welcomed the guests, particularly the parents who had come to share Convocation with their children, the Board members whose interest was essential to the well-being and growth of the school and the "round-robin" letter group. The school had a capacity registration which enabled it to be selective for the betterment of the school. The Principal announced changes in the teaching staff, and gave a report of the Centennial campaign. There were a number of encouraging factors about the campaign. The strong core of moral support in the alumni and former students helped. The speaker felt that all that was needed was push and patience.

"We are entering our 99th years," said Mr. MacKenzie, "let us unite efforts to make it one of the best."

Valedictorian Jack McMurray, a young man who is studying for the ministry, expressed the sentiments of the graduating class.

"This is a time tinged with sadness," he said. "We are met to receive the honors of the day. It is a day when ties are broken, when the young fledglings find their wings and fly away. The months of concentrated effort are behind us. Our experiences have been many and varied. We think of the agreeable days that are past and feel we are better equipped now to face the future. We have acquired an all-round education and training that will last all our lives; we have been helped to develop mentally, physically and spiritually. We have been given a sense of destiny and faith in the power and presence of God. Though we may meet with trials we can be more than adequate, living dynamic Christian lives.

"We are grateful to the members of the faculty who were always interested listeners when we came to them confused or bewildered. We can never repay them; we owe all to their earnest fidelity, their kindly and thoughtful advice. We are grateful also to our parents who have made this day possible.

"We look forward to fulfilling our dreams, hopes and aspirations. We hope to accomplish great things for the good of mankind. If we follow the precepts and examples of this ancient and honorable college our willing feet will carry us into the ways of service."

HONOR "ROUND-LETTER" GROUP

A pleasant and unscheduled part of the program was the presentation of certificates in acknowledge the 50th anniversary of the "round-letter" group, by Mr. H. Ackerman and Mr. MacKenzie. Nosegays were presented to the other members who were present, Mrs. T. W. Dawson, President of the group, responded.

As a token of esteem from the graduating class, a pulpit chair was donated to the school by David Scott, and accepted by Mr. MacKenzie. Two new flags, the Christian flag and a Union Jack, were hung in the chancel, the gift of David Gourley.

The musical portion of the afternoon included a violin solo by Raymond Taylor who played "Adoration" by Borowski, accompanied by Mrs. Egerton Boyce; and three numbers by the school choir, directed by Dean J. H. MacKay, "I'll Walk with God", "Onward Christian Soldiers", and the Albert College Hymn. The choir was accompanied at the piano by Douglas B. Hoare.

Principal MacKenzie introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Donald Henshaw, of Toronto, as an advertising man who had given many inspirational talks to leaders of industry.

Mr. Henshaw began his remarks by noting that speeches on Convocation day were barbaric torture under the guise of a civilized affair to prevent graduates from getting their diplomas for a little while longer.

USE OF IMAGINATION

The speaker's theme was the use of imagination, and he cited four examples from advertising, history. When the automobile industry was young there was one car that drew the admiration of everyone, and it was every young man's ambition to have enough money to buy one. That car was created by a pencil, drawn on a piece of paper by a man who had never built a car. It had racy lines and a powerful engine that made people want to buy it. He had decided to do something different from anything that had been done before. When his car was built he tried a different layout for advertising with lots of white space and a picture of a girl riding a bucking broncho. He appealed to people who would buy and not count the cost for what they wanted. He made a million dollars in eighteen months. Then he made another million in the same length of time. Then he retired and never built another car.

The second example was an exhibit of amazing devices and new scientific materials which were taken across the country with the idea of stimulating the minds of young men during the depression. The slogan was "if we set one boy to dream," and it set many thousands of boys to dream with the result that something was achieved that never had been achieved before to put to practical use ideas in the world of science. These men are now old and leaders in the field of science.

A recruiting campaign for women was the third example. A poster with the three hats representing the three military services was displayed with the words "Here's your hat, there is a hurry."

Our spirits were lifted during the Quebec conference when the two great leaders of the day, Roosevelt and Churchill, were represented by an ashtray containing a cigarette in a holder and a fat cigar and underneath the words: "Where there's smoke, there's bound to be fire."

ONE THING IN COMMON

All these examples had one thing in common, a sense of imagination.

"I believe in imagination," said the speaker. "That which stirred the hand of prehistoric man, which caused man to look beyond the horizon and wonder; to seek for philosophies of other men; to look upon the commonplace of every day and dream where could be better things, out of which came the luxuries of our present day. We need imagination to find the spark of good, hidden in evil, and to bring youth with one step more to lead civilization to peace. May your imagination picture the land you want to live in, and give you the aspiration to achieve, to give you the glory of making at least some of your dreams come true."

A reception was held after the presentations of awards in Ackerman Hall where the ladies of the Guild and the wives of the teaching staff served the guests with buffet refreshments.

Defence Officials Express Opinions on Brainwashing

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite brainwashing practised by the Communists, defence officials here say they believe there should be no change in the regulations governing the conduct of Canadian servicemen taken prisoner.

They feel any regulation which could make it easier for a prisoner might condone or even encourage in advance disclosure of information to the enemy beyond what now is allowed.

Under present regulations, a Canadian taken prisoner is permitted to give only his name, rank and number to his captors.

Officials say they believe each brainwashed prisoner returned from captivity should give reasons if he contravened regulations. If these reasons were adequate, there would be no court martial.

But no escape clause should be written into the regulations now.

CRITICAL POINT

For instance, at what point could it be determined that a prisoner had been maltreated enough to permit him to divulge information to the enemy?

If such a rule could be written and adopted, the enemy could brainwash a prisoner for the time of ordeal permitted by Canadian regulations and then tell him: "oYu're clear under your regulations. Now confess."

Brainwashing does not necessarily involve physical torture. It can involve constant interrogation and solitary confinement. It is designed to win the acceptance and, if possible, the enthusiasm of the individual for Communist philosophy.

The only Canadian known to have been brainwashed is RCAF Sqdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie of Montreal. Shot down in the Korean war, he was held for two years by the Chinese Communists and released last December, 19 months after the war ended.

MacKenzie said that after 16 months in solitary confinement he broke down and signed a false statement that he had "invaded Chinese air space" and been briefed to do so.

MacKenzie divulged no information to the enemy. He signed a false statement, but, officials point out, there is nothing in armed forces regulations which prohibits a prisoner from lying to the enemy.

Malton Transfer Deadline Is Set

Weddings

LOCKYER—SPRAGUE

A quiet, but very pretty wedding was solemnized in the church parlors of Bridge Street United church, on Saturday, May 28, at 2.30 p.m., when the Rev. H. H. Gillis of Belleville, united in marriage, Nettie Ann Sprague, of Mountain View, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague, to Donald George Lockyer, of Belleville, son of Mrs. William Lockyer, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Lockyer.

The bride was attractively attired in pastel blue linen suit with white accessories and carried a nosegay of baby white 'mums and pink roses.

Miss Pauline Sprague was her only attendant, wearing rose colored linen suit with white accessories, and wearing a pale yellow carnation corsage.

Mr. John Campbell attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the bridegroom's home, due to illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Lockyer are residing in Belleville.

FOX—HOLCROFT

Standards of pastel tinted snapdragons, and red roses, formed a lovely setting on Saturday, June 4, at 10.00 in Calvary Temple, Belleville, when Margaret Ann Holcroft, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Holcroft, became the bride of Allen George Fox, of Napanee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fox. The Rev. Laurie Price, assisted by the Rev. Hope Smith, officiated.

Mr. Robert Jones of Marmora, accompanied by the Rev. Hope Smith, sang, "Because," before the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. John Holcroft, the bride wore a charming bridal gown of Chantilly lace and embroidered nylon net over satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her full-length embroidered veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of seeded pearls, and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of Crimson roses.

Miss Louise Harris of Belleville, as maid of honor, was gowned in pale green Chantilly lace and net over taffeta; she carried a hand bouquet of sweetpeas and roses and wore a matching headdress.

Little Grace Holcroft, sister of the bride, as flower girl, was sweet in her pink lace and net over taffeta, with basket of sweetpeas and roses and matching headdress, while the bride's little brother, David, did the duties of ring-bearer, smart in his light grey suit.

Mr. Gerald Fox of Napanee, attended the bridegroom; while the ushers were, Mr. Keith Gainsforth of Trenton, and Mr. Ralph Fox of Napanee.

For the reception in the annex of Calvary Temple, the bride's mother, wearing cornflower blue, with navy accessories, and corsage of red roses, received the guests assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in light rose, with white accessories, and corsage of dusky-colored roses.

For the wedding trip to the Adirondacks, the bride travelled in a boxy jacket suit in pink and gray, with navy accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Fox will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Toronto, Napanee and Marmora.

Flannel and Lace

By ALICE ALDEN

Silk and lace, velvet and lace, even cotton with lace—those are sartorial partnerships with which we are all more or less familiar. Now it's wool and lace, or really, in this instance, flannel with lace, and very well the two get along. Specifically Jane Derby does a gray flannel suit with a little box jacket which she edges in white Val lace. The skirt is smartly slim. With the suit, a sleeveless blouse composed of row on row of white Val lace, fresh and crisp for spring, and showing how smart is the color scheme of grey and white in its fresh appeal.

In the absence of the membership convener, Mr. MacPhee reported 23 paid up members for the past year.

After some discussion it was decided that the Cub 'father and son' banquet be held in September.

'Couture Touch' Now Being Sold By Wholesalers

By MURIEL PENN

LONDON (Reuters) — Hardy Amies, son of the Queen's dressmaker, is going to the wholesale business.

This new venture is inspired by the success of his ready-to-wear boutique which now has been running for five years and has proved an enormous success with women who want the "couture touch" but cannot afford couture prices.

The scope of the boutique has already extended beyond the original idea of a retail department at the couture premises to a considerable amount of wholesale business selling to selected stores in Britain, and exporting.

IMPECCABLE TAILORING

The first all-wholesale collection seen at a press interview at Amies' headquarters in Grosvenor street, Mayfair, comprises coats, suits, dress and jacket ensembles and cocktail and evening dresses featuring the impeccable tailoring for which Amies is known.

Models for day wear range through thick heavyweight cloths for coats to lighter weight, smoother textured weaves in matching fabrics for the suit to be worn under them.

Straight finger-tip-length coats over matching slim tailored dresses, which are given individuality by neckline, bodice and sleeve detail, look like suits. Ensembles in smoother tweeds have long, easy-fitting jackets over matching dresses fitted smoothly, but not closely in accordance with the latest trends, to the hips, and full skirts with wide, flat pleats.

Formal ensembles for after six wear come in brocades or lace mounted on poult. Many of these dresses, with outstanding skirts, are provided with their own petticoats which are included in the price.

Colors range from near-black greys, navy blue and browns through subdued olive greens to warm tones of coral, orange and vivid reds, and blues in tones varying from royal and sapphire to muted petrol shades.

United Church WMS Entertains Sister Societies

The Woman's Missionary Society of Melrose United Church, entertained the member of the WMS of Shannonville, Bethany, Gilead, Empey Hill and Ebenezer at its meeting on June 1st. It was most inspiring to see the church filled to near capacity on this friendly occasion.

Quiet music was played by the pianist, Mrs. Fred Robinson, while the visitors were being greeted by the president, Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. E. M. Badgley.

Mrs. Morgan opened the meeting and extended a gracious welcome to the visitors. She conducted the worship service with Mrs. John English reading the Bible lesson.

The following program was much enjoyed, Mrs. Roy Badgley, a reading, "Being Sure of God," followed by a duet by Mrs. Bruce Sherman and Miss Marion Blatherwick; Mrs. O. Bertrand of Gilead, a reading, "Some One Had Prayed," which was followed by a solo by Mrs. Garnet Dupre with Mrs. K. Chadwick of Empey Hill, as accompanist.

Mrs. Gerald Ingoton, accompanied by Mrs. Clayton Eggleton of Bethany, also rendered a solo. This was followed by a reading "Do You Know the Shepherd," by Mrs. Wilson of Roblin.

Shannonville ladies contributed two numbers, a solo by Mrs. L. W. Scott, and a reading by Mrs. Frank Doxtator.

Due to illness, the invited guest speaker, Mrs. C. W. Neelands of Deseronto, was unable to be present but Miss Bailey, Melrose, on short notice graciously presented an address on "The Love of God."

"His love is shown most of all by the gift of His Son.

"We see the love of God in nature—in every flower, tree, mountain and stream: love will overcome selfish conduct, bad temper, evil speech and untruthfulness.

"The love of God will avert war. If every man had the love of God in his heart there would be no war. How can we use this gift of love. By means of grace—the Bible is available to all—the church and its sacraments, by prayer, the gift of the Holy Spirit."

Mrs. Morgan thanked Miss Bailey for her stimulating address also all the ladies who had given of their talent to present such a fine program.

A happy, social time was spent over a cup of tea with refreshments, before the ladies departed for their homes, bringing to a close a worthwhile meeting.

Mrs. O. Bertrand of Gilead, on behalf of the visiting societies, thanked the Melrose WMS for the kind invitation and expressed their pleasure for this get-together.

Three's a Family Excellently Produced by Quinte Players

(By CHARLES W. SLOAN)

Last night Belleville summer theatre got under way with the Quinte Players' opening production of the farce-comedy "Three's a Family," at Tobe's County Gardens.

The play is an amusing treatment of wartime domestic problems and the cast did a commendable job in their interpretation of it. Indeed, there were several roles which could hardly have been improved and even the bit parts added something significant.

As the play opens a small apartment on West 110th Street, New York, is inhabited by three mature adults. Shortly thereafter, the daughter of the family moves in with one infant daughter and a considerable amount of furniture and her husband joins the air force. The son of the household further complicates the picture by bringing his wife home to have her baby when hospital accommodation is not available. The resultant confusion gives rise to some highly amusing situations.

EXCEL IN ROLES

Betty Barrie as Aunt Irma gave a virtually flawless performance and her part, probably more than any other, tied the play into a satisfying whole. Flo Yanover was priceless as a Cockney maid. Many a professional production has had to be satisfied with work inferior to that done by Mrs. Yanover. Nicky Thomas, the mother, and real head of the household gave the fine presentation one has come to expect of her. Harry Mulhall was thoroughly competent as the father. One of the highlights of the play was a "drunk" scene done by him and Mrs. Barrie. Vera Levine, as Kitty, the daughter who comes home to mama for the duration and Syl Quinn, as Eugene, her husband, gave consistent characterizations thru'out, of a young couple alternately making ardent love or waging vitriolic domestic warfare. The best supporting role in the play was undoubtedly that of Lloyd Heaslip, as Doctor Bartell, an ancient medico resurrected from the oblivion of retirement by the manpower shortage. Mr. Heaslip managed to affect a senile quaver in his voice and a matching tremor of limb that produced the exact degree of exaggeration necessary to make the role amusing rather than pathetic.

Other supporting roles were taken by Claire Kelso as Archie and Fran Lane his expectant wife Hazel, whose arrival adds the final complication to an already overwrought household; Rube Freeman and Hugh McKee as delivery men, Winsome Lewis as a female telegraph messenger, Don Rose as a lawyer and Joanne Gibbon as his wife, and Miriam Bishop as a colored maid. Each of these persons was more than adequate in the part. Throughout the play there was not one really weak performance.

TWO MORE PERFORMANCES

Neighbors Make Farewell Gift

A very pleasant function took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hutchison, on Friday evening last, when a number of their neighbors and friends gathered to have a social evening and to say farewell to Bert who is leaving to spend a month's holiday among his people in England. It is 26 years since he left as a boy to come to Canada and this is his first visit home since. After all had gathered as part of the program, Mrs. Fred Furmidge read an address of good wishes.

Mrs. William McCaffrey presented the guest of honor with a lovely set of military brushes and comb in a leather zippered case and an envelope containing a sum of money from the guests.

Though taken by surprise, Bert thanked all for their gift and best wishes.

After refreshments, visiting was enjoyed till train time when a number journeyed to the CNR station to say goodbye. He flew by plane to England.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

...HE "TRAPPED FOR LIFE"?

There are probably few people in the world who have not, at some time in their lives, felt that they were trapped in a situation from which there seemed to be no way out.

Sometimes, it is true, it takes a long time to find the solution to such a problem and, while it is being found, one has to put up with that trapped feeling.

But, I think that the solution to the problem of one wife and mother who writes to ask me if she is "completely trapped," had better not take too long a time, for her situation is indeed desperate.

She begins her deadful story by saying that, although she has tried to find help, and all those to whom she has talked admit she has a serious problem, no one has made any real attempt to aid her in finding a way out.

With the oldest of her four children only 5, and a new baby on the way, she is trying to struggle along with a husband who 'has beat me and knocked me around since my first child was born." Besides his physical abuse of her and the children, the man "drinks up his money and has affairs with other women, which he readily admits and boasts about to others."

At her wits' end, a couple of years ago, when their home was about to be taken from them, she talked to the local sheriff, who admitted she needed help but said he didn't know what could be done. Then, she says, she consulted the Department of Public Assistance, where she was told to contact the Child Welfare Agency, and the Child Welfare Agency referred her back to the DPA. This runaround left her so despondent that she gave up trying to find help anywhere for awhile, until things got bad that she went to her doctor and told him the story.

He advised me to leave my husband both for my own sake and for the good of my children," she reports, "but you just can't pick up four babies and walk out." So she did the only thing she felt was left to her and called on her husband's parents, who came down to discuss the matter.

"But you might as well have talked to a rattlesnake to try to tame it as talk to my husband," she says, "and he was madder than ever after that. He tore up more clothes, and beat me and the children some more. Right now, I am black and blue." She adds that her husband's parents made no further attempt to help her.

Aside from getting a little money now and then for food, and about once a year a couple of dollars to buy clothes for herself and her children, this woman gets nothing from this violently abusive husband. To top it all, she lives so far in the back country that she never sees anybody outside her family.

Is it any wonder that she cries out desperately: "Am I really trapped for life?"

In answer to this question, I want to assure her that I definitely do not believe she is "trapped for life." I am sure that there are people not too far away from her who will help her if she will get in touch with them.

I have been in touch with a family welfare organization on this matter, and they have given me the names of two people who are in a position to give her advice and guidance on her dreadful problem.

If she will send me her name and address, so that I can write her a personal letter, I will give her the names of these people and she can get in touch with either one or the other. If there is any reason why she does not want to give me her home address, perhaps there is someone she knows whose care a letter can be sent to her and who will pass the letter on to her. Or, if she prefers, I will send her a letter in care of her local newspaper, and she can call at that office for the letter.

Will she let me know what she would like me to do?

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE HOME SHAMPOO

The home shampoo deserves much more time and attention than is usually given to it. Often it is done hastily, being considered a minor item on the list of beauty chores. In which case wave lines wilt and the hair becomes difficult to dress.

Though the trim may be perfect and the original wave line set gracefully, the hair itself will lack the finished gloss and soft texture if the shampoo has not been thorough and every particle of soap removed.

The preliminary step is a thorough brushing to remove surface dust. Treat a strand at a time, holding it away from the head, using the brush with a rolling motion. Brush from nape to crown, from crown down over the forehead.

Among shampoo agents you have your choice of liquid soap, oil or cream. For extremely oily hair, soaps are usually best. Creams act favorably on dry hair and are easily removed.

Before applying any one of these, rinse your hair with a strong current of warm water from the bath spray. You will find that a spray does a more thorough job than the shower, which pounds directly on the top of your hair but isn't forced into the border lines, sides and back.

Friction the scalp well with the shampooing agent, spreading out thumbs and fingers, to be sure of a perfect and complete distribution. Lift and pinch the scalp to bring a glow. Don't spare time or energy.

Use the spray again and have the water as hot as you can comfortably bear it. Use more soap or cream and have a final rinsing. If the hair is inclined to be oily, give yourselve a vineger rinse—three tablespoonfuls of vinegar to a bowl of warm water. That, too, must be flooded away with the spray.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TOO MANY SHOWERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be a bridesmaid in the wedding of a very dear friend of mine. Several people have told me that this means that I must give a shower for the bride-to-be. I would love to give a shower for this girl, if you think I should. It would be convenient, for we have quite a large house, and my mother says she is willing to make any necessary plans. But there is one reason why I am hesitating to give this shower, and this is that eight showers have already been given for this girl, and to practically all of these showers the same group of friends have been invited. Of course, this has meant quite a big expense to them. Most of us are employed in offices, and quite a few have family responsibilities as well as having to support ourselves. Now, while no one has complained, at least not to me, I really believe that having to buy so many shower presents must be a problem. Under all these circumstances what would you advise me to do? — A.R.

I advise you not to give another shower. In the first place the 'several people" who told you that a bridesmaid Must give a shower are not right. This isn't necessary, depends on choice, and on the circumstances in general. Buying for that many showers is certainly a heavy strain on the purse, and I think with you that these friends have been generous enough. The bride-to-be, if she is as right-thinking as I'm sure she is, would feel uneasy and embarrassed, to have another shower planned for her. I urge you please to let these overworked purses have a breathing-spell. They still will be called on to buy wedding presents!

Naturally, you would like to give a pre-wedding party. So I suggest that, in honor of the engaged couple, you give a tea or other kind of late-afternoon party at your house, say on Saturday or Sunday afternoon, and invite both girls and men, and since your house is large, have a dance-party. This general party, a no-gift party, would, I'm absolutely positive, be a welcome relief after the "shower deluge."

DON'T SEAL THAT LETTER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other evening I asked a friend of mine, who was calling at our house, if she would kindly deliver a note for me to a mutual friend of ours whom I know she was seeing early the following morning. (It was very important that it be delivered as soon as possible.) I wrote the note, addressed the envelope and wrote on it, "kindness of Mary Brown," and sealed the envelope. Now I've been told that this friend has criticized me to several of our friends for sealing the envelope. Was this wrong for me to seal the envelope? — T.G.

Yes. It was discourteous of you to seal the envelope since this implied that you hadn't complete faith in "Mary Brown," and thought she might read the letter. (It would have been quite proper for your messenger-friend to seal the envelope which you have handed to her unsealed, and most often this is the procedure.)

Fashionable Footwear

These stylish sandals are perfect complements for the chic new spring clothes and will make foot prints in the news about shoes. The ones pictured are in a series called "Pompeian" because they were inspired by that ancient Italian city.

A screen print on leather, very original idea, decorates the toes and heels with a crisscross design. And the open toe and open heel make for added foot flattery. With the shoes is worn a matching handbag.

City Fathers at Orphanage

By Mary Moore

Dining tables for eight covered with gay colored prints, each boasting its ration of vitamin capsules and corn sprup; each with its individual napkin rings and napkins, bright bouquet of wild flowers and "small fry" chairs where indicated; such were the sights which greeted the visiting party of City Fathers on a recent visit to a local children's home.

There were other evidences of intelligent and loving care, too. When the diminutive residents bounced in from school the Sisters in charge were hugged, chattered at, laughed with—and then deserted for the playing grounds outside, young hearts content in the sure knowledge of being loved.

Three or four stayed behind to show a favorite toy to the eminent visitors; one tiny lad contributed his best in hospitality by performing a somersault; another —slightly older—recited on request.

Then sleeping quarters were shown, with bedrooms for four replacing the long, stern dormitories of former years, each bed boasting its own bright doll or teddy bear. Evidences of the homey touch were everywhere.

The Sisters served a luncheon to the guests: topping off delectable sandwiches with a dessert none could resist. The Strawberry Shortcake with whipped cream and fresh strawberries (out of season) was irresistible. Not a crumb was left.

How welcome the new fruits! Like the first flowers of spring! Strawberries ahead of time remind us of the abundance ahead and right now provide a really high finish for a company meal.

Glazed Strawberry Pie is extra high fare. Try it and see.

GLAZED STRAWBERRY PIE

One teaspoon plain gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 quart strawberries, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch (or 2 tablespoons arrowroot flour if you would like the syrup very clear), 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped. Have ready a baked pastry shell with high fluted edges. Soak the gelatin in cold water until softened. Wash berries before hulling, saving the choice ones to garnish the top. Hull the remaining berries. Put half the remaining berries into a saucepan with the sugar and crush them, using a pastry blender or potato masher. Combine cornstarch (or arrowroot) with lemon juice, add to the strawberry mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until the mixture has thickened and becomes transparent in color—this last cooking may be done in a double boiler if desired, so that you have only to stir frequently. Add softened gelatin to the hot mixture. Stir briskly. Cool. Now stir in the remaining berries which have been cut in halves. Stir in gently with fork. Pour into baked shell. Chill. Just before serving whip the cream and spread over the top or around the edge of the pie. Garnish with whole, perfect berries which were held out for this purpose.

Norwegians Showing Interest In Visit of Queen and Duke

By ELIZABETH KITSON

OSLO (Reuters) — Norwegians are showing an enthusiastic interest in the forthcoming official visit to Oslo of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

People young and old, from town and country, are making plans to be in the capital some time during the three days of the visit, June 24, 25, and 26, in the hope of catching a glimpse of the popular royal couple from Britain.

Public and private institutions are busy with preparations varying from the cleaning and decorating of housefronts to the planting of flowers in public parks.

IMPORTANT FESTIVAL

Midsummer Night, the 23rd of June, is an important festival in Norway. It is the shortest night of the year and even in Oslo, which is quite a way south of the midnight sun area, it does not really get dark.

This is the night when, according to ancient custom, parties of merrymakers gather at the fjordside or up in the hills, light big bonfires and dance around them to the music of accordions or record players until dawn.

In Oslo, boat trips on the fjord are popular. Yachts, motorboats and rowboats, gaily decorated with fresh green birch branches, take parties out for the whole evening. They stop at some beach or islet for picnics, fireworks and dancing, and do not return until early morning.

This year, the number of boaters on the Oslofjord and aound the south coast is expected to be greater than ever. For everyone knows that the royal yacht Britannia will make her landfall somewhere off south Norway during that night and will steam up the fjord during the early hours of the morning.

It is doubtful whether the Queen and Prince Philip will get very much sleep that night, for a real Norwegian Midsummer Night welcome will await them.

ISLAND HOLIDAY

The official program for the royal visit has not yet been published. But it is believed that after the visit to Oslo, the Queen and the duke may spend a few days' private holiday at Hanko, an island at the mouth of the Oslofjord and a yachting centre. Crown Prince Olav of Norway has a country house there and both his yacht and one belonging to the Duke of Edinburgh are expected to take part in the regatta which starts June 30.

Eighty-two-year-old King Haakon and the Norwegian royal family will be on the pier to greet Queen Elizabeth and the duke when they step ashore from their barge the morning of June 24.

Oslo citizens hope there will be a ceremonial drive in open cars around the main streets of the city and up to the palace where the royal guests are to stay.

As far as is known, King Haakon will give a state banquet at the royal palace on the first evening, and will take his guests to a special performance at the National Theatre Saturday night.

On the last evening, Sunday, June 26, the Queen and the duke will entertain the Norwegian royal family at dinner on board the Britannia.

TRINITY W.M.S.

MADOC — An evening meeting of Trinity W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Nayler on Wednesday with members of Ivanhoe W.M.S. as guests.

Mrs. Delbert Carmen in her opening remarks, expressed words of welcome to the visitors and also to the guest speaker, Mrs. Spafford.

During the business period plans were made for the annual summer bazaar usually held about the third week of July.

Mrs. Empey reported on Stewardship and offered prayer for the missionary, Miss Kilpatrick. Miss Holmes reported on supplies and invited all present to see the beautiful layettes on display in the library, consisting of two complete sets with many extras, including garments for mothers.

Mrs. G. Anderson conducted the worship service, using the hymn "Unto the Hills," for opening and the reading of 121st Psalm, followed up with comments on the Psalm and including several poems in keeping with the Bible story, "Unto The Hills", "Where" and "Blue-Print", closing with Miss Annie Holmes making the dedicatory prayer.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Albert Empey introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Spafford, of Aiken's Church W.M.S., and past branch president. Mrs. Aikens gave a timely address on the "Aims and Objects of WMS Members," stressing the importance of not only being missionary members but to work together with all organizations of the church and all churches in general.

She mentioned the World Council of Churches held at Evanston last year.

Mother's Helper

A GOOD WAY to make sure your child's birthday presents aren't lost and/or broken in the confusion is to save the Grand Opening until the very end of the party. Give them to him one by one when the time comes, and whisk them away until the guests have gone.

Church Treasurer Asks to Be Relieved of Post

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. A. Neil Miller of Toronto, treasurer of the Presbyterian Church in Canada for the last seven years, created a stir at the church's 81st General Assembly Monday when he asked to be relieved of his post.

Dr. Miller asked the assembly to accept his resignation after he had completed his report as chairman of the budget and stewardship committee. He explained that he thought he would be of greater service to the church if he returned to a pastorate in a smaller community.

When he added that he thought his present position deprived him of what he described as "my freedom, many of the 400 commissioners to the assembly jumped to their feet.

ASKS EXPLANATION

Rev David Lane of Clinton, Ont., asked him to explain the remark.

"Does it mean that there has been some interference with him in his duties?" Mr. Lane asked.

James Dutton, chairman of the board of administrators, did not ask Dr. Miller to speak again but asked the assembly to appoint immediately a committee to study Dr. Miller's request with a view toward having him change his mind.

Describing Dr. Miller as a "financial genius," Mr. Dutton said that during his seven years in office givings to the church had increased more than $4,000,000.

CANNOT SEE IT

"Frankly I cannot see Dr. Miller going back into the pastorate," Mr. Dutton said. "I don't think he will be happy after doing this work."

In other business, the assembly voted Monday to start a campaign for $750,000 for improvement at Knox Theological College in Toronto and Presbyterian College in Montreal.

"We are not making a direct appeal to congregations," Moderator Dr. Walter T. McCree said. "We want to tap the pockets of moneyed members and big business who have not been approached directly before."

MAY USE HALL

LONDON (AP) — The ancient Great Hall of Westminster may be turned into a dormitory during the railway strike. Plans are under way to place mattresses in the 800-yard-old hall to provide a bed for members of the new Parliament convening this week who are unable to get any other accommodation in London.

Aerial Survey Will Be Made By Oshawa Firm

TORONTO (CP) — The photographic Survey Corporation of Toronto and Kenting Aviation Ltd. of Oshawa have been named to carry out the flying operations of a British government aerial survey expedition to the Antarctic this year.

Douglas Kendall, PSC-Kenting president, announced today that two company Cano amphibians will accompany the expedition to the remote territory of Graham Land peninsula, a dependency of the Falkland islands. Purpose of the undertaking is to obtain vertical air photo coverage of some 50,000 square miles of territory, to assist geological and other scientific investigations being carried on there.

The aircraft, which operate from a British mother ship, will also have airborne magnetometer and radiation detector provision to permit geophysical exploration.

The work will go on during the four months of Antarctic summer with the possibility of continuing another season.

Timmins Bus Service May End Saturday

TIMMINS (CP) — Timmins may be without bus service by Saturday midnight, it was announced today. Town council has met legal blocks in its attempt to provide a new bus service.

Jack Dalton Jr., owner of the present bus line, said last month that he would close down operations June 1, since he was losing money. He has extended the service to Saturday.

Mr. Dalton has offered to lend the town the buses and facilities it will need until it finds another company willing to take the service, but this is legally impossible, council learned Monday.

The town is negotiating with H. Berner of Kitchener to take over the franchise.

PLANE LANDS SAFELY

SHANNON, Ireland (AP)—A Pan American airliner with 40 persons aboard landed safely today after engine trouble forced it to turn back from a flight to New York. The plane was 420 miles out over the Atlantic when it turned back with its No. 3 engine out of operation.

SPEAKER AT CCF

For $15 per year per adult, and a maximum of $40 per year per family, Mr. Nicholson said the Sask. government's health plan provides free ward care, operating and ease room facilities, free dressings, X-ray, lab tests, drugs, anesthesia and blood plasma.

SPEAKS ON INSURANCE

He suggested that if the government of a depressed area could provide these services, it should be a simple matter to provide them in a rich province like Ontario "where big companies have their head offices, with larger payrolls.

He spoke of the air ambulance service which will fly sick persons to hospital from any part of the province for a charge of $25.

In speaking of auto insurance he said that for a $15 dicence fee, and a compulsory $20 charge, all motorists have insurance "that protects them and their neighbors."

He said the $200 deductible feature of Saskatchewan insurance is felt to be a deterrent to accident. Features of the program include collision, fire, flood, theft, riot, public liability insurance; passenger protection to $100,000 and property insurance of $5,000. Also included is $10,000 worth of insurance protection in case of fatalities and up to $3,000 per year for income protection.

Mr. Nicholson quoted private insurance company figures in the rest of the province that give the same coverage at more than twice the cost.

"There is no magic to it. We just don't have 100 different companies with highly paid agents trying to sell it. The issuer of licences completes the insurance sale. Cost of handling insurance is three per cent compared with 20 per cent commissions paid agents in other provinces.

"If the rank and file of the Conservative party supplied the wherewithal for election campaigns there would be no Dempsey getting money for allowing men to cut timber limits. If the people paid they would call the tune and the tune they would call would be for better health, better education, no unemployment and an increase in the standard of living.

"Some day righth will be recognized and the CCF will form the government," he said.

PROUD OF CONNECTION

Arthur C. Cole said he was amazed Premier Frost would quote a figure of $230,000,000 for highway expenditures "and dismayed that he did not offer one cent to assist the people of Ontario, or give them help."

"Building hospitals is no problem," said Mr. Cole. "It is easy with co-operative-minded persons working without the profit sign. The CCF believes human life is more valuable than the dollar bill. There is no such thing as dollars when the welfare of people is at stake."

Mr. Cole then spoke of the CCF's hospital program in Saskatchewan.

"I am proud of my connection with the CCF," he said. "In the early days of CCF I was put out of some of the best places in Belleville as a communist or a national fascist. I guess they have run out or adjectives now. I don't know what they call us. They are leaving us alone."

"The two old parties are like two thieves fighting each other. "We have no big slush funds for advertising. Our money comes from the working man and our constitution keeps it that way. When we are in Queen's Park we will have no ties to big companies, international cartels or corporations. We will be kind and just to those who have been unkind to us."

In speaking of the development of natural resources Mr. Cole said, "no government has the right to allow what happened recently in Marmora, where a big U.S. steel company came in and started shipping out iron ore to employ American workmen."

"The work should have been done in Marmora. Don't tell me it couldn't be done with 185,000 unemployed employable in Ontario."

"In the depression there was no money in Ontario to feed the hungry. When Hitler started a war there was money for instruments of destruction. Seventy-five per cent of manufacture went for destruction and we were told we were richer. Let us reverse the procedure and produce for construction, that will make us richer."

CHRISTIAN WAY BEST

Mr. Cole said that if communism is to be beaten "we have to believe the Christian way of life is better than communism. We can't tell Asians the Christian idea is better until our hands are clean. We can't tell them Christianity is better because we have old people in this country cold and hungry in the winter."

"There are no old people in Saskatchewan who are cold in winter and without medical aid. In Saskatchewan the people are governed by Christian people who are Christians seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

"If we inaugurate a minimum wage law and set a standard under which no family falls we would be doubly rich in welfare and conscience."

"We must master production for the welfare of the people and not for profit."

Mr. Cole called racial discrimination a "cancerous sore in our social life" and said that in Saskatchewan there was no racial discrimination "because there was a law with teeth in it" that made it unprofitable to discriminate against anyone because of race, creed or color.

William Mundrey said "the present government has been carried on a wave of prosperity for 12 years and that was not of tehir own making."

"We have reached so-called 'normal times' and the people realized it last winter with 600,000 unemployed in Canada. Unemployment is the greatest robber," he said, citing figures of losses caused by strikes, business failures, sickness and so forth.

SPEAKER ASKS QUESTION

"What is the cause of unemployment? Failure of the federal and provincial government to plan for full employment. We must have sound planning to provide work for those who can work. We must create work in construction, education and hospitals which eliminates unemployment and hardship on the lower income groups.

"We can wipe out unemployment by sound planning. Unemployment insurance does not solve unemployment."

"The CCF will put into effect within one year a complete hospital and insurance coverage for families in Ontario at a cost of $40 per family per year. They will establish sickness benefits for workers who are unemployed to look after their mortgages until they are re-established.

"The CCF will build 40,000 housing units for people who do not earn high wages."

"The CCF proposes public auto insurance which would cover driver's licence and plates for $20 for a 1952 model car and $10,000 protection for collision causing death."

Les Digby, official agent for the two candidates spoke briefly.

A. D. Archibald, chairman of the meeting, introduced the speakers.

Mr. Nicholson answered questions from the floor following the addresses.

Assails Claims Air Is Poisoned By Atomic Tests

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Lewis F. Strauss, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission said Monday it seems an "act of irresponsibility" for anyone to claim radiation from atomic tests is poisoning the air and guaranteeing "future generations of monsters."

"Actually," he said, "there is no evidence at this time to indicate that our weapons testing . . . has increased radiation levels . . . to any extent which would afford warranty for such extreme statements."

Strauss' remarks were in a speech prepared for the opening session of the annual meeting of the American Medical Association.

"In general," he said, "the increased radiation for all people everywhere, as a result of all tests to date—ours, Great Britain's and the Soviet's—has added only fractionally to the natural background radiation to which we all have been subjected since the beginning of time. This increase . . . has been about equal to that of one medical chest x-ray."

Charge Second Man For Robbery Of Skating Star

TORONTO (CP)—The second of three men accused of forcing Peter Firstbrook, 23, former skating partner of Barbara Ann Scott, to cash traveller's cheques in Toronto hotels Saturday, was charged by police Sunday night.

Clifford Monk, 22, of Toronto surrendered to police in a downtown hotel after he had telephoned them. He was taken to a police station and charged with robbery with violence, police said today.

Andy Brady, 22, of Hamilton was arrested on an armed robbery charge Saturday.

Firstbrook told police he was stopped by four men who asked him to drive an injured man to his home. One of the men showed a knife and demanded his money. He said they robbed him of $5 then discovered traveller's cheques in the car and forced him to drive to different hotels to cash them.

Medical Drug In Australian Plant Found

SYDNEY (CP) — Scientific research officers have found an important medical drug in an Australian plant.

It is reserpine used to treat high blood pressure and hypertension.

The research officers belong to Australia's scientific and research group known as the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research Organization.

They made the discovery during research into the pharmaceutical value of Australian plants. The minister in charge, R. G. Casey, said the officers found reserpine in a small tree known as rauvolfia constricta (bitter bark).

"The tree grows from 10 feet to 30 feet high and is found in large numbers on the northeast coast of Australia," said Casey.

"The discovery is expected to be of great value to Australia, both in making the drug available in greater quantities and more cheaply here, and in helping to overcome a world shortage of the drug."

How "Steering Wheel Farming" took the ache out of acres

More productive than its owner dreamed it could become, this rich farm-land gives no hint of the changes that have taken place in farming methods during the last fifteen years.

But the man behind the wheel—the man with all the memories of days when gangs of men toiled and sweated with horses and wagons and pitchforks to bring in the harvest—knows well the great changes the farm has seen.

Now with the tractor, the self-propelled combine, the self-propelled corn-picker and other "steering wheel" machines, every job on the farm has had applied to it mechanical helps similar to those that have lightened the work and increased the productivity of workers in the great industrial plants.

Steering wheel farming has ushered in a new era. It has made farming more pleasant and profitable. It has brought a higher standard of living in both town and country, for every Canadian benefits when farmers are prosperous.

Massey-Harris-Ferguson has played an important part in this great transformation. And today, on the drafting board, on the test track and on farms throughout the world, new "steering wheel" machines are being developed for the greater progress of modern agriculture.

Half the cost of bringing in rural lines has been paid for directly by the province. rural Hydro lines has been paid for directly by the province.

GRANTS TO MUNICIPALITIES

This year government grants to municipalities amount to $165 millions, or more than 44% of all provincial revenues. This large sum of money will help build new schools, hospitals, roads, bridges, community centres and other services. All this will be done at a saving of about one-third of all the local tax bills. The government of Ontario works with and for every municipality.

HEALTH . . .

Ontario's government has provided grants for 74 new homes for the aged. 25 Thousands new hospital beds, including Belleville. Ontario is the first province in Canada to provide pensions for the totally disabled and the blind at 18. Our program of polio vaccination has taken care of more students than any province in Canada, or for that matter any state in the U.S.A. In addition to this Ontario has provided $9,500,000 to establish the most modern cancer clinic in the world.

LABOR . . .

Ontario has without doubt the most advanced Labor Legislation in the worl dtoday. Out of 1,100 disagreements between management and labor last year, over 95% were settled by the Department of Labor without stoppage of work or publicity. With a few exceptions, the strikes were settled within 1 to 5 days. A wonderful record for this great industrial province.

National Party Figures Join Provincial Leaders in Final Speech-Making for Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pre-election word battles boiled to a political climax Monday night as national party figures joined provincial leaders in campaign thumping for the Thursday Ontario general election.

Here's what took place as the three major parties — Progressive Conservative, Liberal and CCF—centred activity in the Toronto area in perhaps the busiest day campaignwise since the election date was announced:

Premier Frost visited 19 of 20 Toronto and York ridings in a 12-hour tour, speaking with candidates and campaign workers.

George Hees, national Progressive Conservative Association president, Fred Gardiner, chairman of Toronto metropolitan council, and Mr. Frost, addressed a dinner in support of York South candidate, Bill Beech.

LIBERAL ACTIVITY

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver and federal Finance Minister Harris spoke to about 550 persons at Massey Hall in support of 20 Liberal candidates from Toronto, York county and Peel.

Mr. Frost, Mr. Oliver, CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald and Kelso Roberts, chairman of the Ontario legislature's highways investigation committee, all spoke on radio or television hook-ups—or both.

Mr. Hees told the Conservative dinner that Canada would be a better place to live in if the Liberal government at Ottawa would give government such as Premier Frost and his party has given in Ontario.

The Conservatives should and will be re-elected Thursday because they have given good government, he said.

Mr. Frost told the gathering of 200 persons his party is treated and viewed as the people's party. It came to the people with a great platform of projects accomplished or under way. He forecast greater expansion and development in the province and a further increase in the standard of living of its people.

IN "COMIC BOOKS"

Mr. Beach, who is being opposed in oYrk South by Mr. MacDonald, said the promises of the Liberal party in Ontario should be put in comic books where they belong.

Mr. Gardiner lashed out at the Tiding's Liberal candidate in Crockford, reeve of Scarborough township. He described Mr. Crockford as a Conservative candidate in a previous election who says now he was inveigled into running on the Conservative ticket.

"One who was taken in so easily does not seem to be a good candidate for York Scarborough," he said.

In a free-time CBC radio and television address over provincial networks, Mr. Frost asked the people of Ontario for a mandate to go ahead with his government's "program of progress."

EXPANDING ECONOMY

"In Ontario we are an expanding economy," he said. "We are growing and changing. Because of our favored position, our fine people, our natural resources, the finger of the future is pointed to us."

Earlier, during his whirlwind tour of campaign quarters, the premier indicated he is confident his party will be returned to power.

"I am confident in the cause I represent and in the unerring good judgment of the people of Ontario" he said.

Mr. Harris told the Massey Hall audience that 1955 will be the best year financially in Canada's history. The gross national product, yardstick for measuring the total value of the country's production, is higher than at any time in the past, he said.

The excellent financial position of Canada today is due to the soundness of Liberal policies during the last 19 years, Mr. Harris said.

OLIVER CONFIDENT

Mr. Oliver, winding up a four-week, 3,500-mile campaign tour, said he was never more confident of victory and predicted that many Conservative supporters will vote Liberal because they feel "the Queen's Park clique" has gone too far the wrong way.

He said many Conservative and CCF supporters will "join hands" with the Liberals. The only chance the present government had of surviving was if the anti-government vote was split. The Liberal leader arrived too late for the meeting, after appearing on a provincial television network earlier. Party supporters waved banners and posters and raised a shout when he entered the hall.

NEWSPAPER PREDICTION

The Liberal leader said a Toronto newspaper has predicted he will win from 21 to 34 seats in the election. "I remember 1934 when the Liberals were given only 25 seats at the most and in the election, swept the province," Mr. Oliver said.

He referred to Premier Mitchell Hepburn's sweeping Liberal victory in the 1934 elections in which the Progressive Conservative party was pushed from power.

Paying tribute to the three women Liberal candidates seeking a seat June 9, he said a Liberal government in Ontario would have the first woman Liberal cabinet minister.

Earlier, in a radio broadcast over a Toronto station (CBL), the 51-year-old Liberal leader said next to political morality the big issue in the election is the excessive cost of municipal government and education.

"The Liberals will ease the burden on the householder—the Progressive Conservatives won't," he said. "It's as simple as that."

CLAIMS POLICIES THE SAME

Mr. MacDonald, speaking in a free-time broadcast over an Ontario network of CBC and privately-owned radio and television stations, said the Conservatives and Liberals stand basically for the same policies in Ontario.

"Basically they represent the same economic groups and for both of them, the people's needs come second."

Mr. MacDonald said that during the campaign the Conservatives "have continued to drag the moral level of Ontario politics toward an all-time low."

The main argument used by government spokesmen was that "if you want anything for your area you'd better vote for the government."

HITS "WEAK" OPPOSITION

Criticizing the Liberals as official Opposition during the last legislature, Mr. MacDonald said that "rarely, if ever, has the Ontario legislature had such a weak, such a pathetic Opposition. The government has grown lazy on the job, but the Liberal Opposition has grown even lazier.

The CCF, he said, has grown to be the only effective alternative to the Conservative party.

Mr. Roberts spoke over a Toronto radio station (CKFH), saying he knows of no evidence hidden from the public concerning alleged irregularities in road contracts.

"There was no closing off of witnesses as has been repeatedly charged by the leader of the Liberal Opposition and spokesmen for his party in this campaign. . ." he said.

"I know of no evidence supporting the line the leader of the Opposition and his spokesmen are taking at this time in alleging the existence of evidence which has been hidden from the public."

Today the campaign narrows down. Premier Frost will deliver an address at Oshawa, Mr. Oliver goes to Hamilton for a parade and a meeting, and Mr. MacDonald will stump in his own riding of York South.

Will Aid Fishermen

OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation is in the making to provide government-guaranteed bank loans to commercial fishermen needing money to buy or repair boats and other equipment.

Mr. Sinclair, opening debate on a preliminary resolution, said the loans will be at five-per-cent interest and on a medium-term basis of from two to eight years.

Auto Union Will Soon Seek Conciliation in G. M. Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — The United Automobile Workers (CIO) plans to apply soon for provincial government conciliation services in settling contract demands with General Motors of Canada for a guaranteed annual wage, it was announced Monday night.

The UAW, which won partial success in the United States by obtaining a guaranteed semi-annual wage at the Ford Motor Company, has made the same demand for a guaranteed annual wage in the General Motors' Canadian subsidiary as was originally presented to Ford and GM in the U.S.

The UAW negotiations with GM in Canada have been held off and on since April 14. Monday night George Burt, Canadian director of the union said government conciliation services will probably be sought next week.

Both company and union have agreed to continue negotiations on the guaranteed annual wage and many other contract improvements sought by the union during the lengthy conciliation procedure.

Negotiators have held back on the GAW pending developments in the U.S. Officials said Monday night they still expect no quick decision from Canadian General Motors since the wage plan still is being thrashed out with the U.S. parent company. The UAW settlement Monday affected only Ford.

The Canadian UAW's demands call for a contribution by the employer of four per cent of his payroll each year for five years until a 20-per-cent fund has been built up.
